"THE FINAL RECKONING"

POINT ANNE FIELDS STRONG BALL TEAM

Clash With Canadian Generals Here in First Round of O.B.A.A. Playoffs.

Heralded as the team strong enough to bring the Ontario Intermediate baseball championship to Central Ontario, Point Anne, champions of the Bay of Quinte loop, will be seen at Exhibition Park tomorrow afternoon in a first-round O.B.A.A. contest with Canadian Generals, in the East Peterborough League.

Point Anne will undoubtedly present a formidable front with "Hoot" Gibson on the firing line and "Soup" Goyer behind the bat. Gibson formed part of the shock troops when Walkerville Chicks lost everything including their shirts in the memorable senior chapionship series two years ago, Walter Gerow's fine ball club from Belleville winning the prize. Last year Gibson was with St. George's of Toronto and this season found him with Point Anne along with a number of other well known and capable ball players. Included in the lineup are Pointer, a southpaw heaver formerly with Belleville, Buck who has seen service with Kingston and Deloro and was with the latter club last season; the two Green brothers, and Bennett from Belleville and several other players from near and distant points, all of whom know their baseball, including the inside tricks of the summer pastime. The infield is said to be fast and finished, and along with a trio of classy fly-chasers can produce a batting punch that takes high-class pitching and defense work to stop.

Canadian Generals should be in real shape for a hard battle after coming out of their six-game series with the Crescents. The game will be played at Exhibition Park commencing at three o'clock, with Umpires Kay and LeBarr in charge. Colling and Gerow will work in the second contest at Point Anne next Wednesday.

GENEVA PROSPEROUS.

Among the strongest supporters of the League of Nations are the merchants and other citizens of Geneva and vicinity to whom the League has brought riches beyond their roziest dreams. It is said that rights to do business there have become veritable gold mines. Poor people do not visit the Swiss city. In addition to the well-paid clerical and administrative staffs of the executive officers, thousands of well-to-do foreigners visit there every year. Summer and winter are equally prosperous.

MONTREAL WINS TORONTO TROPHY

Defeat Canada Club Rink in Final After Interesting Contest

BY CLOSE SCORES.

TORONTO, Aug. 22.—Defeating W. Dickinson's Canada Club rink in the final after a nip-and-tuck struggle, Willie Brown's Montreal Westmount rink captured the Toronto Trophy, the third ring competition of the Dominion Lawn Bowling Association tournament yesterday afternoon. The Montrealer's victory made the second for out-of-town rinks in the cup competitions this week, Milton having won the Ontario Cup on Wednesday.

The Toronto Cup final was witnessed by a large gallery and unlike the other two rink finals, it was not decided until the last end. The final score was 20 to 19.

The finals in the primary doubles, Willison doubles and the R. B. Rice singles event will be played today, bringing the tournament to a successful conclusion. Fine weather, good sportsmanship and keen bowling have all contributed their share to making the tourhament one of the most successful in the history of the association.

Yesterday's scores were,

Owen Carroll Released To the Toledo Club

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—Owen Carroll, right-handed pitcher, has been released on option to the Toledo club of the American Association, the New York Yankees announced yesterday.

Carroll, a native of New Jersey, after a sensational career at Holy Cross, was obtained by the Detroit Tigers in 1925, and played with Toronto in 1926. Two months ago he came to the Yankees in a deal that sent Waite Hoyt and Mark Koenig to Detroit, and brought George Westling and Harry Rice to the Yankees.

Carroll won no games for the Yankees.

C.G.E. AVERAGES.

Batting averages for the Canadian General club in the six games of the championship series with Crescents show that the Electrics did very well against the good pitching of Hardill and Masterson. The champions were partial to three-base clouts, getting seven triples and three doubles. The triple wafters were Ash with two, Johnston, who also had a double, Swanston, Beavis and Harmer. Rose is the only regular player under a mark of .200, but the management ceased worrying about the lack of hitting when the veteran came through with his remarkable pitching performance to tie up the series. Here are the batting averages:

	G.	A.B.	H.	Aver.
Smith	4	12	4	.333
Swanston	6	22	7	.318
L. Hollingsworth	4	14	4	.286
Beavis	4	14	4	.286
Johnston	4	14	4	.286
Ash	6	28	8	.285
Hatton	2	4	1	.250
Utronki	5	17	4	.236
H. Hollingsworth	6	22	5	.227
Harmer	6	20	4	.200

New York Americans Make $50,000 Bid To Buy King Clancy from Ottawa Club

OTTAWA, Aug. 22.—New York Americans have bid $50,000 for King Clancy, star defenceman of the Ottawa hockey team, it was learned yesterday. Various teams in the National League have made offers, but New York is the highest bidder, club officials stated.

For some time rumors have been afoot that Clancy, Alex. Connell and other members of The Senators' team might be sold or traded, and in a statement yesterday, Major F. B. Burpee, president of the club, stated it might be necessary to sell some of the more valuable men in order that the team could carry itself financially. He explained that for several years the Ottawa team had been losing money.

MONTREAL, Aug. 22.—A rumor published here that the Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League, might send Jimmy Ward, wing player, and a sum of money to the Ottawa Senators for King Clancy, flashy defenceman, was denied by Dunc Munro, Maroons' manager.

Munro admitted Maroons were after Clancy but were not prepared to meet the large amount reported to be demanded by the Ottawa club. He stated that his club was not prepared to go beyond $35,000, adding, however that this figure was not official.

Violet Davidson's Team Wins Tennis Tourney

Keen Competition is Feature of Contests on Local Club Courts.

Winning seven matches out of twelve, a team of youthful racquet wielders captained by Violet Davidson ,triumphed over an aggregation headed by Vernon Armstrong at the Peterborough Tennis Club courts yesterday afternoon. Many fast, hard-fought contests were provided by the contestants.

Arrangements for the matches were made by a committee composed of Jim Turner, Violet Davidson and Vernon Armstrong.

In the ladies' single, Isobel Davidson and Violet Davidson each scored wins for the Davidson squad, defeating Gwen Hewett and Margaret Rogers. The count was evened in this event when Alicia Langley fell before Betsy Scott and Verna Huffman were defeated by Connie Legon.

Neil McKenzie took a win from Art Wood in the men's singles, but Vern Armstrong won back the loss for his squad in a return match with Mckenzie. Betsy Scott and Connie Legon played a couple of skilful sets to put out Beverly Rogers and Alicia Langley in the ladies' doubles. Margaret Rogers and Ruth McKee were defeated by Peggy Scott and Sybil Sharpe in the same event. The Davidson team gained points, however, when Isobel Davidson and Verna Huffman put out Margaret Rogers and Connie Legon in the doubles, and Isobel Davidson with Evelyn Armstrong downed Gwen Hewett and Margaret Rogers.

The mixed doubles were the features of the afternoon play. Neil McKenzie and Jeanette Allin combined to beat Evelyn Armstrong and Gordon Dearborn. Violet Davidson and Art Wood fell before Jean Harvey and Vernon Armstrong.

EUROPEAN STARS WELL UP IN PLAY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Aug. 22 (C.P.)—The girls who are attempting to keep the National Women's Tennis championship in the United States found themselves strictly on the defensive to-day.

The foreign stars, Betty Nuthall of England and Baroness Georgio Giacomo Levi of Italy, shared the semi-final round brackets with the last two surviving Americans, Mrs. Anna Harper of Los Angeles and Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., and judged on their play in the previous rounds, held an excellent chance of success.

The 19-year-old English star has yet to lose a set, a record approached by none of the other three. In the four matches in which she has been engaged, "Bounding Betty" has dropped a total of only eight games for an average of two per match. On the basis of these facts she was a clear-cut favorite to-day to defeat Miss Morrill in their semi-final encounter.

SHADES OF TONE
PHILCO TONE-CONTROL

Philco Tone-Control
Just turn this knob to bring in programs your way—with any one of three tone values. At last you control station tone. You can listen to music as you like it. Speech can be more distinct. Interference noises almost vanish. And for stations blank in your neighborhood, you can reduce stridency and enjoy them more properly.

THE LOWBOY

THE HIGHBOY

Famous for its own perfect tone, Philco now adds perfection of tone from the radio station—subject to your control simply by the turn of a knob on the front of the set.

Now with Philco Tone-Control, you can bring in music, great artists, great speakers, your way—with the one quality you like best.

Yet further, you can turn the Philco Tone-Control to "mellow" and bring in a prelude played by the great Philco Symphony Orchestra in dreamy, luscious tones. Turn to "brilliant" and jazz bands are crisp and snappy, or turn to "deep" and they croon and whisper at a touch of your hand.

Philco Tone-Control is an addition to all the great features which gave Philco the leadership it still holds. Balanced Units and the wonderful life-like tone they produce are retained. And Philco also offers its new, exclusive circuits producing that marvellous selectivity which gives fine tuning anywhere on the dial.

Power and distance-ability are extraordinary. In the new Philco Screen Grid Plus you have Automatic Volume Control which counteracts fading so you can not only get but hold and enjoy out-of-town programs, near and far. And Philco has added a Station Recording Dial on which you can permanently log your favorite stations.

The two new Philco Sets—Philco Screen Grid and Philco Screen Grid Plus—are enclosed in Consoles, Lowboys, Highboys, and Radio-Phonographs—cabinets which will delight your eye and satisfy your most exacting desire for beautiful furniture. See them today at your nearest Philco dealer's. He will be delighted to give you a free demonstration, without obligation. All models have Philco Tone-Control. Operate it for yourself and learn what radio's newest miracle means to your greater home entertainment.

$5,000 DAMAGE IN BARN FIRE

Crops of Noble Dunn, East of Mariposa, Totally Destroyed.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

LINDSAY, Aug. 22 (Special to Examiner)—Fire, resulting in a loss of $5,000, totally destroyed the barn and contents on the farm of Noble Dunn, about a mile east of Mariposa Station on Wednesday.

The contents of the barn held the seasons crop of grain, hay and alsike. A litter of young pigs were also restroyed.

The cause of the fire is a mystery. Mr. Dunn and his hired man were engaged about the barn grinding corn when the fire was noticed. The neighbors were notified by phone and the Oakwood and Little Britain fire brigades summoned. The fire fighters centred their efforts towards saving the house and driving shed. In this they were successful, although some of the farm implements were destroyed. Mr. Dunn had some insurance on the barn, but his loss will be heavy.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AT THE SEASHORE.

"All aboard! All aboard!" called Uncle Wiggily one morning as he stood out in front of his hollow stump bungalow. "All aboard, everybody!"

"My goodness!" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, "any one would think you had a train out there, Mr. Longears, instead of your automobile."

"Maybe I'd better go get a train to make sure I can take all my forty sixteen little rabbit boys and girls to the seashore," spoke Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "For it hardly seems possible that I can pack them all into one auto," and he looked at the car and then at the stream of bunny children pouring out of the bungalow.

"Oh, we can sit close, Daddicums!" said Jingle.

"On each other's laps," added Jangle.

"I'm not going to be left, anyhow!" cried Baby Bunty, the orphan rabbit; and, with a run and a jump, she landed on the back seat of the automobile, which was all ready to take Uncle Wiggily and his family to the seashore.

"Don't forget your wife, Mr. Longears!" warned Nurse Jane, as the bunny uncle started to sit behind the steering wheel.

"Oh, indeed, I'll not leave her behind nor you either, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy," promised Uncle Wiggily. "I guess we can all crowd in, somehow. All aboard!

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

Aug.18,22,27

All aboard!" he cried again like a train conductor.

Mrs. Longears came hopping out of the bungalow carrying a lot of clean pocket handkerchiefs in one paw and a lot of bottles of carrot milk in the other, for her many bunny children who were going to the seashore. It was so hot in Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountains, that Uncle Wiggily had decided, the day before, to go to the ocean.

When the auto had been piled as full as it would hold of rabbit boys and girls, of bundles and packages, of Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears, Uncle Wiggily started off.

"Do you think the children will be lonesome for their pussy cat, puppy dog, squirrel, goat and duck playmates?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his wife as they rolled along.

"Oh, no," she answered with a smile, "they will not be lonesome! Just take a look!" So Uncle Wiggily took a look and coming along the road back of him were other automobiles. One was driven by Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman, and with him was fat Mrs. Twistytail, Curly and Floppy, the boy pigs and little Squeakie Squealer, the baby pig. And back of the Twistytail auto was another with Mr. and Mrs. Bushytail, the squirrels, and Johnnie and Billie. Back of them were more autos with many of the animal families that lived around Uncle Wiggily's bungalow.

"All our neighbors are going to the seashore just as we are," said Mrs. Longears to her husband, "so the children will have all their playmates with them on the sand."

"That will be fine!" Uncle Wiggily said as he steered the auto along the road that led to the seashore. "We'll have some jolly times!"

"Oh, stop, stop!" all of a sudden squeaked Nurse Jane.

"What's the matter—did I run over somebody?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"No, but Tootsie bounced out when you went over that last bump," said the muskrat lady. "Wait, I'll run back and pick her up."

Tootsie was soon in the auto again. She was so fat that bouncing out hadn't hurt her and when Nurse Jane picked her up Tootsie was nibbling clover at the side of the road.

Then they went on again, farther and farther. They stopped for lunch near a shady grove of trees and, after resting, traveled on again. Soon it began to get dark and Mrs. Longears said:

"I'm afraid we are on the wrong road, Wiggy. I don't remember this place and I don't smell the ocean."

"Oh, are we lost? Where is the seashore?" cried the little bunnies.

"Hush, my dear," said Uncle Wiggily, trying to make his pink nose twinkle brighter like a flash light, so he could see where they were. "We'll soon be at the seashore."

He made the automobile go faster and, all of a sudden, it ran upon a stretch of sand. The sand was so soft and deep that the auto wheels sank down. The machine came to a stop so suddenly that half a dozen of the little rabbit boys and girls bounced out. And Buster cried:

"Here we are! It's all right! We're at the seashore! Hurray! We're at the seashore!"

"How do you know?" asked Uncle Wiggily, peering through the dark. "How can you tell we are at the seashore, Buster?"

"Cause I splashed into some water and it's salty—I tasted it," said the boy rabbit. "We're at the seashore all right."

"Thank goodness!" murmured Nurse Jane, uncoiling her long tail.

MYSTERIOUS MISS DOLLAR GOES SHOPPING ON TWIN DOLLAR DAYS

Ten Dollars Will Be Given to the Person Discovering the Elusive Lady as She Visits the Stores

To-day and to-morrow the merchants of Peterborough are holding their annual Summer Community Dollar Day. Between eighty and ninety of the best business houses in the city are presenting a simultaneous array of bargains, never surpassed and probably never equalled, on any previous event of the kind. The aim of the merchants each Dollar Day is to beat the former record, and the thrifty buying public can confidently expect to see a few dollars do better buying on this occasion than ever before. To add to the interest of the two big days, Mysterious Miss Dollar will mingle with the shopping crowds until some one discovers and captures her, thereby earning the Examiner's special prize of $10 in cash.

The elusive lady was out on her shopping rounds to-day between 9 a.m. and 5.30 p.m., and to-morrow, if not captured before, will be out during the same hours, with the addition of an evening trip from 8 to 9 o'clock.

As soon as Miss Dollar is captured a bulletin will be posted in front of The Examiner to end the chase, but the lady is going to be hard to catch.

Miss Dollar will go from store to store and must be captured in one of the Dollar Day stores, not on the street. Also to make her admit that you are right, you must show her this story about her, cut out of The Examiner. Just say, 'You are The Examiner's Mysterious Miss Dollar, and here's the story about you from the paper." That's all—find the lady; she may be shopping right beside you, because, of course, she is just as anxious to profit by the bargains as you are. But be sure and clip this story from The Examiner, and have it in your purse or pocket. It's worth $10 in cash to the one that finds her but all conditions must be complied with.

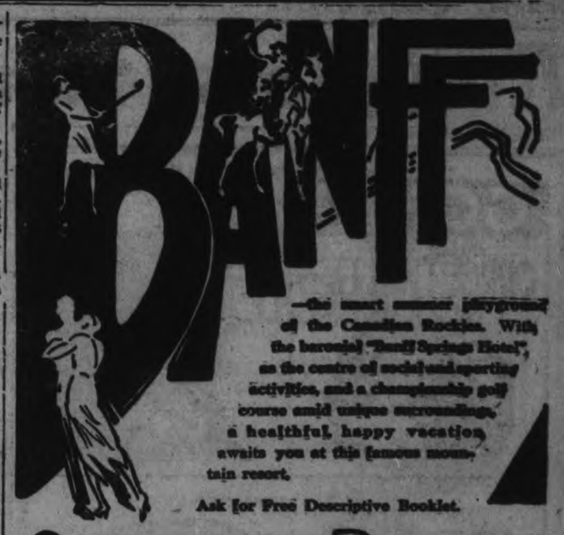
From time to time bulletins will be posted in front of The Examiner telling of some distinguishing feature of dress or outfit Miss Dollar is wearing.



Two establishments where medical advice is promised from the other world the fee being $5 a week, seances, have been opened in London.

WIND DAMAGE IS EVERYONE'S CONCERN

Second only to fire in capacity for destructiveness, high winds wreak damage almost everywhere, at almost any time.

June, "Month of Roses," has a bad record for windstorms. And there is no insurance against such destruction as may be wrought by gales and tornadoes except a specific Windstorm Policy. However, the cost is very moderate, as we'll be glad to prove.

the average city in Canada, he claimed.

In an interview with The Examiner this morning Hugh Robertson, manager of the local office of the Employment Services of Canada opined that unless a sudden change in conditions comes about, the unemployment problem in this city will become more serious later in the year. No definite predictions on the situation can be made until it is seen what action the Government is to take, he said.

The factories in the city have show no tendency to pick up in the last two months, Mr. Robertson reported. If anything they have slackede off somewhat. Most of the larger factories are operating full time but with staffs reduced considerably below normal.

The demand for farm labor is decidedly below normal. This is partly because the unemployed are themselves going through the country and seeking work and partly because the farmers are doing with less outside assistance this summer, Mr. Robertson said.

There is a surplus of female labor, which will probably be cut down when the Fall season begins. Some women whose husbands are out of work are seeking employment in an endeavor to help out family expenses.

POET LAUREATE WRITES LETTER TO LIBRARIAN

John Masefield Acknowledges Poem Sent Him By F. M. Dela Fosse.

THE SIEGE OF BELGRAVE.

Poem Searched For Over World Found in Peterborough Library.

A letter received yesterday by F. M. Dela Fosse, Librarian of the Peterborough Public Library, penned by the hand of John Masefield, Britain's Poet Laureate, is not only a fine mark of courtesy from one of the world's leading men of letters, but adds another feather to the cap of local bibliographers. The letter is an ackowledgement of the receipt of a copy of an old poem which Mr. Masefield had tried in vain to secure in the Old Country and which Mr. Dela Fosse, through a clipping from the London Times, was able to secure from the shelves of the Library here.

It appears that a friend of Mr. Masefield's in Delhi, India, had tried for some time to secure a copy of a set of verses entitled, "The Siege of Belgrade." He knew that the poem, if such it could be called, had been written at the beginning of the last century and that it was an alliterative piece with a line for each letter of the alphabet. Unsuccessful in his quest, he finally wrote to the Poet Laureate, asking if he knew where the verses could be obtained. Mr. Masefield, who was not familiar with the verses sought, wrote to the London Times, requesting the readers of that publication to help him in the search.

A copy of the Times letter was forwarded to the Librarian here by his cousin in England. Taking recourse to the files of Peterborough's Library the Librarian located a copy of the work in a 4,000-page anthology recently added to the shelves. He copied the poem and forwarded it to the Poet Laureate.

The letter of acknowledgement — which is written on a piece of plain, blue, heavy-stock notepaper—is traced in ink in the poet's small, neat hand, and is very brief. It reads:

Dear Sir,

Many thanks for so kindly sending me the poem.

Thank you, too, for your kind congratulations.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) J. Masefield.

The last paragraph is in reply to the Librarian's expressions of congratulation on Mr. Masefield's recent appointment to the Laureateship.

The poem—found under the "Just Nonsense" section of the local Library's big anthology—is an amazingly clever piece of alliterative writing, according to Mr. Dela Fosse, even if it is not a literary masterpiece. The writer is Alaric Alexander Watts, who is dated 1797-1864, but whose name has no particular significance in the history of English literature.

The Siege of Belgrade

An Austrian Army, awfully arrayed,
Boldly by battery besieged Belgrade;
Cossack commanders cannonading come,
Dealing Destruction's devastating doom.
Every endeavor engineers essay
For fame, for fortune,—fighting furious fray:
Generals 'gainst generals grapple — gracious God
How honours heaven heroic hardihood
Infuriate, indiscriminate in ill,
Kindred kill kinsmen. — Kinsmen kindred kill!
Labour low levels loftiest, longest, lines;
Men march 'mid mounds, 'mid moles, 'mid murderous mines.
Now noisy, noxious numbers notice naught:
Of outward obstacles opposing ought:
Poor patriots, partly purchased, partly pressed,
Quite quailing, quaking, quickly quarter quest.
Reason returns, religious right redounds,
Suwarrow stops such sanguinary sounds:
Truce to thee, Turkey—triumph to thy train!
Unjust, unwise, unmerciful Ukraine!
Vanish vain victory! Vanish victory vain!
We wish we warfare? Wherefore welcome were Xerxes, Ximenes, Zanthus, Xaviere?
Zeno's Zarpatus', Zoroaster's zeal,
All, all arouse! all against arms appeal!

continuous bickering and open flare ups of international feeling," stated one. "I seriously doubt if the Olympics bring about that spirit of goodwill for the fostering of which they were originated."

"On the other hand here," he continued, "there has been nothing but the finest feeling. Cheers ring out tumultuously for every winner whether he be Canadian, English or New Zealander. The finest sportsmanship prevails. I tell you," he declared emphatically, "these games will do more to cement the bonds of Empire than any other single force."

Three times yesterday the red rose of England flashed to the front and three more championships were added to the string that has been run up by the sons of Albion. South Africa equalled England's honors for the day. Scotland won the other track event, the premier race of the big day the marathon.

Nothing could be more impressive than the hailing of the victors. As each winner is declared, he is placed upon a raised dais in the center of the stadium's infield. His guard of honor is two British soldiers, both in the brilliant uniforms of the regulars. One is a Highlander. A bugle rings out. The spectators thronging the stadium rise as one man to their feet. Then the band plays the national anthem of that particular part of the Empire to which the victor belongs. Slowly the winner and his immediate raise their right arms to full length in the old Grecian. It is thus that the Greeks over two thousand years ago acclaimed their champions upon Mount Olympus, but they also crowned him with a laurel wreath.

After Tarzan left the tribe of apes, it was torn by continual strife and confusion. Terkoz, now their king, proved a cruel and capricious leader. In desperation the apes decided to turn him out. So one day as he returned to the tribe, five huge, hairy beasts sprang upon him.

At heart Terkoz was a coward. So he did not remain to fight and die. Tearing himself away, he fled, foaming with rage and hatred, into the jungle. Several days he wandered aimlessly. Swinging from tree to tree, this horrible, man-like beast came suddenly upon the two women.

He was right above them when Jane saw him, his awful face thrust within a foot of her. One piercing scream escaped her ere the brute had clutched her arm. Then another mood seized him. He leaped into the trees, bearing Jane to a fate a thousand times worse than death.

Jane did not once lose consciousness as she was borne farther into the impenetrable jungle. The scream that brought Clayton stumbling through the underbrush had led Tarzan of the Apes straight to where lay the fainting Esmeralda. His ape training told him plainly the whole story. He instantly gave chase.

On he sped in the track of Terkoz and his prey. Terkoz heard and was spurred to greater effort. Three miles were covered before Tarzan overtook them. Seeing flight was futile, Terkoz dropped groundward. Tarzan bounded like a leopard into the open glade. Terkoz turned to fight for his prize.

Hon. George S. Henry To Travel Over Road

KINGSTON, Aug. 22.—(Special to The Examiner).—Efforts are being made through the Prince Edward County Board of Trade to have Hon. George H. Henry, Minister of Highways, take a trip over the Shore road from Picton to Kingston to see for himself the beautiful scenic route and the poor condition of the road which passes through it. It is hoped to have the Minister of Highways do something towards making this road a provincial highway. It is proposed to have dinner for the visitors from Picton and elsewhere in Kingston following their arrival.

WEDDING BELLS

GANDY—NAISH

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, August 20 at two o'clock at George Street United Church when Lilian, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Naish, Lock street, became the bride of Leslie George, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gandy, Water street.

In the absence of the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, of Murray Street Baptist Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked lovely in a gown of eggshell chiffon and radium lace with a lace picture hat and white shoes, hose and gloves. She carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Florence Marshal was gowned in a frock of peach georgette with hat to match and carried a bouquet of Brair Cliff roses.

Mr. Laurence McDonald supported the groom.

After the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents to about sixty guests.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Gandy left by motor for a trip to Toronto, Midland and Wasaga Beach. The bride traveling in brown crepe ensemble with hat to match. On their return they will reside in Galt.

The groom's gift to the bride was a modernistic pendant, to the bridesmaid a ring, to the best man a pair of cuff links and to the soloist a brooch.

OBITUARY

HIRAM LONG

The funeral of Hiram Long, who passed away at his late residence, 258 Antrim street, was held this afternoon from Comstock's funeral home to the Little Lake cemetery. The service was conducted by Adjutant Jones of the Salvation Army.

The late Mr. Long, who was born in Bruce township, and who has lived in this city for the past twenty-five years, leaves his wife and two brothers, George and Lawn, both of Uxbridge; also one sister, Mrs. Simpson, of Toronto.

JOHN WILLIAM BUTCHER.

The funeral will be held from his home, 85 Wolseley street, Saturday, August 23rd, 1930. Interment in the Little Lake cemetery. Please omit flowers.

BEATTY PREDICTS

now experiencing a recession in business, due in part to world-wide conditions and in part to those peculiar to this continent and to this Dominion; in which, as during the war and the years immediately succeeding it, we are confronted with a situation requiring of our public men and our commercial leaders confidence, courage and prudence," said Mr. Beatty.

In expressing confidence in the ability of Canada to pass safely through the present situation, the speaker mentioned Empire trade among the plans which might be discussed in the effort to restore normal conditions.

Interchange of Products.

With reference to Canadas interest in Empire trade, Mr. Beatty declared: "I do not believe this question will be settled in any other way than through fair reciprocal interchange of products, advantageous to each portion of the Empire. There may be a natural tendency of business men of Great Britain to enquire as they have enquired, "What are you in Canada going to do for us, the question will always be "What are we going to do for each other and how can we best do it?"

The Canadian National Exhibition was described by Mr. Beatty as the "greatest annual Exhibition on this, or I believe, on any other continent," and as giving "in miniature an idea of the extent and variety of Canadian activities."

SOUTH-END CUBS WIN 15-10 TILT

B. Boom Proves Sensation in Right Field on Exhibition Softball Fixture.

An exciting intermediate softball game between the South-end Cubs and Lockworks Nine resulted in the score of 15-10 for the former. The game was exciting from start to finish and Boom made the sensational catch of the evening.

B. Westbrook turned in a nice game at short, going back for long drives time after time. Fred Elliott pitched a steady game for the Cubs. There were three nice hits of the game, Heal getting two home runs and G. Connors one. The Umpires were C. Connors at the plate and A. Field on bases.

The line-ups were:

Lockworks Nine—M. Cascavella, c; C Nichols, p.; G. Connors, 1b.; L. Hunt, 2b.; Nicholas, 3b.; B. Westbrook, ss.; T. Prete, lb; Archambault, cf.; T. Westbrook, rf.

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

RECORD GOES UP

A despatch from Bridgenorth informs the world that the tree-sitting record has been boosted to a still more formidable mark by the two youthful aerialists, Donald Huffman and James Nicholas who held the former record. To accomplish this feat they sat in a small cedar tree on Lewis Fowler's farm for seven and one-half hours, one and one-half hours longer than their former time. Their dinner was sent up to them and they killed the time by reading, singing and playing the mouth-organ.

It might be considered ungentle to remind the younger generation that in a few days any attempts at sitting records will have to be made on hard hickory school benches.

FAMOUS DRIVER HAS CLOSE CALL AS CAR UPSETS

30 LAP CIRCUIT.

BELFAST, Ireland, August 23 (C.P.). — Kaye Don, one of Great Britain's noted motor racers, suffered a broken rib and his mechanic was seriously injured when their car overturned and caught fire in the 410-mile Ulster Tourist Trophy race of the Royal Automobile Club to-day.

The British driver, who only a few months ago went to America in an attempt to establish a new world's speed record, narrowly escaped death in the crash.

Capt. Waite Crashes.

Another accident marred the race over the tortuous circuit of thirty laps, when Captain A. R. Waite received a severe concussion as his car mounted a bank and overturned.

Thirty-six cars started in the event, driven by experts from Germany, Great Britain, and Italy. Three Italians were leading this mid-afternoon in the hair-raising event.

RESERVE LAND SWEPT BY FIRE

MOTORIST BLAMED.

(By Staff Reporter.)

MUD LAKE RESERVE, Aug. 23.—Forty acres of reserve land on a lot belonging to Dan Whetung was burned over in a fire which began early yesterday afternoon and was not under control until 7 o'clock last night at the Mud Lake Indian Reserve in Smith township. Although the fire threatened to consume a stand of pines to the west, it was confined as a result of the stubborn efforts of fifteen volunteer fire fighters from the reserve to a tract of pasture land and only stumps and bushes were destroyed.

The lot being immediately on the south side of the road leading into the reserve, it is thought that a cigarette butt tossed away by a passing motorist started the conflagration. It began close to the road and burned against a slight east wind across the lot and it would probably have assumed more serious proportions if the wind had been any stronger.

As soon as the alarm was answered, back-firing was begun. Although completely under check, the pine stumps on the lot were still burning this morning. A great volume of smoke from the fire attracted curious investigators from miles around.

Sir Joseph Ward Leaves Big Estate

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 23. (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters). The late Sir Joseph Ward, twice prime minister of New Zealand and holder, during a long political career, of many port folios, left an estate of 300,000 pounds sterling, or about $1,450,000.

Sir Joseph resigned his second premiership this year on finding his health—he was 74—unable to meet the strain. He was known as "the grand old man" of New Zealand.

Rebels Threaten Leguia Government

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 23. (A.P.)—A serious military revolt in Southern Peru to-day threatened the administration of President Augusto B. Leguia.

The garrison at Arequipa, third city of the republic, was at the helm of the movement. Revolting under the leadership of their officers the garrison arrested the civil and military chiefs of the department and to-day was in complete control there.

The government was said officially to be taking appropriate steps. there were reports that these involved sending of a fleet to Mollendo, port nearby to Arequipa, and in moving aircraft against the city itself.

AUTO BURGLARS CRASH ON CURVE ONE IS KILLED

Unknown White Man and Negro Found on Kitchener-Guelph Highway.

HIT POLE IN DARK.

KITCHENER, Ont., Aug. 23 (C.P.)—An unknown white man lies dead in the Lippert and Hunter undertaking parlor here, and Albert Jacobs, colored, lies seriously injured in the Kitchener and Waterloo Hospital as a result of an automobile accident 1½ miles east of Breslau on the Kitchener Guelph highway, about 4 o'clock this morning.

The two men, according to the police were proceeding to Kitchener from Guelph in a car alleged to have been stolen from Windsor, when in round a curve the driver lost control of the car and it went over the shoulder of the road, sideswiped a telephone pole, and swerved the car around to face in the direction from which it had come. The front part of the car was undamaged, but the rear was wrecked.

The mishap was discovered some time afterwards when two brothers William and George Smith came along in their car and saw the two men stretched out in the ditch. One they saw moving and approaching Jacobs, they asked if the other man was dead. Jacobs replied, his companion was not dead and then he himself fell back unconscious and he was rushed to the hospital by his rescuers.

Jacobs refused to talk to the Provincial Police, but he is being held awaiting devolopments. An inquest will be held.

THREE DYING AS DYNAMITE BLAST EXPLODES IN HAMILTON SEWER

RESCUERS BRAVE GAS.

HAMILTON, August 23. (C.P.) — Three men were badly injured when a charge of dynamite exploded prematurely in a sewer cut on Hamilton Mountain to-day.

The men were starting blasting operations on the rocky ground when a quantity of dynamite exploded. Three ambulances were rushed to the scene.

The blast occurred in a storm sewer tunnel about 25 feet from the opening shaft The men, Don Campbell, Alex Barclay and Angus Hughes, were placing a charge and adjusting the time fuse They shouted from inside to other workmen that the fuse had been lit and within a second or two a muffled detonation was heard. The fuse had been defective, and had ignited the dynamite almost instantly.

Found Huddled Together.

James Dawson the foreman, went down the shaft immediately, and found the three men huddled together some distance from the end of the shaft. They had evidently crawled a few feet after the terrible concussion.

Rescuers followed the foreman down the shaft into the poisonous fumes, and succeeded in bringing the unfortunate men to the surface.

They were frightfully injured, two of the men being mangled almost beyond recognition ,but still alive

Police ambulances arrived in a few moments and the injured men were rushed to the general hospital. It is feared that Barclay and Hughes cannot recover, while Campbell's condition is very serious.

The rescuers risked their own lives to reach the wounded trio, so strong was the gas in the shaft that the men became very ill from its effects.

BUILDINGS BURN IN KITTLEY

BROCKVILLE, Ont. — Fire this morning at Toledo Kitley Township destroyed a service station, a garage two residences and a store. The buildings and practically all their contents were totally destroyed. The cause of the fire is unknown. Damage has not yet been estimated.

Willing Farm Hand

George Smith of Belmont township has a farm hand for whom early rising holds no terrors. With the first tinkling of the alarm clock he is up and away across the dew-covered meadows for the cows. A surprising fact when one recalls the temptation we have all had to fight at times, against shutting off the alarm and crawling back between the sheets for another five minutes. It is more surprising still to know that this "farm hand" is none other than Mr. Smith's Scotch Collie dog, who has learned to obey the insistent summons of the alarm which his master places in the window each night upon retiring.

40,000 Natives Die In Belgian Congo

BRUSSELS, Belgium, August 23 (C.P.). — The death of 40,000 natives from a famine in Ruanda Province of Belgian Congo, was reported to-day by Bishop Claes, chief missionary of Belgium's African possession. The famine was caused by a severe drought. Ruanda Province was formerly a part of German East Africa, the Bishop stated that the natives had emigrated to the British territory of Uganda.

GAME OF CARDS ENDS IN FIGHT

Three Finlanders Badly Knifed By Five North Bay Italians.

POLICE ON JOB.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Aug. 23 (C.P.)—Resulting from a melee which occurred on Front street, last night, Marinus Hansen is in hospital being treated for knife wounds and other injuries, while two others are being treated at their place of residence for less painful wounds of a similar nature. All three are Finlanders and, according to statements made to the police they sustained their injuries in a free-for-all with a group of five or six Italians, who wielded knives freely. The fracas developed from an unsatisfactory ending of a card game at which the Finlanders were visitors at the home of one of the Italians. Police investigations led to the apprehension of Vincent Priolo, Italian, residing at 16 Douglas street. The police are still searching for five others whom they believe they know from descriptions given by the Finlanders.

EXPECT CABINET TO PUT EMBARGO ON SOVIET COAL

Coal is Being Sold in Montreal as Low at $5.50 Per Ton.

MINED BY CONVICTS.

Government is Expected to Inaugurate National Fuel Policy.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 23.—(CP)—Steps to curtail the dumping of Soviet Russia coal into Canada will, it is understood shortly receive the consideration of the government. This coal, the alleged product to a considerable extent of convict labor, has been advertised for sale in Canada at the low rate of $5.50 per ton, and increasing quantities have been coming into the Dominion since 1928. Early action, as a means of reducing unemployment in the coal areas of Canada, is probable.

The course of the government would be in keeping with its proposal for a national fuel policy. Formulation of this policy will likely be based to a degree on a scientific research into certain phases of the problem.

Close to one and one-quarter million dollars in value of Russia Soviet coal was imported into Canada for the year ending July 31 last. Total imports for the year reached 305,270 tons. For the four months ending in July alone 104,781 tons were imported at a value of $663,363. In June imports of this commodity reached 63,668 tons and in July the amount was 27,386 tons. April and May showed imports of 6,200 and 7,525 tons respectively. The four months period reviewed for 1930 show an increase of 90,546 tons as compared with April May, June and July of 1929.

Official records show that by far the great bulk of these shipments enter Canada via Montreal, with lesser cargoes passing through the ports of St. John and Halifax. Comparatively small tonnage passes through the ports of Quebec and Sorel.

Protests against the entry of Soviet Russia coal were registered repeatedly in the House of Commons last session. The basis of these complaints was that the importation of the product deprived Canadian miners of employment especially during the off-seasons. In the recent general election campaign also the increasing quantities of this commodity arriving from Russia came under considerable criticism.

PURSE SNATCHER IS SEEN AT WORK

Woman Grabs Purse Out of Young Lady's Hand on George Street.

Yesterday morning about half past ten two young ladies were walking past Woolworth's Store when one of them picked up a purse and while in the act of opening it a woman came up and snatched it out of her hand and walked away. It now transpires that the purse was not hers at all, but belonged to a woman with an invalid husband who had just got her pay for the week and was endeavoring to make some purchases and dropped her purse. She can ill afford to lose the money and as the young ladies recognized the woman, she is advised to return the purse and all the money by maid to The Examiner office or action will be taken.

PERCY WILLIAMS BACK TO OLYMPIC FORM.

Above are the photographic highlights of the British Empire track meet at Hamilton. No. 1 shows the first heat of the 120-yard high hurdles, in which J. H. Viljoen of South Africa defeated the famous Lord Burghley by inches. Viljoen is No. 10, second from the left, while Lord Burghley, the fair-haired athlete is second from the right. No. 2 shows Percy Williams winning his heat in the hundred, which was accomplished with rare ease. No. 3 is Duncan Wright of Scotland, winner of the Empire Marathon.

Royal Grandparents Arrive in Scotland

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Aug. 23. (Canadian Press Cable).—Their Majesties, the King and Queen, arrived here this morning with their youngest son Prince George. They were met at the station by Lord Provost of the city, the Magistrates and an unusually large crowd.

The King was attired in kilts and accepted congratulations from Lord Provost on the birth of a grand-daughter, the first Princess born in Scotland for more than 300 years.

SEEKS ARREST OF DAVIS HILL

Man Who Went Bail Asks That to Have Bond Withdrawn.

UP FOR CATTLE STEALING.

Davis Hill of Centre Dummer, will again be arrested. Even to-night he may be sleeping behind prison walls at the county court house.

For the past five weeks Hill has been enjoying freedom, although he faces next Saturday a charge of cattle stealing before Judge O'Connor, brought against him following investigations by the Provincial Police. He secured his freedom when Robert Hill his father, posted $1500 bail for him.

Now the father desires to withdraw his bail, and he paid a visit to the police court this morning for that purpose. He is fearful that Davis may skip out as his trial approaches, and that he will lose the bail money. According to the older Hill, Davis threatened to run out on him last night.

So Robert wants the police to arrest Davis, and relieve him of the responsibility of protecting his $1500 by insuring the accused's appearance at Court next Saturday. "He's safer with you, and I want my money back" seems to be the opinoin of the old man.

London's public debt now is approximately $729,000,000.

94TH BIRTHDAY IS CELEBRATED BY MRS. MILLAGE

Aged Citizen Been a Resident of District For Almost 100 Years.

BORN IN SMITH.

Husband Was Drowned 67 Years Ago, Leaving Five Children.

Mrs. Elizabeth Millage, quietly celebrating the ninety-fourth anniverary of her birth, at the home of her son, John Millage, of 105 Sophia Street, was the recipient to-day of numerous messages of congratulation and goodwill from her host of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Millage is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bolton, pioneer residents of Smith Township, where she was born. Her father was a farmer and had come from England to settle in this section of Canada.

At an early age Mrs. Millage married, but tragedy marred the happy union, her husband Joseph being drowned at Lakefield sixty-seven years ago despite the fact that he was a strong swimmer. There were five children of the marriage. A daughter ,the late Mr. Wallace, and four sons, John of this city, Joseph of Toronto, Charles and Alexander of Detroit.

Mrs. Millage is expecting her son Alexander to visit her on this happy occasion, but her other two sons are unable to get away.

The old lady has been living in this city for the past thirteen years, having formerly lived in Lakefield with her son John. She has two sisters living, Mrs. James Blundell of St. Catharines and Mrs. Gingery of Iowa. Her two brothers passed away some time ago.

Despite her advanced years, the old lady enjoys a fair measure of good health, although she has recently rallied from an attack of sickness. She can still thread needles,

ETHEL McGARRY FORCED TO QUIT IN 8TH MILE AFTER LEADING SWIMMERS FAST PACE TILL 5.30

Third Place Captured By Ethel Hertie Gary, Champion of 1928—May Looney, Ohio, Comes in for Fourth Money After Using a One-leg Beat for 9 Miles.

TORONTO, Ont., August 23 (C.P.). — Margaret Ravior of Philadelphia, Penn., yesterday won the women's long distance swimming championship of the world, when she took first place in the 10-mile Marathon staged by the Canadian National Exhibition.

Trailing fifty, seventy-five, and sometimes 100 yards behind Ethel McGarry of New York for most of the course, the Philadelphia girl finally forced her way past the leader on the eighth mile, and ploughed her way through the last lap to win in 5 hours 31 minutes 39 4-5 seconds. She won not only a world's championship, but $5,000 in cash and an opportunity to enter the men's $15,000 swim next Wednesday.

Winner a Total Outsider.

Yesterday morning an unknown entrant, a total outsider except for the judgment of a few critics who conceded her a place in the money, Miss Ravior emerged from the waters of Lake Ontario last night as the premier woman swimmer of the world, successor to Gertrude Ederle, Ethel Hertle, and Martha Norelius. Among the few who met her at the pressmen's float, and who had all along expected her victory, was Mrs. George Ravior, her mother. The trainer, William Boggs, of the Philadelphia Elks' Club, had led her all the way, and from a rowboat coached her in the long struggle by which she wore out the strength of Ethel McGarry.

Favorites were not lacking from the list of prize-winners. Ruth Tower-Corsan was a close second, and appeared to be unwearied by her long ordeal as she climbed up on the finishing float. Mrs. Corsan swam third in 1928, and second last year. Her coach was her husband, Capt. George Corson. Ethel-Gary, champion of 1928, and fifth last year, took third place and $1,000. The little girl from Bronx, N.Y., was far ahead of the next three—May Looney of Warren, Ohio, Anna Priller Benoit of Miami, Fla., and Irene Yurack of Elmhurst, Long Island.

Swims 9 Miles With One Leg

To Miss Looney goes the credit of swimming for nine miles with a one-leg beat, after straining the tendons of a leg in the first lap. She left the water with the injured leg in a badly swollen condition. Her remarkable performance in spite of such a handicap is puzzling the critics.

Three outstanding contenders for the championships were forced out of the race after a long and desperate struggle for first place. When coming along fast in fourth position, Mrs. Evelyn Armstrong, 22-year-old mother of Detroit, was seized with cramps in a shoulder, which had been injured in a tennis game some time ago. Leah Riley dropped out about 5 p.m. after threatening the leaders all afternoon. Coming from Keansburg, N.J., last year as an unknown swimmer, she finished in fourth place, and was highly rated this year.

Leader Forced Out

It was Ethel McGarry's race until 5.30 p.m., when she suddenly broke under the strain of her long fight to keep in the lead. In a few minutes the long, powerful stroke which had taken her over eight miles in record time weakened to a feeble threshing of the water, and she was left far behind. Soon afterwards she had to be taken from the water. Miss McGarry did not even place in the prize-list. This was her first professional attempt. She had previously been national amateur champion of the United States.

Thousands of people massed along the water-front watched the race from one o'clock, and by the time of the finish, about 6.30, the crowd was estimated to number 75,000.

PRAIRIE DESIRES OF WHEAT BOARD DWINDLING FAST

Premier Anderson Pessimistic of Prospects For Such an Organization.

PARLEY PROVES FIZZLE.

Saskatchewan Tories Queried on Plan Reported to be Opposed.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 23. (C. P.)—Hopes for a prairie wheat board to-day appeared to have faded.

Premier J. T. M. Anderson of Saskatchewan, whose call to the next-door premiers for a wheat board or compulsory pool parley at Regina, yesterday, went unanswered, is pessimistic about prospects for an organization to handle the prairie crop. He stated last night that it is unlikely an effort would be made to call a conference at a later date.

Only the Saskatchewan Premier, it appears, has been approached by the pool in his province with an appeal that some single body handle the whole grain crop. Colin H. Burnell, President of the Manitoba wheat pool, says that no request has been made to the Manitoba Government for a Wheat Board or a 100 per cent. pool. And Henry Wise Wood, head of the Alberta pool, says the Saskatchewan talk is the first he has heard about a wheat board.

Premiers Silent.

Neither Premier John Bracken of Manitoba, nor Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta, has made any comment on the Saskatchewan proposal; Mr. Bracken mentioned that he would have liked to attend the Regina meeting, but could not. Mr. Brownlee, holidaying in Ontario, remained silent on the matter and none of his deputies essayed an opinion. All three premiers stood back of the wheat pool in guaranteeing the pool's loans on the 1929 crop.

Conservative members of the Saskatchewan Legislature, queried by the Premier on their stand toward the proposed "single channel" for wheat-handling, were said to be opposed to the plan; generally, according to observers in Regina, their opinion appeared to be that such a scheme would not be feasible. It has been admitted that an immediate session of the Legislature would be necessary if a single board were to take over the handling of the entire Saskatchewan crop now being harvested.

BELIEVE FAMINE DEATHS UNTRUE

Belgian Officials Certain Missionary's Reports Refer to 1929 Situation.

CLAIMED 40,000 DEAD.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—Officials to-day expressed the belief that a calculation of 40,000 natives dead in a famine in Ruanda, Belgian Congo, reported by Bishop Claes, a missionary, referred to last year's events, the present year having seen a considerable improvement in the native situation.

The Ministry of Colonies stated that the latest official news reaching Brussels had been optimistic, that the Belgian civil authorities and missionaries had alleviated famine resulting

The Weather

Unless heavy rains fall during the coming week August will show a serious lack of precipitation. Up to the present time there has not yet been an inch on the level, the total so far being but .95 of an inch. There has been but one good rain since July 13, that of August 8th, when the amount was .70. And this latter rain was largely local in Peterborough district, as little fell above Lakefield, and none north of Young's Point.—W. P.

JAILS CONDEMNED BY ROYAL COMMISSION

CHANGES WOULD COST PROVINCE OVER 20 MILLION

Suggest Placing Hospitals and Physical Health Under Health Department.

TAX HOTEL MEALS OVER $1.

Sterilization of Criminal or Moral Defectives is Recommended—Draft Act.

TORONTO, Ont., August 23 (C.P.). — The Royal Commission on Public Welfare, appointed by the Ontario Government last October to take stock of the charitable and corrective institutions of the Province has submitted its report.

The findings and recommendations it embodies are contained in a document of several hundred pages. They are the fruit of months of intensive study on the part of the three commissioners, Dr. P. D. Ross, Ottawa, chairman, D. M. Wright, M.P., Stratford, and D. J. M. McCutcheon, of Toronto.

The report points to certain defects in the present system, notably in the jails, branded as "inferior in nearly every sense of the word," and contains many recommendations for improvement as well as indicating at least one method which might be used for the raising of public revenue to defray hospital costs. The commissioners point to the Province of Quebec Hospital tax on meals as, in their opinion, a good means of raising revenue. In Quebec all restaurant, hotel and cafe meals costing more than one dollar are taxed five per cent.

In order to carry out the report's recommendations Ontario would have to spend between $20,000,000 and $25,000,000 in the extension and improvement of its charitable and corrective institutions. Many jails would be modernized in construction and equipment, Northen Ontario would be given a mental institution, a provincial cancer hospital would be built and the accommodation for epileptics extended.

Public Welfare Department

The commission favors the establishment of a Department of Public Welfare to strengthen Government supervision of the corrective and social institutions. It would have a minister and his deputy and several directors.

Hospitals and general physical health would be placed under the control of the Department of Public Health rather than under the Provincial Secretary's Department as now, this change the commissioners suggest as being only logical.

Sterilization of criminal or moral defectives is a suggestion of the Commission which is bound to arouse considerable discussion. The report cites statistics and science to show that much crime is directly traceable to heredity or moral deficiency. The experience of California, with 6,000 satisfactory operations, is quoted and the Government is urged to appoint a judicial and medical commission to draft a Sterilization Act for submission to the Legislature.

The Commission insists that general hospitals should be a charge upon public funds, either provincial or municipal, the recommendation being that the Province should pay a quarter and the municipality three-quarters of their costs. Amendment of patient classification is asked to include private, semi-private, semi-public and public patients, the semi-public wards being occupied by those willing to pay their way but of small means.

Lower Nursing Costs

The cost of nursing and of radium treatments should be lowered, says the report.

In speaking of the jails, the commissioners describe them as overcrowded, understaffed in the cases of the larger ones and breeding places for idleness, lack of classification and segregation of prisoner types is deplored as is lack of medical inspection and occupation. The report blames the whole jail system rather than the officials.

Tweed Woman Gets Extra Large Bass

High fishing honors were gained by Mrs. Hazel Blakely, of Tweed, when she landed a 5¾-pound small - mouthed bass near George Sammon's resort in Mazinaw Lake. Miss Blakely was casting with with a light rod and line when she hooked the big fellow, which had a length of 23 inches and a girth of 15 inches. The fish could not be entered in The Examiner contest because it was caught in the County of Lennox and Addington, a county not included in the district laid out by The Examiner for the contest.

FARMERS UNEASY AT LONG DELAY OF WHEAT POOL

Already Grain Being Delivered at Elevators in Many Places.

THRESHING HURRIED.

Fear Arises That Pool is Discouraged—Still No Initial Price.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 23 (C.P.). — Prairie farmers to-day surveyed farm lands where three-quarters of the grain is cut—and wondered how the grain was to be marketed, and what price it would bring. Talk of a wheat board for the Prairie Provinces—a unit to handle the entire crop, pool and non-pool—vided new uncertainty to the situation already aggravated by the wheat pool's delay in naming its initial price for the 1930 crop.

Already grain is being delivered to the elevators in some places, and threshing is being hurried along before advancing fall. But the Wheat Pool, giant co-operative of more than 140,000 members, has not yet announced its advance on members' grain deliveries. Usually, the initial payment is set on July 15, cut-off date between the two crops. Pending final decision, pool members are being given 70 cents per bushel—the lowest advance in the pool's records.

Fear Pool Discouraged.

Fear that the Pool, at least in Saskatchewan, had become discouraged by the problem of handling the low-price 1930 yield, arose following the organization's request to the Saskatchewan Government that a single body be set up to handle the Province's entire crop—usually better than half of the Western yield. It was made clear in a statement from Pool headquarters that the proposal had no connection with the proposal for a 100 per cent. pool by legislation on which pool members are now balloting.

ROADS SHOWING IMPROVEMENT

Extensive Road Work Has Been Carried on by Suburban Area Commission.

IN FOUR TOWNSHIPS.

An extensive road improvement program undertaken by the Suburban Area Commission and now rapidly nearing completion has this year provided a major share of the work in the townships of Otonabee and Douro, although North Monaghan and North Monaghan and Smith townships have by no means been neglected.

On the Keen road the work has included the straightening out of a curve at the Creek below Burnham's Corner, a concrete bridge has also been erected. Possibly one of the most outstanding improvements on this road is the removal of a bad corner at Shaw's Gate—a spot at which several bad accidents have occurred in the past.

At present work is in progress near School No. 8 and the Separate School, consisting of widening and gravelling.

On the Warsaw road a section extending one mile east from J. Leeson's property has been built-over, and is now stated to be in excellent condition.

At the corner of Park and Cameron streets in North Monaghan township the bridge has been extended and the whole section of road from Lansdowne street to the C.N.R. tracks has been to-surfaced.

In Smith township calcium has been freely used on the Chemong and Lakefield roads, to keep down the dust. Satisfactory results have been obtained, it is stated.

It is learned that the Commissioner's, Messrs. M. Smithson, chairman; Frank Kitney and Harry Gainey, have received instructions from the Highway's Department not to undertake work on the Norwood road, pending a decision as to the commencement of work on the proposed Highway 7.

The F. W. D. dump truck recently purchased by the Commission, is, it is learned, operating with success, and fully justifying the expenditure on it. On a two mile haul, it is understood, the truck is capable of handling up to 100 yards of gravel per day.

Third Carter Attempt Results in Failure

Still another attempt to set a world's outboard motorboat endurance record by the Carter brothers, D'Arcy, Bob and Joe, at South Beach, has ended in failure. They commenced a grind which they once more hoped would last for more than 239 hours without cessation, at 11.52½ a.m., on Thursday, but were forced to stop after 16 hours and 37½ minutes running at 4.30 o'clock yesterday.

Defective steering gear in the endurance boat was given as the cause of failure. It is not yet known if the Carter brothers will make further efforts.

DEAD EXPLORERS FOUND IN LONELY ARCTIC WASTES

Norwegian Expedition Uncovers Remains of Salomon, Andree and Companions.

DISAPPEARED IN 1897.

Frozen Bodies Well Preserved—No Trace of Balloon.

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 23—Out of the Arctic silence has come the grim last chapter of aviation's first North Pole argosy, solving after 33 years the mystery of how Salmon August Andree, Swedish balloonist-explorer who set out in a balloon in 1897 for the top of the world, perished with his two companions.

A Norwegian scientific expedition, headed by Dr. S. Horn, has sent word to Oslo that its members had found the bodies of Andree and his mates in a camp of their making, on White Island, which lies east of the northeast island of the Spitzbergen group.

The discovery was reported at Tromscoe by the Norwegian sealer Terningen, which met the sealer Brattvagg of the Horn expedition in Arctic waters.

Balloon Not Found

The Brattvagg had aboard the bodies of Andree and of one of his companions and as it is not equipped with wireless, the Captain of the Terningen was requested to announce the finding. The Brattvagg is due a tromsoe, September 10. The Terningen's captain said no trace of Andree's balloon had been found.

Andree's diary, his scientific instruments, a few scattered objects which evidently had been muzzled by bears but left untouched, and the bodies of the explorers told the gruesome tale of a battle with the elements in which the tall, blonde aeronaut had survived his fellows.

Identification was easy. The frozen bodies were well preserved.

JUDGE TO PROBE YORK CONTRACTS

Engineers Report Contains Charges of Tampering and Changing Tenders.

$250,000 PAID OUT.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 23. (C.P.)—Charges of tampering and changing of tenders and collaboration between officials on sewer contracts for a period of five years back were contained in the report of consulting engineers submitted to a special meeting of York Township Council.

As a result council requested Judge Herbert Denton, senior York County Judge, to conduct an immediate probe of any or all of the contracts made by the township through its Engineering Department with various contractors since 1928.

Estimates of the amount paid to contractors above the tender price during the past five years place the figure at between $250,000 and $300,000 on works estimated to cost ten million dollars. The contracts looked into were picked at random from a large number over a period of years.

FIRE THREATENS MIDWAY AT C.N.E.

$10,000 DAMAGE.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 23. (C.P.) — A short but spectacular blaze early this morning threatened destruction of the Midway in the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. Breaking out from an unknown cause in a booth near the grand stand, the flames spread with alarming rapidity, and in a few minutes six stands were ablaze.

Only the quick arrival of the fire brigade stationed at the grounds for such emergencies prevented the "Big Fair's" great amusement centre from going up in smoke. Six booths were gutted wth an estimated loss of $10,000, while adjoining stands were badly scorched and watersoaked.

12 SUGGESTIONS ON EMPLOYMENT MADE BY COUNCIL

Proposal For Survey of Canadian Imports Is Readily Sanctioned.

ROBERTSON PLEASED.

Stiff Fight Rises Over Probe In. to Feasability of Unemployment Insurance.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 23 (C.P.) — Leaving behind a wide range of recommendations for the consideration of the Minister of Labor, the Employment Service Council of Canada ended its meeting yesterday. The proposals of the Council called in session just prior to the opening of a special session of Parliament will be considered by the Government in preparing legislation to deal with the unemployment situation.

While the meeting was called as the regular annual meeting, the whole two days were devoted to a consideration of the extraordinary unemployment situation and rather than prolong the meeting it was decided to hold a meeting to deal with routine business at a later date.

Senator Gideon D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, complimented the Council on the way it had tackled the problem and said the suggestions offered would be of great assistance to himself and the Government. He

CAPT. FURMINGER RETIRES.

Captain John Furminger, M.C., Chief of the Ontario Lone Scout Department, who has held this important post since its inception, is retiring from active participation in Lone Scouting in Ontario, for the present, at least. This news will be received with surprise and regret by Peterborough Scouts who well remember the dapper Lonie who appeared at the Jamboree on May 24, this year, and who regaled his hearers with story and wit on that happy occasion.

Gave Time Freely.

It was owing to the untiring service of Captain Furminger that Lone Scouting in Ontario and throughout Canada has become so successful. Practically every minute of his spare time was given to furtherance of Scouting among boys who otherwise, on account of residing in out-of-the-way corners of the Province where regular Scout troops did not exist, would never have been able to share in the benefits which Boy Scouts membership provides.

Gold Thanks Badge.

As a mark of appreciation, at the evening campfire at the Gilwell Training Course at Ebor Park, prior to the close of the camp, Provincial Commissioner Laurence, surrounded by over 125 Lonies and members of the 1930 Gilwell Training Course and Old Gilwellians 'Association, presented Captain Furminger with a gold Thanks Badge, eulogizing the splendid work accomplished in Lone Scouting. The applause tendered by the Scouts to the retiring Chief will never be forgotten by him, showing the love and respect of all ranks for this outstanding Lonie. His reply was couched in the few simple words: "I can't trust myself to say anything," and he sat down.

S.M. Garfield Johnson, who represented Peterborough Scouts at the Training Camp, tells of the fine spirit of unity which pervaded the Scouts on the presentation of this badge, and the hope was expressed that Captain Furminger's retirement would be only in the nature of a rest period, and that he would be back in the work nearest his heart.

Still in Its Infancy.

In passing, it may be pointed out that Lone Scouting is still in its infancy, but when the present day Lonies have grown to manhood and taken their places as citizens of their country there will still remain a warm pace in the hearts of Ontario Lone Scouts for this man who made it all possible.

JONATHAN AND DAVID
(A Noble Friendship)

Devotional Study of Sunday School Lesson for August 24
Scripture: 1 Sam. 18: 1-4, 20; 14-17, 32-34, 41-42; 2 Sam. 1:25-27.
Golden Text: Prov. 18:24.

By ARTHUR W. BROWN.

One of the richest and most satisfying sources of joy is friendship.

"Well chosen friendship, the most noble
Of virtues all our joys make double
And into halves divides our trouble."

David had many friendships that gave him inspiration and joy, but there was no friendship to him like that of Jonathan. From the time they met till Jonathan fell on the field of Gilboa it was a beautiful and sacred thing. There is nothing in the Scriptures in the way of human friendship quite so exquisite and lovely as this. Every word of our lesson brings out the grandeur and beauty of the fellowship of these two hearts. Lord Brooks was so proud of his friendship with Sir Philip Sidney that he chose for his epitaph, "Here lies Sir Philip Sidney's friend." We can venture to think on any memorial of David's or Jonathan's either would have been pleased for a similar expression. The soul of Jonathan was knit with the soul of David, for he loved him as he loved his own soul. So the chronicler tells us. And David's lament at his friend's all too early death makes us uncover our heads and put our hands upon our hearts, "My brother Jonathan, very pleasant hast thou been unto me! Thy love to me was wonderful, passing the love of women!"

This is a very different kind of friendship that grows spindly amid the weeds of banality and shams. It is a much rarer thing than that relationship in which our friends feed us handsomely and perhaps give us a good tip about this and that, and which after a few flushes becomes faint and almost forgotten. There is loftiness of spirit and greatness of soul in the friendship of Jonathan and David, a resident, mighty spiritual force that sets us in the light and strengthens us in the hour of need and help us forward to the realization of the goal glorious for which our soul yearns. The disciples of Jesus would never forget that great moment of the unveiling of His heart when He said to them, "Henceforth I call you not servants, but friends."

Somebody has said that in great literature, as in great music and great painting, there is a sense of purification. No less can we aver that of a great friendship. In the great love that David had for Jonathan he must have found it an inspiring thing and with a power to purge him of so many moods and feelings of degrading influence. Perhaps David's later story would have read still nobler if Jonathan's comradeship had not been so early cut off. Ex-Premier Baldwin of England tells how in his electioneering as a member of Parliament in the early days of his political life he, preforce, had to spend at least three evenings a week with rough fellows, treated to unrefined entertainment in drinking "pubs." He says that feeling the need after these nights for a moral purge and a literary sedative he would turn from these orgies to the Odysses, or the Odes of Horace with care and increasing joy, and was able to feel that he had passed through the fire without the smell of burning being upon his garments. Are there not great friendships that we can contract on the level of this we are asked to study which will do as much for us and more than the cleansing, refining influence of classic poetry? It is for us to seek that, and please God it may be found. And how about exemplifying it in the nobility and virtue of our own character?

Such friendship as these two Hebrew young men had was made possible by the expression of noble elements of character they mutually and severally showed.

Jonathan had an extremely lovable and loving nature. Combined with manly heroism, he had a woman's tenderness. The ideal of Christian character is the heroic courage of a man blended with the loving tenderness of a woman. The heroic Garabaldi as a boy accidentally broke the leg of a grasshopper. It upset him for some time. All his life he was characterized by extreme tenderness. Oliver Cromwell, the courageous lion of English history, spent fourteen days by the bedside of his dying daughter, Lady Claypole, "unable to attend to any public business whatever."

Jonathan was deeply religious; spiritually minded to the degree that he believed God could save by few or by many. That religion glorified his manhood, making him so admirable. Such should not be thought of as effeminate. Brave men, fine athletes have been, and are, pious men. We think of Gordon of Khartoum and Eric Riddel, the world's record-breaking sprinter who refused to run in Paris on a Sunday, who is now a missionary in China.

Then David had a genius for making friends. The royal road to fine friendships is to be friendly in a high, admirable, devoted way. It was the open, chivalrous nature of David that drew men to him. He had a great heart not only to give but to receive and appreciate what was done for him. He was thoughtful and considerate of others in his dealings and he laid up in his heart those treasures of friendship and paid out great interest on the investment. When men risked their lives for him to get Bethlehem water to drink he so appreciated their heroism and love that he felt the water was too sacred to drink. His soul was moved to its depths doubtless as again and again Jonathan worked things for the saving of his life. We have to read Sidney Carton's story in Dicken's "Tale of Two Cities" to see similar love and sacrifice.

So we are satisfied of the priceless value of good friends and of a noble friendship. It is one of God's greatest gifts. We also can't skeep out of our mind how corrupting an influence bad associates can have upon us. Many have gone to ruin that way. To make us loving and lovable, with choice friends to count our own, and with a choice friendship to give there is no better thing to make all this possible than possess Jesus as the friend who sticketh closer than brother, our David and Jonathan in one whose unsurpassing love will not let us go. "Having loved His own He loved them to the end."

REV. WM. ALLAN ADDRESSES BIBLE STUDY CONFERENCE

The nineteenth annual conference on constructive Bible study and prophecy, which opened at Stony Brook, Long Island, on August 17th, under the auspices of the Stony Brook Assembly Inc., and under the leadership of the Rev. Dr. Anro C. Gaebelein, editor of "Our Hope," was addressed by Rev. Wm. Allan of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. The theme of Mr. Allan's address—the first of a series to be given by him each morning throughought the conference—was "What is the Trouble with the Church?" Rev. Mr. Allan said the trouble with the church is that it is carrying too much dead wood, states the New York Times, "and a large proportion of the membership is taken on the basis of respectability rather than on the basis of regeneration."

AFTER DEATH
(A Passage from a Great Religious Classic)

At our entrance on another world we shall know our old selves as never before. The past will be spread out before us, and we shall take a comprehensive survey of it. Each man's life will be displayed to him as a river which he traces from its source in a distant mountain till it mingles with the distant ocean. The course of that river lies, sometimes through dark forests which hide it from view, sometimes through sands or marshes in which it seems to lose itself. Here it forces a passage angrily between precipitious rocks, there it glides gently through meadows which it makes green and fertile. At one while it might seem to be turning backwards out of pure caprice, at another to be parting, like a gay spendthrift, with half its volume of waters; while later on it receives contributory streams that restore its strength, and so it passes on, till the ebb and flow of tides upon its bank tells that the end is near. What will not the retrospect be when, after death, we survey, for the first time, as with a bird's-eye view, the whole long range—the strange vicissitudes, the loss and gain, as we deem it, the failures and triumphs of our earthly existence; when we measure it, as never before, in its completeness, now that it is at last over It may be thought that to review life will take as long a time as to live it; but this notion betrays a very imperfect idea of the resource and capacity of the human soul. Under the pressure of great feeling, the soul lives with a rapidity and intensity which disturb all its usual relations to time.—Sermon in The First Five Minutes After Death, by Henry Parry Liddon, English divine (b. 1820- d. 1890).

Q.—Why should it be hard for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven?—W. M.

A.—Because the more possessions a man has the less inclination he has to devote his energies to spiritual things.

A man who has a great deal of money is subjected to the temptation of either spending it foolishly or of holding so fast to it, that his money does few people any good, and least of all, himself.

It was not said by Jesus that it was impossible for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven, and the wealthy person who regards his wealth as a trust, as he should, will use it to make others happy. But these others should not necessarily be relatives, for it is easy to deceive yourself that you are unselfish when you do something for your family, whereas you are really doing it for your larger self, which embraces your relatives, at least those members of it whom you love.

True unselfishness looks for no reward, not even gratitude. The good of kind action is done and at once forgotten. But, though it may seem a parado, this kind of action is most highly rewarded. When we look for thanks, it is because we are unconsciously looking for flattery and praise. We should ourselves be grateful for anything that is done for us, for ingratitude is one of the worst sins, but we should not seek to obtain gratitude from others.

It is not only the wealthy man who will find it hard to reach heaven, but all who love their possessions, great or small, so much that they turn their thoughts constantly to them.

Q.—In reading Chapter 9 of Romans I find it hard to understand. Can you help me?—S. P.

A.—Chapter 9 of Romans should be read in conjunction with the two succeeding chapters which continue the argument about the problem of why Israel was rejected by God as the chosen people.

Paul as a Jew was in mental anguish at the thought, but he faced it boldly. Why, he asked, should it be? And he goes on to say that God rules, man's destiny, as the potter moulds the clay. But man is not helpless. He is free, and if the potter rejects the vessel it is because the clay is imperfect. Man, as the clay, has chosen to be imperfect.

Destiny rules nations as well as men, and the nation which rejects God, that is, the commandments of God as summed up by Jesus, to love God and man, will meet retribution. But, Paul continues, Israel will be restored, for among her people there are still the faithful, though they be few in number.

We can divide the argument thus: Chapter ix, 1-5, The problem stated; ix. 6-29, God rules mankind: Chapter ix. 30 to Chapter x. 21. The reasons for Israel's rejection; Chapter xi., Other arguments on the same subject and Israel's restoration.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 23. — Lack of export demand was followed by a sharp decline in wheat values on the Winnipeg Exchange yesterday, closing quotations ranging ⅝c to 2⅛c below Thursday's finish.

No real selling pressure developed, but with buying orders only trickling in and reaching a small aggregate, there was nothing in the market to sustain values. Export of Canadian wheat overnight amounted to only 300,000 bushels.

At the close, all futures were below the dollar mark, October finishing at 91¾c, December 93⅛c, and May 99⅝c.

In the cash wheat and coarse grains market pit trade was extremely light and lacked feature. Coarse grains, however, recorded fractional gains, while flax slumped about two cents a bushel.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, August 23. — Prices for Ontario butter on the local jobbing market, which showed indication of increasing firmness last week, advanced strongly in the current week's trading, due to falling off in the make and but limited competition from outside sources. Yesterday brokers were selling No. 1 creamery solids at 29½ to 30 cents per pound, up a cent to a cent and a quarter for the week on the spread, while No. 2 grade was up a cent per pound for the week at 27 to 27 ½cent's for anything capable of making the 38-point flavor score or better. With total supply light, there was very little low-scoring butter in local receipts, and consumptive demand showed improvement as a result of increase in number of visitors in the city.

Churning Cream Higher.

Throughout the week up to yesterday the price of churning cream in quotations to shippers held unchanged, with local dealers predicting an advance. Yesterday, some local creameries announced an advance, making the bid for churning cream, special 30 cents; No. 1, 29 cents; and No. 2, 26 cents per pound butter-fat.

Extra Eggs Firm.

Eggs of both extra and No 1 grade in graded shipments made an advance of half a cent per dozen in sales of jobbing lots this week, while seconds were firm at the top of last week's closing spread. As in the case of butter, diminishing supply was the controlling factor, production in both Ontario and the Western provinces decreasing.

The stronger feeling on the jobbing market was reflected in wholesalers' quotations to the retail trade yesterday, the price of extras in cartons being firm at 36 cents per dozen or the top of the previous day's spread, while firsts, loose, were quoted at 32 cents flat, seconds remaining unchanged.

Cheese Weak.

Trade in cheese continued draggy, and the local jobbing market followed the trend on the country cheese boards with a decline of half a cent per pound, No. 1 large, colored, paraffined and graded cheese, delivered, selling at 16¼ cents per pound.

Poultry Plentiful.

Wholesale dealers reported holdings in the hands of poultry raisers heavy and incoming supply sufficient for current demand, while storage holdings are still heavy for the time of year.

Prices in the lists of quotations issued to country shippers at midweek were for the greater part unchanged, light fowl moving up a cent per pound and duck down a cent. Dealers were looking for fairly active trade over the week-end and for the duration of the Canadian National Exhibition to provide an opportunity to reduce storage holdings.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.— Evidence of corn market power to rally from price setbacks did a good deal to put backbone into grain values late yesterday, despite earlier downturns. A reason for renewal of strength in corn values was the likelihood that liberal clearances of corn out of Chicago by lake vessels would be announced to-day. There were also late estimates that the yield of wheat in the Canadian Prairie Provinces would be only about 338,000,000 bushels, whereas a previous estimate yesterday was 305,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on corn were nervous, 1-8c off to 3-8c up, compared with Thursday's finish. Wheat closed irregular at 5-8c net decline to 1-4c advance, with oats 1c to 4¼c advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—The inquiry for all lines of cash grain was moderate here yesterday and the undertone to the market was firm.

Owing to continued light arrivals potatoes were advanced 5c to 10c per 80-lb. bag for new, locally grown stock. They are now selling at 90c to $1.

The butter market continued easy and prices were fractionally lower. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery sold at 29¼c per lb. in carlots. To retailers solids sold at 31c and prints at 32c per lb. Receipts were 2,150 boxes.

Trading in cheese continued at a low ebb and values were easy. Quebec colored was quoted at 14¾c, while white was available at 14½c per lb. Ontario cheese was 15 3-8c to 15 1-2c per lb. Receipts were 5,451 boxes.

The egg market was unchanged. Specials sold at 42c to 43c, fresh extras at 38c to 39c, fresh firsts at 33c to 34c and fresh seconds at 29c to 30c per dozen. Receipts were 1,632 cases.

August Meeting Of Roseneath Church W.M.S.

ROSENEATH, Aug. 23 (Examiner ing of St. James' Women's Auxiliary ing of St. James' Women's Auxiliary was held at the home of Miss Jessie Johnston and was attended with fifteen members. The president, Mrs. James Timlin, presided.

After the opening exercises Mrs. Earl Braithwaite read the Bible reading, 2 Chronicles, chapter 6, verses 18 to 21. The secretary, Mrs. Frank Brown, gave her report, which was adopted. Considerable discussion arose regarding the play, "Go Slow, Mary," that will be given in the Orange Hall on Saturday night, August 23. It was arranged to secure a four or five piece orchestra to supply music during the evening.

Mrs. Ross McCracken gave an instructive reading, "The First Dorcas Box." Mrs. Gordon Parker gave a reading, "Robbing Peter to Pay Paul," showing where this old saying originated, and why it is so often used.

Mrs. Lottie Nichol read from the study book, "Mission Work in Japan, and the difficult tasks the missionaries have to endure." An interesting paper was given by Mrs. Herb McCracken entitled "Scandalmongering," which was very interesting.

Mrs. Moss McCracken offered her home for the meeting in September; the meeting then closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

MISSION BAND HOLDS PICNIC

IS MUCH ENJOYED.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Sunshine Mission Band, of Saint Andrew's United Church, held its annual picnic outing at Wallace's Point, on Thursday, August 21, the boys and girls being present in large numbers, with the parents well represented also, since it was necessary to have drivers for the cars required to convey the young folk to the place of meeting.

The weather was all that could be desired, and the outing proved one of the most successful yet sponsored by the Sunshine Band, under the able supervision of its popular superintendent, Mrs. M. McDowell.

The swings and other forms of amusement on the picnic grounds, were well patronised during the early part of the afternoon, and when all had arrived adjournment was made to the adjoining sports field and the races were run off, with a great deal of energy and enthusiasm. Through the generosity of Mrs. G. W. Sayles a large box of candy was donated toward the prize list; enough, indeed, to provide every boy and girl with an all-day sucker whether they actually won in a race or not. Instead of purchasing prizes, as has been done in previous years, parents and friends contributed nickels, and from the purse full thus provided the holders of first and second places in each race were rewarded, going then to the booth and on the grounds and buying cream cones or whatever in the sweets line their hearts desired. The plan, of which Mrs. McDowell was the originator, proved so successful that it will likely be tried out again another season.

Prize Winners

A number of the men present assisted Mrs. McDowell with the sports events; Rev. Mr. Jones proving an experienced starter; Messrs. A. J. Brown, F. McMahon, J. H. George, M. McDowell, J. McKnight, and others being among the helpers. Mrs. J. H. Might distributed the candy, and the prize money. The winners were:

Boys and Girls, 5 and under—1, Mary Ridge; 2, Mary Raper.

Boys and Girls, 6 and under—1, Teddy McDowell; 2, Maud Raper.

Boys and Girls, 6 to 8 years—1, William Ridge; 2, Beatrice McDowell.

Girls, 10-12—1, Beatrice McDowell; 2, Esther Might.

Potato Race, winning team—Gordon Jones, Clendon Challice, and Lloyd McMahon.

Pig Race—1, Allen Earle; 2, William Ridge.

Appetites were quite keen for the picnic tea which was served from the long tables under the spreading trees, the abundance of good things provided from the many well-filled baskets disappearing rapidly, once the children had sung, as grace, one verse of their special hymn, "Jesus Bids Us Shine," and the order to "fall to" had been issued.

The mothers, with Mrs. McDowell, made up a committee to look after the service of the young guests, and the tables were re-set to accommodate those who had to wait.

The men came in for their share of the day's sports when they matched skill in pitching horseshoes after the supper hour, and a number of the young men enjoyed the bathing facilities off the wharf, while still others took their pleasure in looking on.

Tired, but happy, the young folk were conveyed home toward sunset time, and repeatedly expressions of gratitude for the good time provided were heard. The Sunshine Band resumes its regular meeting in September.

NO PENALTY ON CAREFUL DRIVERS.

It is evident from letters appearing in some of the newspapers that in spite of the extensive advertising the new legislation has received there are still many people who have failed to grasp the fact that there is a marked difference between the safety responsibility law, which comes into force in Ontario on September 1, and a system of compulsory insurance.

That difference is that under the Ontario measure the motorist decides by his own actions whether or not the act shall apply to him.

A large proportion of Ontario car owners are careful and sensible in the operation of their automobiles; they have been driving for years without accident or without being convicted of glaring breaches of the traffic laws.

To such motorists the new legislation does not apply.

So long as they continue to drive sensibly and avoid accidents they are immune from the operations of the Safety Responsibility Act, which has been designed so that it will not impose a penalty upon the careful motorist.

It is only the irresponsible, wild-driving type of car owner who needs to worry about the legislation which comes into force next month; in his case it may have the effect of chasing him off the highway for good, a development that should be cordially welcomed by the general public.

PRIVILEGED CRIMINALS.

The phrase, "Preferred class of offenders," will soon acquire a new meaning if the release of a convicted Hamilton bootlegger to attend the funeral of a slain female gangster is to be regarded as setting a precedent.

Why this departure from the usual procedure? We have become accustomed to hearing of wealthy prisoners south of the line being given temporary freedom to attend funerals or to meet relatives, or as in the case of a millionaire jailbird, to purchase drugs to replenish the medical stores of the prison, but it will take Canadians some time to get used to that sort of thing. Is it a case of Ontario falling back on American methods, when confronted by a problem hitherto almost peculiar to the United States?

Where Canada is now in the administration of justice, the United States was some years ago. Where the United States is now, Canada will be in the near future if the ordinary machinery of penology is to be adjusted to suit the convenience of privileged offenders.

An official explanation of this amazing departure appears to be in order. The Province is entitled to know just exactly what were the influences that procured the liberation of this convict, a cousin of Rocco Perri, it is true, but no relation whatever of the murdered woman.

THE IMPORTANCE OF SPORTS.

Britain's absorption in the fortunes of her cricket team in the test match with Australia has been, after all, only one of the arenas to which the eyes of the world of sportsmen has been turned or turning.

What a variety of events are distracting men, and women, too, from the so-called more important affairs of this sorely troubled world! Here in Canada we are in the midst of the British Empire games in Hamilton and the track and field competitions and long distance swimming races at the Toronto Exhibition.

We have just seen Brampton win the senior lacrosse title of Ontario, and the Mann Cup series are now scheduled. Here at home we have decided our softball and hardball league championships, soccer is still attracting its followers, our neighbor, Campbellford, is all wrapped up in its intermediate lacrosse club, and our Kiwanis juniors are in the semi-finals of the title quest.

Sir Thomas Lipton has arrived in New York with his latest "Shamrock" and the America Cup races will be world news when they start during the second week of September. The British polo team will soon be matching their speed and skill with the Americans in another cup hunt, golf is everywhere, and its miniature imitation is pre-empting vacant corner lots all over the continent, with reports of a successful invasion of England.

The major tennis tourneys are in the offing, and the major ball leagues are entering the home stretch.

This summary is by no means comprehensive, but it is sufficient to remind us, if we needed any cataloguing of our abundance of athletic contests, that sports have a vast empire. Our serious-minded citizens may be inclined to decry these enthusiasms, but their voice is lost in the cheers from the stands and bleachers.

However, when we look over our local sports activities are we not too prone to take them for granted? Are we doing enough to promote our winter and summer athletics in view of the proof that sport is such a dominant interest and an important factor in our social and commercial contacts? And as we neglect sport at least as a secondary concern of the community, do we realize the nature and extent of that loss, no matter how intangible it may be?

Leaving our baseball and hockey and football to the limited means of a few of the ardent promoters of these games may seem to be an unavoidable omission in our corporate activities. Sport may not ordinarily fall within the accustomed scope of a Chamber of Commerce, for instance; perhaps it can be left only to chance and the unfailing support of a loyal and youthful few, but might we not profit as a community if we resolved to find a way of putting into the promotion and accommodation of local sport a great deal more of the enthusiasm which these games everywhere evoke?

If we are content to neglect sport, it in turn will neglect us.

FLYING IN CANADA.

Figures given by the National Department of Defense in regard to aviation operations in Canada in 1929 indicate that organized flying has made much greater progress in the direction of safety than has been accomplished by free lance aviators.

When it is realized that such organized services as the air mail and the Ontario aerial forestry patrol have carried on without a single fatality despite the vagaries of weather and the other hazards such services are necessarily called upon to face, it is evident that flying when sufficient care is given to the condition of the machines used and to their operation is as safe, if not safer, than motoring under present-day traffic conditions.

Canada's air mail, after three years, is able to boast of a record of not a single life nor a single pound of mail lost, while the Ontario Government service has been in commission for years without a fatality.

The department comments upon the fact that last year there was an unnecessarily large number of accidents in civil flying, intimating that most of these may be attributed to over-confidence or to neglect of ordinary precautions.

In all thirty-one people were killed in Canada last year as the result of airplane accidents, and judging from the tone of the report, it is a justifiable conclusion that the majority of those accidents could have been avoided with ordinary care.

While it is true that one accident for every 4,970 aircraft flights is a small percentage, yet this record could have been improved if there had not been carelessness in some cases.

"SCATTERED LIKE DUST AND LEAVES."

The great interest stirred by the forthcoming visit of Louisianians to Nova Scotia, from which the British banished their ancestors, is due largely to Longfellow's poem. "The beautiful village of Grand Pre" would have been just as beautiful, and the sad story of Gabriel and Evangeline just as sad, if the theme had not attracted the poet. But he made it one of the best-known stories in the world, as there are many languages into which "Evangeline" has been translated, hexameters and all.

Louisiana received most of the Acadians, after long and painful wanderings, and it is their descendants who are returning to the scene of the great expulsion, decreed at London because it was thought essential to assure British dominion in Canada. Many families were separated never to be reunited, and for long years half the population did not know what had become of the other half.

In these days of radios and telegraphs and newspapers would have carried complete lists, and within a few weeks all the families would have been together again. Gabriel would have found Evangeline. There would have been no poem. Upon reflection, however, it may be argued that, in days like these, the policy of eviction would not have been formulated; or, if agreed upon, British public sentiment would not have tolerated it.—New York Times.

NO EMBARGO.

While appreciating the enthusiasm with which Border municipal leaders are attacking the task of attempting to solve the unemployment problem, the Star is unable to agree with a resolution passed at a meeting this week, a resolution calling upon the Government to place an immediate ban on the importation of completely-finished automobiles into Canada. It cordially seconds the last part of the resolution calling for a survey "with a view of enhancing the manufacture of automobile parts in Canada," but it cannot approve the embargo idea.

* * * *

Commissioner Frank J. Mitchell, a leading Conservative and himself a manufacturer of motor trucks here, stamps the resolution as "silly, short-sighted and highly dangerous." We are afraid that he is not far wrong. "You cannot put an embargo on anything," Mr. Mitchell points out, "without the other fellow hitting back. We have seen these embargoes work both ways before and only in rare cases did they ever accomplish any good. It is a most dangerous policy. There is always a reaction." And, very sensibly, he adds: "Why bar foreign cars and trucks when the same purpose can be accomplished by tariff legislation? We can boost the tariff and force the manufacture of foreign cars in Canada and still retain the friendship of our friends on the other side. A tariff is a matter of business; an embargo is a hostile act."

* * * *

This is the kernel of the situation. The United States, with its own example before us, cannot complain if Canada boosts the Canadian tariff wall to the skies. Our neighbors would have real ground for complaint, however, were we to take the action asked for in the Windsor resolution. Happily, the indications from Ottawa are that nothing of the kind will be attempted. "While it is the determined policy of the Bennett administration," the Star's capital correspondent wires, "to ensure as far as possible the production in Canada of manufactured goods now imported from the United States and elsewhere, the prohibition of importation by means of an embargo of legitimate lines of merchandise has not been contemplated and is not felt to be warranted or in line with public opinion."

* * * *

There has been much resentment in Canada against American tariff policy. We must not overlook the fact, however, that in 1911 Canada turned down a plan that had a reciprocal trade treaty between the two countries as its object. Our failure to accept the Laurier-Fielding idea has undoubtedly worked against the commercial interests of this country. Since that time the American tariff wall has been gradually rising and is now higher than at any other period in the history of the Republic. Nevertheless, we must admit the right of our friends across the line to handle their tariff as they see fit. They, in turn, will just as freely admit our right to place Canadian tariff walls wherever Canadians may desire them to be. American interests will be adversely affected, of course, by upward revisions of the Canadian tariff structure. No reasonable complaint can come from the United States, however, because Canadian interests have been adversely affected by the American tariff revisions.

* * * *

It is interesting to note, in discussing this phase of the situation, that the Americans themselves estimated that American goods to the value of $225,000,000 were adversely affeced by the increased tariff provisions contained in the Dunning budget introduced last May and now in effect or shortly to be. If the Dunning budget made such a great difference to American exports to this country, our friends on the other side must indeed be apprehensive as they see returned to power an administration that found its chief fault with the Dunning budget on the ground that it did not go far enough!

No, the thing for Canada to do is to raise tariffs as she may see fit, but to talk of prohibiting the import of legitimate goods from the United States or any other country is another matter entirely. It is quite out of the question—Border Cities Star.

THE DOLLAR DAY MURDER CASE
A Silo Dance Detective Story

Just as he was preparing to attack the fourteenth, and last, boiled egg which his man, Whosis, invariably arranged for his breakfast, Silo Dance, the great detective, was rudely interrupted by the ringing of the telephone at his elbow. Slowly the great man—aptly clad for the occasion in a maroon-and-gold silk dressing gown—picked up the receiver.

O—H

"Hello? . . . Yes? . . . What's that? . . . Oh, it's you, Inspector Knowall? . . . Eh? Murder? . . . Well, I wish you hadn't bothered me till I'd finished my egg. . . . Oh, he is? Well, then, I'll be there in half an hour. . . . Yes. And don't forget to bring Sergeant Beef along. I can't solve a case without my comedy relief. . . . "

O—H

"Yes, sir?"

"That was Inspector Knowall on the phone. There has been a very mysterious murder in front of The Examiner Office. I'll finish this egg and go down. Lay out my things, will you? . . . And—oh, Whosis!—my pearl grey fedora . . . and a dozen aspirins.

O—H

Quite a large crowd was gathered in front of The Examiner Office when Silo Dance appeared on the scene. Inspector Knowall and Sergeant Beef were waiting for him.

"Well, my dear Sergeant," greeted Dance, "another one, eh?"

"Just you leave this to me, Mr. Dance," returned the Sergeant, "I'll have the murderer in no time. In fact my boys are ready to put the handcuffs on him whenever I say the word."

"Oh, you've got the murderer, have you, Sergeant?"

"Yes, Mr. Dance. It's a clear case of jealousy over a woman."

"A woman, Sergeant?"

"Yes, Mr. Dance—the elusive Miss Dollar!"

"I see, Sergeant. Quite interesting . . . In the meantime, let us have a look at the body. You have it handy, Inspector?"

O—H

The body was covered with the noon edition and guarded by a single policeman. He wasn't single through choice, Silo felt instinctively, but had been unfortunate in love, due to fallen arches, dandruff, and something even his best friends wouldn't mention. The policeman saluted as the three men approached.

Dance kneeled down, lifted the noon edition, and was engrossed in examination for several minutes. Saying nothing, he went over the body carefully, removing several letters from the pockets and reading them with evident interest. Finally he stood up.

O—H

"There are four people in the world, any one of whom had every reason for wishing this person out of the way," Dance announced coolly.

His companions regarded him with amazement.

"Do you know who the murdered man is?" asked the great detective.

"No. Tell us!" interrupted the policeman. "We give up!"

Dance made a mental note: "That's just another reason he's single. He's fresh. And he probably eats crackers in bed, too."

But instead he said: "The murdered man is none other than . . . "

At that moment Dance was interrupted by a heart-rending scream and a terrific commotion without.

O—H

In rushed a beautiful young woman. She was dressed in the height of fashion, but was evidently suffering from severe mental and emotional strain. When she saw the body, she almost fainted, but Dance caught her.

"You," he said, "are the elusive Miss Dollar."

"Yes," she replied, "but I didn't do it. You see," she smiled, "this job was done by a blow over the head, and that isn't the kind of weapon I use."

"I can see that," returned Dance, gazing into her eyes.

O—H

An hour later Dance, the Inspector, and Sergeant Beef were seated in the luxurious lounge of the Ping Pong Club.

"Yes," Silo was saying, "the elusive Miss Dollar might easily have done it. She has every motive, and she is much too beautiful not to be deadly."

"Oh, that's the bunk!" the Sergeant exclaimed. "There's only one person who could have done it. Say the word, and my boys will have him in the cooler inside of ten minutes!"

"And who is this person you consider to be the murderer?" demanded Dance.

"Why, the City Editor! . . . Who else? Talk about motive! He had all the motive in the world for this job. Wouldn't a murder—right in front of his own office—make the best front page story in years? Think of the red streamers he could run on it! And, besides, do you realize . . . ?"

O—H

"Yes," the detective interrupted, "that's all quite true. But there are still two other people who must come under direct suspicion in this case. There is something very sinister in the whole business. The thing is not so simple as it seems. Now, when I tell you that the murdered man . . . "

O—H

At this moment Whosis entered.

"Beg pardon, Mr. Dance," he announced, "but there are two disreputable persons outside who wish to see you. They seem to be very excited, sir, and insist on speaking to you. They say it is about the murder."

"Did they give any names, Whosis?"

"Yes, sir. They called themselves Dead Beat and Casey, sir."

"Show them in, Whosis."

As the man went out, Dance turned to his two friends.

"Prepare yourselves for a shock, gentlemen," he said.

TEMPLE TOWER
By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

"One— possibly two. But not six. Damn it.—I'm not a walking garage."

"Where is the nearest garage?" cried Freckles.

"Rye," said Hugh laconically. "And even if we got there the chances of waking them up are remote."

We looked at one another blankly—the significance of this new development was overshadowed for the moment by the physical annoyance of the thing. We were all tired, and here we were, four or five miles from anywhere, planted with an immovable motor-car.

"Well, there's only one thing to be done," said Hugh at length. "One of us must go to Rye and throw sticks at the first garage until someone does appears on the scene. Let's toss odd man out goes."

"It would be me," said Freckles resignedly, as we looked at the coins. "Well, chaps, when my bootless body is found dead in a ditch, tell Mother that it wasn't the effect of alcohol."

We watched him go off down the road, and Hugh grinned.

"A good youngster," he said. "Very good."

And then he grew thoughtful again, studying the paper he held in his hand. The words were printed in block capitals, so there was no handwriting clue to be obtained. The message was in pencil, evidently done on the spot, as the paper had been roughly torn out of a notebook.

"Can you remember, Peter," he said at length, "whether we mentioned the fact that we were coming to Spragge's Farm to-night when we were in the Dolphin? I know we talked about it at dinner, and at my house, but on neither of those two occasions could we have been overheard."

I cast my mind back.

"I think we did," I answered. "I think it was mentioned when we were in that small room looking at that old map. But there were only the three of us there at the time."

"We might have been overheard from the hall," he remarked.

"As far as I remember only the parson and those two elderly women were in the hall. Anyway what is the great idea?"

"Nothing much," he admitted. "But what I was wondering was whether it was a pure fluke that this car was found here by whoever wrote that message? Or did the other side know we were coming?"

I saw his point, but I could no more supply the answer than he could. As far as we knew we had not been overheard, but only as far as we know.

"It's becoming increasingly obvious," he went on, "that a considerable number of people are involved in this. That man we saw silhouetted in the light was neither Vandali nor the chauffeur. Of that fact I'm perfectly certain. He was too tall for the first, and too slight for the second. Further, I don't think that it can have been he who wrote this note, unless by some extraordinary chance he was actually lying up in these sandhills when we arrived. Even then it takes time to remove six sparking plugs, and write a note. Yet he was at Spragge's Farm before us."

"Incidentally, how did he know your name?" I said.

"That's easy," he remarked. "It's written on a plate on the instrument board, even if he didn't know it before. But if my suspicions are right he did know it before, just as he knew our plans before. The key to this mystery, Peter, or at any rate one of them, lies in the Dolphin Inn. The little episode of the chimney-pot is all part and parcel of it."

"But look here," I objected, "if that's the case if they knew we were coming here why did that car go along the other road? Of course, it's possible that it wasn't their car at all, but some other people who had taken the wrong road."

"And another thing is possible too," he said quietly. "That it was their car, and when they drew blank on the main road they knew we must have come along this one."

"But that disposes of your own theory that they knew our plans," I cried.

"Does it?" he said. "I don't agree. They knew part of our plan, but not all of it. They knew we were coming to Spragge's Farm, but they did not know we were coming by the sea route."

"I don't see it," I began densely.

"Lord! man, it's plain," he cried. "If, that is to say, my supposition is correct, and the finding of the car was not a fluke. Where did we discuss approaching the Farm from the sea? In the dining-room, where we know we were not overheard. Where did we discuss the main idea of going to the Farm? In the little room."

"Where," I interrupted, "we know with even greater certainty that we were not overheard. Confound it all, old boy we three were alone in the room. The only people within range were the padre and those two old trouts knitting. You surely don't suspect one of them?"

"Every man who wears a dog collar isn't of necessity a parson," he said obstinately.

"Well, anyway," I remarked, "it can't have been to cleric who bunged the chimney at your head, because he was in the hall the whole time."

"Perhaps you're right, Peter," he said, but it was quite obvious he didn't think so. However, he said no more, and after a while, I began to doze in the sand. I calculated that it would be daylight before Freckles could possibly be back, and sleep seemed better than an insoluble argument. In fact, the only thing that mattered as far as I was concerned was that, fluke or no fluke, the darned blighter had successfully kept me out of my bed.

It was the sun's rays shining direct on my face that woke me. Hugh was still sitting beside me, and as I stirred he looked round.

"I hope to heaven nothing has happened to that youngster," he said in a worried voice.

I was wide awake in an instant that possibility hadn't dawned on me up till then.

"I ought to have gone myself," he went on. "He's but a baby. I'll never forgive myself if he's come to grief."

He rose and stared down the road, and I joined him. Visibility was poor, as the ground mist had not yet lifted, and after a while he began to fidget uneasily.

"I've got a good mind to go and look for him," he said. "It's three hours now since he started."

"I've got a good mind to go back and look for him," he said. "It's three hours now since he started."

"But surely," I said, "they wouldn't be such fools as to lay him out. They don't want to attract attention to themselves."

"I don't think they are going to kill him and leave him in a ditch," he grunted. "But we're up against an absolutely unscrupulous bunch, Peter. And whoever removed our plugs must have known one of us would go for more. What easier than to lie up—then dot that boy one as he passed? Just to make him talk when he came to. He's loyal all right—but don't forget his girl is there. And that would tend to spoil his nerve."

"Look here, Hugh," I said seriously, "we'll have to hand this thing over to the police. All joking apart, it's got a bit beyond our form. As you say yourself, that girl is inside Granger's house."

"I suppose you're right, Peter," he said regretfully. "But it does seem cruel hard, doesn't it? The point about the whole thing though, is this. What are we going to say to the blighters? After all, as far as I can see, the only actual offence that has been committed as yet, is the removal of our plugs. And we don't know who did it. Making a rope ladder is a perfectly legitimate occupation flashing red and blue lights is not a criminal offence. The person to go to the police, if anyone, is Granger himself. And he won't. It's not all as easy as it looks, you know."

I was silent what he said was undoubtedly true. Even if we showed them the note written by the unknown, our case was decidedly thin. More than likely they would regard it as a stupid practical joke, and in addition to that, view us with considerable suspicion for our share in the night's activities. At the same time one could not get away from the feeling of responsibility with regard to the girl, and I could see that Hugh was not too happy in his mind about it either....

"It is this way as I see it, Peter," he went on after a while. "And honestly it is not because I want to keep this bit of fun and laughter to ourselves that I say it. If we tell the police what little we know about this show up to date, our connection with it automatically stops. We pass out of the picture. Now the police are trammelled by all sorts of rules and regulations in other words they are not free agents. They have to obtain warrants and things of that kind before they can move a step. Would it not therefore be better to keep matters in our own hands at any rate until we know a bit more? Then if we think it necessary, or if there seems to be the slightest danger threatening that girl we'll tell them all we know."

"You darned old hypocrite," I laughed. "Have it your own way."

And once again we fell silent, staring down the road. The mist was lifting gradually, though it was still impossible to see any distance.

MEMBERS PRESENT SHORT ADDRESSES

Interesting Subject Features Regular Meeting of Keene Church W.M.S.

KEENE, Aug. 23.—The subject at the regular meeting of the W.M.S. of Keene United Church, which was held on Wednesday was, "An Hour With Hymns," and a number of interesting talks were given by several members of the society.

A collection of more than four dollars was taken to add to the expense fund already on hand to buy winter clothing for the missionary bale. Mention was made of two members, Mrs. R. Short and Mrs. Gilbert Howson, who have been ill.

The devotional leaflet read by Mrs. Comrie was "Be of Good Cheer," and closed with the poem, "Am I Wrong to be Always Happy?"

Mrs. H. Weir gave a paper on the hymns sung at the birth of Christ, while Mrs. Ralph Plunkett told how hymns were used first in missionary work among the children and the word "Jesus" binds all together and makes the world akin.

Mrs. McNeeley told of the hymn, "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne," which was written by Isaac Watts in 1719, and in 1741 John Wesley wrote the last stanza. Mrs. James Nelson explained how Dr. David Livingstone's favorite hymn was "O God of Bethel by Whose Hand." The words and music being used at his burial in Westminster Abbey.

Mrs. Robert Nelson spoke of Miss Phoebe Carey, of Ohio, and Mrs. Shearer, of how the beloved Prince Consort, Albert of England, repeated "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me," on his death bed. "For," he said, "if in this hour I had only my worldly honors and dignities to depend on, I should be indeed poor."

Mrs. Eason explained that "Abide With Me," was written by the Rev. Henry Francis Lyte, 1847, and Mrs. Sarah Flower Adams, the author of "Nearer My God to Thee," was spoken of by Mrs. James Gray.

Miss Dorothy Kindred concluded the talks with "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," after which silent prayers concluded the meeting.

A Thought

SIMPLE LIVING

The more simply you live, the more secure is your future; you are less at the mercy of surprises and reverses. An illness or a period of idleness does not suffice to dispossess you; a change of position, even considerable, does not put you to confusion. Having simple needs, you find it less painful to accustom yourself to the hazards of fortune. You remain a man, though you lose your office or your income, because the foundation on which your life rests is not your table, your cellar, your horses, your goods and chattels, or your money. In adversity you will not act like a nursling deprived of its bottle and rattle. Stronger, better armed for the struggle, presenting like those with shaven heads, less advantage to the hands of your enemy, you will also be of more profit to your neighbor.

RUMORS OF OTTO EXCITE BUDAPEST

GUARDS PLACED.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Aug. 23 (A.P.)—Official denial by police and other authorities that the former Empress Zita and her son Otto, pretender to the Hungarian throne, had returned to Budapest to undertake a coup d'etat, failed to-day to quiet excitement occasioned by the reports.

Despite the denials of Otto's return the police guarded public buildings and other strategic position. Once when a woman dressed in black and a boy of about 18 years appeared on the streets in an automobile, they were stopped on auspicion, but proved to be ordinary Budapest residents.

First reports that the young Archduke, who some Hungarian Monarchists recently recognized as King of Hungary, had returned here, reached the city four days ago at the beginning of festivities in honor of the Hungarian St. Emery.

EXPLORER DIED UPON WAY HOME

Believe Swedish Balloonist Reached Within 500 Miles of Pole.

ROWED TO ISLAND.

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 23. (A.P.)—Salmon Auguste Andree Swedish balloonist explorer who in 1897 tried to fly to the North Pole in a balloon, was believed here to-day to have reached a point less than 500 miles from his objective, and to have been beating back to the inhabited world when death overtook him.

Dr. S. Horn, scientist with the expedition which August 8, found Andree's body, and those of his two comrades, Nils Strindberg and Kunt Frankel, said that he did not think their balloon landed on White Island or Hvitvoen, since there were distinct traces of the party having arrived by rowing or walking.

On the back page of the balloon's log, one of two books found in the camp with the bodies, there is the notation "83 degrees north, 32 east" with the date July 18, 1897, seven days after the start of the balloon from Dane's Island, Spitzbergen.

The position given is some distance north of the spot where the men's bodies were found, and about 475 miles from the pole itself.

Mrs. Harry McQuade Seriously Injured

OMEMEE, Aug. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Harry McQuade suffered a serious accident recently. While hunting the eggs in the hay loft a sleeper gave way, letting her fall a distance of about eight feet. Some boards also came down on her. When found by her husband, she was unconscious. Medical aid was summoned and it was found her spine was injured. Ice application were used for three days before the affected part became sensitive. Her injuries are such to necessitate her remaining in bed for some time.

MOUNTIES SAIL FOR FAR NORTH

S. S. Beothic Has Detachment Aboard for Eastern Arctic Archipelago.

ADVENTUROUS DAYS

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S., Aug. 23—Sailing recently on the S.S. Beothic, was a detachment of Royal Canadian Mounted Police enroute to the eastern Arctic archipelago, where they will spend two years, before again returning to civilization.

Corporal Jacobs and Constables Dersch and Margetts were the first of the detachment to reach North Sydney. They were followed by Constable Foster, of Fredericton, and later by Inspector Joy, with the balance of the party which numbers twelve men.

The Beothic also carried supplies for the various mounted police posts in the eastern Arctic archipelago and will bring out the members of the force which the present party is going in to relieve.

The life of the mounted policemen in the Arctic is very adventuresome as described by one of the party. When they reach the main supply post they will be broken up into parties of two which will patrol their respective routes. Each member of the force is supplied with a large snow knife and when on the trail when making camp at night, they seek a spot where there is good pack snow and from this cut out blocks with which to make an igloo. These snow houses, when first made, offer no other ventilation than that which comes in through the blocks of snow, the doorway being closed up after the occupants get inside. After a while the moisture from the breathing and also the heat from the fire causes a coating of ice to form on both sides and it is necessary to punch a hole through the top. They are made large enough to accommodate a man comfortably in a sleeping posture.

The food usually taken on the trail is bacon and dried caribou meat, beans, coffee, tea and sugar. They dress in fur coats similar to the Eskimos and each of the parties has an Eskimo guide and interpreter attached. These guides acquire a position of authority among their own kind and they are all anxious to work for the police.

In the early days infanticide was practiced by the Eskimos when hunting was bad. This has been largely stamped out through the efforts of the police who stock emergency relief rations at strategic points to supply the Eskimos when times are bad.

One of the members of the party was present at the hanging of the two Eskimos who murdered one of the police, and he stated that it had a very salutary effect on the natives. The whole village was gathered together and the reason for the execution was explained to them through an interpreter. He remarked that the Eskimos are rapidly assimilating the idea that the white man's law must prevail.

Asked if there was any lawlessness in the country, he stated that the Eskimos on the whole, were very orderly and that if anyone broke the law, it was a very hard matter to escape punishment particularly in cases of capital crimes, as it was impossible to get out of the country without coming in contact with one or another of the natives, and in this way the police are able to trace the movement of the culprit.

He referred to the peculiar way in which news seems to travel in the Arctic, stating that he had had several demonstrations of the quickness with which it is carried by what is known as "moccasin route. Just how the news travels so quickly is a mystery. Whether it is telepathy or some sort of signals system, the police have never been able to ascertain. In giving an illustration he said an Eskimo had stated that a party would arrive the next day from a place 1500 miles distant and, sure enough, the next day the party turned up, but as to how the Eskimo obtained this information, they were not able to find out. When asked about it the Eskimo said: "Me no sabee, but wait, you see."

ANALYST FINDS NO POISON SIGNS

Accused Sarnia Woman's Death Result of Natural Causes.

HUSBAND NOT POISONED.

SARNIA, August 23. ((C.P.) — A verdict that Mrs. Mary Richardson, aged 29, who died in the Lambton County Jail, on August 14, while awaiting trial on a charge of murder, came to her death from natural causes, was rendered by a coroner's jury after a short inquest. The verdict was based on the report of a provincial analyst that no trace of poison was found in the stomach of the dead woman. The report also declared that Clarence J. Richardson, husband of Mary Richardson, whose body was exhumed from Lakeview Cemetery two weeks ago, also died from natural causes

Mrs. Mary Richardson was accused of the murder of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Richardson, of Point Edward, by administering strychnine on July 18 last, and a question was raised later regarding the death of her husband suddenly in May, 1929. It is understood that Alex. Butters, held on a charge of vagrancy, will be released.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 23.—Three members of a drilling crew were killed and eleven injured today when a drill struck and exploded a stick of dynamite at the bottom of a 600-foot shaft of the New Yonkers Long Island aqueduct in the Bronx. Four of the injured were in a serious condition.

The drill was believed to have struck part of a charge that had failed to explode with a previous blast.

PIVOT SHARES ADVANCE.

P.). — The stock market came to the close of a quiet week with the bull forces maintaining undisputed leadership to-day.

Trading was extremely quiet, sales for the two-hour session aggregating 700,000 shares, but several pool favorites were marked up 2 points or more, and gains on a point or so were numerous among pivotal shares. The market closed with a firm tone.

More short covering than profit-taking made its appearance. In the safety razor stocks, Autostrop shot up nearly 10 points, and Gillette gained moderately. Although the rails have been heavy all week, Atchison and Frisco rose more than 2, also probably reflecting retirement of short positions.

United Aircraft, Loew's, and Columbian Carbon, all moved up about 2 points. The pool activity in Radio Keith, however, failed to make much headway. A movement was started in General Bronze which rose two points.

WEATHER IDEAL FOR THRESHING

Cutting 75 Per Cent. Done in Manitoba—Grades Over West Are Fair.

COMBINES INCREASE.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 23 (C.P.)—Threshing weather on the Prairies has been ideal during the past week, with the exception of Northern Alberta where scattered showers have fallen, according to the 15th report on crop conditions by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The statement points out, however, that late reports indicate that rain has fallen at various points in other districts.

Cutting is approximately 75 per cent complete in Manitoba and some threshing has been done, says the report. In Saskatchewan 60 to 70 per cent of the grain has been cut and threshing will be general next week. Conditions are better to the north and worse in the drought-stricken south. Albert wheat yields per acre are placed at 22 in the north, 16 in the centre, and 15 in the south.

Grades throughout the Prairies, the report finds, will generally be a fair average, although below the high-class record established last year. Increased use of combines, especially in areas where straw is short, will tend to hasten the completion of harvesting.

EXCEPT FOR SLIGHT VARIATION MINING MARKET CONTINUES DULL

Oils Lead Belated Rally Which Soon Falls Back to Original Positions.

SILVER IMPROVES.

(By R. M. Radford; Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1930)

TORONTO, Aug. 23.—A late rally under the leadership of a few oils was the only event of interest on the mining market during the week just closed. Base metal stocks, particularly the higher-priced issues, participated to some extent in the upward turn, but golds, except in isolated cases, finished the period practically unchanged.

Holding at the low point for the year established during the previous week, the price index of 20 representative stocks failed to move until Thursday and then only climbed a point at a time. Incidently this low level is also the bottom for the same group of stocks in 1929. Volume of trading, after deducting sales of those issues known to be in professional hands, remained extremely light.

A turn for the better in the price of silver was about the most constructive bit of news received. The first sign of improvement occurred in London, and was followed by higher prices in New York the quotations moving over 36 cents an ounce for a time. Curtailment of production is generally credited with the more optimistic feeling surrounding the silver market, and increased demand from both India and China has created some scarcity of the metal at current levels.

The base metal markets showed little change. Zinc buying was in small volume merely holding. Copper market remains in a deadlock as a result of the metal being offered slightly below the official quotation of 11 cents, and the few sales last week were made around 10.75 cents. Producers are not willing to reduce the price any further for the present, and consumers are awaiting improved demand for their products before adding to stocks.

The six-months' report of Consolidated Mining and Smelting added further backing to the belief that no matter what change takes place during the latter part of the year earnings for 1930 will be low. Though in a strong financial position the company did not earn its dividend, casting a shadow on the prospects of other base metal producers not so fortunately situated. The annual report of Amulet Mines revealed an interesting situation, the company being able to show a profit for the short operating period. The declaration of the Noranda dividend of 50 cents a share was well received.

PRODUCE PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MARKET

Plentiful produce and a large crowd were features of the weekly market this morning. Eggs brought thirty-five and forty cents, while butter sold anywhere from thirty to thirty-five cents. he many chickens were picked up early at thirty cents a pound and the same price was asked for ducks. Many flowers were sold.

In the outer market hand-picked eating apples, mostly of the duchess variety, brought fifty cents a basket. Cabbages were worth five to ten cents. Other values were: Pickling onions, fifteen and twenty cents a quart, small cucumbers $1 a basket, pumpkins, twenty cents .

GETTING RID OF SAWMILL REFUSE IN OLDEN DAYS

Accumulated Refuse Caused Greater Deal of Trouble in Early Forties.

GAS FROM SAWDUST.

Mass of Mill Garbage Was Poured Into the Otonabee River.

By F. H. DOBBIN

The sawmills of the early forties and following years were speedily confronted with the serious hindrance to profit in manufacturing operation, in disposing of the refuse which accumulated. Mills were planted along the shores of the rivers where water power was available. Dwellings had to be constructed to afford living quarters and accommodation for supplies of foods, etc.

the lakes afforded storage for the thousands of logs, confined by booms and other contrivances. As the lakes held quiet waters and sparse currents such material had to be released from time to time. Common practice in the mill was to dump the refuse into the current from the tail-race and so dispose of it even if detrimental to the users lower down.

Edgings and slabs held little floatage capacity, being heavy from soakage in the water where they were stored during the winter waiting for the coming of spring.

Gas From Sawdust.

Slabs and edgings were a gift to the dwellers along the river and were hauled by them from the piling grounds and used for firewood in winter. The sawdust speedily came to rest along the shores and in quiet waters. In the course of time and under a warm sun this caused a sort of fermentation and release of gas. It is on record that the famous Nassau Mill, three miles above Peterborough on the Otonabee River, was, in the early fifties of the last century, lighted with gas from the sawdust.

The Yankee gangs, where in use, were prolific makers of mill refuse. Logs of from 22 to 30 inches were in general use, to make mercantile lumber. These were split from end to end by a single upright saw, and the two halves were handed to the gang. The flatted surface was pinned to the mill carriage when as many boards as could be made at a sawing were taken out by the gang at one stroke. These boards when needed were edged to as many inches as the board would make. Smaller logs were handled by the slabber, leaving the ten or twelve blocks to be sawn by a gang.

Advent of Lath Machine

As the lath sawing machines came into use different methods of sawing were adopted. From the earliest years split lath had been the vogue. Beard of considerable width and a thickness of three-eights of an inch were used in house building. These boards were placed on the ground and partially split with an axe to be stretched when nailed into position to the studding. The lath machine received the material in four foot lengths, and by the aid of circular saws specially spaced for the operation, poured from its clutches a stream of lath to be seized and bunched with wires or a coarse twine made for such purpose. All of such operations added to the refuse that emerged from the mills.

The mills of Bobcaygeon, Buckhorn, Burleigh Falls, Young's Point, Lakefield, and the five or six in operation around Peterborough poured out a mass of mill refuse into the Otonabee River that threatened to interfere with all operations where water power was a necessity. The Nassau Mill, one of the largest in the province, cutting and piling 160,000 feet of exportable lumber in 24 hours was most seriously crippled. This was due to the sawdust in the water collecting along the banks and projections to such an extent that it formed miniature dams to further interfere with the disposal of the refuse. In time this caused many unsightly piles of refuse which proved so objectionable that presently a clamour arose to eradicate the nuisance. Experiments were suggested, and to some extent made use of, and appeals were made to the Legislature for relief.

Created Torrent of Chips.

One cheerful inventive soul produced what was known as the slab grinder. It consisted of two toothed roller, 24 inches long and with a diameter of about 6 inches, carrier in shafts, with geared wheels at the four ends. The teeth revolving about two inches apart received the ends of the slabs and diligently ground them until they appeared, the result being a torrent of chips that poured into the tail-race and floated away. For a time this contrivance was looked on as the sawmill owners salvation, and the river-man's pest. The chips drifted to the shores of the streams and began to form beds and resting places for additional refuse. This soon proved to be an intolerable nuisance.

Two or three moderate sized steamboats plying along the waters of the rivers and minor lakes began to stir up trouble and thus gave birth to the incoming refuse burners. They consisted of stone and brick foundations on which were erected immense smoke stacks, with iron grate bars at the bottoms towered upwards, just a free-for-all vertical open air furnace. They sent out, day and night, volumes of smoke and a large variety of assorted smells and fumes.

A series of troughs and moveable scrapers gathered all the refuse and poured it into the maw of the burners. The burning contents of a stack two-thirds full of glowing hemlock and pine refuse caused quite enough heat to create steam sufficient to drive an ocean liner across the Atlantic. Snow falling in the vicinity had little chance to stay on the ground.

The coming into operation of the big steam sawmill of "The Ludgates' on the Little Lake, Peterborough, settled the matter for one firm. Three large flue boilers, built on the Clyde, and sent out for the purpose of making power, used up all the mill refuse in sight and gave ample energy to drive the machinery. A similar built mill was put up by Samuel Dickson at Peterborough.

The Dickson mills at Peterborough were finely built and arranged stuctures. They were taken in charge by Mr. Hazlitt following the death of Mr. Dickson early in 1870, and the output increased materially. The refuse burning appliances were less than successful as a continued eradicator of the refuse to be destroyed.

These mills were at the foot of London street where the rapidly flowing river turns to the right, and about 50 yards up stream from the first dam built by the government in the early twenties of last century.

Dry Refuse Fire Hazard

The second or later dam built by Mr. Dickson was a long and sturdy structure and was well equipped. The piers projecting up stream were lengthened and were planked and used as a bridge. Over this was carried on mill wagons all the refuse collected, and this was piled along the edge of the wharves. Part of a wing dam, from the Dickson dam, had enclosed the original buildings of the Dickson equipment which had been destroyed by fire. The remaining opening was filled with mill refuse and the piles extended along the river bank which stood about 50 feet in height. When levelled off the mass included the accumulation of many years. When the mills cease operating gradual encroachment by the current made inroads on the piles, until much of it was carried away. For many years the piles of dry refuse were a fire hazard to the town, and, indeed, considerable of it yet remains.

No doubt a similar state of hindrance affected many lumber mills and situations in different parts of the milling counties of the province.

Ancient Piles For Fuels.

A curious situation has developed, growing out of the necessity for fuel, especially in some rural parts. Immense piles of slabs, both hardwood and softer grades, piled as it came from the Scott's limits on Sandy and other waters, in the northern sections of the country, have been extracted from their long confinement, freed from decayed debris, and shipped to more southern places and re-sawed into 12-inch length firewood now selling at from $10.00 to $12.00 a cord. It is, at least, fully sixty years since these piles were laid in safekeeping. —Canadian Lumberman.

LUMBER FLEET MADE PORT HOPE SHIPPING CENTRE IN THE 80'S

Lumber From Georgian Bay Ports Put On Vessels for the States.

SHIPYARDS BUSY.

Turning back the pages of time, with a view to visualizing the lumber industry as carried on in the early 80's, in the town of Port Hope, one is reminded of the large number of schooners in the lumber carrying trade at that period. Some were two "masters" while others had three masts. In the case of the "Mary Ann Lydon," in addition to three masts, she had a cross-yard, and it was a fine sight to see these vessels leave harbor with the "hold" full and a deck load piled 4 to 6 feet high. The corporation of Port Hope built splendid wharves to house the millions of feet of lumber shipped in from the North country, from Waubashene, Victoria Harbor, and Midland, which came down by rail, was unloaded onto wharf and vessel, for transportation to various points in the United States, principally Oswego, N.Y. Many ships finished loading far into the night to take advantage of a favorable breeze, and the opportunity of getting away quickly to avoid unloading congestion at the other end.

Docks Charged Fees

In the matter of upkeep of these docks, it was customary to charge a small fee per thousand, board measure, for the privilege of unloading and loading. Naturally, there was rivalry with other towns along the waterfront, such as, Whitby, Oshawa, and Cobourg, and some of the trade was diverted from Port Hope through the action of other corporation councils cutting the fee. The lumber carrying fleet also brought back many cargoes of coal from Oswego, Big Sodos, and Rochester, which provided cargoes each way, and in those days there was money in having a fast ship, with captain, cook, and crew of three or four men. The industry furnished employment for men known as dock whollopers, whose chief equipment to withstand the wear and tear of lumber on their clothes was a small apron about 22 by 24, made of heavy sail duck, and fastened with a rope around the waist.

Great rivalry existed between the captains of the various vessels engaged in the lumber trade as to the time required to load and clear a port, as well as the time consumed crossing Lake Ontario to point of destination, where the same energy was displayed to get unloaded and back to port for another cargo. The men, who sailed schooners in those days were a hardy race, in fact, men following the sea in sailing ships are sturdy and strong, and full of courage, always taking risks, but carrying on for the love and lure of their vocation.

May Worked in Shipyards

Much employment was also given to men in the shipyards at Port Hope, as schooners were actually built in this yard, as well as repairs being carried on from time to time, which included making huge masts for the vessels out of straight sticks of pine, 75 and 100 feet long. These sticks of timber were procured in the vicinity of Port Hope from the mast woods, and many of these pine groves still surround Port Hope, trees having grown to replace those cut down when shipbuilding and the mast industry was at its height.

There were no automobiles in those days, and those, who could afford a sailing yacht or a sail boat, took their recreation and pleasure in that way, and among those who was the owner of a very fine yacht was the late Sydney Smith, lumberman, who had one of the best yachts in Port Hope harbor.

Square Timber From North

In those days, square timbers were brought down from the North by Elias Thompson, which was rolled off the cars into the new harbor at Port Hope in large quantities—whole train loads. Great was the delight of many small boys who watched the process of unloading, to see the splash as the great timber hit the water. If the days were clear, all manner of color was displayed in the spray as it reached up to the sky, and many a happy hour was spent by both young and old, witnessing the interesting work of unloading and placing the logs in position to be tied together with writhes, which are made of 30 or 40 foot elm or ironwood poles, twisted until the grain is broken, which allows them to be bent into different shapes and tied to hold the timbers together. The building of a raft occupied many days, and when complete would contain many thousand sticks of timber, on which would be erected a number of small huts or tents in which the men lived while the logs were towed to Montreal for transportation abroad.

Loading Ships for Europe

The ships into which these logs were loaded for shipment to Europe were built for the trade, and many had square holes or doors in the stern to facilitate loading and unloading. Many of the sticks of timber were of such length it was not convenient to load them through the hatches of the ship.

But lumbering has petered out, with nothing to replace it in the way of cargo, and the wharves all along the waterfront are more or less falling into decay. The business in and about the harbor has shrunk until nothing remains of the great hive of industry which carried on during the lumber trade in the early 80's. Memories of the past remain, and it was the height of many small boys ambition to be the guest of a schooner's captain on one of these trips to Oswego and back.—Canada Lumberman.

OBITUARY

MISS MARY C. SARGINSON

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 23 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — The funeral of Mary Clyte Sarginson was held on Friday, August 22, when Requiem Mass was said at St. Mary's Catholic Church, the Rev. Fr. C. J. Phalen officiating. The pall bearers were Leo Busch, Bill Callahan, Jack Cowell, Pat Collins, Pirie McDonald and O. Brahaney.

Miss Sarginson, who was in her 26th year, died on August 19th, after an illness of some duration. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Sarginson of Campbellford, and was born on June 5, 1905, at Campbellford, receiving her education at the Campbellford Public and High Schools and Toronto Normal, holding a first class teaching certificate. She was four years in the teaching profession, two years at Owenbrook and two years at the Sacred Heart School, Seymour.

Miss Sarginson was a very popular girl among her associates in the town and district, and was a member of the Catholic Woman's League of Campbellford, of which she was treasurer for the past year.

She is survived by her parents, and two sisters, Loretta and Monica.

Interment was made in the Catholic Cemetery at Warkworth, Miss Sarginson being buried at her own request by her grandmother at that place.

Many floral tributes and a large cortage testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by the citizens of Campbellford and district.

A tourist traveling through Western Kansas saw a man sitting by the ruins of a house that had been blown away, and stopped to ask, "Was this your house, my friend?"

"Yep."

"Any of your family blown away with the house?"

"Yep, wife and four kids."

"Great Scott, man, why aren't you looking for them?"

"Been in this country quite a spell, stranger, and I know that this wind's due to change. Figure I might as well wait here till it brings 'em back."

assured the delegates the expenses of a later meeting would be forthcoming.

Fight Over Insurance

The recommendations of the Council led to a stiff fight to put the meeting on record in favor of an investigation of the feasibility of unemployment insurance. Controller James Simpson of Toronto, representing the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, brought in an additional recommendation urging the Federal Government to provide for a census of the unemployed with a view to determining whether unemployment insurance was feasible.

Strong opposition came from representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and from A. H. H. Ballantyne, Deputy Minister of Labor of Ontario, with the result that Mr. Simpson modified his resolution, omitting all reference to unemployment insurance.

The recommendations of the Council are twelve in number and were passed with very little discussion; even the recommendation for a survey of the imports to Canada to determine what could be made here profitable and adequate legislation to ensure everything being made with Canadian labor which might be so made, encountered no opposition. However, A. E. Darby, of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, who had figured in several clashes on tariff questions earlier in the meeting, explained he had no objection to surveys and was in favor of getting all the information possible, but was not committing himself to higher protection.

Aimee Broke Mother's Nose is Rumor

Dame Rumor has been working overtime and a variety of stories are abroad as to the cause of the split in the Aimee McPherson household at Los Angeles, which has sent the famous evangelist's mother to the sanitarium with an alleged broken nose and prompted Aimee, herself, to retire to the seclusion of a beach cottage, where her physician states she is on the verge of a nervous breakdown. Although the talk of the town insists Aimee and her mother had a fistic encounter, this has been denied by her physician, as well as reports that she is blind, near death, having her face lifted and writing a book. However, Mrs. Kennedy, the evangelist's mother, has said: "If my daughter wants to bang me on the nose or I want to box her ears—it's nobody's business. And there the matter stands. Aimee and her mother are shown above in a pose that should dispel all rumors of estrangement.

Sweet William

by DANA BURNET

HER name was William. I think I heard, once upon a time, William's aunt Sophie say that William's mother had wanted a boy, and had called her girl baby William in sheer resentment.

Now, there were times when one wanted to annihilate William. For example, I recall a day in August when I was working desparately to finish a story before it would be time to go bathing. The day was hot, the story was stubborn. Then up the hill came William in that rattletrap old car of hers and, leaping out, pressed her beautiful, brief nose against the screen of my study window.

"Hello," she said in her husky contralto. "Working? Such a nice day as this!"

I became a potential murderer.

"Go away, William!"

"Such a nice, nice day . . ."

"William, if your in love again, go tell the world, but don't bother me."

"Where's Elsie?" (Elsie is my wife.)

"In the house."

"Well, I'll go tell Elsie. . ."

Aunt Sophie said that William had been in love steadily since she was fifteen. "She's had so many different kinds of beaux I don't know what to look for next. She started, naturally with a football player. I spent that fall in the Harvard stadium.

"The next one played golf. That left me with fallen arches. The next was a tennis fiend. I got sunstroke watching him win a pewter mug.

"Then came the one who was learning to play the saxaphone. That was the time I had my nervous breakdown."

Aunt Sophie Bigelow was William's only living relative. She was a small, sweet-faced old lady whom everyone adored.

William was twenty-two when she met Norman Reed. Reed was a hero, and when I say hero, I mean hero. That young man had more heroic qualities than even a fiction writer could invent.

Norman Reed had played football in college. And during the world war he had been an aviator, a flying ace in a famous combat unit overseas. At the age of twenty-nine, he was a modest, good-looking, and altogether charming young graduate hero.

"Well," said I to William, "when are you going to announce it?"

"Oh," she answered rather vaguely. "It's only August, you know."

William Flies

THERE was a certain charity masquerade ball at the casino. At this dance, William appeared as a torn and tattered newsboy. She was all rags. It certainly was pathetic. The amount of sympathy she received that night was extraordinary, and of course Norman Reed led all the rest in sympathizing with William.

These two sat at our table and everything was beautiful till about eleven o'clock in the evening, when suddenly a strange young man appeared and said hello to William.

I had just taken off my false face when, glancing up, I saw this tall young bird in the costume of an aviator shaking hands with William.

He was big and blond and indescribably joyous. "Hello!" he said. "Told you I'd drop over. Hello, Norman."

Reed got up, rather slowly, and did the honors. It developed that the newcomer was one Mr. Richard Garland and that somehow he and Norman Reed were well known to each other. At the moment I learned nothing more about Mr. Garland, though from the very first I sensed the fact that William now had on her hands exactly twice as many heroes as any one girl ought to expect. But wait till I tell you—

At the first opportunity I questioned William. We were walking toward the beach for air.

"Who," I asked, "is Mr. Garland?"

"Oh, he's a friend of Norman's."

"But where'd you meet him?"

"Oh, at Silver Beach this afternoon when Norman and I went over to fly."

"Have you been flying, William?"

"Oh, yes. It was thrilling."

"What did you fly in?"

"A biplane. I'd never been up before, and wanted to go, and Norman said he'd take me. We drove over and went down to where the planes were, and there Norman saw Mr. Garland—he was leaning against the side of his plane smoking a cigarette and looking awfully sort of picturesque—"

"Who was?"

"Mr. Garland was. And Norman said, 'I know that man. He's Dick Garland.' And then he spoke to him, and it seemed that Norman and Mr. Garland were in the same what-do-you-call-it?—the same air squadron?—during the war. They were both aces. Isn't it funny?"

"It's preposterous. But Mr. Garland is still practising, while Norman has retired from the profession."

"You see," explained William, "Mr. Garland's father is hard. I mean, it seems that he's in the banking musiness in Boston and frightfully rich and rather stiff about the neck. Mr. Garland wants Dick to join the bank, or—is join the word?"

"No."

"Well, anyway, Dick—I mean Mr. Garland—doesn't want to join his father's bank. So it seems that he's cut off temporarily from his father's affections and has to make his own living. So he took this job flying aeroplanes at Silver Beach."

A Pumpkin-Villain?

"I SUPPOSE you invited him to this dance—?"

"I believe I did mention it," admitted William. "But, you see, he hadn't time to get up a costume, so he just came in his other flying suit. I think he looks rather well in it, don't you?"

The lone airman completed a backward loop above the sea. I felt William's fingers digging into my arm. "Oh!" she breathed. "I wish he wouldn't."

"I think he does. But there's something wrong with this picture, my dear William. It's all cluttered up with heroes. There ought to be a villain in it somewhere."

"Sorry," said William. "I don't think there are any villains in Manasquot this summer. Unless," she added, giggling, "you count that funny little man over there by the door. They say he's a retired bootlegger. But you could hardly call that little man a villain."

"No," I agreed, with a disdain that later I was to regret.

"He looks rather like a pumpkin," observed William critically.

William was greeted, as we reached our table, by Young Mr. Reed and young Mr. Garland simultaneously. That is, both stood up—Mr. Reed tall and dark and handsome, Mr. Garland blond and tall and handsome—and said: "Hello, want to dance this—?"

William looked from one to the other. There was a lovely moment of hesitation and appraisal. Then—

"I think I promised this to Norman," said William, and as Reed triumphantly drew her into his arms, she smiled.

I say she smiled, but I don't know quite whom the smile was for or what it signified. All I know is that young Mr. Garland remained standing against the wall near our table till it came time for him to cut in. And then he went forth as one bound on the very business of his soul.

The next morning on the beach, I flung myself down beside Aunt Sophie, who said: "Good heavens! Will the girl never make up her mind? And to think that this one's an aviator!"

"Norman was an aviator too," I suggested.

"But he's got over it. He's a sensible young man. Is this one sensible?"

"I'm sure I don't know. Miss Bigelow. He looked like a nice, bright young man."

"Nice? Bright? Mmmm! He's probably a reckless young daredevil who'll turn out to be no good at all. Humph! Here comes William now. You talk to her. I'm going to sleep."

"Hello," said William, dropping down on the sand beside me. "You haven't seen any biplanes flying about this morning, have you?"

"Are you exepecting a biplane?" I asked, with a glance at Miss Bigelow who seemed actually to have fallen asleep.

"Well, yes and no."

"William," I said, "your Aunt Sophie's worried about you."

"Worried Over Myself"

LIFTING her head from the curve of her brown arm, she said: "To tell you the truth, I'm worried about myself. . . . Norman asked me last night to marry him. And I said, like a perfect idiot, 'Give me time to think it over, Norman'—when what I wanted to say was, 'Yes, thanks very much, I'd love to.'"

"Well, if that's what you wanted to say, why didn't you say it?"

"Because, as I told you, I'm an idiot. There was something else in my head—something that Dick Garland had whispered to me when I was dancing with him."

"Something very important?"

"Oh, no! It was nothing at all. . . . I mean, it was just my name."

"Your name?"

"Only he said"—here William sat up, clasped her knees in her arms, and looked reflectively at the sea. "He called me 'Sweet William,'" she mused aloud, "and somehow I liked it.

"He said it so nicely. And—do you know?—all at once I'd an entirely new conception of myself. And rather disturbing."

"Why disturbing?"

"Well, you see, I've always thought of myself simply as a nice girl who knew her oats. But last night," continued William, still gazing dreamily into the blue distance, "I suddenly began to suspect myself of secret romantic tendencies. And the worst of it is that I don't know this Dick Garland at all. I simply don't know him at all."

"Well," said I, "it looks as though you were going to have a chance to get better acquainted with him." And I pointed to a speck in the sky.

The speck rapidly became a white-bellied aeroplane whose droning could now plainly be heard.

"It's my blond-haired boy friend," said William, "coming to ask me to ride. Aunt Sophie darling! How'l you like to go up and look at a cloud?"

"Horrible!" exclaimed Aunt Sophie, rousing and staring fearsomely heavenward. "This is the worst yet."

By this time Elsie had joined us, and a moment later Norman Reed appeared.

"It must be Dick," he said to William, with an indifference that seemed to me a trifle forced.

Other voices chimed in around us.

"He's going to land!"

"On the beach! Yes, he is."

"No, he isn't. He's climbing up again."

"Oh, did you see that! He looped the loop! He's going to do stunts!"

It was true. The lone airman, attaining a sufficient altitude, had hovered for a moment in space, then with graceful deliberation, had completed a backward loop above the sea. A moment later he banked and shot up and repeated the manoeuver.

I felt William's fingers digging into my arm.

"O!" she breathed. "I wish he wouldn't."

"It's all for you, William."

"I wish—I do wish—he wouldn't. There he comes down! He's going to land."

A few seconds later the plane bounded gently down on the hard sand.

"Thank the Lord," said William. "Come along, Aunt Sophie."

"Yes," snapped Miss Bigelow, rising. "Here I go on what will probably be my last adventure in human folly."

Enter Mr. Jones

WILLIAM, Aunt Sophie, my wife, Norman Reed, and, in fact, most of the summer population of Manasquot now were hurrying toward the parked plane. But I was slightly delayed in reaching the scene.

"Pardon me," said a cheerful tenor voice at my shoulder. 'Pardon me! Could I trouble you for a light?"

I turned and saw beside me the little man who looked like a pumpkin.

"Quite a little bit of excitement," he piped. "Wonderful age we live in."

"I said "Wonderful!" and rushed forward to see William and Dick Garland just helping Aunt Sophie into the cockpit of the plane. The dear old soul looked grim, but she was game.

All during that brief flight, I was conscious of the fat little man chirping away at my shoulder.

"Yes, sir. . . Wonderful age we live in . . . I'm told there's a lot of liquor landed by aeroplanes alon this coast, but blest if I've seen any of it. . . .Ha, ha, ha! I like my little drink now and then."

"Yes, of course. Certainly," I answered, gazing into the sky.

"Well, well, I suppose a man's better off without it. . . .Thought if I could get hold of a quart or two I'd be willing to take a chance on it. But I'm naturally shy—don't like to ask people—Ha, ha!"

I glanced down at him, wondering whether it could possibly be true that this human pumpkin ever had been a bold, bad bootlegger.

"That young fellow who's driving that aeroplan . . Ha, ha! I take it he's a friend of yours? Saw him at your table last night at the Casino . . Sort of lonesome being up here all alone. . . Well, well! I suppose you know everybody in the place. Ha, ha! But I don't think I've seen this young aviator around here before."

At that I turned to look at the little man more closely.

"See," I said, "I don't know what your game is, but it sounds very much as though you were trying to pump me."

"Pump you? My dear sir—? Why on earth should I—?"

"I'm sure I haven't the slightest idea. But I don't like it. To be perfectly frank, I don't particularly like you. So if you'll excuse me, Mr.—?"

"Jones is the name," murmured the pumpkin sadly and sidled off with such a reproachful look that I almost repented my rudeness.

I was the first to greet Aunt Sophie when she landed.

"Miss Bigelow! I congratulate you."

"It wasn't so much," said Aunt Sophie, with superb calm. "But, do you know, I rather like that young Garland. I've asked him to dinner to-night. Will you and Elsie come? I thought we'd have some bridge afterward—you two, Mr. Garland and I."

"What about William?" I asked.

Some time later that morning I met William.

"I understand that Aunt Sophie has invited one of your aces to dinner to-night," I said, "and that you're going driving with the other one?"

William nodded. "Yes," she said, abstractedly. "And which I'd rather do or play bridge I don't know. I'm awfully fond of Norman. I know him much better than I know Dick Garland—naturally—and I think I'm going to marry him. And yet—"

"And yet—?"

"Well," said William, "to sum up, I'd say that aces were easy, if you know what I mean."

Dick Arrested

THAT night we played no bridge. For somehow Dick Garland and Aunt Sophie got to talking about France. Young Mr. Garland was an engaging talker. His story of a visit to the wine caves abont Rheims during the war had a fine quality of ironic gayety, and when he described how he had managed to ship home, just before the American prohibition law went into effect, twenty cases of excellent French champagne for his father's cellar, it almost brought tears to our eyes.

"Goodness me!" sighed Aunt Sophie, somewhat recklessly, "what I wouldn't give for a bottle of real champagne—"

There she stopped, and a faint color appeared in her dear old face. "That is," she added with a deprecatory smile, "if I weren't a good prohibitionist."

Dick Garland looked at her, leaned forward impulsively and was about to speak when apparently he changed his mind.

At ten o'clock, William and Norman returned from their drive, and then—

Well, it seemed that there was a perfectly wonderful moon, which we all simply must go out and look at. So we all went out and looked at the moon, and after a while William and Mr. Garland were missing. They were still missing when Elsie and I said good night. We left Norman Reed talking with Aunt Sophie.

The next da, Elsie told me that William had told her that after we'd gone, while she was still looking at the moon with Dick Garland, he suddenly had taken her in his arms and kissed her.

"And what did William do?"

"She said she kissed him back—automatically, you understand—"

"I understand."

"And then lay awake half the night considering his character."

"Ah, indeed!"

A week later, the question of Dick Garland's character came up sharply, and with dramatic results. And it was the pumpkin, the little man whose name was Jones, who precipitated the situation.

It was about two o'clock in the afternoon of a brilliant summer day. Elsie had gone to Portland, and I was working in my study, when up the hill came William in that rattletrap old car of hers and, leaping out, burst in at my door.

"Thank the Lord you're here! You must come at once. Dick's been arrested, and he's at our house, and Aunt Sophie's sitting on the evidence—"

"Hold on, William! You say Dick Garland's been arrested?"

"Yes. By that dreadful little man!"

"The pumpkin? But how could he—"

"Because he isn't a pumpkin, and he isn't a bootlegger. He's a federal prohibition officer!"

"My sainted aunt!" I exclaimed.

"Your sainted aunt?" cried William. "It's my sainted aunt who's to blame for the whole catastrophe. You see, Dick went home yesterday to Beverly to see his father."

Lying in Wait

"BUT I thought Dick and his father weren't on speaking terms?"

"They weren't. But yesterday Dick went to see him because he—oh, well, that doesn't matter. The point is that when he came back he brought with him, in a suitcase, six bottles of perfectly good pre-war champagne."

"For Aunt Sophie!" I guessed.

"Yes," said William. "You see, when he got out of his plane, there was this dry sleuth lying in wait for him."

"And the dry sleuth arrested him?"

"No. Not then. He arrested him in our front yard. He said he wanted to find out who was buying the liquor. He said that to Aunt Sophie—imagine!—just after he'd pinched Dick, and Aunt Sophie—well, Aunt Sophie was magnificent. She said: 'All right! If I'm going to be put in jail for accepting a few friendly bottles of champagne, then I guess I'll just keep the champagne.' And with that she grabbed up the suitcase—it must have weighed—oh, a ton!—and ran into the house with it, and put it down in the middle of the living-room floor and sat on it."

"William," I said, "this is serious. "Let's go."

"I telephoned Norman," said William, "he'll be there, too."

He was. All told, there were five of us in Miss Bigelow's living-room when the proceedings commenced, and most striking of all was Miss Bigelow herself. How long the dear old lady had been sitting on that suit case I don't know, but no queen on a throne ever had a more majestic demeanor. The pumpkin sat in a stiff chair near by and looked fatuously uncompromising.

"You do the talking," said Aunt Sophie to me.

I bowed my acknowledgment of this honor and addressed Jones.

"Old man," I said, "you've made a mistake. Why not admit it like a decent fellow and end this farce?"

"It may be a farce to you," answered the pumpkin, "but to me it's business. There's a lot of liquor coming in along this coast, and it's my job to find out all I can about it."

"You'll find out nothing by arresting an innocent man!"

"He ain't innocent," retorted the prohibition agent. "I caught him with the goods on him. He's been transporting intoxicating liquor and that's illegal—"

"It's technically illegal, I'll admit," I interrupted him. "But under the circumstances, to arrest Mr. Garland—"

"What do you know about Mr. Garland?" snapped the pumpkin.

I turned to young Reed, and at the same time William said in a low tone, "Norman!"

The latter stepped forward promptly. Never, I thought, had he looked more gallant, more casually heroic.

"I know Dick Garland," said Norman quietly. "He was in my outfit in France during the war. Mr. Garland is not only a gentleman but also a distinguished ex-officer of the government that you pretend to serve."

"A Gorgeous Lie"

"WAIT a minute, Mr. Reed. You say you knew Mr. Garland during the war. How much have you known or seen of him since the war?"

"I've seen nothing of him since the war, but I—he—"

"Oh, you've seen nothing of him? Then you don't really know anything about him at the present time?"

"Mr. Jones," I said impatiently. "You have only to call Mr. Garland's father on the telephone—"

"No, don't do that!" spoke up Dick himself, with a queer travesty of his once joyous smile. "I don't want father to know anything about this."

"Why not?" shot back the prohibition agent.

"Because I've just made peace with him after eight years of quarreling, and I don't want to spoil things by letting him know I've been pinched as a bootlegger. Besides, there's no sense in it. Good Lord, Jones, why can't you believe me when I tell you the simple truth. The champagne in that suit case came from my father's wine cellar. I sent it to him myself from France in December, 1917."

"And how do I know the stuff came from your father's cellar?"

"But surely," cried Dick, his eyes beginning to blaze, "surely you don't suspect me of selling liquor to these two ladies? If you do," he shouted, "I'll jolly well knock your fat block off!"

The pumpkin didn't move. He just sat there and smiled.

"Then why was you bringing that suit case to this house?" he demanded.

Dick Garland looked grimly at the pumpkin; then rather helplessly at Aunt Sophie, who in turn looked askance at William.

"The fact is, Mr. Jones—" began that young woman desperately, but I stopped her. I sprang into the breach with my famous lie. It was really a gorgeous lie, one that any fiction writer might be proud of.

"The fact is, Mr. Jones," I said, "the champagne in that suit case was to have been drunk—and I trust will still be drunk—at Miss Bigelow's wedding!"

There was a tense silence, during which I looked steadily at Mr. Jones.

"Oh," uttered the latter. "Oh-h-h! A wedding! So the young lady here is going to be married?"

"Yes, she is. That's right, isn't it, William?"

"Right!" breathed William. And then she smiled, a sudden, glorious smile that seemed to illumine the whole room. "Yes! I am going to be married."

The Lie Comes True

AND at once, by some strange telepathic process, we all became aware of the fact that William really was going to be married. To me, who had invented the lie, this psychological boomering was most amazing.

"Well," said Mr. Jones, rubbing his plump knees, "I suppose it's Mr. Reed here that you're going to marry. And I must say that puts a different light on the matter. But, just the same, I think what I've thought from the beginning: I think your friend Garland's been smuggling booze along this coast. And the reason I think so is that I've seen that suit case before this. Just three days ago I dug it out of a sand dune over on Silver Beach, where it had been planted by somebody who wasn't expecting to catch no snipe with it. It was empty, then, and I left it just as I found it. But I scratched a mark on it so's I could tell it if I ever saw it again. And there's the mark!" concluded Jones, pointing at Aunt Sophie's throne. Then, turning to Dick Garland, he ripped out, "Where'd you get that suit case, young fella?"

Before Garland could speak William sprang forward and said, "Don't you answer him, Dick! Who cares where you got that silly old suit case?" Then suddenly a kind of ecstasy seized her.

"Listen, you Mr. Jones! Listen, all of you! I love Dick and I'm going to marry him. He may be a bootlegger—he may be anything—for all I know. I'll marry him in jail if I have to, but I'm going to marry him!"

"William!" cried Norman Reed.

The girl looked at her other hero and slowly shook her head.

"Oh, Norman, I'm awfully sorry. But it's true. I do love him—"

There was a protracted and rather painful pause. Then—

"In that case," replied Reed, with a really heroic smile, "I'll say good afternoon. I wish you luck—both of you. And—good-by, William."

His exit was splendid, but I was the only one who witnessed it. For Dick Garland by that time had William in his arms; Aunt Sophie was crying into her handkerchief, and Jones was staring at the ceiling.

"Sweetheart," murmured young Mr. Garland, "I'm not a bootlegger. As for that suit case, I borrowed it from a chap, a mechanic, who left Silver Beach this morning for Canada. Maybe he'd noticed the mark that Mr. Jones scratched on his bag! But, anyway, I'm not a criminal."

"As a matter of fact," concluded Dick, glaring over William's head at the dry officer, "I'm third assistant cashier in my father's bank in Boston—or will be, starting Monday. And now I'd like to know whether I go to jail or to the nearest marriage license bureau?" And, still glaring at Jones, he barked explosively, "Well!"

The pumpkin got up slowly.

"If I was sure I wouldn't be sued for false arrest," he ruminated, "I guess I'd be willing to let bygones be bygones."

"It's a bargain!" declared Dick, and impulsively held out his hand.

The dry sleuth shook it limply and turned to go. But Aunt Sophie rose and blocked his way.

"Mr. Jones," quavered the old lady, "you're a nice man, at heart, and a good man. I just know you are. I want you to stay and drink to the happiness of these two dear young people. Oh, I know you're a prohibition officer, and all that. But a glass of champagne never hurt anybody and—Dick! Take that suit case out to the pantry and open a bottle right away. I want Mr. Jones to drink to the health of my dear, demented William."

At five o'clock that afternoon, Mr. Jones, the dry sleuth, was sleeping peacefully in a spare room over Aunt Sophie's garage; Aunt Sophie was sitting alone in the living-room, drinking black coffee and humming softly to herself; William and Dick were in the sun porch getting acquainted, and I was on my way home to my wife.

"Elsie," I said, when I had told her the news, "why do you suppose William, with all the odds in favor of Norman Reed, chose Dick Garland?"

"Don't be silly," replied Elsie. "Didn't she tell you herself that he was the only man who'd ever called her 'Sweet William'?"

William looked from one to the other. There was a lovely moment of hesitation and appraisal.

The British Navy Is a Complex Body

Its 78,524 Employees Are Not All Jolly Tars

EXCLUSIVE of commissioned officers, there are 78,524 men employed in the British navy, but all of them are not bluejackets and petty officers.

A schedule just issued by the admiralty shows the number of men in different classes.

First of all, there are 31,820 seamen, ranging from able seamen to chief petty officers.

Then come 2,011 signalmen, 2,788 telegraphists, 106 sailmakers, and 441 ships' police, now known as the regulating branch.

In the next category are engineers who number 22,069, made up of 327 mechanicians, 18,614 stokers, and 3,128 engine room artificers.

The Royal Marines number 8,941.

In the next group come 1,865 artificers, who work under the gunnery and torpedo officers; then 1,736 artisans, including blacksmiths, plumbers, painters, joiners, and coopers. The sick berth staff includes 1,095, the officers' stewards and cooks 2,058, and the men who work under the accountants' officers 3,574, these including 868 writers or clerks, 1,243 supply ratings, and 1,463 ships' cooks.

It will thus be seen that only 40 per cent. of the total man-power consists of seamen. Eight years ago these formed only 34 per cent., but the number of engineers has been much reduced owing to improvements in mechanism and the more general use of fuel oil, and the number of marines has dropped in eight years from 15 per cent. to 11 per cent. of the total personnel.—From This and That.

SLIGHTLY MIXED

ONE Saturday two clergymen were out together. Toward the end of the day it occurred to one of them that he had no sermon ready for the morrow. He confided his difficulty to his companion, an old prison chaplain.

"Oh, never mind," the latter said. "I'll lend you one of mine."

The defaulting clergyman accepted the offer and, sending for the sermon on Sunday morning, took it into the pulpit without examination. For a time everything went smoothly, but then the astonished clergyman found himself addressing a bewildered congregation in the following words:

"I have seen some of you here before, once, twice, even thrice, but I hope I shall never see any of you here again!"

"SOME men land in congress, others in prison."

ARTICLES OF INTEREST TO THE FARMER

HISTORY MADE AS FIRST ELECTRIC THRESHING TRIED AT BRIDGENORTH

Allan Mann Threshes 12 Loads of Fall Wheat With Fine Results.

HAS OWN SEPARATOR.

History was recently made in local agricultural circles, when the first threshing by electricity ever undertaken in this district as far as can be ascertained, was undertaken at Allan Mann's farm at Bridgenorth.

This unique means of threshing, so far removed and in advance of the primitive flail, was made possible by reason of the fact that hydro line has recently been run by the H.E.P.C. into the Bridgenorth territory.

Mr. Mann who boasts one of the finest grain crops he has enjoyed in recent years, experimented with a 10 h.p. electric motor to drive his Sawyer-Massey separator. Putting twelve loads of fall wheat through under these conditions, Mr. Mann found that his motor was hardly powerful enough. By this time he has probably installed a 15 h.p. motor which he considers will be more suitable.

When sought out for an interview by The Examiner, Mr. Mann was found perched on the seat of his binder, which was being drawn by four sturdy horses around the edge of the tall-standing grain. Welcoming the opportunity for a short respite, he spoke enthusiastically of the benefits of hydro installation. He was unable to make any comparisons as to the cost of threshing by electricity and threshing by other methods, but was emphatic in stating that he considered he had made a good stroke of business.

Electricity in Barn

Remarking on the fact that all his barns, stables and cow stalls are electrically lighted in addition to the house which is wired from cellar to attic, Mr. Mann pointed out the labor saving and other advantages which this means to the busy farmer.

The first of the grain put through the electrically-operated separator was sent to the chopping mill at Lakefield, and constituted one of the first consignments of newly-threshed grain to go to the miller this season.

"No one but a Mann has ever livd on this farm," stated Mr. Mann. "It has been in the poeession of the family for 110 years and we hold the original seal issued by the Government which gave up the grant from the Indians."

The farm, which covers an acreage of 200 acres was first settled by the present owner's great grandfather, James, and it is interesting to note that Mr. Mann's father is still living on the farm. At one time four generations of Manns lived there, including a son, father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, all named James.

Mr. Mann lives on the farm along with his wife and four children. His father is 82 years of age and can recall the time when the flails were in use. These later gave place to the horse-power threshers, a few of which are still in operation locally. Steam and gasoline engines were the next mediums of providing power for threshing—and now electricity.

79 Acres to Thresh

Mr. Mann has 79 acres of grain to thresh this season, made up of 41 acres of oats, 8 acres of wheat and 30 acres of barley.

Mr. Mann's ancestors came of United Empire Loyalist stock. When they settled on the present land, they lived in a log shack which has now given place to a commodious and substantial red brick house, surrounded with well-kept lawns and gardens.

The Mann's it is claimed, were the first people in the township to own a team of horses.

"Jack," a dog which earned local fame as a collector for hospitals, has died at Throne, England, of Verdigris poisoning, said to have been caused by picking up in his mouth 2,400 pennies which he collected in a hotel for the Doncaster Infirmary.

Ontario Holstein Sets Fine Record

Mona Pontiac Walker, a four-year-old Holstein heifer bred by Dennis Calnan, Grafton, Ont., and now owned by the C.P.R. Demonstration Farm, Strathmore, Alta., has just finished a highly creditable record in the 365-day division of the R.O.P., qualifying with a production of 28,997 lbs. milk containing 1,062.50 lbs. butter, which gives her a high meritorious standing among the leading butter cows in Canada.

PROPER ROTATION IMPORTANT POINT

Practice of Growing Same Crop on Same Land Too Long Cuts Profits.

FIGURES SPEAK PLAINLY

In a recent estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics the area of hay and clover grown in Quebec was 4,193,298 acres. This acreage of hay seems very large in comparison to 1,838,000 acres of oats and 124,000 acres of barley. In livestock raising the necessity of buying concentrates, which is the most expensive constituent of the ration, has a great deal to do with raising the cost of production and therefore lowering the profits on the finished products. The practice of growing large quantities of hay, year after year on the same land, and therefore producing a small crop of inferior hay, would seem to be of doubtful economy.

The average yield of hay in Quebec in a recent 15-year period was 1.29 tons per acre. Based on an analysis by Henry and Morrison, this would provide 77 pounds of crude protein, 1,104 pounds of carbohydrates and 31 pounds of fat, or 1,251 pounds of total food nutrients. The same authorities calculate the food nutrients for a 1,100-pound cow giving 25 pounds of 4 per cent. milk at 2.12 pounds of crude protein, 13.7 pounds of carbohydrates and 0.63 of a pound of fat per day. On this basis, the acre of hay would provide protein enough for 36.5 days, carbohydrates for 20.6 days and fat for 49.1 days

For eight years the Dominion Experimental Station at Lennoxville has conducted experiments in connection with crop rotations, and as a means of comparison with the above cropping practice, we might consider the food nutrients contained in a six-year rotation of corn, barley, clover, timothy and oats, where the average yield per acre over an eight-year period was 11.09 tons of corn, 33.7 bushels barley (0.66 of a ton of straw), 1.25 tons clover, 3.25 tons timothy 1st year, 3.25 tons the second year, and 56.1 bushels oats (1.04 tons straw). This rotation has produced feed nutrients per acre at the rate of 185 pounds of crude protein, 2,248 pounds of carbohydrates, 65 pounds of fat, or 2,689 pounds of total nutrients. On the above basis, this would provide enough protein to carry the cow for 87.4 days, enough carbohydrates for 164.1 days, and enough fat for 102.6 days. While these figures do not represent a balanced ration, they do show that much greater amounts of food nutrients may be produced from a systematic rotation than from the practice of having fields cropped to hay indefinitely. Such a rotation would, therefore, cut down the feed bill for high priced concentrates and incidently boost the profits.

CORN BORER ACTIVE IN THIS DISTRICT

"Look closely and be careful about the first few bites, there may be a worm in it" is the cautionary advice given out to-day to local eaters of corn on the cob. More than one person has had his whole dinner spoiled by finding an inch-long juicy worm in the cob of corn on which he had been eagerly munching, The Examiner was informed.

These worms are nothing more or less than the notorious corn borer which for years back has been turning gray the hair of corn growers throughout southern Ontario. But it is only in recent years that this pest invaded Peterborough couny.

Now, one reliable informant states, it would be difficult to purchase twelve cobs of corn from any local stores but that in one cob at least a borer or two would be found.

In some cities a local by-law has been passed to protect the consumer. In Hamilton and London the merchants before retailing the corn must husk each cob to show definitely that each does not contain a borer. The cobs having the borer must be burned forthwith.

The province has passed strict laws in an extensive effort to stamp out the borer, or to at least keep it from spreading, and Peterborough County has for many years been under quarantine. This prevents local farmers from shipping corn to counties not quarantined.

In the opinion of one citizen closely in touch with the local situation the Board of Health should pass an order similar to that existing in Hamilton and London to protect the consumer.

WHITE PLAGUE AMONG FLOCK MEANS LOSSES

Drastic Action Required for Solution If T. B. Hits Chickens.

HARD TO RECOGNIZE

Burn Birds That Are Noticeably Underweight—Market Rest.

I do not wish to be considered an alarmist, yet I do not hesitate to say that the menace of tuberculosis among poultry flocks in certain parts of the U. S. is an extremely serious matter. In many States the disease is practically unknown, while in others it is very common, there being as high as 15 per cent. of all flocks affected.

T. B. may be divided into three principal types: The one affecting man, known as the human type; that affecting principally cattle, known as the bovine type; and that affecting fowls, as the Avian type. Hogs may become affected with either the bovine or Avian type.

The annual loss through the havoc wrought in poultry flocks from Avian tuberculosis is enormous. Add to that the loss from hogs which contract the disease from contact with chickens and the total will run well up into the millions of dollars annually.

Unfortunately, the disease is not easily recognized in its earlier stages, and the tuberculin test is the only sure way of determining which of the apparently healthy fowls in a flock are affected. After T. B. has secured a good grip on a bird, however, there are certain signs which can be recognized with a fair degree of ease. It is a slow developing disease; therefore, is never seen in young fowls.

Birds in advanced stages show a rapid loss of weight; wasting away of breast muscles; pale comb, wattles and head; rough, lusterless feathers; and, very often, lameness in one or both legs. Fowls so afflicted usually have normal, sometimes voracious appetites, but gain no weight.

Whenever these symptoms are noticed in any flock several of the more seriously affected birds should be killed and examined. If they have tuberculosis, numerous round yellow spots varying from the size of a pinhead to that of a pea will be found in the liver and spleen. There will be whitish or greyish nodules on the intestines or the membrane which holds the intestines in place. These nodules vary in size from that of a pea to as large as a walnut. The yellow spots or lesions as they are called may also appear in the kidneys and lungs.

Take Immediate Steps.

Once you have definite proof of T. B. in your flock take immediate steps to put an end to it. If the birds are of no particular value it may be advisable to kill the lot of them; burn the ones that are noticeably underweight. Those that are up to standard weight may be used for food or marketed, as cooking destroys the germs. The next step is a thorough cleanup, burning of all rubbish, droppings and litter; and thorough disinfecting of all houses and poultry runs with a good dip and disinfectant. All houses where such fowls have been should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected each week for several weeks. Plow the runs often and plant to some quick-growing grain.

If you should decide to restock at once, chicks may be secured from healthy flocks, but should be raised in quarters well removed from those of the former flocks and on new ground. In making such a start, it is not necessary to kill off the old birds at once if they are yarded and the new broods are also confined.

If your flock is sufficiently valuable to justify the extra work and expense, you may, after destroying the birds that are plainly affected, subject the remaining ones to the tuberculin test. Birds that prove to be entirely free from infection should be put to themselves on clean, fresh range where they cannot come in contact with infected birds.

Remove droppings frequently and dispose of them at some point remote from the quarters. Burn the carcasses of all fowls that have died of any kind of disease or bury them deeply. Since it can only be spread by the passage of germs from one bird to another, it is easy to see how the danger of infection is greatly reduced by eliminating those affected.

If you bring in breeding stock from some other flock, and it is not practical to have them tuberculin tested, do not put them at once with the other chickens. Carelessness of some breeders in sending out infected stock is believed to be largely responsible for much of the gain in tuberculosis which has been noted in late years.

GREAT PROGRESS IN MOVEMENT OF REINDEER HERD

3,000 Animals Halted for Summer at Hunt River in Barren Land.

ON 1,000-MILE DRIVE

Drive for Mackenzie Delta Begins in October After Fawning Season.

Canada's herd of over 3,000 reindeer which started in December, 1929, on the 1,000-mile drive across Alaska and Northwestern Canada to the selected area east of the delta of the Mackenzie River is halted for the summer season on the Hunt River, having completed the first lap of the journey eastward. Satisfactory progress has been made in the movement of the animals purchased by the Department of the Interior through its Northwest Territories and Yukon branch for the establishment of herds in Northern Canada to supplement the supplies of food and clothing of the natives along our Arctic coast. Many unforeseen difficulties arose during the early part of the drive which greatly retarded progress with the result that the halt for fawning had to be called considerably short of the objective—the Colville River valley. However, it is expected that when the movement is resumed in October much better progress will be made and that the herd will be delivered on the east bank of the Mackenzie early in the spring of 1931.

Started Last December.

The herd began the long drive on December 16, from the assembling point on the Napaktoolik River in Western Alaska. It consisted of 2,800 females, 305 males, and 247 steers, the latter to be used as sled deer for transporting provisions and equipment and as a meat supply. The chief difficulty encountered by the Lapp and Eskimo herders in charge of the drive was the fact that the animals were for the greater part young and consequently intractable. The purpose in selecting the young animals was that as they had been only a short time on the range they would not be under the same urge as older animals to return to their former feeding ground. Storms during the winter months increased the troubles of the herders, and it was only through the exercise of the greatest patience that it was possible for the herders and their dogs to keep the animals together. The "breaking" of some of the deer for the sled work also occupied a great deal of time along the route as it was necessary, in the "coaxing" method of directing the drive, to have a number of trained deer lead the herd while others brought up the rear. The herders and dogs travelled on each side of the herd to keep the animals from breaking out and scattering. On March 1, the drive was halted at Hunt River for the fawning season.

During the month of May an aeroplane reconnaissance of the route was made by Mr. Andrew Bahr, the chief herder in charge of the movement, and officers of the reindeer company. As a result the proposed route for the fall movement was chosen in a generally northeastward direction along the Redstone, Cutler and Aniuk Rivers. The divide will be crossed through the comparatively low Howard pass and the drive will then follow the Etiviuk River, on the banks of which a cache of supplies has been established to the Colville River flats. From there the route continues eastward across the tundra to the delta of the Mackenzie River in Northwestern Canada.

Preparations for the reception of the reindeer have been going forward rapidly. Mr. R. T. Porsild, of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch, has been in the North since early in the season, going in by aeroplane from Edmonton. Recent reports from him to the director of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch state that the timber and lumber for the buildings, corrals and other equipment have been moved to the site selected on the 15,000 square mile range east of the Mackenzie delta and everything will be in readiness when the reindeer arrive.

FARM CLUB WORK ACROSS DOMINION WORLD EXAMPLE

Policies of Agricultural Development Are Fundamentally Sound.

SPLENDID PROGRESS

Fine Example to be Taken From Denmark Along Marketing Lines.

MONTREAL, August 23—"Canada stands second to the United States in all the world, in the work she is doing for her farm boys and girls. Our juvenile club work is outstanding among the nations" declared F. W. Walsh, superintendent of agriculture for the Canadian National Railways, who has just returned from England, where he attended the Royal Agricultural show at Manchester, as coach in charge of the Canadian boys' cattle judging team which participated in the international judging contest in July.

During his trip, Mr. Walsh also attended the World's Poultry Congress as one of the Canadian delegates, and made a special trip to the Continent to study phases of agricultural development there.

"Our juvenile farm club work in Canada is organized to a far greater extent than in any of the nations of the world," said Mr. Walsh, "in fact, countries like Denmark and Great Britain are only getting fairly started. The National Association of Boys' Clubs in Britain, which sponsors the work among farm boys and girls, is doing good work, and the international judging contest organized at the Royal Agricultural show, in which Canada participated for the first time this summer, is giving a considerable stimulus to the work."

As a result of his studies abroad, Mr. Walsh declared that Canada appeared to be fundamentally as sound in all her policies of agricultural developments as any country he visited, save perhaps Denmark. In fact, Canada in this respect also was much in advance of many countries.

Empire Marketing

Referring to the problem of Empire marketing of agricultural products, he stated that the Empire Marketing Board in London was doing excellent work. Denmark, he added, was probably the most highly organized agricultural country in the world with respect to the marketing of its agricultural products. "One lesson which Canada must learn from her if we are to play a big part in the world's markets, is to meet in every possible detail their exacting demands. Denmark gives attention to every peculiarity of the markets she seeks to serve, which are chiefly in Britain, and nothing is permitted to go out of the country that is not of top notch quality. Danish agriculture is remarkable for this fact, for its uniformity of products of all kinds, and above all, for the marvellous system of marketing which has been built up, through which the farmers are enabled to obtain returns fully ten percent higher than they otherwise would. Through an equally fine system of purchasing, the farmers are enabled to buy their supplies cheaper than otherwise would be the case. Canada has another lesson to learn and that is to take more account in the future of other wheat growing countries and their possible competition. We are to accustomed to think that because we export a vast amount of wheat, we are one of the biggest wheat producers. France and Germany both produce an immense amount of wheat, much of which came into competition with ours last year, and Russia is again rapidly getting back into production and will be a big factor soon in the world markets."

New Idea is Thread To Butcher Shops

Officials of the Dominion Livestock Branch are watching with interest the progress of the new system of marketing meat known as the "package meat" or "rapid freezing" method. It has already been successfully introduced in the larger retail distribution centres in the United States, and bids fair to revolutionize meat retailing methods in the British market. By the new process cuts of beef, mutton, lamb, pork and veal are dressed at the packing plant, packed in individual cellophane wrappers and subjected to rapid freezing at very low temperatures. It is found that by "snap" freezing only tiny ice crystals are formed in the flesh of the meat, preserving all its fine qualities quite unimpaired. The new system provides a serious threat to the future of that old familiar institution, the butcher shop.

R-100 PURCHASED ONLY BEST MEAT

GOVERNMENT MARK

"Everything counts with us. We have room for nothing but the best," was the comment of the purchasing officer of the big British dirigible R-100 when discussing with beef grading officials of the Dominion Department of Agriculture the question of meat supplies for the return trip to Cardington. He expressed immediate appreciation of the opportunity in Canada to buy the best beef by Government brand with its guarantee of real quality. When her visit to Canada ended and R-100 cast off her lines for the flight home she carried on board a supply of choice "Red Brand" individual steaks sufficient for two meals for all on board. The Government brand removes the element of guesswork as to quality entirely from the purchase of beef throughout Canada, and every housewife, by insisting on being supplied with Red or Blue brand beef can buy the best of beef with the same assurance of quality as did the purchasing officer of R-100.

FINE WORKMANSHIP IS SEEN IN WINDOW

Examiner Window Shows Example of Fine Craftsmanship.

"To the dreamer who can work and the worker who can dream, Life surrenders all things."

First the thought, then the plan, then the deed. Life's sequence unfolds in orderly fashion in every created image of what was first a thought in the mind of some man.

We think for you—we plan for you—we do for you. The Peterborough Examiner's Creative and Commercial Department offers in concrete form a service that leaves nothing to the customer but the initial order and the final payment. Between these signposts comes the work that is carried out in our establishment.

Here, advertising jobs are designed, the idea created and perfected, the copy written and laid out for you and finally the work executed. It is a satisfying and very worth while sequence.

In the south window of The Examiner office, there are on view samples of advertising work carried on in the Creative and Commercial Department of our plant. They come in one, two and three color.

One color samples are prominent in the descriptive folder done in pale sepia that illustrates silver premiums offered by the Quaker Oats Company; two-color pieces are those that delineate worthy chefs holding up samples of good golden crust bread from the 'Mother's Flour" of the same firm, or the snappy red and black, gold and black calendars of the DeLaval Company, while three-color examples are in several of the exhibits, including the advertising literature of the DeLaval for its Alpha washer, sterilizer and cleaner, and the little folder depicting blue and gold china plates given away by the Quaker establishment.

Why not let us complete that idea of yours? We will write your copy, prepare layouts and produce for you literature suitable for your purpose.

IS BABY TEETHING?

Teething time is a time of worry to most mothers. The baby is nervous; fretful; feverish. His little gums are swollen and sore; diarrhoea, constipation, colic and sometimes convulsions set in—neither baby nor mother can sleep.

These troubles can be quickly banished, however, through the use of Baby's Own Tablets concerning which Mrs. Louis Grubb, Teeswater, Ont., says:—"I have used the Tablets for all my babies while teething and have found them a splendid mericine."

CABBAGE "BANDIT" WAS OVERTAKEN

Farmer's Wife Chased Motor Driver With Her Whip.

There was no cabbage banditry on the Lakefield road to-day, such as was the episode of last Saturday. Evidently the lady with the whip who retrieved her vegetable from a smart-aleck motorist taught the youth a timely lesson.

Driving home from market, the farmer's wife was making the turn up the centre line, passing a coupe which was drawn up at the side of the road, with two young men and a girl crowding the single seat. Just as the light waggon with a few remnant cabbages in a basket at the rear had passed the car one of the young men jumped out, ran after the wagon and helped himself to a big cabbage. And just as quickly the woman whoaed her horse, and leaping out with her whip, she chased the thief back to his car. He needed no other persuasion than the crack of the lash to surrender the stolen vegetable, and that farm wife thoroughly enjoying the situation, returned to her waggon, caught up the lines, and the bay horse with the white face trotted off for home up the middle line of Smith.

The farmers in that neighborhood have come to the conclusion that the city people must be hard up if they are forced to steal cabbages in such a bold manner as that. However, that was once they didn't get away with it.

OBITUARY

MRS. MATTHEW McMURRAY.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, August 23. — Mrs. Matthew McMurray died suddenly at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. The deceased lady, who was 46 years of age, suffered a severe illness last winter, from which she had almost completely recovered. Her sudden demise has caused quite a shock in this district, where she was well known and respected.

Alone in the house with her daughter, Annie, she collapsed shortly after breakfast. Dr. Munro was summoned, and pronounced life extinct.

The late Mrs. McMurray leaves seven children, two daughters, and five sons. Funeral announcement later.

H. Gordon Skilling of Toronto, can claim the right to being one of the cleverest scholars in Canada. He has gained twelve first class honors out of twelve written subjects in upper school matriculation examinations. He is also the winner of the Gundy, Doran scholarship, value $1,200. Last year he secured eleven firsts out of eleven written subjects.

SLOT MACHINES ARE RETURNED TO OWNER

Gambling Devices in Various Stores Throughout City by the Police.

Five slot machines which have rested in the Police Station for some months were yesterday removed and shipped back to the owner, W. R. Cornell of Toronto. They had been seized from various stores about the city as gambling devices.

To operate one of the machines before they were seized, a 5-cent coin was put in the slot. A handle was pulled and three drums with characters on their circumferences rotated before the operator's eyes. There were various combinations of characters which, if found i nalignment when the drums had stopped rotating, would cause various numbers of "slugs" to be delivered into the hand of the operator. Each slug was redeemable for five cents' worth of merchandise at the store in which it was situated. Of course, on many combinations of characters, no slugs were forthcoming.

In order that the "game" provided by the machines might be regarded as legitimate, provision was made in each machine that regardless whether or not the operator was fortunate enough to win a slug or slugs, a roll of mints was delivered with each try, but when those who had the machines commenced to neglect the provision of mints for the machines, the seizures were made.

The machines have been recovered through the activity of Joseph O'Brien, and are valued at something more than $200 each. They will not be operated again in this city.

LARGE ENTRY FOR JUDGING CONTESTS

Junior Farmers' Event Will Be Held at Local Exhibition on September 10.

A large entry in the Junior Farmers' Competition to be held at the Peterborough Exhibition on Wednesday, September 10, is augured by the early receipt of a number of entries, reports J. B. Nelson, county agricultural representative.

The competition was held for the first time at the Exhibition grounds last year and proved to be one of the most successful agricultural meets of that nature ever held in the district. The competition is open to junior farmers of all counties. Last year each of the counties in Central Ontario was well represented.

There are three other similar competitions held in the Province at Toronto, Ottawa and London.

AGONY OF NEURITIS

A Story of Intense Suffering and Relief.

"Do I reconmmend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills'? "You may believe I do" says Mr. John H. Jamieson, of Wallaceburg, Ont.

"For five years I suffered day and night from neuritis. The agony was terrible. I lost control of my arm and shoulder and my hand became shriveled. Nothing helped me till I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Even then the improvement was slow and I took ten boxes before I was on the way to recovery. After that, though, relief was rapid. My hand gradually filled out; the pain left me and I could sleep in peace. That was two years ago and I have not had a twinge of the trouble since."

Sufferers from neuritis, neuralgia or rheumatism should try the common-sense method of banishing these troubles by enriching the blood and strengthening the nerves with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Phonographs are now used in Parisian telephone exchanges to inform users of certain stock phrases, such as "The line is occupied; call again, please," and "The number is changed; consult a new directory."

THE WHITE CASE AT TWEED

The Editor, The Examiner.
Dear sir:

One cannot fail to note with alarm the rapidity with which "Justice" has functioned at Tweed in connection with the death of the young immigrant, George White. Whether or not inspired by the recent example set by the Hamilton authorities, the Crown Attorney and the police officials at Tweed seemed bent to make Tuesday night's inquest as brief as possible whether the ends of justice were served or not.

As was pointed out in an Examiner news story, there were many aspects of the case which the Crown Attorney had evidently decided to ignore and many pertinent testimonies which he had evidently made up his mind not to have taken Tuesday night. The call of fishing or golf in Belleville appear to have been too strong for him. According to newspaper accounts, he raced through the proceedings, stressing the suicide angle of the case and calling only those witnesses which bolstered up the suicide theory. The whole affair is most unsatisfactory.

The verdict of "Death by Drowning" which the Coroner's Jury brought in, as instructed, leaves little in the minds of the public but the question, "How?"—and the general impression that either somebody is pulling a fast one or the police are so hopelessly at sea that they consider the matter had better be hushed up for the sake of their own ease and their precious jobs.

Here is a young Scotch immigrant, alone in a strange country, without influential friends. He is struck down, possibly in the dead of night, in a wild and lonely region. His body—the face battered almost beyond recognition—is found floating in the water several days later. His former companions—especially another young immigrant who had been his closest friend here—insist there has been foul play. The stories of several witnesses point to foul play. The police early give credence to the theory and hint that three rough characters alleged to have been seen close to the spot where the death is thought to have occurred may be able to give valuable information.

Suddenly, without any apparent reason, the whole tone of the official statements is altered. Letters are unearthed purporting to prove the suicide theory. The Coroner says that death was caused by drowning, not by blows about the head as had been supposed. The jury brings in its verdict of "Death by Drowning." While friends of the dead man scoff at the suicide idea and point to the fact that the testimony of at least three important witnesses has been completely ignored merely because it appeared to point to murder, the authorities seem to be satisfied to let the matter rest.

What happened beside the lonely river near Tweed on the night of Sunday, August 10? The public wants to know—wants to see justice done. Is it possible that the authorities don't care?

Yours, etc.,
A. E. F. A.

AID TO UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor of The Examiner.
Dear sir:

I have just noticed in The Examiner under date the 17th inst., a letter from your correspondent Mr. A. Wort, who thinks that my letter to The Examiner advocating early completion of the Trent Valley Canal is not in line with Mr. Bennett, because making employment by building the canal is giving away the taxpayers' money.

We need not worry how the money is raised if it is spent judiciously, and work on the canal requiring an expenditure of $3,000,000 will help the unemployment situation. This was the aim of my letter re completing the canal. No doubt The Examiner will agree with this.

Yours truly,
J. F. LILLICRAP.

Camp Inglestane,
Y.W.C.A., Stoney Lake.

Dear Girls:

We're having such fun at Inglestane that we wish you could share it too. Last week we had such a fine trip to Miss Brownscombe's, and when we arrived we discovered that a regatta and treasure hunt had been planned for us. You should have been there! Later in the week we took a trip on the lake and had a swim at Kawartha. Our song competition was specially good, and the pennant was won by the Hamilton group, who presented it to the camp. Last but not least was our stunt party, which was a great success.

This week our program includes a trip to Perry's Creek, and another to Fairy Lake. Don't you envy us?

THE COMING CONFERENCE.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: — The British papers are very cynical in their few references to the coming Empire Conference. But they are much more guarded than the British cables to Canada, which contain such statements as the following: "There is evidence that all the Dominion Premiers are determined to put the interests of their own countries ahead of everything else, but no other is quite so truculent about it as General Hertzog."

There is no doubt that Britain feels that she was slapped in the face at the late election. It was the first time she had ever made an offer to her old time colonies and present dominions. The offer of the conference to found an Empire on mutual preferences, which is as much a declaration of good-will as anything else, was turned down for a policy of cold business bargaining, which since it is the same method used with every other country, has nothing of Empire whatever about it

It is clear that Britain resents this. It means that the Empire is not only not to be founded as she had hoped, but that it is really at an end.

Partyism, which is the form of excitement that most appeals to the mentally immature will be found to be no substitute for statesmanship, even in dominions. What a splendid thing it would have been to have a united British Empire declare for the relief of unemployment by declaring for a shorter week, and shorter number of hours per day. But a declaration of an indepehdent Canada-first, and everybody else first, must postpone such a triumph indefinitely.

PRICE OF BREAD.

Editor of The Examiner.
Dear sir:

Our city housewives like those of other cities, are exercised over the continued high price of bread. We are here reminded of Mark Twain's commnt anent the weather "everybody talking about it, but no one doing anything." Some cities have made representation to the Minister of Labor. Why not to the Minister of the Interior, where the bread goes. We hear nothing is to be done about it, however, and some of us think we know why. A new government has been elected and they want to remember their friends who gave them a leg into the saddle. The working man, poor boob, voted that way too, on the promise of a job, but he can now be safely forgotten. But the remedy is in the hands of the housewives, they have the means of bringing down the price if they will act in unison. In this city bread can be had for nine cents per fourteen-ounce loaf, or three loaves for a quarter. Other brands sell at ten cents, but most shops carry the eleven cent loaves. All the housewives need do is to buy the cheaper loaf, which is put up in waxed wrappers and is perfectly good bread. You will have to carry it home, but some sacrifice must be made, as the shops selling the dearer brands say the price is based on delivery service. Don't trouble the government, they are too busy looking after the bread trusts to heed the cry of the working man. Get busy yourselves, and use the weapon that is in your hand.

PANCAKES.

EMPIRE OR NO EMPIRE.

Editor of The Examiner.
Dear sir:

The British press is fully alive to the peril of dismemberment confronting the Empire if any of the Dominions, now declared to be "independent" as they all now are in the fullest sense, should refuse to entertain the idea of "preferences" and decide to treat the other members of the Empire just as they would outsiders.

For the first time in the history of Imperial Conferences the question of Empire unity will be dealt with at the coming Conference by a sub committee composed exclusively of prime ministers. There will be nothing left over for further consideration. he chiTef representatives of the various units of empire being present need no longer refer matters to themselves at home for further consideration.

There is apparent in the British press much misgiving as to the action of one or two of the Dominions who seem to prefer themselves "first" to any Empire. If this idea inspires any of the representatives it is quite clear that an Empire will be formed to go on without him or the country he represents.

It is to be hoped that Mr. Bennett's "Canada First" and no preference policy will not be allowed to lead to the otherwise inevitable exclusion of Canada from the Empire.

New Zealand has retaliated for the loss of her butter preference by depriving Canada of her motor preference. If we do not want any outside or export business at all, the "Canada First" policy will soon satisfy us.

CAVAN.

In recognition of the splendid work being done by girls throughout Ontario in the study of housing, clothing and nutrition problems, the Department of Agriculture, Queen's Park, is offering free trips to the Royal Winter Fair, to five farm girls from each of the counties which have taken advantage of the instruction conducted in household science judging, by the Women's Institute branch.

Announcement to this effect was made Monday by Premier Ferguson, who added that the girls in question are to be selected on a basis of the standing taken in the judging competitions, most of which have already been held.

The Winter Fair will be held in Toronto in November. On their arrival in Toronto the girls will be chaperoned in groups by staff instructors. A splendid program, including visits to some of the individual plants and business centres of particular interest to girls from the country, is now being prepared by the Agricultural Department, which is also providing transportation for the party. This announcement will be welcomed by many Institutes, who have been sending in petitions that the girls should receive the same consideration as the boys.

At Cavanville only ten girls attended the coaching class, which was regrettable, when the importance of the work is considered. Homemaking is the most important occupation for girls and women, and for this the three subjects studied are very important in a home-making program, clothing, housing and nutrition.

Every effort should be put forth by the senior Institutes to interest the junior Institutes and girls of the community in this important phase of education. Fair time is near and many Institutes are planning and preparing their exhibits. The Institute section at a fair always proves a great attraction. We should work towards having the dignity and importance of home-making recognized. Other professions have become recognized by thorough preparation and efficient service.

Let us encourage our homemakers to realize the ideal conditions we so often discuss, and in so doing make a worthwhile contribution to the nation's good, remembering that as we do, so we can the more easily enter into the atmosphere created by the writer, Fay Onchfawn, who said:

"I have done an angel's work today!", etc.

MILLBROOK.

Holding a rummage sale to raise money for Christmas Cheer baskets has been recommended by more than one branch as a successful enterprise; the difficulty with this activity, however, is that in a comparatively small community, or a rural section, when the same members have to canvassed each year the possibility of making such a sale an annual occurrence is rather out of the question.

There is no difficulty in finding material for a good rummage sale when the initial venture is made, and any branch that has not yet tried this as a money-making scheme has a 'good thing' right at hand to increase its treasury holdings.

"Should the Institute spend all the money its raises each year?" was a topic discussed with much interest and vim by a northern branch that, last year, made nearly five hundred dollars by various means. "There is always contention, it would seem, regarding the holding of money in the treasury, rather than expending it for community purposes since it was raised with that object in view; practically the whole community helped make the money by attending the dances, concerts, etc., by which it was acquired, and it appears only natural there should be a rather general expectation for certain improvements, locally, as the result of the finances realized.'

This opinion, from a Department secretary, might well be quoted and discussed when the subject indicated above is listed for attention at a monthly Institute meeting. Certainly the holding of money in the treasury, unless some specific object is in view, is hardly to be commended nor is it in accord with the Institute ideal: "Service, in the home area first till its claims are fully met, and then farther afield."

Mrs. Laura Rose Stephen, who was the first organizer for Women's Institutes acting in this capacity in Ontario in 1897, and since that time carrying on a successful lecture tour annually throughout the province, had the honor of being the Dominion delegate to the first International Women's Institute Congress held at Antwerp, August 9-11, this year. Representing the Ontario Institutes as delegate was Mrs. Walker, Bartonville.

"The teaching of manners, both in home and school, seems to be rapidly becoming a lost art", declared an elderly Institute worker at a recent meeting. "The home is particularly responsible, and yet one frequently meets bright, well-educated young men and women who are sadly handicapped and often much embarrassed because their childhood was allowed to pass without proper instruction in correct behaviour." This matter would be worthwhile discussing at any branch meeting, and the little book, "Manners", which may be procured at a small cost by writing to the Minister of Education, who recommends it highly for use in school libraries, will give much valuable information.

The preface contains this note: "The essence of politeness consists in treating others as if they were perfectly ideal people. The polite persons utterly ignores all rudeness shown toward him, and treats others as if they intended the same politeness toward them. This book has been prepared to meet a demand for a record of forms that obtain in polite society, and it is hoped that these forms, interpreted in the light of the principle back of them, may be of service to those for whom the book has been written."

WARSAW.

Self-Education in the Use of Life.

The following is extracts from an address given by Mrs. Henry Batten at a meeting of the Warsaw Women's Institute:

"Education is the harmonious development of all our faculties. It begins in the nursery and goes on at school, but does not end there. It continues through life, whether we will or not. The only question is whether what we learn in after life is wisely chosen, or picked up haphazard. Every person has two educations, one which he receives from others, and one, more important, which he gives himself. What we teach ourselves must indeed always be more useful that what we learn from others. No one every went far in knowledge or became eminent in any of the sciences by the discipline and restraint of a master. You cannot, even if you would, keep your heart empty, swept and garnished. The question is whether you will prepare it for good or evil.

Those who have not distinguished themselves at school, need not on that account be discouraged. The greatest minds do not necessarily ripen the quickest. Many who have never been able to distinguish themselves at school, have been very successful in after life. For example—Wellington, Napoleon, Sir Isaac Newton, Clive, Sir Walter Scott, Robert Burns, and many others. Evidently it does not follow that those who distinguished themselves least at school benefitted least. On the other hand many brilliant and clever boys for want of health, industry or character have unfortunately been failures in after life while the comparatively slow, but industrious and high-principled boys have steadily risen and filled honorable positions with credit to themselves and advantage to their country.

If you take away a man's knowledge you do not bring him to the state of an infant, but to that of a brute. No one whose education was well started at school would let it stop. It is a very low view of education to suppose that we should study, merely to serve paltry convenience to confine it to what the Germans call "Bread and Butter" studies.

It is half the battle to make a good start in life. Train up a child in the way he should go and when Begin well, and it will be easier and he is old he will not depart from it, easier as you go on. If you make a false start it is far from easy to retrieve your position. It is difficult to learn but still more difficult to unlearn.

Try to fix in your mind what is best in books, in men, in ideas and in institutions. We need not be ashamed if others know more than we do but ought to be ashamed if we have not learned all we can.

Education does not consist merely in studying languages, and learning a number of facts. It is very different from and higher than mere instructions. Instruction stores up for future use but education sows seed which will bear fruit, some thirty, some sixty and some on hundred fold.

Wisdom is the principle thing therefore get wisdom and with all the getting get understanding. Knowledge is very inferior to wisdom we are told for instance that knowledge is proud that she has learned so much, wisdom is humble that she knows no more. But this is not so. Those who have learned most are best to realize how little they know.

Knowledge is power, knowledge of the electric-telegraph saves time; of writing save human speech and locomotion; of doemstic economy save income; of sanitary laws saves health and life; of the laws of the spirit—what does it not save?.

Science is the knowledge of greatest value, both directly for the maintenance of life and health, and indirectly for that which we call gaining a livelihood.

As I look back on my own life and think of the past school days I know well, that there is not a fact in history, not a formula in mathematics, not a rule in grammar not a sweet and pleasant verse of poetry not a truth in science which I ever learned, which has not come to me over and over again in the most unexpected ways and proved to be of greater value than I could have believed. It has helped me to better understand the books I read, the history of events which are occurring around me, and to make the whole outlook of life larger and more interesting.

Pure love and truth, how very rare and yet how very beneficient! We do not see its merits at once, we do not perceive in this or the next generation how widely happiness is increased in the world, by the discoveries of men of science who have persued them simply and solely because they were attracted towards them but their single-minded love of that was true."

Mrs. Batten's address will be continued in this column next week.

AT MILLBROOK.

"Household Receipts, General and Useful," is the heading of a column published in a magazine over eighty years old that recently came to light during a clearing-up time in a homestead, the owner, who is not far from her ninetieth birthday, stating that this particular magazine, "Bow Bells" was very popular in her girlhood days, and to be found in practically every well-furnished home.

Milady today goes to the drug store, or possibly the beauty parlor, for her supply of cosmetics, purchasing them in dainty containers, and having a wide variety from which to satisfy her individual choice. How would she like to go back to the day when these essentials to the toilette had to be made at home with considerable labor and expense? Time and patience were required for successfully evolving "Milk of Roses", for instance, from the following recipe:

Bitter almonds, four ounces; distilled water, three ounces; elder-flower water, two ounces. Make an emulsion, and add oil of tartar, one and one-half ounce; tincture of benzoin, one drachm. Cosmetic. Beautifies and renders the skin smooth.

A "Freckle Lotion" had these ingredients:

Mix two ounces of rectified spirit of wine, add two teaspoonfuls of muriatic acid, with one pound and a half of distilled water. (How frequently this concoction should be applied is not mentioned; probably this is left to the discretion of the user).

"Breaking Glass to an Required Figure" would be of interest to-day provided the directions work out successfully when accurately followed:

"Make a small notch by means of a file on the edge of a piece of glass, then take the end of a tobacco pipe, or of a rod of iron of the same size, red-hot in the fire; apply the hot iron to the notch, and draw it slowly along the surface of the glass in any direction you please; a crack will follow the direction of the hot iron."

Homemade remedies in times of illness were just as much in demand seventy or eighty years ago as cosmetics manufactured in the home, hence the recipe "Stomachic Liquers" which appears in this day to be strongly reminiscent of the modern 'home-brew':

"Stick into the rind of a fine China orange three or four cloves; put it into a glass jar, and then add half a pound of sugar; pour in one quart of brandy, tie a bladder over the jar, and place it in a sunny window, or any other warm place for twenty to thirty days. Shake it gently round every day; then strain it off, and bottle it."

The modern housewife would hardly know "Tart Paste" if she had to follow this recipe: "Rub half a pound of fresh butter into a pound of flour; add the yoke of an egg, a little lump sugar, and enough milk to mix it properly."

Nor would the efficient homemakers of this age see the usefulness of a "prescription" to "Make Calico Transparent and Waterproof":

"Take six pints of pale linseed oil; two ounces of sugar and lead; and eight ounces of white resin; the sugar of lead must be ground with a small quantity of it and added to the remainder; the resin should be incorporated with the oil by means of gentle heat. The composition may then be laid on calico, or any other such material, by means of a brush."

While "Seasonable Dishes", "Little Dinners" or "Company is Coming" illustrated pages in the magazines of today would most certainly contain nothing like the recipes quoted, they might not be amiss in finding a place somewhere for the "Receipt for Knowledge", because of its very pertinent suggestiveness:

"In our intercourse with others, we should endeavor to turn the conversation toward those subjects with which our companions are professionally acquainted. Thus we shall agreeably please, as well as innocently flatter, in affording them the opportunity to shine; while we should acquire that knowledge which we could nowhere else obtain so well."

"Death to Friendship" in the household column of the magazine of an earlier day, might just as applicably have been written for the editorial page of a modern publication:

"Many a friendship has been broken by coldness of manner: hard words are no competitors at all, for they are often satisfactorily explained. It is often said that "like begets like", and we believe it is often so. If we meet an acquaintance who grasps our hand cordially, and gives it a generous and hearty shake, and their countenance lights up with a cheerful smile as they utter a pleasant and welcome salutation, if we are reeling dull or moody, we are or at least should be at once ashamed of that reeling, and instantly put forth our energies to disguise and banish it. If, on the contrary, we meet with one who repels our every attempt to be cordial, by a studied coolness of manner, we very soon become impervious to any genial feeling for him, and a larger stock of pride springs to our aid than we ever dreamed our heart possessed, and a gulf is then and there formed over which a passable bridge can never be erected."

Evening is Wrapped Up in Glamorous Stuffs

What To-day Means To You.

If August 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11:15 a.m., from 3:30 p.m. to 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Propitious influences will be in force on this date, and will bring personal happiness. Travel indicated, and advisable. The evening hours favor pleasures and friends. A betrothal or marriage under these influences would not bring tears.

Children born on this August 23rd will be outspoken and lacking in tact and restraint. They will have mental vigor, redundant energy, and resourcefulness. They will display a disregard for conventionality, and will have rebellious dispositions.

You are a serious-minded person, and you want to pull your weight in the affairs of mankind. You have an appetite for intellectual adventure, and you are not afraid of arduous physical and intellectual efforts. You are definite in your tastes, your likes and your aims. You stick to your interests, you do not half assimilate them to pick up new ones—you are, above all else, thorough. You are not a three-quarters explorer. You do not sit down on your little handful of thorns to mope, it does not appeal to you to be a self-inflicted, self-appointed martyr, and you soon try to cure yourself of pain. You desire a pleasant and harmonious life, and you will hunt far and wide to secure it. If you do not like people, you keep from them as much as possible.

You know how to be frugal and thrifty without being mean, and when buying you usually get your money's worth. You make the most of your opportunities, and you have your eyes open to them. With your practical conception of things, you know how to produce in the concrete the ideal that is in your mind. You are both a dreamer and a doer. You have enough imagination, and a warm enough heart to be sympathetically understanding. You are usually good humored and sensible, and are always ready to listen to reason. You are resourceful and shrewd, and few people can place you at a disadvantage.

Sunday, August 24.

If August 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., from 1:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. and 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Vital and forceful influences will be in force on this date, and although a Sunday, important decisions will have to be made. Rely upon your own judgment and intuition. Outstanding personal experiences.

The child born on this August 24th will have quick perceptive powers, but will not be sufficiently patient or plodding to master things thoroughly. Its jealousies will be easily aroused, and it will be rather unforgiving. It will be very fond of light reading.

You are a most critical individual, but you usually turn your criticism upon yourself as well as others, and you seem always to be picking yourself to pieces. One could never call you conceited, and you are far from satisfied with self or your achievements. Virgo people are very introspective, and know themselves better than those born under other signs. You have a strong sense of justice, and although you are a good, faithful friend, you make a hard master. You are inclined to give undue importance to small things, in this respect there is a want of proportion in your mind. You are generally good tempered, slow to anger, but also very slow to forgive. You hold those long in displeasure who have hurt you.

You have a pronounced bump of caution, and you usually act methodically and with apparent forethought. You seldom act impulsively, and unless Fate intervenes, you live per schedule. You will probably fall into a rut as you grow older, out of which you will be dragged with difficulty. The influences should give you great physical strength and a robust constitution. You do not try to save yourself, and you are in danger of heart strain.

You are strongly attracted to individuals with strong personalities. You have little patience with weak and wobbly characters. Disappointment and tardiness in love affairs is indicated.

Omemee

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mahood, of Reaboro, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Elva Ruth, to Mr. L. G. Stock, son of Mrs. and Mr. Charles H. Stock, J.P., Toronto. The marriage to take place the early part of September.

The carrier pigeon which arrived at the home of Mr. Harry Magee, of Omemee, on Sunday, August 10, had been let loose at New Hamburg, Ontario, the same morning. It, along with several others, failed to return. Mr. Magee kept the bird until Wednesday morning and then, fearing of its health, gave it liberty. Before letting it go, however, Mrs. Magee tied a capsule around its neck, inside of which was a note containing the date of arrival and also the departure. Since that time word has been received from the owners of the pigeon, Mr. A. Boyes, of Toronto, and at the time of writing, it had not returned to its home.

Paving operations on the Lindsay-Peterborough highway are at a standstill until Thursday morning. The stretch of highway from Chemong to Fowler's Corners was completed on Tuesday morning, and it is not definitely settled whether the contract from Fowler's Corners to Omemee, which connects the highway already completed, will be let this fall or not. Work will commence again on Thursday morning either on this stretch or from the plant to the village of Omemee, a distance of a mile.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Seymour and two children, of Fairmount, visited Mr. and Mrs. D. Belsh on Friday.

Mrs. H. Grandy and daughter, Elaine, of Galt, and Mrs. (Dr.) C. H. Laidley and Mr. and Mrs. I. Laidley, of Lindsay, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Bushnell on Thursday.

Mr. John Wilson, of Port Hope, was a visitor in town on Friday.

Rev. D. W. Stinson, of Enterprise, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Stinson.

Dr. Hamilton, of Bethany, visited Dr. G. N. and Mrs. Earle on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Belsh are spending a few days with friends in Rochester.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Laidley and family, of Burk's Falls, are the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Laidley.

Misses Marjorie Adams and Doris Sandy spent Friday and Saturday with Miss Daisy Adams, of Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Cummings and two children and Miss Wadlow, of Peterborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Bushnell on Monday.

Mrs. Edwards, of Toronto, and her brother, Mr. B. Cottingham, of Montreal, were the guests of the Misses Curry this week.

Mrs. Childs and baby, of Uphill, are the guests of her mother, Mrs. Robert Wilson. Mr. Childs spent Sunday with them.

Mrs. Albert Ford, of Millbrook, visited Mrs. J. J. Magee last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bradley and children motored to MacTier on Sunday and visited the former's nephew.

Miss Jennie Smyth, of Wellington, visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott last week.

When the steamer Ashlea arrived recently at Portland, England, from West Africa, one member of the crew was dead and 12 others were suffering from malaria.

District Churches

ROSENEATH, Aug. 22.—(Examiner Correspondence.)— "Bread of deceit is sweet to a man, but afterwards his mouth shall be filled with gravel." Proverbs 20-17. From this verse Rev. R. W. Paton, B.A., spoke to an extra large congregation on Sunday morning, a few messages worthy of mention by the speaker saying:

This metaphor is one which is full of homely vigour. We have here an unusual contrast between bread which is pleasing to the taste and gravel which is distasteful to the mouth. "Bread of deceit" could mean things that are good in themselves but have been obtained by wrong methods, or it could refer to worthless treasures which attract us, and thus deceive us. The metaphor carries a solemn lesson.

In the first place it reminds us that the most transient actions can perpetrate themselves. Human nature is very prone to believe that a deed once done is done with, and consequently men rush into sin, forgetting that every sin has a profound effect upon our character and life. This delusion which ignores the afterwards of our actions in one which blinds men to the true solemnity of life.

The man who goes out and for the first time takes part in a drunken brawl, does not stop to think that some day he may be a drunken father at the head of a home, witnessing the sins of the father visited upon the children.

The whole of a life may be set forth in that pregnant figure. "Behold a sower went forth to sow; "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.' Youth is the time to plant. The kind of harvest you intend to reap, depends upon what you are now sowing. Do you want to reap a harvest of pure deeds, a wholesome character, a life patterned after the life of our Master, or do you want to reap a harvest of sorrow, regret and remorse. Be careful what you plant. Remember the most trivial sins can drag after them a whole trail of consequences. Sow a thought and you reap an action, sow an action and you reap a habit, sow a habit and you reap a character, sow a character and you reap a destiny.

Then again, the metaphor teaches us another lesson, "The bitterness of what is sweet, but wrong."

The head of deceit is sweet to a man. Man by virtue of his sinfulness finds pleasure in a lie. Men chuckle when they have cheated some one and gotten the best of them. But such pleasure is only a momentary pleasure. It may be sweet to the lips, but afterwards, as the voice of conscience begins to speak it becomes as gravel in the mouth. Man's soul longs for something more than the bread of deceit.

The remembrance of past delights can become a present sorrow and shame. Judas was so intent upon receiving the thirty pieces of silver, he betrayed his Master, but afterwards in his wretchedness and remorse, he hanged himself.

We see this same truth illustrated in some of the unfortunate tragedies that are written up in the newspapers. Nothing that is wrong can retain its sweetness.

And this leads us to another thought, "The abiding sweetness of the true bread." Man's soul, created in the image of God, longs for that which has an abiding sweetness. There are deeds which retain their sweetness and grow more beautiful as the years go by. These are the deeds inspired by the love of God and approved of by conscience. Very often these deeds are painful, they demand a great sacrifice, but the pain quickly merges into pleasure, as conscience whispers first taste of heaven's greeting, "Well done, good and faithful servant." The girl who spent years of her life caring for an invalid mother, looks back upon the years of sacrifice, with happiness and satisfaction, for such a life was based upon the love of God, in Christ Jesus our Lord, and brings perpetual bliss.

Then let us not forget that in the highest sense, Jesus Christ Himself is the true bread which came down from heaven. To accept of the true bread means the pain of conquering sin, and the bitterness of tears of penitence, but that which was bitter to the lips becomes sweeter than honey in the mouth. "Jesus Christ sets a table before us." He is the true bread for which human souls are longing and wherever the spirit of Jesus is at work, we find human souls being conquered by the love of God, in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Jesus Christ alone can satisfy the longings of mans soul.

May God help you to know Jesus Christ your Saviour, that your soul may eternally feast upon that true bread which came down from heaven.

Service next Sunday evening at 7.30 p.m. Sunday school at 10 a.m. Everybody welcome.

Children Cry for it

Children hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper tells you just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

WHEN card tables in the various homes in Peterborough are not in use, they are generally put behind some piece of furniture, out of the way, until they are needed again.

• • • • • • • •

No doubt many of our local housewives do not know that a folding card table can be put to many uses in a home, other than that for which it was originally intended.

• • • • • • •

It is a piece of tuck-away furniture of the kind so usual that it is sometimes omitted from this classification, juts as a camp stool and camp chairs are also.

• • • • • • •

As styles and prices vary to suit all purses, cost is not a consideration. The one essential is that the legs of the table work independently, or at least that bu two are simultaneously adjustable.

• • • • • • •

The type in which all legs open out or fold back when one leg is positioned, does not lend itself to manifold purposes although its readiness in adjusting is excellent when the table is used solely as a table.

• • • • • • •

A handy invalid's table can be made from a folding card table. Open two legs on one side. Slice the top over the bed and rest the unsupported end on a pillow so that the top is level and firm.

• • • • • • •

Every sick person who has eaten from a tray resting insecurely on covers, or a pillow over the legs will delight in the card-invalid's table.

• • • • • • •

It leaves the person's legs free beneath. It is spacious and adequate and is so easily adjusted that the attendant, who may be a busy mother or daughter, finds no extra work entailed.

• • • • • • •

A convalescent who wants to read books, that are heavy to handle, or papes that are awkward; who enjoys solitaire; who is able to write an occasional letter or do a bit of fancywork, will find this improvised table a blessing.

• • • • • • •

The healthy woman who enjoys having breakfast in bed or reading at night after retiring will also find this table arrangement most convenient at times.

• • • • • • •

A folding table adjusted as described with but two legs on one side opened out, makes a good reading desk or table. Rest the unsupported side on the arms of the easy chair and there will be ample space for newspapers to be spread out on top.

• • • • • • •

An ingenious artist uses one of these tables for a drawing table when she is away from her studio and its equipment. She sits in a low chair so that the table has the proper slant when resting its unsupported side on the arms of the low chair, or on her lap.

• • • • • • •

Such an arrangement makes it practically as easy to reach the top of a large sheet of drawing paper on it, as if it were on the adjustable slant top of her drawing table.

• • • • • • •

A folding card table makes an excellent camp equipment. It can be carried in and out from under the trees for a breakfast table. It is just the thing, too, to use for afternoon teas or little suppers for two, three or even four persons.

• • • • • • •

When making such use of it, have a cover of enamel cloth. Sew strips of elastic diagonally on the under side of the corners, and slip the elastic under the corners of the table, thus securing the cover firmly so that it will not blow or slip about.

ANNIVERSARY OF NEW DUBLIN CHURCH

Special Services Arranged By Rector, Rev. Ernest Teskey Lyn.

KINGSTON, Aug. 23. (Special To The Examiner).—The Church of St. John The Evangelist, at New Dublin, in Leeds County, will on Sunday, celebrates its 100th anniversary, special commemorative services having been arranged by the rector, Rev. Ernest Teskey, Lyn.

The corner stone of the church was laid on April 30, 1830, by the Venerable George Okill Stuart, Archdeacon of Kingston. The original building, marked by colonial pillars, remained standing until 1893, when it was replaced by the present structure, known as "St. John The Evangelist." Among those who served during its century of existence, included: Rev. Edward Denroche, who lies buried in the Blue Church Cemetery in an unmarked grave near that of his great friend, Rev. John Blakey and the Rev. John Travers Lewis, who became the Archbishop of Ontario and is known as the founder of the Lambeth Conference.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SHOULD YOU CUT DOWN ON MEAT?

The fact that as a people we have been eating more meat than is absolutely necessary has prompted indivuals many to do without meat entirely. Many cut down also on eggs which are like meat in that they are rich in proteids the body building food.

What happens?

They believe they feel better and as a matter of fact they do feel better. But only for awhile. Dr. B. Susskind of Berlin, studied the effects on himself of a diet low in meat and eggs, maintaining this diet for twenty-five months.

During the first nine months his weight remained stationary, and he noted an improvement in his general condition.

During the next eleven months his weight decreased slightly and he felt weak. During the last five months of the experiment his weight decreased still more and his general condition became poor.

"On the basis of his personal experience he believes that a prolonged low proteid diet is harmful and that observations to the contrary are erroneous."

Now what about this?

The fact that this low proteid diet affected one individual, even if he were a physician, in this manner doesn't prove that it would affect other individuals in the same manner.

However, there is this point to remember. He went on this low proteid diet of his own accord, and in an endeavor to learn for himself at first hand, just what its effects would be.

Further, he maintained it for a period of over two years, the last year and a half of which he went gradually down hill physically.

And still further, he is convinced in his own mind that a diet too low in proteids is unwise and harmful.

What about other experiments?

As a matter of fact it is difficult to keep the necessary check on all undergoing the experiment.

In one tset, where students were supposed to be living on a vegetable diet, it was reported whether it was true or not, that they went down town late at night and partook of steaks, chops, and other foods rich in proteids.

What is my suggestion?

That if you are an indoor or office worker, and believe you are eating too much meat that you cut it down about 25 per cent for a couple of months and see how it works out.

See if you feel clearer in mind and stronger in body.

If you don't, then go back to your meat and eggs again.

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

"WAIT TILL THE MOONLIGHT FALLS ON THE WATER"

(Contributed by Beatrice)

Cease your repining, bright eyes are shining,
Fond hearts are melting with fervent love;
Red cheeks are paling, sweetheart's bewailing,
Tarry not one moment from the girl you love.
She's sure to cheer you when she comes near you,
She's ever waiting for the fond, sweet kiss;
If you're inclined for a midnight ramble,
Tell me what you think about a scene like this.

Chorus

Wait till the moonlight falls on the water,
Then take your sweetheart out for a walk;
Mind what you say, boys, that's how to court her;
Tell her that you'll wed her when the days grow short.

See when the moonlight falls on the streamlet,
Silv'ring each ripple with brilliant rays;
Out in the midnight, making the heart light,
Waking up the little birds before the break of day.
Tickling and teasing, kissing and squeezing,
Telling lots of little fibs, and swearing they are true;
Some say its naughty, others very pleasing,
Just wait one moment, and I'll tell you what to do.

Homeward retreating, a sad heart beating,
Because she must bid you a last good-night;
She fondly wishes those stolen kisses
Would last till morning's broad daylight.
Out goes the gas-light, then comes the good night,
Carefully she raises the latch with her key;
See then the dear miss rushes for the last kiss,
Mind what you tell her when you next M.T. (meet).

FASTERS DRAW CROWDS.

Men who put on fasting endurance exhibitions have been drawing crowds in England. They are especially popular at seaside resorts. At Blackpool recently three men were living on a diet of lemonade and cigarettes. They were houses in glass cabinets, and in spite of cries of "fake," crowds swarmed about the cabinets. When Sacco, well known for his fasting feats, passed the sixtieth day of his fast the throngs of curious were so large that it was difficult to handle them.

Sugar Bowl Drops First Game to Trenton 9-3

MISPLAYS LOSE FIRST PLAYDOWN FOR BOWLRITES

Len Forsythe, on Mound For Locals, Given Poor Support By Teammates.

INFIELD POOR.

Five Errors, Combined With Nine Hits and Three Walks Gives Homesters Decision.

(By F. C. S.)

Taking advantage of the Sugar Bowl misplays and making every hit count, Trenton won the first game of the Ontario play-offs from the Peterborough entry by a score of 9-3.

The return game will be played at Central School grounds on Wednesday.

Len Forsythe was given the pitching assignment and was in trouble most of the time, due to fnisplays on the part of his teammates. Five errors, combined with nine hits and three walks gave the C.P.R. team nine runs.

Opposing Forsythe on the mound was Ernie Bowler, who the local gang got to for eight hits but he kept them well scattered, only two coming in one inning.

POOR INFIELDING

Only four ground balls were handled by the Sugar Bowl infield, Forsythe getting the four assists. The Trenton boys had nine infield chances.

Maudsley opened the game by popping up to the short stop. Westbrooke grounded to Bowler and H. Dormer struck out.

For the C.P.R. lads Cooke filed out to Gillespie Felion doubled to right. Long walked. Scarlett popped to Weese and Towle flew out to H. Dormer.

Gillespie started the second frame by a single to centre. Forsythe was safe when Scarlett fumbled his roller. G. Dormer flew out to Larry. When Weese flew out to Felion, Gillespie was doubled off third.

Trenton got one in their half of the second. Kennedy singled sharply to right to open. Steenburg's fly was taken by Gillespie. Larry fouled out to Connors. Bowler walked. Cook singled to left, Kennedy scoring. Felion was thrown out by Forsythe.

SCORE IN THIRD

Sugar Bowl got that one back and two more in the third. Bradshaw led off with a single down third. Connors filed out to Kennedy. Maudsley got a life when Larry lost his roller. Westbrooke hoisted a long one out to Felion, Bradshaw registering. H. Dormer doubled to right, Maudsley scoring. Kennedy lost Gillespie's fly and H. Dormer counted. Forsythe ended it by lining to Larry.

Trenton went one up in their half of the third. Long started with a single. Scarlett was safe when Maudsley lost Bradshaw's toss Towle walked filling the bases. Weese nabbed Kennedy's pop and Steenburg was thrown out by Forsythe, Long scoring. Larry singled to centre and scored Scarlett. Towle counted on a passed ball. Bowler popped to G. Dormer.

The fourth was soon over. G. Dormer popped to Scarlett, Weese walked, but Bradshaw popped to Larry and Towle threw out Connors.

In Trenton's half Cook filed to Weese. Felion was safe on Maudsleys' error, but Long filed to Westbrooke and Scarlett to Dormer.

Maudsley started the fifth with a single. Westbrooke popped up to Long. H. Dormer rolled to Bowler, who got Maudsley at second. Gillespie grounded to Larry who got Dormer at second Towle's fly was taken back of short by G. Dormer. Kennedy singled to centre, and advanced to third on passed balls. When Steenburg filed to H. Dormer, Kennedy was doubled at the plate.

Forsythe opened the sixth for the Bowlrites by popping to Larry. G. Dormer was tossed out by Scarlett. Weese singled but Bradshaw forced him at second, Scarlett to Larry.

ADD THREE MORE

Trenton added three more in their half of the sixth. Larry flied out to Westbrooke. Bowler's pop fly dropped between Nicholls and Bradsaw for a hit. Cook doubled to deep right to score Bowler. Felion tripled to centre, Cook counting. Long rolled to Forsythe, who tossed him out, Felion scoring. Scarlett was safe on Nicholls' error but Towle popped to the short stop

Trenton counted two more in their half. Kennedy popped to Bradshaw. Steenburg rolled to Forsythe, who threw low to first. Larry singled to left, Kennedy pulling up at third. Kennedy scored on a passed ball. Cook doubled to right and Larry scored. Bowler popped to Weese and Felion to Maudsley.

Gillespie made first to start the eighth when Steenburg held his bat. Forsythe forced Gillespie at second, Scarlett to Larry. G. Dormer forced Forsythe at second, Scarlett to Larry Weese singled to centre, but Bradshaw flied out to left.

Trenton went scoreless in their half. Long popped to Forsythe. Scarlette got a life when H. Dormer and Gillespie went after his fly, the latter letting it drop. Towle lined to Nicholls and Kennedy flew out to Gillespie.

A hit and a walk was wasted in the ninth. Connors started with a single. Maudsley popped to Scarlett. Westbrooke walked. H. Dormer popped to Long and Gillespie's fly was taken by Kennedy.

Bankers Capture Port Hope Softball Title

PORT HOPE, Aug. 23. —(Special.) —The Bankers' softball team captured the league title emblematic of the McMahon Shield when they took the second contest of a three-game series from the Beavers, 1929 champions, 7 to 2, before a capacity crowd here last night.

Brown hurled for the winners, and kept the eight hits by the opposition well scattered. The Bankers practically settled the issue in the first two innings, when they ran in six runs.

Leafs Prevent International Lead Tie

CHICAGO EVENS GIANTS SERIES

Bitter Battle Continues For League Lead Between Cubs and New York.

ROBINS ALSO LOSE.

NEW YORK, August 23 (C.P.). — The struggle for first place in the National League between the champion Chicago Cubs and the New York Giants is back where it started, but the Cubs have the assurance that they cannot lose the lead in the current series.

Chicago turned the tables in New York in every respect yesterday to square the series with a 12 to 4 triumph. Starting as the Giants had on the previous afternoon they rolled up a commanding lead in the first inning, and continued to hold control while the Giants went from bad to worse in their efforts to get back into the fight. The defeat was a severe blow for the Giants, for it left them again three games behind the leaders with only two more to play in Chicago.

Pete Donohue went out in the first frame to pitch against Charley Root, but he was out of the game almost as soon as he was in. The first four men singled and Donohue gave way to Hub Pruett, who finally checked the rally after five men had crossed the plate. Pruett did well although he was rather wild until he gave way for a pinch hitter. Roy Parmalee assumed the pitching duties and was the victim of another five-run Cub rally, which reached its climax when Gabby Hartnett clouted his 27th home run of the year with the bases full in the tighth.

The reversal of form was complete. Just as Bill Walker had kept the Cubs in check in the first game, Root stopped the Giants in the second, giving ten hits and fanning six. The Giants inserted a lot of poor fielding to weaken their chances.

Robins Also Lose.

So far as their hold on second place was concerned, the defeat cost the Giants nothing, for the Brooklyn Robins, erstwhile challengers for the lead, took their fifth straight defeat from the Cincinnati Reds 4 to 1 ,and dropped to 4½ games behind first place and only 3½ ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals. The Robins, hitting weakly and fielding erratically, were on the short end of another pitching duel with Larry Benton getting the best of Dazzy Vance. Their run was only the third they have scored in their last 36 innings of play.

St. Louis gained a game by coming from behind to beat the Phillies 10 to 8 after giving away a five-run lead. Collecting 15 hits off four pitchers, the Cards finally won out through a three-run rally in the eighth inning. Pittsburgh continued to improve its position at the head of the second division by winning its fourth straight game. Timely hitting against Tom Zachary, much of it done by Pie Traynor, gave the Pirates a 10 to 3 victory over the Boston Braves. Traynor's three-hits drove in four runs.

Chile has 3,000 automobiles and trucks, most of which are American.

"Badger's Green," the play by R. C. Sheriff, author of "Journey's End," ran in London only four and one-talf weeks, then closed because of lack of patronage.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, the annual fishing expedition is over, and this year's record, we regret to report, is worse than last year's by 1 small black bass, the figures reading: 1930, nothing; 1929, 1 small black bass. Seeing the repression is still on in fishing as well as generally, mebbe this year's mark is not so bad after all. It ain't so terrible when you can come within 1 small black bass of tieing your last year's record. Anyway the fish up in this part of the world has had their chance. If they didn't want to take it, well, it ain't my fault.

I'm glad, Mac, to see the Kiwanis jrs. come through with a clean-cut win over the Belleville Moose. It looked like, after the Easterners winning the 1st game right in Peterborough, that Mister Deannard's lads was through for the season, but the Kiwanis kids showed their stuff by going back to Belleville and standing the Moose on their ear on their own lot. And then they made a real job of cleaning up the serious by beating the Belleville representatives 8 to 0 in Deloro. They wasn't a whimper from the Easterners when it was all over. When you absorb a trimming like that in the final battle they ain't much that can be said anyway. Mister Deannard's crew had a great battle with the T.A.B.A. winners last season, and they oughta give a good account of themselves this year against the Toronto champs, if they get pitching like Mister Don Woods give them last Sat. in Deloro.

I missed the whole E. P.playoff serious, Mac. It musta been a lulu, all things considered. On the dope I figgered the C.G.E. gang to win in a canter, but Mister Bri oux's lads come within a eyelash of giving the well-known beans a complete upset. They had the 2nd game of the serious tied up until the 9th frame, and as it turned ouf, if they hadn't slipped a cog in the final inning of that battle, they would be in there fighting against Hoot Gibson and his Pt. Anners. The Electricians finally developed a punch after that old standby, Mister Ray Rose, had put them back in the running by a gilt-edged exhibition of pinch pitching, and in the final game they cracked the serious wide open. It was a close call for Mister Primeau's selects, and the Crescents deserve a great big hand for the struggle they put up.

The mush ball loop is over, too, Mac, and the path worn by Mister V. Stewart taking the hat around every nite is about all that is left. The Sugar Bowl outfit, which galloped through the 1st half and limped through the second serious came back to life when defeat meant curtains, and after walloping the Belmonts 2 straight to decide the 1st half honors, climbed all over Harrison's, the 2nd half winners, to cop the pennant. The Bowlers, judging by the box score, played real ball when they had to, and their win was earned, although Mister Harrison mighta made the serious tighter if he had selected Mister Parsons to pitch the final battle. After the winners had collected 9 runs in the 1st 4 frames, the Omemee youth was sent to the rescue and stopped the Dormerites cold.

Well, Mac, we'll have some action one way or another next week. Meanwhile I'll be seeing ya'.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

TORONTO HALTS BALTIMORE 8-1

BEDWINGS FALL 8-4.

TORONTO, Aug. 23. (C.P.)—Once more the Toronto Maple Leafs have re-asserted their superiority over the Baltimore Orioles and prevented their going into a tie with the Rochester Redwings for first place in the International league.

The Leafs, however they may perform against other clubs, have played like champions every time they have clashed with Baltimore this season. They beat back the Orioles yesterday 8-1 for their 14th victory in 23 games with the boys from Maryland. Before the start of the current series, the two clubs had met in five sets of games. Of these two were split even, two and two. Baltimore won one, two to one, and the Leafs took the other two, both by counts of four to one.

Art Herring was in full command of the situation yesterday. He held the Orioles to five hits and would have had a shutout had he been able to keep his home-run ball away from Stroner, Baltimore third-sacker, in the second inning. The Leafs batted Edwards and Richmond for 12 hits and bunched them to good advantage. The victory was Toronto's fifth in a row and marked Baltimore's first defeat in six games.

Rochester Falls

Rochester, leading the Orioles by one game, was beaten by Reading 8-4. Le Roy Herrmann gave up seven bases on balls, but was exceptionally effective in the pinches. Reading clouted Bob McGraw for four runs in the first inning, added another in the second and then put the game definitely on ice with a three run outburst in the eighth.

Montreal took a poorly-played game from Newark 10-7, piling up six runs off Byron Speece in the first three innings and kept up the attack on Jim Faulkner and Heney Boney. Newark's three pitchers gave up 13 hits and eight bases on balls, Montreal 13 hits and seven bases on balls.

O.B.A.A. NOTES.

HASTINGS, Aug. 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—In the play-offs of the O.B.A.A. Hastings got orders on Friday to play in Sydenham on Saturday afternoon. This game was to have been played in Hastings on last Wednesday afternoon, but owing to a mix-up it was cancelled. Sydenham will play the return game here on Wednesday, August 27.

NATIONALS WIN C.O.B.L. HONORS

Poor Base Running Loses Kingston 8-6 Decision to Belleville.

WINNERS OUTHIT.

KINGSTON, Aug. 23. — Belleville Nationals won the championship of the Central Ontario Baseball League here last night when they defeated Kingston by 8 to 6 in a hectic game that was called at the end of the seventh on account of darkness.

Kingston outhit the Nationals, but had twelve men left stranded on the bases. Twice they had the game tied, but poor base-running robbed them of runs. The game was halted for fifteen minutes in the fourth over a dispute regarding a ground ball which Belleville alleged hit a Kingston base-runner, and the game threatened to break up right there.

The teams see-sawed for the lead, with Hewitt Smith's home-run drive featuring the early part of the game. Kingston fought back in sensational style to tie the score in the fourth, but in the fifth a single by Scott, followed by Darrah's three-base hit and Young's sacrifice, gave the Nationals the winning runs.

LOOP LEADERS RETAIN PLACES

Vic Sorrell Holds Athletics to Seven Hits and Tigers Win Out 8-1.

BROWNS COP VICTORY.

NEW YORK, August 23. (C.P.) — Once more the American League race produced no gains or losses among the leaders as the holders of the first three places in the standing were defeated but it brought the champion Philadelphia Athletics one game nearer the end of the season without reducing their 8½ game lead.

The Athletics took a 7 to 1 trouncing from the Detroit Tigers as Vic Sorrell held them to seven hits, and fanned seven batsmen, while Detroit pounded George Earnshaw for all its runs in the first five innings. But at the same time the St. Louis Browns took a ten inning decision over Washington by a 4 to 3 count, and the Cleveland Indians ran their string of victories to seven by defeating the New York Yankees 5 to 4.

Browns win in 10th.

Bump Hadley had a shutout victory over St. Louis in hand until the ninth inning when a sudden weakening gave the Browns three runs and a tie. They scored again off Ad. Liska in the tenth to win.

Loug Gehrig did his best to break the Yankee losing streak, accounting for three runs with his 36th and 37th home runs of the year and scoring the fourth Yankee counter. But circuit clouts by Averill and Falk kept pace with Lou's pair, while Sherid's wildness accounted for the tying and winning runs, coming in on a walk with the bases full.

The Chicago White Sox continued to hold their virtual tie with St. Louis for sixth place in the standing by taking advantage of a sixth inning burst of wildness on the part of Danny MacFayden to score four runs and defeat the Boston Red Sox 6 to 4. Ted Lyons turned in his 16th victory of the season as he held the Red Sox to eight hits.

WITH TEN MEN BRINTON LOSE TO C.P.C. TEAM

C.P.C. 3, BRINTON 2.

Beggs Obtained Winning Counter in Early Stages of Second Half—A Spasmodic Tussle.

The Canadian Packing came out on top last evening, at the expense of the Brinton Athletic by the small margin of three goals to two, in the semi-final of the Peck trophy, before a large attendance of spectators. The encounter was minus real live soccer, no doubt caused through Westwood having to retire with an injury to his ankle, thereby leaving his team to battle the rest of the ninety minutes with ten men, after the game had been in prograss ten minutes.

First Half.

From the kick-off the Packers had the ball in the net in less time than it takes to write it, Willshaw rapping a hot drive into goal. A Brinton player tried to stop its progress but it bounced off his foot into the net. Wasting no time the Brinton went into the opposition territory Hanson travelled along the wing, drew the defense into the corner, then slipped a hot shot across the goal mouth where Harry Hotson beat the goal keeper easily. Coming back from the kick off, they made a siege on Griffin's charge that fell again to the same player, as he tapped a smart shot inside the upright, all inside of two minutes. On a raid on the carpet boys' goal, Westwood twisted his ankle which compelled him to go and receive medical treatment. St. John's Ambulance men examined and dressed the left leg. They advised him to consult a doctor and have it X-rayed. Hard tackling continued in mid-field which required the official to caution some of the players. Nice combination by Beggs and Foster carried the attack against the losers with the latter taking advantage of a He placed Willshaw a nice shot that his head connected with at the proper time. All of a sudden the Packers altered their style of play to long swinging passes which proved beneficial to them. This change suited Preston who battled against odds to get a shot at goal, Green being a little better at the clearance than he. On one occasion he landed the ball over the cross bar, which hit the rope on the outside and travelled back into play where Preston was in a position to score but the referee blew his whistle for a goal kick. Thereafter, the interval arrived with the teams on an equal basis.

Half Time.

Before starting the second half, the referee cautioned the participants. He He instructed them to confine their activities to the technique of the game. Still playing with ten men, the Brinton vanguard were taken unaware by Beggs, who feinted a move to the wind, but decided otherwise with the leading goal of the tussle. With a goal lead, the Packers concentrated in holding the opposition to their own half. Whenever Anderson and his team got inside the dreaded area, the full backs resorted to kicking the ball out to touch. From this point the winners dominated the play with keen tactics that brought out the caustic remark from the fan; Sid Laidler at full back, holding them in all the pinches, while Dave Green at centre half, covered a lot of ground to nullify the fast-moving front rank of the Packers whenever they became dangerous. The only reply that came from the Brinton was spasmodic raids that helped to enliven the proceedings. Before the finish, Preston endeavoured to increase the score with well placed efforts. A last minute rush by the losers did not account for anything, except an abundance of throw-ins that wasted time.

Canadian Packing 3, Brinton Athletic 2.

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

The Board of Directors met some of the boys last night at a meeting in the Club House and explained a new process of painless extraction. In case some of our dentist members might have some objection it might be added that the Club needs money.

Later in the evening the usual tournament was held at which we had several old friends down from Lindsay, rinks skipped by Benny Chesler, Dr. Allan and Howard Clegg picking off first, second and third prizes respectively.

Vic Tully, Doc. Long, Reg Dyer and Jimmy Cullen, skip, went to Port Hope the other night and succeeded in bringing home the Lindsay challenge cup in a game that was close and exciting all through. The game was tied five times during the evening and was finally won by a 16-14 count. It seems strange that most of our successes are being attained by the younger skips. Some of the old boy must be slipping.

Don't forget the usual Saturday night mixed games and be on hand early.

ENGLAND NEEDS YOUNG PLAYERS

English Sports Writers Discuss Winning of Cricket "Ashes" By Australia.

TRIBUTE TO HOBBS.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 23 — (Canadian Press Cable.)—All commentators agree to-day that the better team won yesterday's test match at Kennington Oval when Australia Captured the "ashes" by defeating England by an innings and 38 runs. Several writers draw the moral that England must follow the examples of South Africa and Australia and build up a younger team.

P. F. Warner, writing in the Morning Post, suggests that the appointment of a committee of three men to discover talent. G. A. Faulkner says trial games next season should be confined to young men and that amateur talent should be enthusiastically fostered.

Critics of the English selection committee include Arthur Mailey, the Daily Herald's crick correspondent who declares that England lost the "ashes" owing to the selectors' "safety first" tactics of strengthening the batting rather than the bowling. Voce shold have been included in the tam instead of Whysall, Mailey declares, adding that Voce's spin bowling would have ended Don Bradman's inning far sooner than was done. Maley added that it was a mistake to depose A. P. F. Chapman, England's captain for the first four ames, on the eve of the critical fifth match. Chapman himself, however, chivalrously defends the seletcors and declares they chose the best team available for the five matches, but that the Australians were the better side.

GOLF NOTES FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE GREEN

By RALPH H. REVILLE

TORONTO, August 23—The Executive of the Royal Canadian Golf Association has decided on the venues for the two 1931 major championships. The amateur event has been awarded to the Royal Montreal Golf Montreal and the 18-hole course for the championship will be a combination of two courses of the club, the same as in the 1923 Open, the arrangement then having worked out very successfully.

Toronto will be awarded the 1931 Open Championship but the venue has yet to be decided upon. The Royal York course, which is generally conceded to be one of the best tests of golf in Canada, is sure to be considered. Two western members of the executive, H. Milton, Vice-President of Edmonton, and C. W. Jackson of Winnipeg attended the meeting besides representatives from Ontario and Quebec. The affairs of the Association are in a particularly prosperous condition, from a financial and every other standpoint.

In three major championships this month has a breach of the rules resulted in rather dire consequences. In the Manitoba Amateur Championship on the 37th hole of the final match, the players being "all square" at the 36th, D. Kennedy of the St. Charles Club, Winnipeg, asked his caddie to help support him whilst taking his stance on the sloping side of a bunker. He did so and also dropped the bag in the bunker. This was a double breach of the rules and Kennedy's opponent D. Arnott also of Winnipeg was given the hole by the referee and as a result the championship of Manitoba, and no one wants to lose or win a championship that way.

In the Canadian Amateur Championship at London last week, Stuart Carroll of Montreal going to the unlucky "13th hole" picked up a couple of pieces of bark lying an the fairway more than a club's length from his ball. His opponent "Woodie" Platt of Philadelphia called attention to the breach of the rules and Stuart was penalized by having the hole given to Platt. It was a crucial stage of the match which was subsequently won by Platt entitling him to go into the championship final against Somerville.

Then in the Scottish Amateur Championship last month at Carnoustie, Major Keith Thorburn a prominent London Stock broker picked up a discarded cigarette box lying about three yards from his ball, and had to concede the hole to his opponent. Another unpleasant incident at the Scottish Championship was the disqualification of E. Watson one of the best known players of Scotland, and one of the favorites to win title. He was not on the tee, when his name was called for the fifth round, and he was disqualified. He had won all his previous matches easily. The verdict, a harsh but just one, caused a demonstration of disapproval from the spectators.

The moral of all this. Every player whether of championship calibre or not should possess a book of the rules, and "mark, learn, and inwardly digest" the contents. It will save irritation, because no one likes to be "called down" for a breach of the rules, always so upsetting, and possibly save losing an important match or championship.

Not a Handicap

Burnt-up courses in many sections of Canada, apparently are not a handicap but an aid to the making of Holes-in-one. At any rate the past four weeks have seen a record number of feats of this description registered—in all 36. This makes the total of one-shot performances this season in Canada to date reach the quite imposing total of 106. There seems to be no let-up to this merry, mashie-making of "oneers." Even the professionals are taking a hand in the game, something they rarely do. Two of them were amongst the culprits the past month.

It will not be long now—January 1st next before the new larger and lighter ball will be put into commission by the United States golf association. This ball will cut off the ten to twenty yards in the length of a drive or brassie and to that extent will not be popular with the majority of golfers in the States but in championships it will have to be used.

The Royal and Ancient has not adopted the new ball so in Great Britain the present official ball 1.62 in weight and 1.62 in diameter will continue to be used. The Royal Canadian Golf Association has not yet taken official action in regard to the matter. Heretofore, however, it has always followed in the footsteps of the R. and A. and the chances are it will do so in regard to this quite controversal ball question. The British authorities claim, and this condition of course does not prevail in Canada, that the weather in the Old Country and the States are not similar. Here we do not experience the high winds they do in Great Britain, especially on the sea-side links and it is perhaps rightly felt that the larger and lighter ball would impose too severe a handicap on the ordinary British player. The question has very well been asked in Canada and elsewhere amongst the rank and file of golfers. "The modern ball is the best that has ever been made. Every player likes it. Why change it because a few amateurs and professionals can do exceptional things with it?"

Mr. Brice S. Evans of Boston, Mass., himself a southpaw has sent me the programme of the "Left Hand Golf Championship of New England" to be held at the Wollaston Golf Club, Montclair, Mass., September 3rd, 4th and 5th, and a very interesting programme it is. There are many fine "left-handers" in Canada, amongst the number the twice Amateur Champion of Canada, Mr. F. R. Martin of Hamilton and Mr. J. W. Yuile of Montreal, to mention only two and three seems no good reason at all why a Left Hand Championship should not be played in Canada. It would make for a most interesting event. Mr. Evans, by the way was runner up to Mr. George S. Lyon at Ottawa in the Canadian Amateur Championship in 1913 and only this month competed in the championship at London. In his day he was one of the longest drivers in America, getting tremendous distance from the tee.

Sir Frederick Haultain, Chief Justice of the Appeal Court of Saskatchewan, and at one time Premier of the Northwest Territories, is expected to become Lieutenant-Governor of the province, according to reports from Regina. He is a native of Peterborough. Sir Frederick has for some years been one of the outstanding patrons of golf in the "Province of Broad Acres."

Kenneth Greig, a St. Andrew's player, who is 22 years of age, won the Scottish Championship at Carnoustic defeating, in the final James Wallace, of Troon, Portland, aged 25, by the decisive margin of 9 and 8.

It was a runaway victory, the magnitude of which has eclipsed anything in the hstory of the Championship. Greig is definitely a player of great promise, in fact, one of the best youngsters Scotland has produced since the war.

He has a fine record. In winning the Links championship of St. Andrews this year he accomplished a score of 70 which has never been equalled in the history of the event, while in the recent British championship he reached the last sixteen after beating Ronald Mackenzie, a distinguished member of the victorious American Walker Cup team.

Greg has taken golf seriously, even to the extent of adoptng the Bobbie Jones method of training, which entails daily massage and physical exercises in order to keep the limbs and muscles supple. Greig has ambitions in the direction of professional golf, believing that the United States, where so many young Scottish golfers have migrated, offers the road to fame and wealth for the gifted player.

London Bowlers Win Two of Final Events

Members of Thistle Rink Capture Primary Doubles and Rice Singles.

TORONTO, Aug. 23—The Dominion Lawn Bowling Association's tournament came to an end yesterday afternoon when the finals were played in Primary Doubles, Willison Doubles and Rice Singles. Two of the three events were won by Londoners, Dockstader and Kilpatrick defeating their fellow club-mates, Wilson and Scheiding in the Primary Doubles by 9 to 5. The game only went eight ends as darkness descended and put a stop to further play.

The Williamson Doubles event was won by the Balmy Beach pair, Simpson and Baillie, who defeated Ellis and Booth of Withrow Park.

In the singles event, Herman Scheiding defeated N. Richardson of St. Matthew's the Londoner coming from behind to take the victory. Richardson had created one of the upsets of this event when he beat the youthful bowler, H. Lindsay, whose play the previous day had been one of the features of the tournament.

The scores were:

ENGLISH PLAYER IN FINAL ROUND

Betty Nuthall to Meet Mrs. Harper at Forest Hills To-day.

FOR NATIONAL TITLE.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., August 23 (C.P.). — England placed a representative in the final round of the American women's national tennis championship for the fourth time in six years to-day.

Betty Nuthall, blonde and blue-eyed youngster, marched into the final round yesterday with a three-set victory over Marjorie Morrill of Dedham, Mass., 6-8, 6-4, 6-2. Between her and the crown stood Mrs. Anna Harper of San Francisco, No. 5 in the American ranking. Mrs. Harper easily brushed aside the Baroness Maude Rosenbaum Levi, of Italy, 6-2, 6-3, but was decidedly not a favorite in her final round match with Miss Nuthall.

For Betty it will be no new experience to reach the final round.

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SAND CAVE.

"Buster! Buster! Where are you?" Uncle Wiggily's wife called loudly as she got out of the auto in the dark.

"I want to see the ocean!" shouted Jingle.

"I want to go wading!" shouted her twin sister Jangle.

"Oh, please be quiet, my dears," begged Mrs. Longears, "until I find out what has happened to Buster. Can't you do something, Wiggy?" she asked her husband.

"I'm doing all I can," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I drove down to this seashore with Tootsie, Wootsie and Wopsie sitting on my lap, and as soon as I can get clear of them I'll do something."

"But before that poor Buster may drown in the ocean!" sighed the rabbit lady. "Oh, Buster, where are you?" she shouted.

The reason there was so much confusion was that Uncle Wiggily, in his auto filled with rabbit children, had reached the seashore after dark, getting a little bit lost. The auto stopped suddenly in the deep sand; Buster was plopped out and his mother couldn't see him. All they knew about the little rabbit boy was that he had said he was sure they had reached the seashore because he suddenly sat down in a lot of salty water. The ocean is salty you know.

"Oh, Buster! Buster!" cried his mother again.

"Don't worry about me, Mother," said Buster bravely. "I'm all right. I just splashed on the edge of the ocean, not very far out. Here I am, and he managed, even in the dark, to find his mother. He put his paws around her neck and kissed her.

"Oh, Buster, what a salty kiss!" chuckled his mother. "But I like it just the same," she said.

"I'm salty 'cause I splashed into the ocean," the little boy rabbit said, and then some one cried:

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! I can't find my head!"

"Goodness, that's Custer!" exclaimed Nurse Jane. "The poor child has lost his head. Oh, what a terrible time we have had coming to the seashore!

Please, Mr. Longears, do something! Custer has lost his head!"

"Nonsense!" chuckled the rabbit gentleman. "He only thinks he has lost it. I suppose he fell on his head in the sand when the auto stopped so suddenly, and he's covered up to his chin, like an ostrich bird on the desert. I'll soon fix things!"

Uncle Wiggily found his flash light and flickered the beam around. Truly a queer sight met his eyes, for all about the beach were scattered the rabbit children who had been dumped out. Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears were doing their best to gather the children together. And then the light shone on Custer.

There he was, poor little rabbit boy. A tin pail that Baby Bunty was taking to the beach so she could fill it with sand, had fallen over Custer's head. There he sat, with an empty tin pail upside down on his head and no wonder he thought he had lost it.

"Now you're all right!" his father said, lifting off the pail.

"Oh, I'm so glad!" murmured Custer. "I surely thought my head had plopped off into the ocean. Are we really at the seashore?"

"I'll say we are!" murmured Buster, which, though it might not be a polite way of speaking, yet it told the truth. For well he knew, having fallen into the salty water, that they had reached the shore.

"Well, what are we going to do now?" asked Mrs. Longears of her husband as he flickered his flash light around like a big lightning bug. "This isn't the Sea Shell bungalow where we were to stop, is it?"

"No," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I missed my way in the dark and we are somewhere along the ocean beach. But it is nice and warm and we can stay here until morning. Then I can easily see to drive to the bungalow. We'll just stay here all night."

"But suppose it rains?" asked Nurse Jane, who often thought of unpleasant things, such as how much lollypops cost and the like of that.

"Don't worry," advised Uncle Wiggily. "We'll make a cave here in the sand and stay in that until morning. Come on, now, my dears. Rabbits are good diggers, so all of you help me dig a sand cave."

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily left his flash light gleaming and set it upright on a bunch of seaweed. Then they all began digging a deep hole for the sand cave. All of a sudden, when the cave was nearly finished, a voice cried:

"Hi there! What's the id...? Who is digging in my sand?"

"Oh, what's that?" whispered Baby Bunty.

But don't worry. Everything is going to be all right.

Arrangements Carried Out By Capable Committee—Large Crowd Attends Affair.

ENNISMORE, Aug. 22 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. Joseph Holland was the general superintendent for the annual garden party held at Ennismore on Wednesday, assisted by Mrs. R. Hickson, Mrs. J. O'Donoghue, Mrs. F. Twomey, Mrs. P. Galvin, and Mrs. B. Barrett.

The social was attended by large numbers of people from Peterborough, Toronto, Lindsay, Omemee, Downeyville and other places. The weather was ideal and the booths were prettily decorated.

The wheel of fortune in charge of Thomas Turcotte of Peterborough, proved a great attraction at that booth where beautiful articles were on display.

The bountiful supper of chicken, pie, cake, salads, etc., was excellently served by the ladies in charge. Those in charge of the inside tables included Mrs. P. Cadigan, Mrs. D. Crough, Mrs. Thomas Harrington, Mrs. E. Hickey, Mrs. Thomas Gannon, Mrs. J. Slovanskie, Mrs. J. Carr, Mrs. M. Sullivan, Mrs. J. Morrissey and those in charge of the outside tables on the lawn were: Mrs. Charles Perdue, Mrs. M. O'Connor, Mrs. E. O'Donoghue, Mrs. Wilfred Carroll, Mrs. J. Flaherty, and Mrs. D. Cavanagh.

The ladies in charge of the fancy booth were: Miss Lillian Crough assisted by Misses Mary O'Connor, Hazel Cavanagh, Eugenie Gifford, Anna Scollard and Theresa Doran.

In the refreshment booths were Margaret Holland, Mary Twomey, Mary Killen, Walter Crowley, James Gifford, William Murphy, Peter Galvin, J. P. Flood, James Harrington and Hubert Flood.

The gentlemen in charge at the entrance to the main gate were David Scollard, J. Holland, E. O'Donoghue and J. Costello, while those at the lawn gate were D. Crough, Sr. and Eugene Murphy.

American false teeth are being used in Germany.

HASTINGS COUNTY CAPTURES HONORS

Girls' Judging Team Does Well at Ottawa Exhibition on Monday.

The Hastings County girls' judging team attended the inter county judging competition at the Ottawa Exhibition on Monday. The girls representing Hastings were: Irene Webb, Bonarlaw; Mabel Burkitt, Bonarlaw; Marie Benson, Ivanhoe.

There were eight counties represented in the competition and when the final results were announced Hastings county stood fourth with Marie Benson the high girl of the team. The girls deserve great credit for the high standing which they attained at the Exhibition. The girls were coached for the competition by Miss Edith Hopkins of Lindsay.

Seven boys from the county attended the fair for the live stock judging competition on Monday and Tuesday. The boys who attended and their prizes are as follows:

Ray Mallory, Frankford—2nd prize, sheep; 8th prize, showmanship.

Harold Chambers, Stirling — 4th prize, horses.

Gordon Woods, Ivanhoe—8th prize, horses.

Maurice McGee, Stirling; Ivan Garrison, Belleville; Willie Gay, Foxboro.

WHEN A CHILD IS FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is souring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co., Windsor, Ont. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

Tom Longboat and Alfie Shrubb Clash in Long Run To-day.

VETERANS TO PARADE.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 23. (C.P.)—With the colorful opening ceremonies over for another year the Canadian National Exhibition was ready to-day to receive soldiers of the Dominion on this Dominion and Warrior's Day.

Canada's veterans of many wars will parade at two o'clock. The salute will be taken by Major-General Garnet A. Hughes. A feature of the day from a military viewpoint will be the arrival of the Toronto Scottish regiment from Niagara-on-The Lake, where the unit has been camping.

Unlike yesterday when the sun shone continuously in all its late summer splendor, to-day dawned cloudy and cool, which may affect the attendance somewhat. On opening day 71,000 persons journeyed to exhibition park, attracted largely by the world's professional swimming championship for women over the 10 mile route. This was won by the United States entrant, Miss Margaret Ravior, Philadelphia.

Two athletic events of more than passing interest mark are on to-day's sport programme. In the first, two of the greatest runners of all time, Alfie Shrubb, renowned a decade ago as England's best, and Tom Longboat, at one time the finest distance runner on this continent, will meet in a special match race of one mile.

The second race is an international professional team relay race of 30 miles, in which some of the most prominent athletes of the present day will match strides.

71,000 ATTEND C.N.E. UPON THE OPENING DAY

TORONTO, August 23. (C.P.) — Attracted by the numerous features surrounding opening day, 71,000 persons gathered at Exhibition Park yesterday as the Canadian National Exhibition opened its gates for the start of the world renowned fair.

The attendance showed a decrease of 9,000 compared with the same day last year. The weather man was on his best behaviour and conditions were ideal for the opening ceremonies and the world's championship marathon swim for women. E. W. Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, officially opened the Exhibition.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 45 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Like two charging bulls they came together, and like two wolves they sought each other's throat. Jane, her lithe young figure flattened against a tree trunk, hands pressed tight against her bosom, and eyes wide with mingled horror, fascination, fear, and admiration, watched ape and ape-man battle for possession of her.

The great muscles of Tarzan's back and shoulders knotted beneath the tension of his efforts. His huge biceps and forearm held at bay those mighty tusks. The long knife drank deep a dozen times of Terkoz's life blood. Then the great carcass rolled lifeless upon the ground.

The veil of centuries of civilization and culture swept from Jane! It was a primeval woman who sprang forward with outstretched arms toward the primeval man who had fought for her and won her.....And Tarzan took his woman in his arms and smothered her upturned, panting lips with kisses.

Suddenly her face suffused with scarlet blushes. She thrust Tarzan of the Apes from her and buried her face in her hands. He came close again and took hold of her. She turned like a tigress, striking his great breast with her tiny hands. Tarzan could not understand it.

A moment before Tarzan had intended to hasten Jane back to her people. That moment was lost. He had felt a warm, lithe form pressed close to his. Again he sought her....and again she repulsed him. Then Tarzan took his woman in his arms and carried her into the jungle.

REG. DIXON WINS THE WADE TROPHY

Well Known Local Sportsman Slides to Victory By One Second Margin.

SENIOR DINGHY RACE.

HAMILTON, August 23. — Sliding over the line with a one-second margin of victory, Reg. Dixon of this city won the Class Senior A 14-foot dinghy race staged by the Lake Sailing Skiff Association in connection with the British Empire games at Hamilton yesterday afternoon. He will be awarded the Wade Cup tonight.

The contest was the first of four series of races scheduled by the Lake Skiff Sailing Association for this year Yesterday afternoon, as well as the Class Senior A 14-foot dinghy event, there were 20-foot dinghy, 16-foot dinghy, Class A 14-foot dinghy, and Class B 14-foot dinghy contests.

Dixon, who has won fame in Peterborough district, his prowess as a sailing skipper winning him many regatta trophies, represents the Royal Canadian Yacht Club He was given a hard battle by A. Fleming, also of the R. C. Y. C.

Fleming led Dixon over the greater part of the course but was forced to luff up and was blanketed by Dixon on the last leg. The race was anybody's until the last moment, Dixon finishing less than one length up on Fleming

George Dingwal of the National Yacht Club followed Fleming over the line, and fourth place went to W. Baker of the Toronto Canoe Club.

The sailing events, which are held annually at different points on Lake Ontario by the Association, were staged over a triangular three-mile course in Hamilton Harbor. Ideal dinghy weather prevailed. A fresh steady breeze from the east took the contesting boats on a run for the first leg of the course which had to be circled twice. The second leg was to windward, and the final was a broad reach.

None of the 20-foot sloops scheduled to open the program appeared and the first division sent away from the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, comprised all dinghies of the 16-foot measurement. At an interval of five minutes each, the Senior A boats of the 14-foot class A and B boats of the same length were sent away.

Five Clubs Compete.

The competing clubs were the National Yach Club, the Toronto Canoe Club, the RC.YC Pals' Club of Hamilton, and the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club. The Pals' Club of Hamilton, cleaned up the A Class race for 16-foot dinghies, when Dave Hughes, Bert Beetles, Russell Davenport and Ed. Buckingham finished in the order named. The winner's time was one hour and 33 minutes

Dixon is expected to compete in the L.S.S.A. race for Senior A 14-foot dinghies this morning, and will sail for the Reilly Cup with Senior Class A 14-foot dinghies this afternoon

MAIN STREET TOPICS

Jabs and Jottings as Picked Up by an Examiner Reporter

SIGNS

The longest sign in town is just being completed on Simcoe street, where Harris and Boddy are finishing the painting of the large galvanized iron boarding for the Adam Hall firm. It is over one hundred feet long and is done very strikingly in large lettering in a combination of white and yellow, black and vermilion red, with green picking out a portion of the lettering. The foundry is being re-painted also, in the color termed Shell red.

The Empress Hotel has a new sign also, advertising "The Home on the Road". Harris and Boddy executed this in a futuristic effect that catches the eye. In flat paint on the western wall of the building, it has a border in triangular patterning, in henna, and pale yellow tones.

CREEK DREDGED

Dredging operations were carried out between the George street bridge and the Townsend street bridge in Jackson's Park creek this morning. The channel bed which is quite wide at that section was deepened in a number of areas to allow the free passage of ice down the creek to the Otonabee in the Spring.

ORIGINAL "STONEY" STACK GOES

After 28 years of service, the original smoke-stack on the Steamer "Stoney Lake" will give place next week to a new and shiny stack which was seen lying on George street wharf today awaiting installation. The new stack although more modern in design, is of the same measurements as the old one which was part of the equipment of the steamer when she was put into commission here in 1902.

Daily lake trips are being made by the "Stoney" from Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls. Although Peterborough voyagers on the steamer are not so plentiful as they once were, it is understood that a full compliment of passengers is carried from the northern villages.

LOCAL FIRM AIDS UNEMPLOYED

In an effort to help alleviate the unemployment situation here, the Alfred McDonald Lumber Company yesterday received two scow-loads of cordwood from Nogie's Creek. About 90 cords are contained in the two scows, which were being unloaded today after having been towed down the Trent by the tug, "Jerome L".

The shipment is unseasonable from the lumberman's viewpoint, but is having the required effect of providing work for a gang of men who would otherwise be laid off, it understood.

DOGS ON RUNNING BOARDS.

Automobile drivers who allow dogs to ride on the running boards of their cars or in other positions that expose the animals to danger are advised by the Humane Society that this practice must be discontinued. Some dogs have been injured by being thrown to the ground by the sharp turning or swerving of cars. If the dogs are protected by baggage racks there is no objection to their riding on automobiles. The main consideration is that they should be sufficiently protected, and drivers are requested to see that this precaution is adequately carried out. Truck drivers are also warned that dogs are not allowed on the tops of the cabs or in other dangerous positions. The Humane Society urges the co-operation of the public in this proper care of dogs.

CORBETT—PILLING

Park street Baptist Church was the scene at half past two o'clock this afternoon of a very interesting wedding, when Edith Rose, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Pilling of 522 Chamberlain street, became the bride of Clarence A. Corbett, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. Corbett of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. L. Harton. The church was decorated tastefully by the choir with asters and gladioli, palms and ferns.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She wore an exquisite gown of eggshell crepe romain. The skirt, which was slightly longer in the back, was flared and had deep hem godets of Spanish lace, which was also trimmed in similar fashion the deep bertha collar that was finished in front by a flower of crepe romain.

Elbow length suede gloves, kid slippers and silk hose were all in eggshell tint. The bride wore a rope of pearls and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Pilling, sister of the bride, was in a dainty sleeveless frock of flowered ninette, with a rose floral pattern on a soft grey background. The skirt was finished at the hem with a narrow double ruffle and similar diagonal ruffles crossed it farther up. The neckline had a tiny ruffled collar and the belt was a striking addition to the costume made with three very tiny twisted strands of crepe, in yellow, pink and orchid shades.

The bridesmaid's hat was of pink lace straw with a double velvet band of pink and mauve ribbon. She wore white silk wrist gloves, black satin pumps and eggshell silk hose, and a string of pearls. Her bouquet was of Briarcliff roses.

The wedding music was played by Cecil Lapp and Miss Helen Barrie sang very sweetly "At Dawning", during the signing of the register. She was dressed in printed georgette, made in sleeveless style with a short Casino jacket. Her hat was a poke shape of black velvet. She wore black kid slippers, grey chiffon hose and eggshell suede gloves, and carried a bouquet of Sunburst roses.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following which Mr. Corbett and his bride left by motor for a honeymoon trip. On their return, they will live on Fradette avenue.

The bride's travelling outfit was a smart dress of brown printed silk tweed, made in fetching style with a deep peplum girdle and little bows finished with a collar of brown wolf. She wore shoes of chocolate kid, with matching hose and gloves, and a small hat of three tones in brown felt. Her monogrammed purse of soft brown kid was the gift of the bridegroom.

The gift to the bridesmaid was a tapestry under-arm bag, to the best man a brown leather billfold and key case, to the soloist a grey and black leather bag and to the organist a brown leather billfold.

In Police Court

Patrick Walsh, young Hastings farmer, was this morning found guilty by Police Magistrate Langley of driving a motor car while intoxicated. The case was tried several weeks ago, but judgment was reserved until to-day and Walsh was sentenced to seven days in jail. The charge followed an accident on July 31, Provincial Constable H. Thompson doing the investigating and securing sufficient evidence to bring about the conviction.

An appeal was immediately sworn out by J. A. O'Brien, Walsh's counsel, and Walsh was allowed his freedom on $500 bail. The appeal hearing is set for the Assizes on December 9.

LEAGUE FAILED TO ANTICIPATE ARAB OUTBREAK

British Turn Geneva's Criticism Against Itself—League's Report.

SAYS BRITAIN FAILED.

Administration of Palestine Did Not Satisfy Arabian Ambitions.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Aug. 25.—(C.P.)—A sharp clash of opinion on the responsibility for the bloody Palestine disorders of last August was disclosed officially to-day when the League of Nations published its mandate commission report on an examination of the situation, with the British Government's comments on the report which will be placed before the league council next month.

The mandate commission, composed of the strongest powers of the League, accused the British government of having failed in its administration of the Palestine mandate specifically in failing to procure security for persons and property for the establishment of the Jewish home, and for being taken by surprise by the outbreak of last August.

British Reply

Secretary Henderson, replying tersely for his government, declared the commission itself did not foresee the August trouble and that the commission in many instances have rejected the findings of the Shaw Commission and acepted the declarations presented by Jewish agencies upon which the government had no chance to comment.

Mr. Henderson pointed out the difficulty of satisfying the political ambitions of the Arabs and at the same time advancing the cause of a Jewish national home, while carrying out orders of the League of Nations to maintain the rights of all inhabitants of Palestine regardless of race and religion.

The League Council to which the report will be presented will begin its session on Sept. 8 but the report will not be considered until near the close of the meeting" probably about Oct .1, after the end of the League assembly session.

NEW ZEALAND NOT SEEKING FAVORS

Granted Increased Preference to British Goods.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Aug. 25.—(C.P. Cable)— A representative gathering of citizens yesterday bade farewell to the Rt. Hon. G. W. Forbes, Prime Minitser of New Zealand, who is leaving for London and the Imperial Conference and intends to travel through Canada en route.

Premier Forbes, in his farewell message, referred to the recent increases in the preference rates granted to British products by New Zealand. "While we do not intend to ask for anything in return," said the premier, "we would appreciate more consideration for our products than has been shown by the Mother Country in the past."

BLAST IN SEWER CLAIMS 2 LIVES

AT HAMILTON MOUNTAIN.

HAMILTON, Ont., August 25 (C.P.). — Caught by a premature explosion of dynamite in a sewer tunnel here on Saturday, Daniel Campbell and Angus Hughes, employees of the Stanley Construction Company, were so severely injured they died in a hospital a few hours later. Alexander Barclay, who was with the victims, was seriously hurt, but is reported by hospital authorities to be in a fair condition to-day.

The men were engaged on sewer construction in the Mountain district, and were working in a shaft 18 feet deep. They were boring to make an opening for the pipe and had drilled through 50 feet of stone. Continuing their operations they set a charge of dynamite and after a five-minute fuse had been ignited the men made their way to the ladder to ascend. They had progressed but a few feet toward the ladder, however, when a violent explosion occurred. The two were hurled by the force of the blast into the main shaft, while large pieces of rock rained upon them, striking them so hard, pieces were embedded several inches into their flesh.

German Loudspeaker Heard Twelve Miles

BERLIN, Aug. 25.—(A.P.)— A loudspeaker, said to be the largest in the world, was used for the first time at the opening of the German Radio and Gramaphone Exposition.

The instrument, constructed by Siemens & Halske, was mounted 30 feet above the exposition buildings and could be heard twelve miles.

Dr. Albert Einstein, famous scientist, formally opened the show.

FRIENDLY ACT COSTS AUTOIST LOSS OF $400

Toronto Man Beaten Over Head By Three Hitch-Hikers.

FRIEND MISSING.

Victim Forced to Spend Night in Burke's Falls Jail—Car is Stolen.

NORTH BAY, August 25. — E. Jackson, Toronto, slept on Sunday night in the jail at Burks Falls, not a prisoner, but simply because he was robbed of all his money yesterday afternoon and has no means of paying a hotel bill.

According to information received here last night by long-distance telephone Jackson was coming north with a friend, whose name the Provincial Police refused to divulge. When near Barrie, Jackson's friend, who was driving, stopped and picked up three other men who were walking along the highway. Near Trout Creek it is claimed, Jackson was slugged over the head and when he awoke he found himself on the side of the road, and his wallet, containing approximately $400, missing from his pocket.

Jackson could not find his friend nor the automobile, nor the three men who had been picked up on the road as an act of kindness. From Trout Creek he notified Provincial Constable Simpson, Burks Falls, who is conducting an investigation, but said he had not made any arrests, nor would he give out more information.

The automobile number had been broadcast throughout Northern Ontario by 'phone and telegraph, and Provincial and city police are keeping a sharp watch.

Constable Simpson refused to give Jackson's address.

The question now is whether Jackson's friend has been kidnapped or "slugged" or whether he escaped.

INDIAN POLICE BATTLE NATIVES

Several Badly Hurt and Native Slain Over Forest Law Breach.

IN BETHEL DISTRICT.

NAGPUR, Central Provinces, India, Aug. 25.—(A.P.)—One policeman is missing, several are seriously injured, and one native is dead, as a consequence of a violent fight Saturday in the village of Shahapur, Betul. Many natives were injured.

The fight began when police attempted to arrest a leader of a mob of thousands of Gonds—low caste natives—who were breaking the forest law but did not succeed. They then charged but could not break up the gathering, whereafter they fired.

It was necessary to call more police urgently before order was restored.

Cutting Workers' Wages Only Prolongs Depression

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.)— "The sure way a business man can assist in prolonging a period of business depression is to reduce the wages of his workers," declared Wallace R. Campbell, President of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, who attended Automotive Day at the Canadian National Exhibition to-day.

"To reduce wages when business falls off means to frighten the average wage earner, who is the foundation of the country's buying power, upon which business depends. His first thought in such an emergency is to conserve his funds, to limit his purchases to the minimum required by necessity and to wait for the storm to pass. Such a policy and such a reaction is bound to have its inevitable effect," said Mr. Campbell.

Probe of Wreck Off Manitoulin Island Reveals Ship Once Belonged to La Salle

SHEGUIANDAH, Ont., August 25 (C.P.). — After several days' investigation the expedition looking into the hulk of a shipwreck in Mississagi Strait, off Manitoulin Island, in Georgian Bay, is convinced the wreck is that of the explorer Lasalle's ship Griffin, which was lost in this vicinity about 200 years ago. While no certain identification has yet been made of the parts of the vessel, the examiners have reached the conclusion from the nature of construction, the extensive local traditions, and the historical facts of the Lasalle explorations, that the wreck is actually that of the adventurer's pioneer vessel.

The present expedition is composed of Roy F. Fleming, of Ottawa, G. H. Bateman, Kilsyth, Ont., and T. J. Batman, of Sheguiandah. Permission to make the investigation was granted to the Fleming party by the Ontario Department of Public Work; after the Department had declined to permit an expedition from Wyandotte, Mich., to survey and salvage the wreck.

PETERBORO GRAIN PRICES LOWER WHEAT REACH ES MARKET EARLY

Oats Heavy Crop But Price is Down to 35 Cents.

THRESHING IS GENERAL.

Although the wheat crop in Central Ontario is not so heavy this year as compared with last year, the quality is excellent and the major portion of wheat so far shipped to the elevators has graded No. 2 Winter, the highest grade obtainable.

Such in effect was the information received by the Examiner at the offices of The Peterborough Cereal Company Limited this morning.

The acreage of wheat sown in this district is about the same as last year. It consists mostly of fall wheat, very little spring wheat being grown locally.

Average yields have been 25 bushels to the acre, compared with 30 bushels to the acre last season. What spring wheat there is, locally, has suffered considerably from the drought in common with spring wheat practically in all wheat growing areas in Canada.

Top grade what is now selling at 75c per bushel, a big decrease on last year's prices. The drop is general on all grains and is accounted for by the aggravated conditions which pertain in the North Western grain market.

The first shipment of wheat to the Peterborough Cereal Mills this year came in on August 1st, about two weeks earlier than normal. It brought 85c per bushel.

Oats

Early oats are an excellent crop, both as regards yield and quality. Forty to fifty bushels to the acre is the average yield. Late oats have not fared so well, having been considerably offset by the drought. The present market price for oats is 35c per bushel as compared with 50-60c last year.

Barley

Barley is an average crop. The present market price for this grain being 45c compared with 60c per bushel last year.

Threshing is now general in all sections of the district, but the millers are not anticipating any undue rush of grain.

Although the Peterborough Cereal Company does not handle peas, it is stated by them, that this crop has been exceptionally heavy and that the present market price is $1 per bushel.

FIRE ALONG GHOST RIVER AGAIN OUT OF CONTROL

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.)—The bush fire along the Ghost River in the Puckasaw area, which broke out again Friday, under a high wind, is still out of control and at last reports no rain had fallen in that district. The fire is burning in slash and in a section where it is difficult to control.

One new fire was reported yesterday, on a small island in Richardson's harbor, three miles from Pucksaw.

LEGUIA QUITS; NEW GOV'T IS RULING IN PERU

President Asked to Resign in Midst of Forming New Cabinet.

MILITARY JUNTA IN POWER.

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 25 (C.P.)—A new Government, composed of a military junta, ruled Peru to-day following the resignation and departure for Panama of President Augusto B. Leguia.

When dissatisfaction grew in the country yesterday following news of a revolt at Arequipa led by Lieut.-Colonel Sanchez Cerro, the former Cabinet resigned and the President immediately dictated a new one.

About 1 o'clock this morning Leguia appeared at the Governmental Palace and began the ceremonies of swearing in the new Ministry.

In a dramatic interruption Colonel Leonidas Gonzales Hondemar rushed in to notify the President that a military committee had important news for him. Leaving two ministers unsworn, the President conferred with the officers' group and was told that his new Cabinet, headed by General Fernando Saramento, was unsatisfactory. He was asked to resign, and complied.

New Government Announced

Thereupon the Junta announced formation of a new Government in the following communique:—

In view of the difficult situation existing in the country, President Leguia has decided to resign and will be replaced by a Government Junta, appointed by army institutions. The new President is General Manuel Ponce.

Augusto B. Leguia, one of the "strong men" of South America, whose career as President of Peru began with popular rejoicing following a coup d'etat in 1919, ended eleven years of power to-day and fled

BEAR TOOTH NECKLACE AND STONE ARROW HEADS POINT TO ERA BEFORE COMING OF WHITE MAN

LA CLOCHE ISLAND, Georgian Bay, Ontario, Aug. 25 (C.P.)—An Indian Chief buried with all his treasures 500 to 1,000 years ago has been found by archeologists of the McDonald-Warren Foundation Expedition exploring ancient graves in this area.

The skeleton will be removed to the Warren Foundation at Three Oaks, Michigan, together with the treasure taken from the grave.

Dr. George R. Fox, archeologist, who headed the party of scientists that came here from Chicago last month aboard the yacht Mizpah, in command of Eugene F. McDonald, Chicago explorer, yachtsman and radio manufacturer, unearthed the skeleton after day of labor, aided by a crew of excavators.

That the Indian was of an era of civilization unknown to the white man is the belief of Dr. Fox and Dr. Alvin Laforge, Chicago, because of the bear-tooth necklace, a shell necklace, stone heads and arrow and spear heads which did not bear any markings except those of the Indian tribes which inhabited this section previous to the coming of the French and English explorers, and later the Indian colonies.

The absence of glass beads, or silver ornaments, cloth, iron implements and other trinkets common to the graves of Indians known to have been friendly with white traders and trappers, is considered further proof. The Indian unearthed by this expedition was of an age long before this land was trod by white persons and other Indian nations.

The discovery was made after a long steel probe struck a stone cairn buried in the sand.

The Indian had been honored, the archeologists believe by his bear-tooth nevklace, indicating his fearlessness of wild or savage animals. A shell necklace, a group of fine speak points of quartzite, chertz and ryolite, and a huge stone weapon of chertz, and a stone head completed the articles found, which were not too badly decayed to be identified.

Will Tax Workers To Aid Unemployed

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Aug. 25—All of New Zealand's male workers are to be levied on at the rate of $7.50 each to assist the jobless.

At least 10,000 out of the white population of 1,400,000 are jobless, and there is much distress.

The bill also provides for the establishment of a board to administer the fund for the provision of employment, or, failing this, of sustenance on the lines of the British dole act.

Women workers are not included in the scheme.

ALAN IAN PERCY NOTED NOBLEMAN DIES IN LONDON

Eighth Duke of Northumberland Succumbs After Long Illness.

OWNED COAL MINE AREA.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 25.— (C. P. Cable.)—With the death of Alan Ian Percy, eighth Duke of Northumberland, after a long illness, on Saturday, a great noble and the descendant of a famous Norman house, passed from the wordly scene.

Although not an active politician the Duke of Northumberland was known as one of the leaders of the reactionary nobles and his lean, gaunt features were often caricatured as one of the leaders of the mysterious organization which may or may not exist—the British Fascisti.

The Duke was known as one of Britain's wealthiest noblemen. He was owner of a great coal mine area in Northumberland, and the labor agitation against the exercise of surface levies was aimed as much against His Grace of Northumberland as anyone. This agitation at one time called forth from the Duke a statement in which he showed how his revenue was not more than sufficient to meet the current demands made by taxes and estate upkeep upon a land owner.

Came With Duke William.

The House of Percy was founded in England by William De Percy, a Norman Chieftain who accompanied Duke William to England, fought under the conqueror of Hastings and was bequested with wide lands and privileges as his reward. The first Lord Percy was created in 1299 and the fourth Lord Percy was named Earl of Northumberland in 1342. His oldest son was the renowned nd impetuous Henry Hotspur who fell at the Battle of Shrewsbury. It was the first Earl, his son, Henry Hotspur, and the Duke of Lancaster, who dethroned Richard the Second and thereby not only earned a niche in history but also a place in the immortal works of Shakespeare.

The second Earl was Lord High Constable of England. He fell at the battle of St. Albans. The third Earl fell in the cause of the Lancastrians and the fourth was kept a prisoner in the Tower of London for a long time before Edward the Fourth released him and acknowledged his succession. This Earl was slain by his tenants.

But though all of these noblemen met violent deaths they were survived in each case by their sons who carried on the title in an unbroken line.

COURT CUTS FINE OF RETURNED MAN

Reckless Driver Receives Total Disability Pension.

This returned soldier story is over-worked. The war has been over twelve years now and it has lost its importance in the courts by this time" Police Magistrate Langley told a local man this morning, who had pleaded guilty to reckless driving. The fine was placed at $20 but, when the magistrate was informed that the man was a total disability, it was reduced by half.

Another local man was fined $25 and costs of $7.50 on a similar charge. At first he was charged with being drunk in charge of a car, but the prosecution considered their case too weak to press this charge and it was reduced to reckless driving, to which the man pleaded guilty.

"If they had walked a few steps further they wouldn't be here" Chief Newhall said of two salesmen, charged with consuming in an illegal place. It was explained that the men took a drink almost on the doorstep of their apartment. Each paid $1 for their hurry.

Nine British Killed In Bitter Engagement With Armed Natives

Terrific Hand-to-hand Clash With Heavy Force on Northwest Border—British Report 26 Natives Dead and 70 Prisoners.

BATTLE FOLLOWED SURRENDER PARLEY.

Leader of Tribesmen Had Agreed to Yield if Allowed to March in With His Followers to Appointed Place.

(Canadian Press Cable)

SIMLA, India, Aug. 25.—A British force has suffered severe casualties in a serious battle with Hathi Khel Wazirs in the Kurram region of the northwest frontier, province of Peshawar.. In terrific hand-to-hand fighting with the tribesmen, Captain Ashcroft and eight men were killed. Ten others were wounded.

Native casualties totalled 26 killed, five wounded and 70 prisoners. The Bannu Kohat road has been closed to Europeans.

Meeting Was Arranged

Details of the encounter show that a mixed force of regular infantry frontier constabulary and police moved from Bannu early yesterday to occupy a position where a meeting under a hostile Mullah, named Fazi Oadar, was to take place.

Their aim was the arrest of the leaders of the agitators. The Mullah appeared with a large force of armed tribesmen He sent a message that he would prepare to surrender on condition that he be permitted to march first to the meeting place and then to the Bannu jail where his followers would give themselves up.

France Offers Cash For Large Families

PARIS, Aug. 25 (C.P.). — Last year's excess has impelled members in Parliament to seek methods of encouraging births and they have signed a bill offering premiums to large families, appropriating for that purpose $45,000,000.

Parents would receive $20 for the second child, $30 for each additional one and a pension of $20 when they reached the age of sixty.

BAIRNSFATHER SUED BY WIFE

Separation Sought From "Old Bill" Cartoonist.

ACTRESS NAMED.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.— Whether the relations of Bruce Bairnsfather, famous cartoonist, and Constance Collier, equally noted actress, were merely those of collaboration in playwriting is to be settled in the courts.

Mrs. Cecilia Bairnsfather, wife of the creator of "Old Bill" and "The Better 'Ole" let it be known yesterday she is trying to sue Miss Collier for $100,000 for the alienation of the artist's affections.

All concerned in the three-cornered complication are English and the Bairnsfathers' seven-year-old daughter, Barbara, is abroad with relatives of her mother. All are, or were, friends.

Frequent Visitor

Up to April, last, the Bairnsfathers lived at 24 E. 35th St., where Miss Collier visited often, partly from friendship and partly, so she said, to collaborate with the artist-author on a new play.

When Mrs. Bairnsfather went abroad with Barbara the visits continued, and later, it is said, the cartoonist moved. Soon after, Mrs. Bairnsfather received a letter from her husband saying he would be unable to join her abroad

About the same time another letter came from a friend suggesting the wife look up "Mr. and Mrs. Bruce" at 229 W. 59th St.

Mrs. Bairnsfather returned to New York quietly and inquired. Her decision to sue her husband for separation and her friend for alienation followed.

Famed for Cartoons

Captain Bairnsfather gained fame in the British Army with his cartoons of "Old Bill" and his comrades in arms. The cartoons were made into two comedies, in which the Coburns played with much success.

Miss Collier came to America twenty-two years ago to play in "Samson" with William Gillette. She has achieved success in American drama and is cast for the leading role in "The Matriarch," soon to open. At present Miss Collier is reported to be in Catskill, N. Y., but Mrs. Bairnsfather's process servers have been unable to find her.

SISTERS DROWN IN CLOSED CAR

Sedan Backs Into 8 Foot Canal Running Into Detroit River.

RESCUER DIVES IN VAIN.

DETROIT, Aug. 25.—Two elderly women, sisters, were drowned Saturday night like rats in a trap, when the closed sedan in which they were seated backed over the embankment and dropped into eight feet of water in the canal bordering Alter Road, a short distance from the Detroit River. The victims were Mrs. Amelia Osborne, aged 67, both of Grosse Pointe Park.

Charles H. Osborne, husband of one of the women, driving the party, had come down to the edge of the canal to view the river and get a breath of fresh air. As they started to leave, Osborne, apparently misjudging the distance the automobile was from the edge of the wall, backed up a foot too far, and before he could change his gears the car had slithered over the edge and plunged into the water, disappearing from view.

The accident was witnessed by Peter Wagner, aged 21, and companion John Collister, aged 16, who hurried to the spot. Wagner grasped a wrench from his tool box and dived into the water. He broke one of the windows of the car with his wrench. Both women were hurried to Receiving Hospital but were dead when they arrived. Osborne himself managed to reach shore before rescuers arrived.

Posse Traces Killer to Farm House, Where Desperate Battle Follows—Lad Shot Down As He Flees From Cellar When House is Fired By Police.

FORT FRANCES, Ont., August 25 (C.P.). — Victim of a police bullet, Emerick Frenatte, 21-year-old train bandit, who early on Sunday morning shot and killed two immigration inspectors on a Canadian National Railway train near here, died in the hospital at Emo, Ont., late last night.

Surrounded in a farm house, where he had taken refuge after escaping from the train in the Emo yard limits, Frenatte and police, assisted by a citizens' posse, fought a desperate gun battle which lasted several hours before he emerged and was fatally wounded by the officers.

Driven Out by Smoke.

Driven from his refuge, after the police had fired the house, the bandit was shot when a fusillade of bullets greeted him as he dashed from the doorway still firing a revolver. He was taken to the hospital at Emo, where he died late last evening.

The bandit, who had created a reign of terror on the train, threatening death to the crew, but taking precaution not to disturb passengers, shot and killed the immigration officers without warning. One was killed as he sat in a seat of the smoking car, the other as he attempted to board the train in the Emo yards. It is believed Frenatte, because of the officers' uniforms, mistook them for police authorities. Both died instantly.

Apologizes for Murders

Before he died Frenatte confessed the slaying of the immigration officers. He had escaped from police officers in Fort Frances Saturday night, where he had been arrested on the minor charge. In his confession, the youth expressed sorrow for slaying of the officers, declaring he had "lost his job and girl" and was "desperate."

Frenatte escaped following the killing of the first inspector after threatening to kill Conductor George Ireland, whom he had forced to accompany him through five cars of the train, and proceeded to the engine, where he robbed the engineer, fireman and a brakeman of their valuables.

Just before the train pulled into Emo, the desperado jumped from it and disappeared into the bush.

A warning was broadcast throughout the countryside, a strong border patrol was organized to prevent the bandit's escape into the United States, and police, including railway and provincial, and a posse of citizens set out on his trail.

Surrounded in a farm house, Frenatte refused to surrender. After hours of waiting, police set fire to the house, from which the bandit had previously ejected the tenants, and shortly after noon he emerged from the burning structure and was shot down, a bullet through his kidney.

CROSSING CRASH FATAL TO TWO

Oshawa Girl in Sherbrooke Hospital After Train Hits Car.

ON PLEASURE TRIP.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Aug. 25. — Mrs. Louis Pomeroy, aged 40 years, of Upton, Mass., and Miss Eileen Hampton, aged 18 years, of Richmond, Que., were killed Saturday when a Canadian National train struck a motor car on a level crossing near Richmond, Que. Four other women were injued: Miss Patricia Kelly of Oshawa, Ont., who is in a Sherbrooke Hospital; Mrs. Ross Gettie, Montreal; Mrs. Grant Kelly of Richmond, and Miss Noreen Kelly of Richmond.

The families, all relatives, were holding a re-union at Grant Kelly's home at Richmond. Mr. Kelly and Mrs. Gettie were out fishing, and the six women decided to motor out to the lake for them. While en route the car was struck by a train and Mrs. Pomeroy was instantly killed. Miss Hampton dying while being taken to hospital. None of the others were hurt seriously.

NEW ROYAL HEIR PROVES SUBJECT OF LABOR ATTACK

Left Wingers Discuss Child's Lot Compared With That of Poor.

NEEDS ARE IDENTICAL.

J. R. Clynes, Home Secretary, Scored For His Part at Event.

GLAMIS, Scotland, August 25. — Britain's new royal baby, born here on Thursday to the Duchess of York, has stirred some of Labor's left wing members to comparisons between the lot of royal babies and that of poverty-stricken infant subjects.

At the annual Keir Hardie memorial demonstration on Saturday, which took place at Cumnock, Ayrshire, barely a hundred miles from Glamis, Miss Mary Shennan, Laborite, said that the royal baby "would never have to face the question of living on five, three, or two shillings a week."

John R. Clynes, Labor Home Secretary, who was present officially to attest the birth, came in for some scorching criticism by his party's left wing members.

Miss Shennan said that lots of babies could have been substituted before Clynes saw the child, but she wasn't concerned with that kind of substitution.

"What I want to emphasize is that the needs of the royal baby are just the same as those of any other baby in the country — fresh air, proper food, and sunlight."

John McGovern, recently elected M.P. for Shettleston, made a direct attack upon Clynes. He said it was a mockery and a shame to see the Labor Home Secretary sitting for three weeks on the doorstep of royalty as a kind of Labor midwife, while the working classes were enduring the long night of martyrdom and despair."

Giant Still Seized On Waterloo Farm

KITCHENER, Ont., Aug. 25. — Provincial Police found one of the largest stills ever seized in Waterloo County, and following a raid near Bamberg, two men will face charges under the Federal and Ontario Liquor Acts.

The haul was made at the farm of Charles Kopp. The still was completely equipped with instruments and testers and had a capacity of from 50 to 100 gallons daily. Eleven gallons of moonshine were also seized.

New World Distance Swimming Queen

Margaret Ravior of Philadelphia, Pa., who won the women's long distance swimming championship of the world, when she took first place in the ten-mile marathon staged by the Canadian National Exhibition. Trailing 50, 75 and sometimes 100 yards behind Ethel McGarry of New York, for most of the course, the Philadelphia girl finally forced her way past the leader on the eighth mile and plowed her way through the last lap to win in five hours 31 minutes, 39 4-5 seconds. She won not only a world's championship, but $5,000 in cash and an opportunity to enter the men's $15,000 swim next Wednesday.

GERMAN FLIERS BLAZE NEW TRAIL ACROSS ATLANTIC

Quartet Land at Queensport, N.S., after Hop From Labrador.

MET FOG ALL WAY.

Route Carries Giant Flying Boat Over Ireland and Greenland.

QUEENSPORT, N.S., Aug. 25. — Four weary fliers from Germany were seeking rest here last evening at the end of a new air trail that took them over the perilous regions of Iceland and Greenland. Their Dornier Wal flying boat, once used in the Northland by Amunsden, swooped down on the harbor here at 3.45 p.m. (Atlantic daylight time) yesterday afternoon. The last previous stopping place was Cartwright, Labrador.

Forced down by fog, encountered during almost the entire trip from Greenland, Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions were in good condition and happy over the success of the hard flight. After snatching some sleep while waiting for the weather to clear, they planned to leave for Halifax to pause to refuel, and then to continue to New York. The hop to Halifax, roughly 130 miles as the crow flies, probably will be made this morning. Supplies of gasoline and oil have been stored there by military authorities.

Fog Only Difficulty

Interviewers found the Captain and his companions modest regarding their achievement. With the exception of fog, no difficulty was encountered, said the Captain. Soon after leaving Greenland, they lost the radio generator. Fortunately a spare one was carried and the loss occasioned no trouble. The airmen would have been able to make Halifax had their charts been sufficiently detailed. As it was, however, they thought it best to land here. The radio was chiefly useful in supplying weather reports, said Captain von Gronau.

A surprise flight from Reykjavik, Iceland, to Ivigtut, Greenland, was made by the four airmen on Friday. At 8 o'clock Saturday morning (Greenland time) the flying boat, bearing the insignia "D-1422" on its side, left Reykjavik, and eight hours later arrived at Cartwright, where a new fuel supply was taken on. The flight ending at Queensport was started. There is no landline or wireless station at Cartwright, and the arrival of the plane there did not become known until some time after it had left that place for the south. At 8.45 a.m. the flying boat passed over Grindstone, one of the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. St. Paul saw the plane at 11.28 p.m. flying high and fast. She passed over North Sydney at 1.27 p.m.

Captain von Gronau said the flight was part of the program of a German training school in aviation. Each year the school sponsored a flight and this latest one was the longest yet undertaken.

BODIES RECOVERED.

Inquest Ordered in Double Drowning Last Week.

MADOC, August 25.—The bodies of the Rev. Fred Mayhew, of Madoc, and Sam Osborne, Eldorado farmer, were found yesterday afternoon in Dickie's Lake, near Gilmour, in deep water, after an all-day search.

The tragedy occurred on Wednesday, when the motor boat in which they were crossing the lake swamped. Mrs. Mayhew and Mrs. Osborne and the three children owe their lives to Harry Carpenter, a tourist, who noticed them clinging to overturned boat. The two men had left the boat, striking off for the shore and were overcome in the water.

An inquest has been ordered, after which the bodies will be taken home for interment.

ACCIDENT TOLL FOR WEEK-END DROPS TO SEVEN

Heavy Rains Dampen Holiday Spirit, Keeping Motorists at Home.

CARS CLAIM FOUR.

TORONTO, Ont., August 25 (C.P.) —Heavy rains that are believed to have dampened Ontario citizens' holiday spirit over the week-end curtailed traffic over highways, and as a result the fatality list showed a marked decrease.

Only seven persons met death, compared with the prevailing weekend total of a score or more during past weeks. Four were killed in motor accidents, two were fatally injured in a sewer explosion at Hamilton, and one died under the wheels of a train. The dead are:

A negro companion, who was injured, is held on charges of manslaughter and theft.

Dorothy Cameron, London, Ont.—struck by train.

Mrs. George McAffee, 22, Cornell Avenue, Birch Cliff, Toronto — car overturned near Alberton, Ont.

Albert Lewis, Welland—hit by car.

200,000 SEE GAMES.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 25.—(C.P.) —An estimated total attendance of between 190,000 and 200,000 is the mark set by conservative reckoners as indicating the number of people who saw the entire spectacle of the British Empire games just ended.

WHEAT POOL JOINS STOCKMEN TO EASE GRAIN GLUT, GAIN TRADE

Meat Packers to Co-operate With Dominion and Ontario Gov't.

FEEDER PURCHASE POLICY.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 25. (C.P.)— A plan to build up the livestock industry of Eastern Canada and at the same time provide a market for a part of the grain surplus of Western Canada has been devised by the interested parties.

Western wheat pools, eastern livestock interests and packers have conferred with the Ontario Department of Agriculture, the Ontario Agricultural College and the Dominion Department of Agriculture resulting in the appointment of J. H Newsome, the Wheat Pool's Toronto representative and S. E. Todd, Secretary of the Industrial and Development council of the Canadian Meat Packers' Association to work with the Governments in furthering the plan.

Hon. George Weir, Minister of Agriculture has authorized the Dominion Livestock Branch to put into operation for a period of five months ending January 1, 1931, a feeder purchase policy which will enable the Eastern Canada livestock raiser to amplify his stock from western herds.

Under this policy the Dominion Livestock Branch will pay one-way railway fare, berth and living expenses enroute of any applicant in Eastern Canada who agrees to purchase one or more carloads of steers or feeder lambs in the west, to be brought east for finishing upon the standard priced coarse grain feeds which the Wheat Pool guarantees to supply.

Ancient $10 Bills Found in Gas Pipe

GALT, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.)— In an old piece of gas pipe which had been in a junk pile for 15 years, Thomas Hubbard this city, made an unusual find. Using the piece of pipe as a hammer, as he had often done, he happened to look into it and saw something inside. Pushing it out he found eight $10 bills of the reign of King Edward issue.. How the money came to be there is a mystery.

TURKEY DEMANDS STRIP OF PERSIA

WARS ON KURDS.

ISTAMBUL, Aug. 25.—A note to Persia, insisting on the necessity of military co-operation with Turkey against rebellious Kurdish tribesmen around Mount Ararat, has been sent to the Turkish Charge d'Affaires at Teheran by Dr. Tewfik Rushdi Bey, Turkish Minister of Foreign Affairs.

This new note, recently worked out by Mustapha Kemal Pasha and Premier Ismet Pasha, uges that rectification of the Turco-Persian frontier near Mount Ararat is indispensable. It asks the cession to Turkey of the Persian zone touching the slopes of Mount Ararat, through which hitherto Kurdish tribesmen have received supplies.

Mystery Dirigible Visits St. Thomas

ST. THOMAS, Aug. 25—Mystery surrounds the flight of a dirigible over Port Stanley and St. Thomas early Saturday morning. The dirigible was first seen crossing Lake Erie to Port Stanley, its huge searchlight playing over the water and countryside and its engines roaring.

From Port Stanley it flew north to St. Thomas and then disappeared in a westerly direction just at dawn.

That Nice Husband of Yours

He's very clothes-conscious and not a bit colour-blind

By DOROTHY DIX

A talk with women of PETERBOROUGH

CLOTHES-CONSCIOUS? Of course he is — that nice John, Richard, Harry, you've taken for better or worse.

Don't you believe he doesn't notice the FROCK you have on. He may not be able to describe the exact style, but he knows whether YOU look well in it and he knows, too, what COLOUR it is. He's not the least bit colour-blind.

Men Love Colour

Don't think you must wear the very latest thing the moment it comes out. There is all the ALLURE in the world in a simple little blouse or dress if its COLOUR is becoming to you—and if it has lost none of its original freshness and charm. For it's COLOUR that takes a man's eye!

Clever wives invariably follow two very simple rules—

FIRST: they are careful to select colours that are becoming.

SECOND: they keep the colours unfaded, undiminished in their alluring, vital charm.

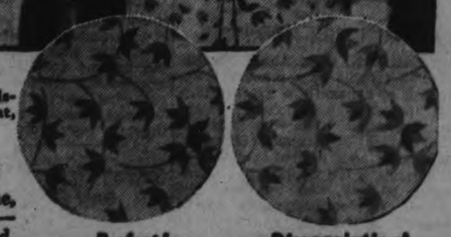
"But how can we keep colours as alluring as new?" women ask me. "Washing so soon leaves them faded, lifeless."

It is true that just ordinary "good" soaps take some of the colour out along with the dirt, but the famous Lux is especially made to keep colours appealing—fresh—vital. It cleanses without disturbing the most delicate flower-like tint, any more than plain water will.

In Your Home, Too

Not only your clothes—but your home, everything associated with YOU—should seem charming to your husband.

Your dainty curtains, table linens, slip covers—Lux will keep all these lovely, with the inexpressible charm of fresh, vibrant colour. DOROTHY DIX



Perfect! (Left, above) Sample washed 12 times in Lux. The colour has all the thrill of new—when you wear it the emotional power of colour adds its magic glamour to you!

Millbrook

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. W. H. Armstrong was hostess for a "quilting bee" at her home, Fourth line, Cavan, on Friday afternoon when sixteen ladies, members of the Women's Institute, were present and completed two quilts which the organization had under way, and which will probably be used either for sale or in relief work this fall or winter.

The ladies responsible for the quilting arrived at the comfortable farm homestead shortly before 2 p.m., and were soon busily at work, continuing their task around the quilting frames until called to tea by the committee appointed to prepare and serve lunch, the daintily laid tables being arranged in the dining-room, and the menu abundant and satisfying.

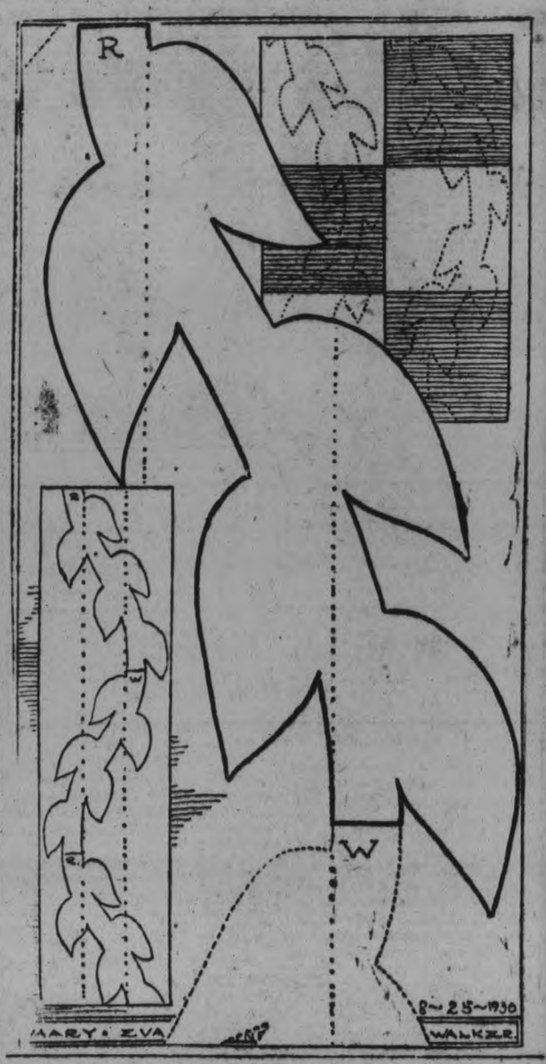
A very pleasant social hour was spent while the party was gathered about the tea tables, and later the work on the quilts was completed and the latter taken out of the frames before the W. I. members left for their respective homes.

Mrs. Armstrong's home seemed particularly well suited for a quilting bee, the large rooms accommodating the workers and the frames quite comfortably. The hostess, with her usual forethought, had everything in readiness before the ladies arrived, and the lunch committee, who did not come until after 4.30 p.m., likewise found all necessities ready to their hand when they began their pleasant task of looking after tea for the workers already "on the ground" and accomplishing their self-imposed labors with satisfaction and despatch.

The W. I. members, with one or two visitors, who did the quilting on Friday were: Mrs. J. McBride, Mrs. T. G. Harkness, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. C. C. Garside and her guest, Mrs. Millson of Bowmanville, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. G. Freelove, Mrs. A. J. Henderson, Mrs. G. Fallis, Mrs. William West, Mrs. Milton hCallice, Mrs. Fred. McMahon, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong.

The lunch committee included Mrs. Thomas Ingram, Miss Ella Grandy, Miss Pearl Burnham.

Mrs. Armstrong was warmly thanked for her generous hospitality before the workers left on their homeward way; Messrs. T. G. Harkness, T. H. Aiken, Ivan L. H. Gray and M. Challice being amosg those who provided means of transportation to and from the meeting place.



YOU will notice on this page a picture of a quilt pattern. To some of you it may be a familiar one and to others new.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

The vine unit can be used as pictured by cutting it out and pasting it onto a piece of cardboard, and then cutting the cardboard away along the edges of the outline.

* * * * * * *

To insure the pattern making a straight band across a quilt, there must be guilding lines. And these are indicated in the illustration by parallel dotted lines. They must be one-and-a-half inches apart.

* * * * * * *

Use a yard stick or a ruler and draw two such lines across the quilt with chalk. The first can be two inches from the edge of the quilt with the other line one and a half inches from it.

* * * * * * *

In this way it will be easy to lay on the cardboard mold and outline it with chalk and run with a thread.

* * * * * * *

Carry the quilting band all the way around the quilt, doing the stitching after each few repeats of the unit have been chalked on the material.

* * * * * * *

For a second band of this pattern draw two more parallel lines above (that is inside the band just quilted), spacing them so that the first lines comes three to five inches above the inner chalked line in the first band.

* * * * * * *

* * * * * * *

If any of you are thinking of using this pattern, instead of cutting the design out of the newspaper, trace it off and make the pattern from the exact tracing.

* * * * * * *

In this way the pattern picture remains intact, and other tracing can be made from it when the first pattern mold wears out.

A BEDTIME STORY
by Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S NEW BUNGALOW.

Uncle Wiggily and his many little bunny boys and girls who were digging so fast in the seashore sand to make themselves a cave stopped all of a sudden when they heard some one yelling at them.

"Hi there! What's the idea? Who is digging in my sand?" a voice had shouted at the digging rabbits.

"What's that?" whispered Baby Bunty.

All this I told you in the story last night—how Uncle Wiggily put his wife, Nurse Jane and all the little bunny boys and girls in his auto and started for the seashore. But it was after dark when they got there; they couldn't find the bungalow where they were going to stay for the summer and no one knew what to do until Uncle Wiggily said they must dig a sand cave in which to spend the night.

Files of fun! Darling Jackie and Pertie

"In the morning I will find a bungalow for us," said Mr. Longears.

But now it was night instead of morning and that loud voice had shouted and even Uncle Wiggily didn't quite know what to do. But the rabbit gentleman was brave, and he knew he must look after his wife and Nurse Jane and the little rabbits, so he called back:

"Who are you? And how can you call all this sand yours?"

"Oh, are you Uncle Wiggily," asked a voice in surprise.

"Of course I am," was the answer. "But who are you?"

"Why, I'm your friend, Mr. Bow Bow," was the reply.

"Are Jackie and Peetie with you?" cried Buster and Custer, two boy rabbits. "Is Mrs. Bow Wow there?" Uncle Wiggily's wife wanted to know.

"We're all here," barked the dog. "We started out when you did, Uncle Wiggily, to come to the seashore. But we got here first and dug a place in the sand to sleep. Just now I felt some one digging right into my sand house bedroom, and I called to know who it was."

"Yes, I guess we dug into the sand too near you," Mr. Longears said as he looked at Mr. Bow Wow, the lady dog and two little puppies, who scrambled out of a sand cave like that which Uncle Wiggily had started to dig. The rabbits could see their dog friends by the glow of some flash lights which Uncle Wiggily had stuck up on the beach.

"We got here too late to look for a hotel or bungalow," said Mrs. Bow Wow, shaking some of the sand off her tail.

"That's just what happened to us!" spoke Mrs. Longears. "Wiggy took the wrong roads a couple of times and so we shall have to dig a sand house and stay all night on the beach."

"It'll be lots of fun!" said Baby Bunty.

"Come on, children! Get to work! Dig!" cried the rabbit uncle, and when the dogs went back to sleep in the hole they had scooped out Mr. Longears and those with him made themselves a good sand cave in which they spent the night. They were all so tired they slept soundly.

In the morning it was easy to see where they were. The auto had stopped on a lonely beach, with no house or bungalow in sight. And, seeing this, Mrs. Longears said:

"You are good and lost, Mr. Longears! I don't see any place around here where we can stay for the summer."

"Don't you, my dear?" asked the rabbit.

"No, I don't!" his wife said. "We had better pile back into the auto and go to some place along the shore where we can stay in a hotel or bungalow."

"We are going to stay right here!" said Uncle Wiggily, firm like.

"But what in?" asked his wife.

"In a bungalow, my dear. I am going to start building a bungalow here on the sand right now."

"What kind of a bungalow?"

"A seaweed bungalow!" answered the rabbit gentleman. "Look at the big bunches of seaweed scattered along the beach. The children can gather it up and down the shore and I'll build me a new bungalow where we can spend the rest of the summer."

"That will be lovely," said Mrs. Longears. "But I fear a bungalow of seaweed will either blow away or topple on our heads in the night. Seaweed is so slimpsy."

"Not the way I'll fix it," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'll make a frame of strong driftwood and we can drape the long strands of seaweed over it. We shall have a wonderful bungalow."

"Hurray! We surely will!" cried the rabbit boys and girls. So after eating their breakfast, which they had brought with them from Woodland, they began gathering the seawood along the shore. Uncle Wiggily found long sticks of drift wood which he stuck up in the sand and when the long strands of weed from the sea had been draped over this the rabbits had as fine a bungalow as ever was. Mr. Bow Wow built one for his family and then began some jolly adventures.

That Body of Yours

X-RAY TREATMENT OF GOITRE.

Everybody dislikes the idea of a surgical operation, and so when other methods are sometimes successful it is only natural that the individual needing an operation wonders why he could not be treated by some non surgical method.

And some of these non surgical methods have been most successful, namely the use of injections for varicose veins and for hemorrhoids or piles, which are really just varicose veins, the use of the rest and alkaline treatment for stomach and intestinal ulcer, radium treatment for cancer, and so forth.

Also many cases of serious goitre have been cured by the use of iodine and rest, and so the patient who has been advised to undergo a surgical operation for this condition often wonders why.

By testing the metabolism, (that is the building up and breaking down of his tissues), it has been found that the thyroid gland is still too active despite the rest and medical treatment, and so a portion of the gland must be removed.

I have spoken before of how the X-ray has been of help in these case where surgery was advised, and now Dr. W. Brednow, Munich, reports his experience of thirty-six cases treated by the X-ray during the past year.

These cases were of the severe type.

Eight persons recovered completely, seven of whom were under thirty years of age.

In nineteen cases improvement was noted.

In the remaining nine cases the treatment was not effective; however the majority of cases were more than 50 years and some more than 60 years.

Now although this series consisted of only thirty six cases, with about 25 per cent cured, 50 per cent improved, and about 25 per cent failures, it would seem that this method is certainly worth the trying in those cases where the patient dreads surgery, or where his general condition makes him a poor surgical risk.

Of course in simple goitre cases the usual treat treatment, sometimes with iodine medication, is sufficient to correct the condition.

However, it must not be forgotten that there are some cases that cannot be cured except by surgery and your doctor by examination and metabolism tests is able to decide when this must be done.

There is no other way, and now that the patient is put into the best possible condition before operation, and and our surgeons are so skillful that the operation has been made less dangerous than formerly, there should be no hesitancy about undergoing it.

Restricted building and construction activities in the Philippines is causing unemployment.

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG,
That old and antique song we heard, last night.

"FATHER SAYS I MAY."
(Contributed By Beatrice.)

When I was courting Nellie Clair, I often used to say,
Whatever you think of doing, love,
Ask father if you may;
Whatever she might wish for,
I, of course, could ne'er refuse,
So the darling did just as she pleased,
For this was her excuse.

Father says I may, George, father says I may,
Of course you can't say 'No,' Georgie,
if father says I may;
So don't say "No," for it is no go,
Since father says I may.

'Twas always "Father says I may,"
when she fancied something new,
But when a fellow's in love, dear boys,
What wouldn't a fellow do?
'Twas "Georgie, dear, do go inside
And buy that sweet bouquet,
And you'll then take me to the ball
to-night,
For father says I may."

She's said "That with her Georgie
she could lead a happy life,"
And I'd longed for the day to come
When I could call her "wife";
One day I went in great suspense,
To hear what the old boy'd say,
When she threw her arms around my neck,
And said, "Father says I may."

She's often 'teased and trifled' through our very happy times,
But her "father says I may's"
Enough to pardon all her crimes.
There's numerous family springing up,
Which I view with much dismay,
But she drives my frown off with a smile
And says, "Father says I may."

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

CANADA'S GREAT EXHIBITION.

The Canadian National Exhibition is off to a fine start, and there is every reason to expect, despite the industrial and agricultural depression, that the world's greatest annual fair will upon this occasion measure up very closely to the standard of success scored in the past, both as to attendance and as to the quality and extent of its manifold features.

The "Ex," to give it the name most frequently used by Canadians, has become a truly national institution, its attractions bringing to Ontario's capital an army of visitors that each year seems to become larger.

Ontario people in particular regard the pilgrimage to the Exhibition as inevitable as the coming of the seasons, and look upon the event as a demonstration of Canadian enterprise and achievement in which every Canadian has the right to take a pride.

This is Canadian year with the Canadian National, and by the engaging of a national Canadian band and in many other ways, the C.N.E. directors have accentuated in their programs the fact that the Exhibition is a cross-section of Canadian life and activity.

A SATISFACTORY REASSURANCE.

The statement of Hon. Gideon Robertson before the Employment Service Council the other day that no one will be permitted to go hungry or cold in Canada during the coming winter, was a timely reassurance that will be endorsed by the Canadian people.

As the Minister of Labor pointed out, the duty of a national Government was to see that its people were given an opportunity to earn their daily bread.

Paternalism is not desired, and the object of the Government should be, as Senator Robertson pointed out, to endeavor to alleviate unemployment by seeing that work is provided; first, it is presumed, by the opening out of public works as a temporary measure, and then by the introduction of policies aiming at a more or less permanent cure.

No matter how successful these plans may prove, however, it is certain that they cannot benefit all the people, and that there will undoubtedly be cases of suffering as the result of unemployment.

That being so, the Minister of Labor's definite promise that such people will not be allowed to go hungry or without fuel during the coming winter will be welcomed, particularly by municipal authorities upon whom the whole burden would otherwise be thrown.

BUYING AT HOME.

The announced intention of the Ontario Government to carry on, by means of the radio, lecture staffs and newspaper advertising, a campaign to promote the greater buying and use of Canadian products should meet with popular acclaim.

It is evident that there is need in this country for such a campaign.

We are every day buying and consuming surprisingly large quantities of foreign products of a character that are made or grown in Canada.

If we could succeed in inducing our people to interest themselves in the origin of the things they buy and in diverting to our own producers some of the business that we carelessly toss to foreign competitors a very material improvement in industrial, agricultural and business conditions would be speedily effected.

"We have determined," says Premier Ferguson, "to show to the people the real qualities of our products—to demonstrate the value of our own markets—to prove to them the advantage of buying at home."

In that effort the Ontario Government should have the whole-hearted support, not only of Ontario farmers and manufacturers, but of the people of this Province generally.

Any material success secured by such a campaign will not only furnish a much needed outlet for Canadian products but at the same time would materially help to improve conditions in regard to employment.

LIQUOR CONSUMPTION DECREASES.

Figures issued by the National Department of Revenue would indicate a definite decrease in the amount of liquor being consumed in this country.

Those who desire to argue are now entitled to debate whether this condition implies that Canada is progressing in the direction of sobriety or whether that the buying of alcoholic beverages has decreased because the buying power of the Canadian people has been impaired by the current depression.

Both opinions, it may be expected, will have their supporters and the discussion may be left to them.

The figures upon which the argument may be based are clear enough in themselves.

They show that the revenue secured from the excise tax on liquors and malt beverages decreased all along the line in June of this year as compared with that secured in June, 1929.

Following are the returns:

And as the Border Cities Star points out, the argument cannot be advanced that liquor purchased through illegal channels accounts for the decrease cannot be advanced, because "no matter how the liquor is sold to the consumer the excise tax is collected at its source," so the department's figures may be accepted as an accurate measure of the quantity being used in the Dominion.

LESS FROM THE U. S. A.

Canada's imports from the United States during the month of June totalled approximately $60,000,000 or $20,000,000 less than the same month a year ago. On the other hand, our exports to the States were $36,503,217 or approximately $8,000,000 less than for June, 1929.

Our imports from across the line should show a much greater drop during the next year. The Hawley-Smoot tariff bill is keeping more Canadian goods out of the United States and consequently our ability to purchase American goods is lessened in just that ratio. Furthermore, Uncle Sam's unfriendly tariff attitude has established a stronger national feeling in Canada and a general determination on the part of the people to buy more of their requirements at home.—Border Cities Star.

TIME FOR ACTION.

There is a general agreement among those who are familiar with the conditions that if the Kawartha Lakes in general and Stoney Lake in particular are to continue to enjoy the patronage of tourists whose chief desire is to fish, something more effective than anything hitherto attempted in the line of re-stocking the Kawartha waters must be attempted.

The facts might as well be looked in the face.

It is all very well to stress the few good catches that are made, but the emphasis placed on those spectacular captures contains no reward for the scores of unsuccessful fishermen who come here with high hopes of angling triumphs, spend their money freely upon guides and bait, and go away disappointed.

Advertising that pictures the Kawarthas as teeming with hard-hitting muskies and fighting black bass is scarcely honest with the situation as it is at present, and should be discontinued until the conditions justify that kind of propaganda.

In the meanwhile these waters offer sufficient charm as a family resort to ensure a steady influx of visitors who find the district an ideal summer playground.

The majority of such tourists do not care whether there is a fish left in the lakes or not; they are satisfied with the scenery and the many amusements offered by the Kawarthas.

The other class of tourist, the inveterate fisherman, who expects to get results every time he drops a line in the water, is, however, becoming scarcer each year, especially in the Stoney Lake district, and it will not be long, if something is not done to replenish the supply of game fish in this part of Ontario, before the hard-shell angler will have the Kawarthas marked down in his diary as "fished out," a place to be shunned by the fisherman who wants results for the time and money he spends.

THE NEW IMMIGRATION POLICY.

There is not really so very much difference between the immigration policy announced by the new Minister, the Hon. W. A. Gordon, and that which was in force during the closing months of the Mackenzie King administration. Under the plan adopted by the Bennett Government, immigration from the continent of Europe will be restricted to the extent that only bona fide farmers, with sufficient means to establish themselves immediately upon farms, or the wives and families of immigrants already established, will be admitted. There is to be no change in regard to immigration activities in Great Britain or the United States save that the soliciting and encouragement of immigration will be discontinued. It is generally agreed to abandon any further attempt to add to Canada's population until the unemployment situation is corrected.

It will be remembered that the Mackenzie King Government took substantially the same steps to curb migration from the continent of Europe through declining to admit settlers who were not experienced farmers and who did not possess sufficient resources to establish themselves, and by permitting the different Provinces to say whether or not they wished the stream of migration to flow on or to be dammed. It did not, it is true, attempt to discourage migration from either Great Britain or the United States, nor does the Bennett Government follow any other course except to close the Government agencies which have been operating in both countries with a view to attracting further settlers. From this it will be seen that there is in reality very little difference beween the two policies in the effect which their application has upon the population of the Dominion, particularly as recent months have witnessed a steady decline in the number of migrants from the continent of Europe, with arrivals from Great Britain and the United States remaining stationery.

It is, however, the part of wisdom at this period to endeavor to keep immigration within certain limits and not to flood the country with people who cannot obtain work. The Western Provinces long ago served notice upon the Dominion Government that, in view of the unemployment situation in the cities and the rather unfavorable position of agriculture, they were not prepared to sanction a further influx of people unless those people were able to maintain themselves without public assistance. The other Provinces would now, if questioned, probably take the same stand. It is a difficult enough matter for those already in the country to find employment; to bring in more people unable to support themselves over the period of time which must elapse before employment returns to its high standing of the past few years would only be to invite additional congestion in the centres of population and the operation of bread-lines and soup kitchens during the coming winter. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Two weeks from to-day Peterborough's Industrial Exhibition will get under way. In many respects this year's Exhibition will be a record-breaker.

The British Empire is evidently not slipping so far as the production of sterling athletes is concerned.

New Zealand butter, it would seem, is still to be the topic of conversation in Canada for some time to come.

One advantage of the marathon swim is that it enables the Canadian National Exhibition to get away with a splash.

The unemployment conference has demonstrated once again that the two schools of thought in regard to the tariff are still as far apart as the poles.

It's getting so that when you finally do reach the other side of the street you feel like hollering back at the friends you left behind, "Having a fine time. Wish you were here."—Life.

The Office Hound

Inspector Knowall and Sergeant Beef looked at Silo Dance quizzically. Scarcely were the words out of his mouth before two shots, fired in rapid succession, were heard from the entry hall. Almost immediately Whosis, Dance's suave and efficient manservant, staggered back into the room. He was stooped over almost double, holding his side, and groaning.

O—H

"Are you drunk, Whosis?" the great detective asked suspiciously.

So saying, Whosis fell full length on one of Silo's rare Persian rugs, in a dead faint.

"Quick!" snapped Silo. "Call Dr. Queen, Inspector. And you, Sergeant, go out and have a look at the entry hall. You probably won't find anybody there—but have a look, anyway."

O—H

A few minutes later the three men were on their way downtown in the Inspector's high-powered car.

"I can't figure, Mr. Dance, what happened to those two guys, Dead Beat and Casey," declared Sergeant Beef. "But I believe if we find them, we find the eggs that tried to put poor old Whoosis out of the way and the bozos that bumped off—er . . . well the feller that was murdered in front of The Examiner Office, whoever he was."

"I observe that you seem to have a certain amount of haziness on the point," returned Dance. "Well, the fact is, the man whom you saw lying—obviously murdered — underneath the noon edition an hour ago was none other than. . . . "

O—H

Before the great detective could finish his sentence, a voice hailed him from the sidewalk.

"Yoo-hoo! Mr. Dance! Have you solved that nice mystery yet? Or are you going to give Sergeant Beef a break this time?"

Dance and his companions exchanged significant glances. The voice was that of the elusive Miss Dollar who stood, immaculately gowned and perfectly poised, in the doorway of The Examiner Office.

"There's a little girl who's changed her tune a lot in the last hour," remarked the Sergeant.

Dance merely smiled.

O—H

Fifteen minutes later the three men were standing on the corner of George and Charlotte.

"The chase has narrowed down — as I suspected it would,—" announced Dance, "to four suspects. They are, of course, the elusive Miss Dollar, the City Editor, Dead Beat, and Casey. Now, in view of the murdered man's identity and the attempted murder of Whosis, I think it becomes fairly evident that if we wait a day or two this case will solve itself. I think I'll leave you gentlemen now and go up to Nogie's Creek to enjoy the mosquitos for a few days. You won't need my expert guidance any more. Sergeant Beef is quite able to handle the case as it stands now. You will find that—according to the psychology of the thing—the person who did this job is . . . "

O—H

"Poiper! Wuxtry poiper! All about de big moider!"

Newsboys were appearing as if by magic, from all directions.

"Wuxtry! All about de big moider!"

"Ex-amineh . . . ! Big murder is solved!"

Hastily, Silo Dance bought a paper and flung it open. There across the front page was strung the red streamer: "DOLLAR DAY MURDER SOLVED BY REPORTERS".

"What's this?" spluttered the Sergeant. "Ain't there any respect for the law any more?"

"'Isn't', not 'ain't,'" chided the great detective.

The headlines which met the gaze of the three men were . . . "'MURDERED MAN' UNDER NOON EDITION NONE OTHER THAN CLOTHING STORE DUMMY. . . . Advertising Department Pulls Fast Publicity Stunt. . . . POLICE LOOK SILLY. . . . Silo Dance Pursues Elusive Clues in Vain Attempt."

O—H

"These guys, Dead Beat and Casey, are responsible for this!" broke out the Sergeant. "Just wait till I lay my hands on them! I'll show them they can't laugh at Sergeant Beef and the whole Force!"

"Calm yourself, my dear Sergeant," admonished Dance. "This whole affair is merely a perfect example of the display complex. Now, from the very first I. . . . "

O—H

"How about your four suspects, Dance?" The Inspector spoke for the first time in three hours.

"Oh," smiled the great detective, "I just stuck them in to make it hard. The case would have collapsed immediately if I'd told you it was a clothing-store dummy who had been murdered As a matter of fact, I observed from the start that Miss Dollar is a very charming woman I must phone her some night"

O—H

"How about Dead Beat and Casey. Didn't they shoot Whosis?" queried Sergeant Beef suddenly.

"I think we'll find that my honest manservant is suffering from a severe case of bribery," opined Silo. "And as for Dr. Queen and that diagnosis of his, I'll see him after school. In the meantime, let us go up to my place and have a little chat with our friend, Whosis."

"Your place?" echoed the Inspector. "Why it was at the Ping Pong Club that Whosis was shot!"

"Ping Pong nothing!" broke out the Sergeant. "It was at Mr. Dance's place. Don't you remember?—'Whosis fell full length on one of Silo's rare Persian rugs'."

"What about—'An hour later Dance, the Inspector, and Sergeant Beef were seated in the luxurious lounge of the Ping Pong Club'?" returned the Inspector.

Dance smiled. "I guess The Office Hound is the only one who can solve this," he remarked. —Andre.

TEMPLE TOWER
By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

Out to sea was a tramp homeward bound, and the occasional wail of a syren showed that the fog was not confined to the land.

And suddenly Hugh heaved a sigh of relief; a figure trudging wearily along had come in sight. It was Freckles with the parcel of plugs clutched in his hand.

"Hell take it," he said as he came up. "I've had the most frightful time. An old woman in a nightcap bunged a bucket of water over me in one garage; thought I was tight or mad. No one could understand why I wanted six of the damned things. I've walked about eighteen miles."

"Did you see anyone on the way, young fellow?" asked Hugh.

"Not a soul," grunted Freckles. "Except a tramp asleep in a ditch. Lucky devil—I very nearly joined him."

He got into the car, and lay back wearily.

"Home, John, home. I'm just about done in."

"Right ho! my son," said Hugh. "You shall be between the sheets very soon now."

He tightened up the last plug, and closed the bonnet.

"Hop in, Peter," he cried. "Taking everything into consideration I'd sooner get past the coastguard station before they are all awake. What the dickens is that?"

We had gone over a bump in the road and an extraordinary metallic clang had come from behind the car. He got out, and I followed him. And when we got to the back of the car, for a moment or two neither of us spoke. There are times when the power of speech fails one.

Hanging on to the luggage grid, attached by a short piece of string, were our six original sparking plugs. And in the middle of them was another small note.

"Your plugs, I believe," read Hugh, and just then Freckles' face appeared over the hood.

"What did you say?" he spluttered.

"Keep calm," said Hugh weakly. "Remember your aged mother."

"You mean to tell me," remarked Freckles, in a choking voice, "that those plugs were there all the time?" He swallowed once or twice, and over the next minute I will draw a decent veil. Even Hugh listened in admiration to the flood of rhetoric that poured forth, and he is no mean artist in that line himself.

"Laddie," he said gravely, when Freckles paused for breath, "I had no idea that such language was known to anyone under forty."

"I would put him," said Freckle broodingly, as the car drew up at the house, "on a hard concrete surface. And then I would cover him all over with sparking plugs. And then having pegged him down I would take a roller of medium weight, and passage it backwards and forwards over his vile body, pausing occasionally to jump on his stomach with hobnailed boots. Yea—thus and more would I do to that offspring of Beelzebub. And if any sparking plugs were over I would ram them down his mouth with a sledge-hammer."

"Run away to bed," laughed Hugh and Freckles departed muttering horribly. And not until his door had closed did Hugh grow serious again. He wanted less sleep than any man I've ever known, and my immediate need of it had been met by the two hours I had had in the sand dunes. And now as we stood by the dining-room window staring over the Marsh I could see his brain was busy once more.

"What was the idea, Peter, of that little jest?" he said at length. He was holding the note in his hand as he spoke. "Was it in reality what he says here—a small warning and punishment?"

"Why should you think otherwise?" I asked.

"This morning," he said, in an unusually quiet and serious tone of voice for him, "I had a very queer sensation. I got it first of all when you were asleep. I suddenly became convinced that there was someone else there. I saw no one, I heard no sound. Nevertheless the feeling was strong on me that we were not alone that somebody else was watching us. In those sand dunes, of course, you could hide a battalion of infantry. Footmarks disappear as soon as they are made. It was hopeless to try and explore, but for all that I believe there was someone there."

"And if there was," I said, "what do you deduce from it?"

"That the object of the plug episode was a little deeper than appears on the surface that there was more in it than to make us temporarily annoyed and inconvenienced. Mark you—I don't know. It is all surmise on my part, and surmise moreover based on what may be a false start. There may have been no one there at all. But if there was then I think that the main object of the thing was to enable the watcher to take stock of us considerably more closely than any of the opposing side have been able to up to date."

"Assuming for the moment that you are right," I said, "have you any theory as to who the watcher was?"

He shook his head.

"None at all. I've got no theories on the thing at all. But one thing I do know, though you will probably call me every kind of an ass for saying so. I feel it instinctively. There is someone in this show who is infinitely more dangerous than that specimen making the rope ladder, or than the Vandalis. I sense his influence behind them. Whether he is the leader or not, or whether he is quite separate I can't tell you—but he's there. Further, I believe that it was he who first of all tried to out me with the chimney-pot, and having failed there decided on other measures and lay up this morning to study us."

"The man we saw at Spragge's Farm," I suggested.

"Possibly possibly not. Time will show. But the solution lies at present in the Dolphin, and when you turn in I'm going to see what there is to be seen there. Probably nothing, but there's no harm in in having a try."

"I'll come with you," I said, but he refused to allow me to.

"I can do without sleep," he remarked, "and you can't. Go and turn in, old boy, and I'll have a bit of shut-eye this afternoon."

I went up to my room and slowly undressed. In front of me lay the Marsh, bathed in the early morning sunshine. The mist had quite gone only a haze over the sea still remained. For a while I stood by the open window staring at Spragge's Farm but there was no sign of life. Then with a feeling that the whole thing was an undreal dream I got into bed. And the next thing I knew was the sound of Hugh's voice.

"Wake up, Peter. It is half-past twelve. Time for a spot of lunch."

"Did you find out anything?" I said as I scrambled out of bed.

"Not very much," he answered. "I went over the list of visitors, but got no farther. There is, however, one thing I noticed that gives one to think a little. The Vandalis' room is Number 18. Now Number 18 is on the first floor. It stands at the corner of the passage, and is directly above the little room leading off the hall. Do you see the significance?

"Not at the moment," I said. "We weren't talking loud enough to be overheard through the ceiling. Besides Vandali was in the room."

"But the lady was not," he retorted. "Think again, Peter. Number 18 undoubtedly possesses a fireplace, though I haven't been into it to see. The flue of that fireplace must lead into the main one which communicates with the huge chimney in the room below—a chimney which would act as a glorified megaphone. It is a point anyway to bear in mind."

A Thought

FAULTS.

It is not so much the being exempt from faults, as the having overcome them, that is an advantage to us.—Alexander Pope.

What To-day Means To You.

"VIRGO."

If August 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. The danger periods are from 6 a.m. to 7:15 and from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The planetary aspects on this date are not easily interpreted. The influences will tend to relax, rather than to invigorate, you, both from a mental and physical standpoint. A time wasting period, possibly accompanied by a similar waste of money. Very minor worries.

Do not try to shape the child born on this August 25th to pattern, as it wil have extreme individuality and definitl talents. Allow it freedom to develop its abilities. It will have very strong likes and dislikes, and will need to learn the lessons of diplomacy.

If nature has not given you any pronounced talents, she has given you a splendid temperament. You may not be a born artist, artisan, or anything else, but you have the powers within to make you an enviable "made" person in some trade or career. You are not content to sit in the valleys longingly gazing at the heights which surround you. Ambition and curiosity, if nothing else, would make you a climber. Calmness and resourcefulness are yours in time of peril. You are generally able to rise to an occasion and save it by infinite patience and perseverance. You are a dogged fighter. You do not try to suppress your desires; you try to make them glorious realities.

You have strong emotions, but your power of self-control is also strong. One would not expect you to go off at the deep end for nothing. You have simple but sound values of life, and a wholesome philosophy. You may be classed among the anti-sentimentalists and anti-romantic. You are not a hero worshipper. You bow down before ordinary men and ordinary women who behave heroically in ordinary life. You, yourself, will suffer and endure without a halo.

You are domesticated and have a deep reverent love for your home. You understand children and are loved by them. You are a sympathetic and loyal friend. You have good recuperative powers, but should avoid drugs as much as possible as you are physically very sensitive to their reactions.

FIRMNESS ON MINING MART

Gains in Majority, Although Price Changes Confined Within Narorw Limits.

TRADING LIGHT.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 25.—(C.P.)—The mining list displayed firmness during the early period to-day, with gains considerably in the majority at mid-day. Trading continued light and price chang. were confined within narrow limits.

International Nickel at $23 and the rights at 14 were off somewhat from Saturday's close probably due to profit-taking Norand. was slightly higher at $21.40 however, and Hudson Bay gained 20 to $7.50. The Base Met. Stocks were quiet, Sherritt Gordon, up a couple to $1.30, and Sudbury Basin, 70 to $1.20, showing about the only movements.

Golds showed an upward trend. Teck Hughes and Lake Shore advanced a quarter each to $6.50 and $23.50, respectively. Hollinger was up 10 to $5.85. Premier Gold 7 to $1.07 and Dome 5 to $7.75. Big Missouri off a point and Siscoe, fractionally lower, exhibited the only softness.

Though Nordon receded another 3 to 98, Ajax Oil came ahead to register a gain of 5 at 2 at noon. Calmont was up 3 to 65. Other oils were holding.

ANGLERS' CONVENTION.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 25 (C.P.). —Principal officers of the Canadian and United States Government Fisheries Departments will be present when anglers of both countries meet in convention here September 11, 12 and 13.

The occasion will constitute the first joint meeting of the Canadian Fisheries Association and the United States Fisheries Association, and upwards of 700 delegates are expected from places all the way between New York and San Francisco and Halifax and Vancouver.

LEAD ISSUES SUFFER DROP

Nickel Rights Ease as Stocks Drop Back Fractionally to Sell Under 23.

CITY DAIRY ACTIVE.

TORONTO, Ont., August 25 (C.P.) —The week opened in an inauspicious manenr on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, while the more prominent issues showed small losses in comparison with the finals of last week. The market at midday was almost entirely unchanged from the opening, there being no discernible drift let alone definite trend.

Nickel rights fell off sharply as the stock eased back fractionally to sell under 23. The rights sold at 18 cents the first few minutes. They dropped to as low as 14 cents during the course of the morning.

City Dairy was about as active as most and at 66½ for the most part. Oils were quiet, B.A. off slightly, and International Petroleum and Imperial Oil firmer. Massey-Harris at 23¾ was down ⅛ point.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Commenting on International Nickel the New York News Bureau has the following to say this morning: "International Nickel continues to have stood up aaginst the trend in other metal stocks. Much is expected from the Frood Mine, since in the trade it is generally agreed that this mine contains one of the largest and richest metal deposits so far developed. Developments are at the stage where regular income may be forthcoming from new one. The stock is selling in one low twenties and it is recalled that earlier in the year one of the most conservative houses in the Street went on record as stating that International Nickel was destined to become a market leader in the next year or so."

Along with the annual general meeting of shareholders of the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, called at Montreal for October 1, will be held a special general meeting at which the shareholders are asked to approve of a change in the date for the holding of the annual gathering. According to the present provision, the annual meeting is to be held the first Wednesday in October, and directors are asking that stockholders sanction a change in this to the last Wednesday in October. The company ended its fiscal period on August 21 last, and the financial statement for the year will be presented at the forthcoming meeting. In the year ended August 21, 1929, Lake of the Woods Milling Company experienced one of the best years in history, but conditions in the milling industry changed somewhat in the past year, and it is not anticipated the company did as well as in the preceding year. From now on the financial statements of the milling companies are due to make an appearance, and they are being awaited with interest owing to gossip on the Street of substantially lower earnings for many.

The market on Toronto Stock Exchange appears content to drift along evenly as trading got under way against this morning.The volume was far from heavy, indications that for the nonce the professional element as well, is quiescent.

A mixed advance in New York found practically no reflection locally, at the end of the first couple of hours the list contained a number of stocks fractionally under the closing levels of last week but as they had taken those losses at the opening and apparently were not subjected to further pressure the reaction was unnoticed orders, either to buy or sell, are slow to make their way into the brokers' offices and when they are placed are nearly always at a price just off the market.

The attitude of waiting until the stock meets the price being more noticeable these days. Many Toronto brokers are advising their clients to take advantage of the present inactivity in the market and the depreciation in security values as the occasion for putting their investment holdings in better shape by switching securities wherever necessary. Investors are told to study the market for possibilitie of replacing poor with good hares to look for better income and safety of principal with an eye to marketability and improved chances of appreciation. Switching from high priced to many low priced stocks is pointed as usually increasing the possibility of appreciation, as the percentage advance of the latter averages greater than the former shares.

OIL SELLING ACCOUNTS FOR "BULL" BREAK

Weakness Upsets Entire List Following Firm Opening in Prominent Shares.

LIGHT DROPS IN OILS.

Demand For Steel and Steel Products Reported Active at Youngston.

NEW YORK, N.Y., August 25 (C.P.). — The modest bull movement in stock prices was resumed at the start of the New York stock market to-day, only to slip up in a selling movement in the Petroleum shares.

After an advance of 1 to 4 points in a score of prominent shares during the first hour of trading, weakness of the oils unsettled the entire list, and by early afternoon the early advance had been cancelled. A sharp break in Vanadium, a recent pool was a contributory factor in the reaction. Pivotal stocks were well supported, however, within a point or so from last week's final levels.

Losses in the oils were mostly limited to about a point, but Skelly, Shell Union, Prairie Pipeline, and Rio Grande reached new lows, and Sinclair sold around the year's minimum. Vanadium tumbled more than 5 points, and stocks losing a point or two included American Can., Consolidated Gas, Paramount, Goodyear, and Johns Manville. During the early rise, Air, Reduction, Byers, Eastman, Autostrop, New York Central, Union Pacific, and Case all sold up 3 to 4. Trading was still light and largely represented transactions between floor traders.

Liquidation in Oils.

Liquidation of the petroleum issues reflected growing discouragement in speculative circles over the industry's earnings prospects, and the progress made at reduction of gasoline stocks. Weakness of Vanadium followed publication of an analysis indicating reduced earnings for the last half of the year. A large portion of the first half net of $3.30 a share came from security transactions, although the statement did not segregate the amount.

News coming to hand over the week-end was meagre, but had its bright spots. The demand for steel and steel products was reported a little more active at Youngstown and Chicago although trade reports from Chicago also indicated some improvement in wholesale and retail buying in the Middle West.

In Wall Street banking circles, however, there is a tendency to look for only gradual recovery in business, a tendency which restrains investors from buying stocks on advances.

SECTIONMAN HURT.

Wm. E. Hudson Struck By Piece of Steel.

William E. Hudson, of 416½ George Street, sectionman in the employment of the C.P.R. Company for some years, was the victim of a slight accident while at his employment on Saturday shortly after noon.

It appears that Hudson was struck in the right leg by a piece of steel, either from the tool he was using or from the metal on which he was working.

He as conveyed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he was attended by Dr. A. G. Howson. The metal has not yet been recovered.

POLICE WAGE CUT.

Result of Traffic Squad Amalgamation.

Intimation has been received here that wage reductions ranging from 20 to 33 1-3 per cent have gone into effect with the traffic squad of the Ontario provincial police.

It is stated that the wage cuts are a direct result of the amalgamation of the traffic police with the provincial police under General Victor Williams. Formerly the traffic officers were under the Department of Public Highwayys but their work is now under the jurisdiction of the Attorney-General's Department.

Single Woman in Wednesday's Swim

TORONTO, Aug. 25. (C.P.) One woman will compete in Wednesday's marathon swim at the Canadian National Exhibition against about 272 male entrants. She is Anne Priller Benoit, Miami, Fla., formerly of Holyoke, Mass., who finished fifth in the women's swim last Friday and has been a prize winner in the women's event in former years.

TWO BILLIONS PAID BY LIFE COMPANIES

Toronto received the greatest benefit of all Canadian cities from life insurance during 1929, according to The National Underwriter, the policy holders and beneficiaries receiving a total of $11,250,000. Payments in other cities were: Winnipeg, $3,047,000; Vancouver, $1,716,000; Hamilton, $382,000; London, $527,000; Calgary, $580,000; Regina, $404,000; Edmonton, $448,00; Halifax, $910,000, and St. John, N.B., $175,00.

Payments in the whole of Canada amounted to $87,000,000, while the grand total of life insurance payments in Canada and the United States was $2,197,482,000—a gain of 7 per cent over the 1928 figure. This includes death benefits, disability claims, matured endowments, dividends and cash payments.

In Excess of Wages

The life insurance payments for the year in the United States exceed the annual wages of the food industry, the textile, lumber, paper, printing, petroleum, coal, machinery, transportation o rthe railroad industries in that country.

The 1929 payments amounted to over half of the Federal Government's receipts from all sources and almost equalled the United States' Government's income and profit tax returns.

Subtracting all the larger insurance payments of $30,000 or more, in 1929, which amounted to $62,087,000, the grand total is hardly affected, the remainder being $2,135,000.

Small Policies Make Big Total

That the smaller payments are representing more and more of the annual grand total is evidenced by the fact that in 1928 the $30,000 or more, class accounted for over $85,000,000, while in 1929 these large payments amount to only $62,087,000, or 25 per cent less.

A life insurance policy is a good investment whichever way you look at it,—as a protection against risk, as an incentive to thrift or as a guide to sound reason on the distribution of wealth. The man who has even a thousand dollar policy is a capitalist to that extent and has a stake in the community which he is not disposed to throw away. It is the most stable business in existence. While other industries find solace in profits which might have been less or losses which might have been greater, life insurance maintains its even pace in the business world.

Level Crossing Claims Victim Near Hagersville

Another victim has been added to the long list of level crossing accidents in Canada, when the car in which they were riding was struck and demolished by a M.C.R. train at level crossing, near Hagersville. Michael W. Glendon of Hamilton, was fatally injured, and his wife was critically injured. The pair were on their way to a Lake Erie summer resort. Above is shown wreckage of car following crash.

ROUND LAKE.

A thoroughly enjoyable evening was spent on Friday last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, when about one hundred and fifty of their relatives and friends assembled there to honor their daughter, Mary, by a miscellaneous shower ,in view of her forthcoming marriage to Frank McKay of Havelock. Many and costly gifts were showered on the young people, and a most enjoyable evening spent in dancing and cards. The bride-elect looked charming in an evening gown of crepe georgette and graciously thanked the donors for their beautiful gifts. At midnight a bounteous lunch was served, and dancing was resumed till the wee sma' hours.

CO-OPERATION IS COMMUNTY NEED

J. O. Herity Addresses Rotary on Subject, "The Ideal City."

URGES OPTIMISM.

"We must rid ourselves of this chronic, corrosive pessimism if we are to have thriving and progressive cities," declared J. O. Herity, prominent Canadian Chamber of Commerce organizer, speaking before the Rotary Club at noon to-day. "Cities do not happen, they are built" he asserted. "And for this building, builders are required. It is the ability of citizens to co-operate, to make economic use of their community's position which makes for the growth of cities."

Mr. Herity, who has been for many years the Managing Secretary of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, is the originator of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce and of the Central Ontario Power Association and is closely affiliated with Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce as well as the newly-formed Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

"The Ideal City" was the subject of Mr. Herity's address to-day. He cited as the best definition of a city, that of Aritotle—"A city is a place where men, women, and children may lead happy and noble lives."

Peterborough's Growth

He recalled the fact that when Belleville was created a city in 1878, she had a population of 11,000, while at that time Peterborough was a town of 5,000. But in 1911, he pointed out, Peterborough had grown to 18,000, while Belleville—instead of doubling her population as she should have done by natural increase alone—had "progressed backwards" to a population of 9,000. Mr. Herity also compared Kingston and Hamilton, citing Kingston as the first while settlement in Ontario and situated amid every natural advantage to make it a centre of population, as against Hamilton with half the age and advantage and more than twice the population. The "Why?" which arose out of these examples, re declared to be no longer a mystery but a problem which had been solved by civic science.

"Where there has been growth, there has been leadership and organizing ability," Mr. Herity declared. He cited the growth of several large cities as directly due to the genuis of one man or a group of men.

Co-operation Essential

Business was "the organized means of satifying human want" he felt, but the wants of the people changed with the times. What were Peterborough's wants? he asked — greater population? more factories? greater progress? Peterborough was doing well, but for greater success there must be a spread of the spirit of co-operation, "the Peterborough spirit."

The vote of thanks to the speaker was moved by James Dutton, President of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, who saw Mr. Herity as a man of vision. "He is," stated Mr. Dutton, one of those quiet men who do their work in an unostentatious manner and whose silent determination always succeeds."

LOCAL FARMERS WELCOME RAINS

Pastures and Roots Suffered From Drought in Past Three Weeks.

MILK SUPPLY DOWN.

The week-end downpour of rain came in the "nick of time" several farmers in townships adjacent to the city reported this morning. During the past three weeks pastures, root crops and the last of the grain crops have suffered considerably from lack of moisture.

According to the comment of the farmers, the pastures and potato crops will now get a chance to come through in fine shape. Some of the stands of grains which were becoming burned are looking up.

"The rain was undoubtedly needed and the farmers are all in good humour to-day," J. B. Nelson, agricultural representative commented. "All the late crops will be benefited."

Milk Supply Down

The milk supply from the district has been cut down about 35 to 40 per cent in the past three weeks on account of the poor condition of pastures, G. A. Gillespie of Peterborough's Silverwood Dairy reported. He expects the supply to increase greatly in the next three weeks as a result of the rain. The operations of cheese factories which have been slowed down by the lack of milk will probably return to normal.

The present supply of milk is about the same as that available during this period last year, Mr. Gillespie said. Last year a severe drought commenced in August and continued until far into September so it is expected that the production of milk this year will be considerably greater over the same period.

MILLBROOK A.Y.P.A. HOLDS CORN ROAST

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' Church held a successful corn roast, the initial one of the season so far as this locality is concerned, on Friday evening at the home of Mrs John Allen, Sr., the attendance being fully representative of the organization, and a most enjoyable time being spent.

The large grounds were peculiarly suited to the out-of-doors event, and games of various kinds were entered into with zest and enthusiasm until darkness began to make itself apparent, when the bonfire was lighted and the big pot of corn set to boiling, the committee in charge looking also to the preparation of the other items on the menu—bread and butter, pie and tea.

When the "roast" was ready those present formed a big circle round the fire, the corn was passed round in generous quantity, with butter and salt to add to its tastiness, and with the rest of the supper, was thoroughly enjoyed.

Community singing, jokes, stunts, etc., finished out the evening's program, and at a reasonable hour the young people returned to their homes, realizing that this annual event had once more been carried through with a success at least equal to, if not surpassing, that of previous years.

Napanee Rotary Club Aids Crippled Children

KINGSTON, Aug. 25.—The Napanee Rotary Club has expended $3,250 in looking after the crippled children's work during the past year. Twenty-three children, young men and women have received attention. Eighteen cases have been most successful one partly successful, two still doubtful and two with no results. Without the attention they have received the children would have been retarded in development and handicapped for life. The public of Napanee and the surrounding townships furnished the funds for carrying on the work. Another appeal is to be made for further funds as there is at present very little money in the treasury.

Kingston District Priests in Retreat

KINGSTON, Aug. 25.—Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston will lead the priests of the diocese of Kingston, to St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, to engage in a retreat opening on Monday, August 25 and continuing until Friday, August 29. All can be accommodated in the institution and will participate in services and instructions from some of the leading personages of one of the Canadian orders. Priests will be stationed at Kingston, Brockville, Smith's Falls, Tweed, Belleville and Trenton, to attend to the sick calls and other necessary duties while the retreat is being carried on.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 25. — "Short' covering and a little outright buying, influenced by strength at Chicago, kept wheat prices on the upgrade on Saturday, gains at the close ranging from ⅜c to 1c a bushel higher than Friday's finish.

The May future was practically above the dollar mark again, closing at $1.00⅜, down a quarter of a cent from the high for the day. October closed out at 92½c and December at 94¼c.

Export trade was again very light, with seaboard houses confirming only a few small lots traded overnight. The bulk of trading on Saturday appeared to be local in character.

Cash wheat and coarse grains trade continued meagre, though quotations showed improvement in line with the wheat futures.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, August 25.—The local butter market held steady on Saturday for Ontario receipts at 29½c to 30c for No. 1 and 28c to 28½c for No. 2, but dealers interested in Western supplies were asking the lower price of 30c. During the week 31c was the quotation on Western carlots and with the drop of one cent at the end of the week the market looked easier.

Cream prices were up 1c yesterday, making the range to shippers 30c for special, 29c for No. 1 and 26c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

There was a much better demand for eggs at the week-end and prices strengthened considerably for graded supplies in free cases. Graded extras were quoted at 32½c to 33c; firsts, 30½c to 31c, and seconds 24c to 24½c. Prices to country shippers were unchanged at 29c for extras, 27c for firsts and 22c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, but dealers were of the opinion that prices would be higher at the first of the week.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Aug. 25. — Butter turned easier, cheese continued downward, eggs were steady to firm and potatoes became higher on the Montreal dairy and produce markets last week.

The butter market, after steadily gaining for over a month, advancing from 26½c in mid-July to a high of 30c early last week, reacted about the middle of the week and lost ¾c per pound to close on Saturday at 29¼c per pound for Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized creamery in carlots. Offerings of new Zealand butter for both October delivery and for shipments during the fall and winter halted the advance. To retailers solids were advanced at the week's opening one cent to 31c and prints to 32c per pound.

The cheese market drifted lower, new buying by British Importers being described as continuing disappointing. At the close Ontario cheese was quoted at 15⅞c to 15½c per pound, with Quebecs at 14½c to 14⅝c. Exports to Europe during the week were 25,227, bringing the season's shipments to date to 330,010, compared with 376,329 for the same period last year.

The egg market had a firm undertone.

The potato market advanced 20c to 25c per bag on account of light receipts. New locally-grown stock ended the week at 90c to $1 per 80-lb. bags. Maritime potatoes were offering at 95c per 90 lbs. in bulk, the first arrivals being due to-day.

The receipts for the week were: Eggs, 11 263 case; butter, 16,264 boxes; cheese, 34 571 boxes.

GOT IN A TAXI ON HIS KNEES

Was Crippled With Rheumatism—But Now Fit

THANKS TO KRUSCHEN

Once he was the object of his neighbours' sympathy—a rheumatic cripple. To-day he is the object of their astonishment—a stenuously active man. It was Kruschen that accomplished the startling change. Here are the vital facts of his story:—

"Roughly about 16 years ago I was crippled with rheumatism, and for about four years it was impossible for me to get about. When I wanted to get in a taxi, I had to get in on my knees. I tried everything—a potato in my pocket, sulphur in my socks, rheumatic ring, soaked my feet in proof whisky; also rubbed my joints with it; tried all sorts of liniments and pills—it did no good. Then I started on Kruschen Salts, and never missed a morning, taking my dose 20 minutes before breakfast. My age now is 56, and if you were to see me you would take me for not over 40. I can handle anything that comes into our shop; lift over my head settees, sideboards, wardrobes, etc.; in fact, people who know me say it is marvellous. To-day I am in perfect health. This is the honest truth."—T. R.

Here is a plain statement of the facts:—Two of the six salts of which Kruschen is composed dissolve the needle-pointed crystals of uric acid which have settled in your joints, causing them to swell, ache and inflame. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to flush out these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. Other ingredients still prevent food fermentation or decomposition taking place in the intestinal tract and thereby check the further formation not only of uric acid, but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

The threefold action of Kruschen is the secret of its effectiveness in those stubborn cases of rheumatism which will yield to no other treatment. Put Kruschen to the test yourself. The benefit will have begun before you have finished the first bottle.

Mr. and Mrs. Butters have both held high office in the order, Mrs. Butters being a Past Matron and her rusband Patron of Havelock chapter. The address was read by Mrs. Robert Anderson, and the gift was presented by Mrs. Holcombe on behalf of the order. A beautiful stag handled carving set was graciously accepted by Mrs. Butters, who in the absence of her husband, thanked the ladies for their beautiful gift to both. Afterwards a dainty buffet lunch was served in the living room which was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and summer bloom.

Mrs. Rae Williams presided at the tea urn. Much regret is felt over the departure of this popular couple who are followed by the good wishes of a host of friends here.

MRS. O. WILLIAMSON ENTERTAINS W. M. S.

More Than Sixty Members of Millbrook Society Gather at Cavan Home.

MILLBROOK, Aug. 25. (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs Offa Williamson was hostess for the August meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of Saint Andrew's United Church, more than sixty members and visitors motoring to her home, Seventh Line, Cavan, on Wednesday afternoon, to attend the gathering which was held on the lawn, with an educative program, featuring inspiration and interest throughout.

Mr. and Mrs. Williamson extended a warm welcome to their many guests, a brief social time being enjoyed, and at the opening hour of three o'clock the president, Mrs. (Rev.) W. W. Jones, took the chair and conducted the business and devotional session.

As always, Mrs. Jones emphasized the necessity and value of prayer if success is to be looked for in Auxiliary work, opening the meeting with an appropriate prayer verse, and a hymn that was in itself a call to worship, after which Rev. Mr. Jones led the gathering in an earnest appeal to the throne of grace.

Announcement that the annual bale must be ready for September first was made by the president, all supplies to be left at the parsonage by the end of August, the committee to pack and value the contents before shipping to the Presbyterial Supply Secretary, Mrs. F. Snelgrove Brighton, being: Mrs. H. W. Johnston, Mrs. A. J. Henderson and Mrs. Jones.

The removal of Mrs. V. C. Lambert left a vacancy in the leadership of the leadership of the Mission Band, and as Associate Superintendents Mrs. M. McDowell, Miss Phyllis Kidd, and Mrs. Ridge were appointed.

The September meeting is expected to be rich in interest and information, as a questionnaire on the annual W.M.S. report is to make up the program. The group of which Mrs. H. E. Smith is convenor will have charge.

Good Program Enjoyed

Mrs. Williamson, convenor of Group C, took the chair for the formal program, reading the devotional leaflet, "Be of Good Cheer" after which a number of the group members led in sentence prayers. Mrs. H. W. Johnston delighted the listeners with her solo, "Jesus Remembers You" and Marie Douglas recited, "Contrary Mary" with "A Woman's Sphere" as a recall.

"An Hour with Our Hymns" was the major feature of the program, information and inspiration resulting from the study some of the fine old hymns of the church, their authors and the circumstances under which they came to be written.

Following a brief talk by the leader on the antiquity of the song method of expressing praise and gratitude to God, such as the song of Moses and Miriam after the passage of the Red Sea by Israel, which is said to be the finest piece of coral work in literature, "Before Jehovah's Awful Throne" was sung, and Mrs. Weston Fallis gave some interesting items regarding the author, Isaac Watts, and the alterations made in the original copy of John Wesley.

Mrs. J. L. Byam was the next speaker, telling of Phillip Doddridge, author of David Livingstone's favorite hymn, "O God of Ethel" the famous African missionary having, indeed, been buried to its words and music in Westminster Abbey on April 18, 1874.

"One Sweetly Solemn Thought" was the next hymn sung, Mrs. William West supplying the information that its writer, Phoebe Cary, was in her seventeenth year when she penned its lines. Mrs. E. C. Richards told of the late Prince Consort repeating the words of "Rock of Ages" in his dying hour, after the singing of this well-known hymn, and Mrs. Harry Dawson followed with the information that "Abide with Me" known and loved the world over, was never intended to be sung at the one time—"the first three verses are for the evening of day; the last four for the evening of life."

Sara Flower Adams' wonderful hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee" was told of in some detail by Mrs. T. H. Douglas, information being supplied between the singing of the five verses. Finally "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" was sung and Mrs. Weatherup gave a few details of the life of Joseph Scriven, who is buried beside his fiance, Eliza Roche, in a little private cemetery on the Pengelly farm, Rice Lake, and also told of how it came to be written.

An appropriate recitation, "The Prayer That Was Answered" by Miss Bessie Dawson, concluded the program, the leader announcing two new members, Mrs. H. C. Argue and Mrs. W. Theobold, as joining her group that day.

Rev. Mr. Jones dismissed the meeting with the benediction, and tea was served by the hostess, assisted by the members of Group C, the tables being laid on the lawn and a delightful social hour being enjoyed.

Miss Estelle Hetherington moved the formal vote of thanks to Mrs. Williamson and her helpers for the hospitality extended and the excellent program provided, prolonged applause showing the general approval.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

Wednesday, Sept. 10th will be a big day in town, especially with the kiddies, for arrangements have been made for the appearance in Campbellford on that day of the Cole and Rogers combined trained animal show. Two performances will be staged, one in the afternoon and one in the evening, the location chosen being Chas. McKelvie's pasture lot, south of the C. N. R. depot A street parade at 1 p.m. will also be featured. So now you can start to save your pennies children.

What is called the band with the irresistable rhythm, F. Morgan's Melodious Skylarks, is scheduled to be featured three times a week, Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, at Campbellford. This aggregation of players give good dance music and will no doubt draw large crowds of the young folks to trip the light fantastic.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Greig and family are spending the latter portion of their vacation with Mr. Greig's parents at Arthur, Ont.

Mr. Chas. Long has his daughter, Mrs. B. M. Ibey and two sons, Eldon and Fred of Toronto, visiting him.

We are sorry to hear that Fred Ingram will not appear on the Campbellford line-up when they journey to Oshawa on Wednesday to play the last game in the lacrosse play-offs. Fred's arm and shoulder are not in fit condition to permit him to wield the hickory.

Mrs. D. Scott is confined to her bed this week with a bad cold .

Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Greenly of Trent River have taken up residence in town.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lee were visitors at the beginning of the week to the summer cottage at Oak Lake of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Whitehead.

Those who attended the funeral of Miss Clyte Sarginson from out of town are: Mr. and Mrs. F. Horn, Mr. and Mrs. T. Sarginson and daughter Erma, Mrs. William Grills, and Mrs. McNamara, all of Toronto; Miss Kathleen Sarginson of Peterborough, and Dr, and Mrs. Sam Gibson, son Jack, and daughter Loretta of Lakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Craighead were visitors to Kingston on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Franklin of Toronto were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lapp, Front Street, over the week-end. The visitors are July bride and groom, Mr. Williams being a brother of Mrs. Lapp.

Miss Kathleen Sarginson of Peterborough spent the week-end with her parents Mr. and Mrs. W. Sarginson, Front Street.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mrs. A. McKee, Canrobert street were her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKee of Havelock, Mr. Joseph McKee of Peterborough and Mr. and Mrs. Walter McKee and son Melville of Peterborough. Mr. Joseph McKee is 84 years of age, and enjoyed the motor trip from the city to Campbellford and back.

Mrs. H. Lapp was a visitor to Peterborough on Thursday.

According to a report from Glasgow a Scottish nobleman is preparing to sell one of his principal estates, the value of which is said to be more than $500,000

NOT A FISH YARN BUT A SNAKE STORY

Local Man Kills Five-Foot Rattler—Didn't Know It Was Loaded.

Alex Kay has just returned from an inspection trip of the Trent Canal on which he was accompanied by John Fligg of this city, and the latter gentleman had an experience he would not care to duplicate if he knew all the facts.

Up at Swift Rapids on the Severn River, Mr. Kay and Mr. Fligg were stopping at a cottage when Mr. Fligg suddenly spied a snake of goodly dimensions, which he believed was of ordinary species and nothing more. The first thing that he could pick up was a piece of plank with which he gave battle to the reptile and finally killed it with a well-directed blow on the head. On examination it was found to be a rattler about five feet long and four or five inches in diameter. It had nine rattlers, which proves it to be eleven years of age. Mr. Fligg has the rattlers in his possession, and makes the statement that had he known the valety of snake he was mixing up with he would have given it a wide berth.

At the Hall of Wisdom, where the matter has been discussed from all angles, Mr. Fligg's name, on motion of Andrew Laidlaw and James Metheral, has been changed to Rattlesnake Jack.

OBITUARY

MRS. MATTHEW McMURRAY.

WARSAW, Aug. 25. — (Examiner Correspondence). — Margaret McCauley McMurray, wife of Matthew McMurray, died very suddenly about 9 o'clock on Friday morning. She appeared to be in her usual health and had eaten her usual breakfast. She and her daughter, Annie, were in the house alone. When she fell over unconscious. Miss McMurray called members of the family. Dr. D. Munro, of Warsaw, was called, but life was extinct ere he got there.

Last winter Mrs. McMurray was seriously ill, but she recovered, and while not so strong as formerly, she was fairly well, and her death was most unexpected.

Mrs. McMurray was about forty-six years of age. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband, Matthew McMurray, six sons—Daniel, who has been away from home in different places for some time; Clarence, married, living on a farm in Douro, nearer Peterborough; Leonard, also living on a farm in Douro; William, Vincent and David, at home; and two daughters — Kathleen, in the States, and Annie, at home. She had five sisters and three brothers.

The funeral took place on Sunday afternoon.

THIN SICKLY CHILD BACKWARD IN SCHOOL

It is your solemn duty, mother, to give your boys and girls the flesh - adding, energy - creating, strength-building benefit of McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets—you can't start too soon.

Children love these sugar coated tablets and you yourself won't be able to praise them enough once your kiddies grow well and strong again—once they start to add good solid flesh—nervousness disappears—their happy laughter, sunny dispositions and healthy little bodies will warm your heart. 60 tablets, 50 cents at McDermid & Jury, McDermid's, Bond's, Lynch, and Payne's, or any drugstore.

Rochester Leading International Race by Half Game

ORIOLES EVEN WITH TORONTO

Baltimore Club Defeats Leafs in Only Game Played on Saturday.

WINGS SPLIT DOUBLE.

The International League enters the last month of the 1930 campaign today with the Rochester Redwings leading Baltimore's Orioles by only half a game.

Baltimore picked up a half game over the week-end, beating Toronto on Saturday in its only start, while Rochester, idle Saturday, split a double bill with reading yesterday.

Ten thousand fans saw the Redwings, behind great pitching by Paul Derringer, beat the Keys in the opener 4-1, only to fall victim to Johnny Welch in the nightcap 1-0. Nelson Greene, after a shaky start, pitched just as effective in the opener as did Derringer, but the Keys could not overcome a two-run lead the Redwings piled up in the first inning. Greene allowed eight hits, while Derringer was holding the Keys to six and striking out eight, which gave the Redwings only three swings in the second game, while Reading collected seven off Ira Smith and won the game by tallying one run in the second inning.

The only other activity on the League battlefront yesterday was at Montreal, where the Newark Bears took the first game of a double-header with the Royals 11-5, and dropped the second 3-0. The Bears hammered four Royal hurlers for 17 hits in the opener, Harry Layne getting two doubles and a pair of singles, and Andy Cohen a double and three singles. The nightcap was a pitching duel between Roy Buckalew and Al Mamaux, with the Royal thrower having a decided edge. He permitted only one hit, a single by Loepp. Mamaux was touched for eight safeties.

Rain forced postponement of the Jersey City-Buffalo double header and Toronto and Baltimore were not scheduled.

Final Game in O.A.L.A. Play-offs on Wed. 27

Campbellford Will Go to Oshawa With a Two Goal Lead.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 25.— (By Examiner Staff Correspondent.) — The final clash between Campbellford and Oshawa in the Intermediate group of the O.A.L.A. is now scheduled to take place on Wednesday, August 27th at Oshawa at 4.30 standard time and 5.30 daylight saving time.

This game is expected to be fast and furious. Campbellford already has a two goal lead by their win on Wednesday, when they trimmed Oshawa 3-1, and the Miller's will do their utmost to keep the goal lead they already have.

On the other hand Oshawa, who have led the league all season, will do their best to remedy the misfortune of the past two games, and will no doubt put on the field a strong team, having also the advantage of their own ground.

It is expected that many of the local fans from Campbellford will follow their team to Oshawa on the 27th.

SENATORS GAIN ON PHILADELPHIA

Four Run Rally in Sixth Inning Gives Washington 7-3 Decision.

YANKEES DROP BACK.

NEW YORK, August 25 (C.P.).—Opening their new series against the eastern clubs of the American League, Washington's Senators made another belatedly successful attempt to tighten up the race in the junior circuit by trouncing the Philadelphia Athletics 7-3, and reducing the leaders' margin to 7½ games. A four-run rally in the sixth inning in which Max West's triple with two on base played the leading part, decided the game.

The New York Yankees fell further back in third place as they divided a hard-fought double-header with Cleveland. The Yanks won the first game 5-3 in eleven innings as Dusty Cooke clouted a home run with two on bases after Cleveland had broken a 2-2 tie. Wes Ferrell hurled his 22nd victory for the Indians and his eleventh in succession in the second game, allowing the Yanks only six hits for a 4-2 triumph.

The St. Louis Browns checked Earl Whitehill's series of pitching successes at eleven when they pounded him for 13 hits in eight innings and defeated Detroit 7-5. The Chicago White Sox remained virtually tied with the Browns in the standing as they split a pair of pitchers' battles with the Boston Red Sox. Boston won the first game 2-0, on Milton Gaston's three-hit hurling, but Chicago gained a 5-4 victory in the eleven inning second clash as Pat Caraway outpointed Eddie Durham.

TORONTO KIWANIS DEFEAT HAMILTON

Queen City Team Will Meet Local Juniors in O.B.A.A. Semi-finals.

TORONTO, Aug. 25.—Kiwanis juniors of Toronto advanced to the semi-final round in the O.B.A.A. series by eliminating Hamilton Victorias at Oakville, Saturday afternoon by 9 to 2.

Kiwanis collected twelve safeties from the combined offerings of Gibb and Tierney, including home run clouts by Keating and King, the former's clearing the left field fence. Keating enjoyed a perfect day at bat with a home run, double, single and base on balls.

Have you ever heard of a "Hoopler," folks?

Well—here's tellin' ya—

A "Hoopler" is a question concocted by Major Amos Hoople, of "Boarding House" fame, that will make you wonder, ponder, talk and laugh.

The Major thinks them up himself. Har-r-u-mph! Egad and By Jove!

If you doubt that—look at the "Boarding House," on this page and read his selfmade queries right now. And answer them—if you can. Then check your answers with Hoople's own answers, which will appear tomorrow.

He has prepared a series of questions that may baffle even some of the world's greatest scientists, mathematicians or miniature golf players. Additional "Hooplers" will appear in "Our Boarding House" Tuesday and Wednesday, with the answers to each set the following day.

The Major admits this is a good stunt—and he adds, "The questions in Edison's annual questionnaire were good, TOO."

Boys' race, 12 and over—Keith Bound.

Tug of War, between Havelock and Trent River, resulted in a victory for the latter.

The premier event was the catching of the pig; this brought forth great applause. Francis Ruttan was the lucky catcher in this case and took home the bacon.

The success of the afternoon's event is due C. Seguire, popular manager of Coral Gables Casino, who had to work against odds; there being counter attractions in Campbellford, where the big semi-final game with Oshawa was held.

PERCY WILLIAMS OUT FOR SEASON

Canadian Sprint Star to Take Well Earnest Rest Following Injury on Saturday.

SPRAINS HIS ANKLE.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 25—(CP)—Percy Williams is out of competition for the season. This was assured last night when the Canadian sprint star declared he would take a well-earned rest following his injury Saturday, at the field and track events that brought to a close the British Empire games.

Physicians declare that pulled leg muscle, which Percy suffered in winning the 100-yard dash, is serious only in the athletic sense.

"I will not be able to run at Chicago" Percy said, "and I think now, that I will probably rest up until next season".

Williams was selected by a committee of officials connected with the British Empire games, to compete with the British team at Chicago next Wednesday in a dual International track and field meet. But it was immediately announced that Leigh Miller, named as reserve man on the 100 yard team, would substitute for the injured sprinter.

Deloro Failed To Make An Appearance

The exhibition soccer game scheduled for Saturday evening never materialised. Many of the Peterboro boys turned up to participate in the tussle. Some of them anxious to see what it was like in the downpour of rain. After waiting for half an hour, Bobby Carmichael intimated that there would be no match. He did not receive any communication as to whether they were in the city or not.

Brampton Excelsiors In Mann Cup Finals

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 25 (C.P.) —The Brampton Excelsiors, Ontario winners, will be the Eastern representatives in the playdown leading to the Mann Cup and lacrosse honors for the Dominion. The Brampton team built up around the outstanding veteran, grey-haired George Sproule, defeated the Quebec hopes, Montreal Amateur Athletic Association on Saturday by four goals to one in a sudden death match. Three of the goals were from Sproule's stick.

TAYLOR STARS IN CUB WIN

Youthful Fielder Steals Home to Give Chicago 3-2 Victory Over Giants.

CARDS WIN DOUBLE.

By his brilliant work as substitute for "Old Hoss" Riggs Stephenson young Danny Taylor has about won himself a regular place in the Chicago Cubs' outfield. Taylor, who finished the Cubs' triumph over Brooklyn a week ago by driving in the winning run in the final game, did the same thing to the New York Giants yesterday in a more sensational fashion and put Chicago five full games ahead in the National league pennant struggle with a 3 to 2 triumph over the Giants.

Taylor's feat was a steal of home in the ninth inning when the score was tied, the bases full, two men out and two strikes on the batter. It was a brilliant climax for a hard-fought series which saw the National league attendance record for four games shattered only about a week after the Cubs and Brooklyn had set it, 178,000 fans turned out to watch the struggle. It also was a climax in which the masterminding of Manager Joe McCarthy probably was as important as the leg work of Taylor.

The Giants had started off ahead when Ott's double and Hogan's single produced a run in the second inning. The Cubs forged ahead in the fourth as Wilson singled, Taylor advanced him with a double and Hartnett brought both home with a sharp single. Danny checked one Giant threat to tie the score when he threw Citz out at the plate in the eighth, but New York was more successful in the next frame when Terry and Ott singled in succession and the former scored as O'Farrell hit into a double play.

Taylor set the stage for his triumphant dash home with a single, a steal of second and an advance to third on a bad throw. Two men were purposely passed to get at Pitcher Guy Bush, who had fanned twice. With two strikes on Bush, Joe Heving wasted a pitch and Taylor sprinted home.

This Cub triumph with a bit of rain in Brooklyn which gave the badly-worn Robins a day of rest, added a few more complications to the National League struggle for all the leaders except the Cubs. The Giants dropped a half game, remaining only 1½ games ahead of Brooklyn while the fourth place St. Louis Cardinals placed themselves only one game behind the Robins by winning a double-header from the Phillies 9—4 and 6—4.

Pirates Win Again

In the clash between two of the league's most promising winning streaks at Cincinnati, the Pittsburgh Pirates extended their series of triumphs to seven games by defeating the Reds in the first game 9 to 6, as Ray Kremer's pitching stopped the Cincinnati string at five. It was broken, however, in the second game, when Ray Kolp had the better of a duel with Steve Swetonic by a 2—0 count, each team making five hits.

C.G.E. VS. BRINTON ON TUESDAY NIGHT

On King Edward Park at Six O'clock in a League Match.

On Tuesday evening, the Canadian General meet the Brinton Athletics in a league match, on King Edward Park. Referee, James Hawthorne. Kick off at six o'clock.

The Brintons will be without the services of their popular captain, Tom Westwood, for a while, owing to the injury he received in the game with the Packers, but he reports satisfactory progress. Another absentee will be Jack McMaster from the C.G.E. line-up. He is nursing a severe sprained ankle and his place will be occupied by W. Robb.

A stalwart half back line will be trotted out by the C.G.E. in the persons of Stannard, Jack Wade, who signed a form during the week, and R. Cobbald. The average height of these players will be near the six-foot class.

C.G.E. team will be as follows—J. Daynes, goal; G. Blowers and D. Grant, full backs; J. Stannard, J. Wade and R. Cobbald, halves; A. Burgess, W. Robb, J. Chambers, B. McMaster and F. Rankin, forwards.

GAME CALLED IN 2ND FRAME

ELECTRICS LEADING 3-0.

Rain forced the ball game between Pont Anne and the C.G.E. on Saturday afternoon at Exhibition Park to be halted midway through the second innings. When Umpire Alex Kay officially called the contest the Electrics, champs of the E.P.L., were enjoying a 3-to-0 lead.

Old Jupe Pluvius began to spit long before the fixture got underway and during the brief play the players became thoroughly water-soaked. The start was delayed more than half an hour because three of the Point Anne stars were forced to make a belated appearance because of a motor breakdown near Port Hope.

"Hoot" Gibson, former star of the Belleville Nationals and the Toronto Oslers, drew the pitching assignment for the visitors, but he failed to show any of the stuff that made him a reputation in the Central League. The wet ball seemed to give him considerable trouble and the C.G.E. secured three runs with three sound thumps in the first innings, and were in a fair way of getting more with none out in the second.

Vin Utronki was selected to hurl against his former pals and using a fast ball he allowed but two hits in the two frames and was breezing along nicely.

The Trent Valley champs presented a strong lineup in which former C.O.B.L. players were plentifully distributed. It included such stars as Gibson, M. and S. Green and Bennett, formerly of Belleville Nationals, and Buck, slugger for several years with Deloro, who has been turned into a first baseman for Pointe Anne.

"Shiner" Johnston's historic career as a ball tosser was recognized when several fans, with great ceremony, presented him with a large floral horseshoe, such as is generally looped around the neck of winning race horses. Along with the flowers an address was read which wished "Shiner" luck and success in his diamond efforts. "The old "un" came through with a single right after.

The line ups:

C.G.E.—Jones, 3b; Hollingsworth, ss; Rose, rf; Swanston, c; Ash, 1b; Utronki, p; Hatton, lf; L. Hollingsworth, cf; Johnston, 2b.

Umpires—Kay and Lebarr.

BETHANY.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Sisson have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. Lisson, 8th line, and calling on a number of old acquaintances during the week.

Miss Mina McKinley was a recent visitor to Toronto, returning on Friday.

Mrs. Guest and children are visiting Mr. and Mrs. James Whitesides for a few days.

Mr. Walter Bradley and Mr. Norman Porter, Manvers Station, were in town yesterday, completing an engagement with a teacher for their home school, Miss Pierheller having resigned her position.

Most Motorists will approve of---

The Safety Responsibility Law of Ontario

Effective September 1st

The ordinary careful driver will undoubtedly approve of the new law, with which he should familiarize himself at once. While not a compulsory insurance law, it makes the carrying of insurance as well as careful driving more important than ever.

It bars from the road the careless, irresponsible driver

Suspension of driving license will result from any of several offences against provisions in this Act designed to safeguard person and property on the highway. Safe, sane driving is necessary.

Also, suspension of driving license follows inability to pay for damage caused. Unless you are insured, you must be prepared to pay personally up to $11,000. Insurance is more than ever desirable.

There are many important points in this Act about which every motorist should know.

Pamphlets clearly explaining the new law can be procured without charge from the agent of any company a member of

FRENCH ISLANDS LEGAL HAVEN ON SMUGGLING ROUTE TO U.S.

Liquor Exports to St. Pierre-Miquelon $3,505,141 in Six Months.

CLEARED 'HIGH SEAS'

OTTAWA, Aug. 26. (Spedcial to the Examiner)—The tremendous increase in the exports of liquor to St. Pierre-Miquelon in recent months is causing no worry whatever to the department of national revenue. The export is perfectly legal, and it is none of their concern. But what the department does have to worry about is the attempt to ring some of it back again into Canada.

When the legal export of liquor to the United States ceased last spring with the passing of the amended export act, which made it impossible either to get release of such liquor from warehouses and distilleries or to secure clearance for shipment, the exporters of liquor turned their activities to other channels.

The liquor started to flow in larger and larger quantities to those small French islands off the coast of Newfoundland, of which St. Pierre is the principal port.

In the first six months of this year beverages exported to that little group of fishing islands from the distilleries and breweries of Canada totalled in value $3,505,141. Of this $3,491,000 was in whiskey.

In the same period of 1929, the exports were only $653,760.

Liquor is shipped to those countries exactly as it would be to France itself, and the process is legal by Canadian law. The exporter from Canada takes out clearance papers for St. Pierre and hands over the bond to the extent of $18 a gallon for the stuff shipped. Should the exporter double back a few miles out of Quebec and land on Canadian shores, or turn south to U.S. shore instead of proceeding to St. Pierre, he would lose the $18 a gallon bond, which takes all the profit out of the transaction. He can only redeem the bond by turning over landing certificate from St. Pierre.

The French government at St. Pierre collects a small landing charge and permits the liquor to stay six months. When the smuggler is ready to send his cargo for the American shores, he obtains a clearance "for the high seas." France is the only country granting such a clearance, which explains the popularity of those islands under French rule.

Most of the stuff is apparently destined ultimately for American consumption, but the preventive service here reports increased efforts on the part of St. Pierre smugglers to short-circuit it back to the St. Lawrence Gulf area and other Canadian shores. So far the department has been highly successful in intercepting these law-breakers.

BRITISH STAR BEATS HARPER

Miss Nuthall Captures Singles Championship By Scores of 6-,1 6-4.

CLOSE CONTEST.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., August 25 (C.P.). — Betty Nuthall, the 20-year-old British girl with a smile famous on two continents and a blistering forehand drive, is the new tennis champion of the United States.

Succeeding to the title forfeited by Helen Wills Moody just before the tournament started, Miss Nuthall captured the singles championship by decisively defeating Mrs. Anna Virginia McCune Harper, San Francisco left-hander, and fifth ranking American. The scores were 6-1, 6-4.

Returning to the courts after a heavy downpour and playing on a slippery turf through intermittent showers, Miss Nuthall teamed with a 17-year-old American girl, Sarah Palfrey of Boston, to win the doubles honors. They came from behind to defeat Mrs. Harper and Edith Cross, also of San Francisco, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5.

Local Tennis Tourney Entries Close Thursday

The local tennis tournament for which entries close on Thursday, Aug. 28th is open to any player desiring to enter.

Play will be for the championship of the city of Peterborough in the various events. For the men there is the Dean Cup, presented by Joe Dean and for the ladies the Kerr Cup, presented by F. D. Kerr, K.C. Suitable prizes will also be provided for the winners.

For players who do not feel they have a chance in the open events, handicap events are provided which will give them a chance to meet the better players on more even terms.

The entry fee is fifty cents per person in each event. Entries accompanied by the fees should be enclosed in a sealed envelope and handed to a member of the committee or left at the club house.

Play will start on Labor Day.

SECOND GAME ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Trenton to Play Sugar Bowl in Second Fixture of Softball Play-offs.

The second game of the Ontario Softball paly-offs will be staged Wednesday night between Trenton and Sugar Bowl.

This game should be one of the best witnessed this year. The C.P.R. team of Trenton are a smart aggregation and play real snappy ball. They have a good infield and outfield, and are fair in their pitching department.

Sugar Bowl need this game to stay in the running in the Ontario series, and they are out for a win. It is likely the Bowlrites will send Len Forsythe right back at the C.P.R. gang with Bill Simmons in reserve. Forsythe pitched good ball in Trenton and with a little better support in the catching department should turn in a win.

The game will start at 6.15 sharp and will be played at Central School grounds.

The Sugar Bowl team decided to play their Ontario games at Central School grounds in view of the good support given by the fans at that location all season.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

We were rained out on Saturday evening and being governed by the "Blue Book" there were no Sunday games, consequently my work is easy for the week-end happenings. However, the Doubles competition will advance another round to-night.

During the next week or so every member will be called on to assist in carrying the financing of our Club to a successful conclusion, and any personal differences must pale to insignificance where the needs of the Club are concerned. We need $6,000 to complete the job satisfactorily, so let's prove ourselves good bowlers and in the pinch stand up and "draw the shot."

Remember it is our Club—yours and mine.

A good thing to remember
And a better thing to do—
Work for the construction gang,
Not with the wrecking crew.

They say that money is the root of all evil, but oh, how we need $6,000.

This is going to be a busy week for the House Committee with a bridge party called for Thursday evening and a corn roast arranged for Friday night after the regular weekly tournament. All members are invited to bring their wives and families, or somebody else's wife.

Wednesday will see our first Open Mixed Tournament and as this is always a very colourful event there is sure to be a large entry. Get yours into the Games Committee early.

Returning to the burning question of raising money, volunteers are called to do the work. It is an easy job and the sooner it is tackled the better for everybody.

Here is our slogan for the drive: "Things are only difficult when we fear to attempt them."

CRICKET

Peterborough players please take notice that practice night will be held on Wednesday at 6.15. All players are requested to be on hand to enable the selection committee to choose the team for the return match with the C.G.E. on Saturday, August 30, also against Oshawa on Labor Day, which will start at 11 a.m., when it is hoped to play a two-innings match.

SARAZEN IS FIRST BY SEVEN STROKES

Italian Golfer Has No Trouble in Winning Western Open Championship.

Orion, Mich., Aug. 25.—Gene Sarazen, swarthy son of Italy, led a par shelling brigade over the Indianwood Club trail on Saturday with such an astonishing burst of marksmanship that he ran away with the western open golf championship by a lopsided margin of seven strokes. Finding the range of birdies and eagles with remarkable spade shots, the roly poly New York sharpshooter blasted Old Man Par right out of his strongholds with polishing cards of 69 and 67, which added to his leading 36-hole total of 142, gave him the handsome sum of 278 strokes for the long 72-hole struggle.

Al Espinosa, Chicago professional who lost to Bobby Jones in the 1929 play-off for the national open title, landed in second place behind the high flying Sarazen with 285 strokes. The Chicago star bounded there after a great comeback. Tied for 15th after the first 36 holes, Espinosa whizzed over the final 2 rounds with cards of 70 and 67.

Al Watrous, Detroit pro. and Bill Melhorn of New York, flushed by a record smashing 65 on his final jaunt, tied for third place money and honors with 286's.

FIRST GAME LIKELY HERE ON SATURDAY

Kiwanis From City asd Toronto to Meet in Semi-finals of Jr. O.B.A.A. Playdowns.

Local junior ball fans are slated to witness some good ball this week when the Kiwanis Club tackles with the same club of Toronto in the semi-finals of the Junior O.B.A.A. play-offs, probably on Wednesday. No definite word has yet been received by local club officials as to when and where the first game is to be played, but it is considered in all likelihood that the initial fixture will be held here, Deannard's crew travelling to Toronto over the week-end.

Fresh from their 8-0 victory over Belleville Moose in Deloro a week ago the "Ki" have every confidence in themselves for a neat victory in the first game.

MAYOR'S TRIBUTE TO M. M. ROBINSON

Congratulations Wired on Empire Games Success.

A wire expressing congratulations and appreciation with regard to his connection with the British Empire Games was this morning despatched to Mel. M. Robinson at Hamilton by Mayor Denne on behalf of Peterborough. Mr. Robinson is a former Peterborough boy and was the one who originally proposed the British Empire Games. He acted as secretary of the general committee at the games during the past week.

The wire from the Mayor was as follows:

M. M. Robinson, c/o Hamilton Spectator.

Peterborough, Aug. 25: As mayor of Peterborough and one of your many old friends here I wish to congratulate you heartily upon success of British Empire games. We are proud of the fact that this splendid idea was conceived by a former Peterborough boy. We are sure its significance and success will be appreciated through Empire. Please convey Peterborough's compliments to Mayor Peebles.

Salmon Bellies Win In Mann Cup Play-offs

EDMONTON, Alta., Aug. 25 (C.P.). — New Westminster Salmon Bellies are back on the track of the Western Canada lacrosse title which they won last year. By 17 to 0, the British Columbia Titualists Saturday rushed to defeat the Native Sons of Edmonton, holders of the Alberta championship. The win—a sudden death victory—places Salmon Bellies in the Western Canada final against Winnipeg Argonauts, champions of Manitoba. Saskatchewan is not entered in the Dominion playdowns.

The Winnipeg-New Westminster series will be played on Monday and Tuesday of this week at Winnipeg, with the winner travelling on to Toronto for the Mann Cup finals, with Brampton Excelsiors which start on Saturday.

HAVELOCK.

While returning from church on Sunday morning last, Mrs. George Varty of town met with a painful accident when she was tripped by a loose plank in the sidewalk at the west end of Ontario Street. Her right hand was fractured and she was severely shaken up.

Mr. Robert Buchanan had the good luck while fishing in the Trent River one evening recently to land a fine large muskie, weighing 18 pounds.

As the result of a charge of reckless driving while returning from Campbellford to Havelock recently, a local youth was fined $20.00, and costs, or $28.50 in all. His driving permit was cancelled for the remainder of the year, and he had to pay the damages to the car he wrecked, as well as repairing his own car, a sum well over one hundred dollars.

On Wednesday afternoon of last week a number of the pupils of Miss Lehane journeyed to Lindsay, and on behalf of a large number of the students presented her with a handsome hat box, and an address.

Cameron R. McIntosh, M.P., North Battleford, Sask., editor and proprietor of the North Battleford News, and Mrs. McIntosh and family, Peggy and Owen, motored from Owen Sound on Thursday last and visited friends in Havelock and district. Mrs. McIntosh was formerly Pearl Irwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Irwin of Havelock.

Mr. J. R. Dawley, of Cleveland, a member of the famous Ackerman's Guide staff, was a recent visitor at W. J. Seeney's at Round Lake. Mr. Dawley had splendid luck while fishing, and secured some interesting photographs while here. He expressed himself as delighted with the scenic beauty of this district, and its many natural attractions.

Now that great improvements have been made by the Belmont and Methuen Council on the Cordova road, chiefly on that section near Freeman's Corners, the Oak Lake road is being repaired, and having its face lifted in places. The road at the long swamp, north of Lasswade, in Chandos, which has been in bad shape for the past few years, and which has been covered with water in spots, is being repaired through a special grant procured from the Government, and the big drain from the road to the river is being cleaned out and deepened by a special grant from the Department of Public Work. Both of these special concessions were obtained through the good offices of the local member, T. P. Lancaster.

College Humor

THE BEST COMEDY IN AMERICA

Copyrighted, 1930, by The Collegiate World Publishing Co. (Collegiate) Through Bell Syndicate.

"You tell me first," said Judy. "We're calling you, baby, but as it don't matter, I've got a pair of jacks," said Slim.

"I beat that," said Spug. "Two pair, kings and nines.

"Not worth a cent," said Goofy, as he laid down three tens. "Now let's see your hand, Judy."

"I think I've got two pair," said Judy, as she showed them four aces.

"You win," said the three, as they slumped in their seats with disappointment.

"Well, partners in crime, we still have on socks," said Goofy, as he started to remove his coat.

"I think I understand the game now," said Judy. Let's stop. You don't have to strip. It's lucky I won, because you had me down to my last bet. I'm only wearing three things, including my shoes."

"Sire, I'm in dire distress. My wife needs food."

"You don't know what trouble is. My wife is howling for a diamond necklace."

Notre Dame Juggler.

"I came within an ace of winning the game."

"Then why didn't you?"

"The other fellow had the ace."

Boston Beanpot.

"She paid a terrible price," sermoned the street corner evangelist, speaking of an unfaithful wife who had met misfortune. "Yes, she paid a terrible price."

"What's the difference?" cracked a cynic. "Her husband probably paid the bill!"

—Temple Owl.

"Heh! Heh! And that fellow said he was gonna murder me!"

—Lehigh Burr

NEWS ITEM

Not a sound is heard from the Vitaphone as the leading lady speaks her mind.

—V. M. I. Sniper

The wealthy baronet had not always been wealthy, neither had he always been a baronet, and for that reason he was prone to keep rather a sharp eye on his money. He had noticed for some time that when the bottles of wine were brought in, they were not quite so full as they ought to have been, and accordingly he requested his butler to do all the opening in his presence.

"I notice," he said sternly, "that when you draw the corks in the pantry the wine is extremely decollete."

The butler looked surprised and asked: "Extremely decollete, sir?"

"Yes," replied the baronet more sternly still, "rather low in the neck."

—Goblin.

"Were you a Smith man?"

"No, Vassar."

RAJAH GENEROUS TO MOTHERLAND

English Ruler of Sarawak Offers $450,000 to Government

LORD PASSFIELD GRATEFUL

SINGAPORE, Aug. 25 (By The Canadian Press).—The Rajah of Sarawak, the English ruler of a state in Borneo, has offered the British Government the sum of $450,000 in recognition of the friendly relations between Sarawak and the Government.

Most of the money will probably be used for a fund to assist in the education of colonial civil servants' children. The fund will be administered by trustees who will be nominated by the Rajah and by the English Secretary of State. According to an announcement from the Colonial Office in London, the income will be used in the education of children whose parents serve the Empire abroad, and special consideration will be given those who are called to the remote outposts. The full details of the scheme have still to be worked out.

When Lord Passfield announced the gift at a dinner to Colonial Office representatives in London he said: "On behalf of the Government, I propose to accept the gift, and to express to his highness their appreciation and gratitude." The Rajah, it was explained, wished the gift to be applied to some worthy object in the colonial empire, and it was after considering various suggestions that the Rajah had decided that $325,000 should go to benefit the children of civil servants in the colonies.

The Rajah is an Englishman, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, who rules over a country of 30,000 square miles with a population of over half a million natives—Dyaks and Malays and other former head-hunting tribes. The first rajah was Sir James Brooke, who in 1839 was made ruler of Sarawak by the Sultan of Borneo in gratitude for his suppression of a rebellion among the natives. The present ruler succeeded his father, Sir Charles, Sr., 1917. He is married to Hon. Sylvia Brett, daughter of Viscount Esher.

LINER STOPS TO SAVE FOX-HOUND

Dog Wins Long Battle for Life in Waters of Bay of Biscay.

FELL OVERBOARD

BOMBAY, Aug. 25 (By The Canadian Press).—When the British liner Clan Macnab docked here, passengers told how the captain had turned his ship round in mid-ocean to save the life of a fox-hound which had fallen overboard.

The liner was carrying a number of valuable fox-hounds from Liverpool to Bombay. When the vessel was crossing the Bay of Biscay, one hound was exercised as usual round the deck and then tied up on the after-deck. About 8 a.m. she was missed. A search was made, but the hound could not be found, and it was concluded that she must have slipped her collar and fallen overboard.

The loss was immediately reported to Captain Turton, who was on the bridge at the time. He turned his ship round and steamed back the estimated distance traveled since the mishap, plus an extra mile.

The hound was not sighted and the vessel resumed her course. In a few minutes some one caught sight of the hound a short distance away right ahead. She had been swimming in rough water nearly an hour. A boat was lowered from the ship, and the hound was hauled aboard in an exhausted condition. After a few hours' attention she recovered and was able to rejoin her runningmates.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 45 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Early the following morning, the men in the cabin were awakened by the booming of a cannon. Clayton rushed out and saw two vessels lying in the harbor. One was the "Arrow"—the other a small French cruiser. Quickly he ran to light the pile of wood he kept in readiness.

Before the flames arose, Clayton saw in consternation the cruiser steaming away. Stripping off his shirt, he waved it back and forth above him. Now the great column of smoke rose high, attracting the attention of the ship's lookout. The cruiser steamed slowly back toward shore. A boat was lowered.

As it beached, a young officer stepped out. Quickly Clayton told their story, ending with Jane's abduction. Lieutenant d'Arnot then narrated the capture of the "Arrow"; how it had drifted in heavy seas many days, without water or food until all but two of the mutineers were dead.

The sight that met the Frenchman's eyes as they clambered over the ship's side was appalling! Dead and dying rolled upon the pitching deck. Two of the corpses appeared partially devoured. Hunger had changed the mutineers to wild beasts. The sole survivor told the whole ghastly tale to the French commander.

The cruiser then sought the little camp. By the time the two parties had narrated their several adventures, the cruiser's boat returned with supplies and arms. With twenty sailors, they set off upon that hopeless and ill-fated quest into the untracked jungle to find the stolen girl.

NOMINATION OF CABINET TO-DAY

No Opposition Expected in Constituencies For Bennett Ministers.

FIFTEEN BY-ELECTIONS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.) — To-day will determine the question of whether or not fifteen members of the Government, including Premier R. B. Bennett are to meet opposition in their Ministerial by-elections. In fifteen constituencies across Canada members of the Government holding portfolios will see their names placed in nomination for election to Parliament. These fifteen members constitute nearly a full Ministerial slate, the exceptions being Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Fisheries,, who will not be nominated in Richmond West, Cape Breton, until September 2, and Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, who holds a seat in the Senate. The other members of the Government, Sir George Perley and Hon. J. A. Macdonald, are not required to seek re-election, as they do not hold portfolios.

The general expectation here is that Mr. Bennett's ministers will not meet opposition. It would occasion a good deal of surprise if they were not accorded acclamations. It has been suggested that Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, might meet with opposition in the constituency of East Kootenay, B.C., but such suggestions are not taken too seriously. Mr. Stevens was defeated in the constituency of Centre Vancouver, but a seat was subsequently opened for him in East Kootenay through the appointment of the member-elect to an office of emolument under the Crown.

By touching a switch in London at six o'clock in the morning the Lord Mayor of London recently lighted a sign at the Radio Exhibition in Melbourne, Australia, declaring the show open.

CHINESE REBELS BLOW UP GOV'T SUPPLY TRAIN

Loss of Life as Yet Undetermined Believed to be Small.

19 CARS WRECKED.

KEWITEH, Honan, China, Aug. 2 (A.P.) — A Nationalist Government ammuntion train, composed of nineteen cars, was blown up near here to-day. Loss of life, though undertermined, was believed small.

While cause of the blaze which set off the explosion was unknown, it was rumored rebel soldiers were responsible for the conflagration. Explosion of the ammunition, which consisted largely of heavy calibre shells and aerial bombs, ripped out the railroad right-of-way, twisted steel cars, and hurled debris hundreds of feet. With the Nationalist Government suffering a severe loss from burning of the train, it was reported fighting along the Haichow-Tungkwan railroad was at a low ebb as a result of the unprecedented heavy rains in Northern Honan Province.

Tracks Above Flood

The sharply-graded Haichow-Tungkwan Railroad right-of-way, which remains above the level of the flood waters, is now the only avenue of entry and exit to the flood stricken area, and even this means of approach is in grave danger of general collapse. All bridges are shaky as a result of the floods, and are crossable only with the greatest care.

The entire conduct of the civil war, in which Nationalist forces are attempting to rout the Northern rebels, depends on this shaky railway. Its collapse would mean advance or retreat of troops would be utterly impossible, much less moving supplies or ammunition.

Forces of Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, leader of the rebel forces, were reported to be continuing their hold on positions west of here, their intermittent gun-fire being audible at times.

MISSING LAD FOUND IN WELL.

LONDON, Ont. — Missing since noon on Saturday, the body of Alexander Massie, 19, was found yesterday morning in a well at the rear of the farm of Gordon Aitken, where his parents were employed.

It is thought that while watering smoe cattle the young man slipped in the well and was drowned. Dr. Pink, coroner, decided an inquest was unnecessary.

LIQUOR LADEN OCEAN STEAMER INVADING WATERS OF LAKE ERIE

PLANES SENT FOR.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Aug. 25. (C.P.)—Unmolested to-day in the Canadian waters of Lake Erie are four, possibly five ocean-going steamers laden to the gunwales with rum. All are waiting favorable opportunities to discharge their cargoes to small boats, the duty of which will be to dash through the American cordon of coast guard boats if possible and land cargoes on the shores of New York, Pennsylvania or Ohio.

The situation was brought to the attention of Washington this morning by M. W. Rasmussen, commander of the Coast Guard in this district, who admits his inability successfuly to meet the situation and who asks that Coast Guard headquarters dispatch airplanes to act as eyes for the rum chasers which he commands. The commander urges quickly action. He seeks to thwart this new plan of the smugglers at its very inception.

75 Coast Guard Boats

The Coast Guard boats, 75 in number, have been mot lized in United States waters between points opposite Port Burwell, Ont., and Long Point, Ont. It was between these two ports that Lake Erie's rum row was established and it is supposed, still is being maintained. Much uncertainty exists, however, as to the exact location of the big liquor carriers at the present time, for they move about, carry their own smaller boats, loaded and are prepared to send them toward the United States shore at favorable opportunities.

Rasmussen expects Washington to act without delay. Planes, he reasons would be able to chart the location of the master ships at all times and communicate their information to the Coast Guard flotilla.

The Vedas, recently seized by the Canadian Government and permitted to sail away again after being fined $400 was the forerunner of Lake Erie's rum row. She made her way through the St. Lawrence to the Great Lakes and discharged a portion of her liquor cargo to small boats which eventually found their way through United States waters to waiting consigness on shore. Customs officials think the Vedas now is a member of the so-called "row" waiting to discharge the remainder of her thirst-quenching load.

FOG AGAIN HALTS GERMAN FLIERS

PASSES GREENLY ISLAND.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 25.—(CP)—Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three companions in their Dornier-Wahl flying boat D-1422 who have flown by easy stages from Germany via Iceland, Greenland and Labrador, were at the little fishing village of Marie Joseph, Halifax County, this morning waiting for clear weather before continuing on to Halifax. Fog along the coast had interrupted this morning's flight.

The flyers reached Canadian territory yesterday afternoon, alighting on the harbor at Queensport, Guysboro County, N. S., at the southern entrance to the Strait of Canso.

The flight was continued this morning at 7:50 Atlantic Daylight Saving Time, Captain Gronau starting for Halifax where a supply of oil and gasoline awaits him. He started in the face of foggy weather conditions but with prospects that it would clear.

At nine thirty the flying boat was set down at Marie Joseph after having kept a true course through the fog, Captain Gronau deciding against an attempt to make Halifax before conditions were more favorable.

Fog Prevents Trip

QUEENSPORT, N. S., Aug. 25. — The German fliers, Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three compions, who arrived here yesterday from Greenland, had planned to land at Greenley Island, the little spot off the coast of Labrador where their compatriots, the late Baron Von Huenefeld and Captain Herman Koehl, together with Commander Fitzmaurice of Ireland, ended their historic flight in the monoplane Bremen two years ago last April.

This sentimental pilgrimage had to be abandoned however, because of thick fog off the Labrador coast.

ANOTHER FINE TROPHY.

Passing through Peterborough on his way back to Brantford on Saturday last, William Coons, a former resident of this district, who has been spending a vacation with Richard Davies of Pigeon Lake, bore a monster 'lunge with him, on the bumper of his automobile. It was carefully packed in paper and burlap to withstand the long juorney. It measured 53 inces and weighed over 26 lbs. The exact weight was unknown to Mr. Coones, who said he had placed it on a scale with a capacity of 26 lbs. which was incapable of recording the fish's weight.

LONG-TAILED CARROT.

A carrot with a 29-inch tail was pulled out of the garden of C. E. Rogers, 241 Stewart Street, by the owner of the garden on Saturday night. The ambitious carrot is 33 inches over all, and seems to have cherished some secret desire to reach the far Cathay which children are told will reward their diligent long-distance digging in the warm loam.

ALAN IAN PERCY DIES IN LONDON

Anne Boleyn but was compelled to renounce his matrimonial intentions by Henry the Eighth. The seventh Earl was beheaded by Queen Elizabeth for conspiracy—"A Papist plot"—and the eight Earl was confined to the tower for a supposed plot in favor of Mary, Queen of Scots. He was found dead in his bed there, slain by three pistol bullets. The ninth Earl was also cast in the tower—by this time the grim edifice was almost the second residence of the Percys—though efforts to involve him in the gunpowder plot in the reign of the first James failed. From that time on the Northumberland history was less hectic. The first Duke was created in 1772.

Aide-de-Camp to Earl Grey

LONDOOP, Eng., Aug. 25. — The morning papers recalled today in connection with the death of the eighth Duke of Northumberland that he was Aide-de-Camp to the Earl Grey, when the Earl was Governor-General of Canada and when he walked from Montreal to Ottawa in sub-zero temperature to win a wager.

Earl Grey's walk was performed in three days despite heavy snow.

ROUTE FEASIBLE ACROSS ARCTIC

German Flight Shows Air Line Can Be Used For Passenger Service.

WINNIPEG TERMINUS.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 25 (C.P.). — To Canadian aviation authorities, the flight of Capt. Wolfgang Von Gronau seems to prove conclusively the feasibility of the North Atlantic air route as the one that eventually will be adopted between this continent and Europe for regular passenger and freight use. At the present time, a group of young English explorers is in the Canadian Arctic gathering data on this air route with the intention some day of inaugurating a regular service to this country.

Although Von Gronau struck south from Labrador with the intention of making New York his terminus, it is the intention of the Watkins party to plot a route into Central Canada. Winnipeg has been selected tentatively as the Western terminus of the proposed route. This would take the flyers from Greenland over the northern tip of Labrador, through the northern part of Quebec, and probably over the southern end of James Bay; from there, a direct line would be cut for Winnipeg. The selection of Winnipeg was made because of its central location on the continent auxiliary air lines would radiate from there.

Grain Growers Appeal for Credit Leniency

WEST'S FARMERS FACING REALITY OF LOW PRICES

Announcement of Initial Grain Payments Ends Anxious Waiting.

PROBLEM OF PRAIRIES.

Depressed Grain Values and Crop Below Average Yield.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 26 (C.P.). — Days of anxious waiting are over, and to-day the 143,000 Western farmers, members of the Prairie Wheat Pools, know what the initial payment is to be on the 1930 crop.

It will be the lowest in the seven-year history of the pools—60 cents a bushel on wheat, oats No. 2 C.W. 30 cents, barley No. 3 C.W. 25 cents, rye No. 2 C.W. 35 cents, and flax No. 1 C.W. $1.25.

Along with the official announcement from A. J. McPhail, chairman of the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, the central selling agency of the pools, and from Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, last night came a plea to the creditors of the Western agriculturists to be lenient. The same plea was made in Regina last week, at a conference of wheat growers, business men, and members of the Saskatchewan Government under the leadership of Premier J. T. M. Anderson.

Both Mr. McPhail and Mr. Bracken drew attention to the serious situation facing the Prairie farmers, who, for the second year in succession, in face of depressed world grain values, are now harvesting a crop below the average in yield.

PLANES BARRED TO DUCK HUNTERS

Gov't Instructions Include Power and Sail Boats and Machine Guns.

SEASON OPENS SEPT. 1.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.— Although nothing is said about airships, perhaps because there are not enough R-100's running loose in Canada, the Department of the Interior, in issuing instructions for the impending hunting season, makes it clear that aeroplanes may not be used to bring down the ducks and geese. Boats, either sail or power, and automobiles and buggies are also taboo as a means to getting the bag—so are machine-guns and batteries.

The season opens on Sept. 1, and the Canadian National Railways is already busy making arrangements for visitors from the United States, as well as from Canadian centers.

Archduke Albrecht Wed to Commoner

BRIGHTON, Eng., Aug. 26.—(A.P.)—Mystery surrounding the marriage of Archduke Albrecht of Hungary was cleared with the announcement to-day that he was wed to Madame Rudnay, former wife of a Huugarian diplomat, here on Aug. 16 before Registrar Horace Burfield.

Local records show that the Archduke was here, residing at a local hotel for a fortnight previous this marriage and that Madame Rudnay was here also.

Other details of the ceremony were lacking.

LOUGH'S STORE AT IDA ROBBED

Leisurely Thieves Carried Off Varied Stock of Merchandise.

SATURDAY MORNING.

CAVAN, Aug. 26. (Examiner Correspondent). — Gaining entrance to Roy Lough's store, Ida, in the small hours of Saturday morning last, burglars made a get-a-way with approximately $100 worth of goods, including a quantity of tobacco, a number of work shirts and overalls, automobile tires, groceries and money from the till.

Entrance to the store had been effected by prying open the back door, while an exit was presumably made by the front door which was left wide open.

Provincial Police Constable William Carey of Cobourg who is investigating the affair, states that up to the present no arrests have been made in connection with the affair.

From tracks in the vicinity of the store, he believes the culprits used an automobile in which to transport their loot.

THIEVES MISSED EAST CITY MONEY

Returned to Same House on Mark Street.

Burglars are at work in East City. Several residents of that section report that they have returned home at night to find windows jimmied and doors forced open.

One house on Mark street has been visited on two occasions recently by these night marauders. The first time the thieves secured a purse containing $1.98 and ham, bacon and other eatables as loot. On the second visit they held a banquet of the pantry's provisions in one of the bedrooms. Drawers in dressers and bureaus were turned out in a thorough search for valuables, but the thieves failed to find forty dollars which was concealed in one of the drawers.

Householders have been slow to report these thefts to the police, who now find themselves with little to work upon.

LOCAL DISPLAY OF VEGETABLES FOR TORONTO EX.

Association of Peterborough Growers Send Entry This Morning.

TOWNSHIP PRODUCTS.

Will Be Included in Exhibit of Ontario Growers.

Representing Peterborough Vegetable Growers' Association a number of market gardeners from Monaghan township left early this morning with a fine variety of vegetables which will stand up in competition with vegetables from the whole of Ontario at the Canadian National Exhibition to-day.

The Association which is quite strong in this district has a membership of nearly sixty. Last year at the C.N.E. the local growers were successful in taking fourth prize, the highest standing they have yet attained in this competition.

This year the members along with J. H. Bell, chairman of the local Association are optimistic of beating last year's record performance. They certainly have an exceptionally splendid entry of garden produce. Cabbages, corn and tomatoes are of a particularly high grade as in fact is all other produce possibly with the exception of beets, which have been badly hit by the recent drought.

The largest portion of the produce has come from the garden of Peterborough County—North Monaghan township—with the exception of entries made by Frank Kitney of Otonabee township, which vie for supremacy with the produce of his fellow contestants.

Following the judging at the Exhibition all produce is grouped together as a composite exhibit of the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Association, with the prize winning entry, of course, occupying the most prominent place in the display. The competition is devised to serve the dual purpose of encouraging vegetable growers to aim at the ideal of high grade produce and to educate the consumer in a more widespread use of Canadian produce.

The following is a list of entries for the C.N.E. exhibit: Parsnips, carrots, turnips, Bert Arnott; cucumbers, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes, parsley, Frank Kitney; beans, Bruce Johnston; beets, melons, N. Moncrief; lettuce, onions, J. Williams; vegetable marrow, sweet corn, H. S. Doig; peppers, H. Johnstone; pumpkins, J. H. Bell and H. S. Doig; potatoes, B. Williamson and Bert Arnott.

THREE INJURED IN CAR CRASH

Mrs. Conley Rushed to Ross Memorial Hospital—Sustains Severe Injuries.

ON LINDSAY ROAD.

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 26.—A serious automobile accident occurred about one mile south of Lindsay in Ops township shortly before six o'clock last evening. Mrs. John Conley of Lindsay was driving south in a car in company with Mrs. J. Hunter of Bobcaygeon and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hunter of Detroit. A car driven by P. O'Loughlin of Lindsay was going in the same direction and after Mrs. Conley had sounded the horn preparatory to passing, Mr. O'Loughlin pulled his car to the right and then, it is claimed, pulled back again. Mrs. Conley took to the deep ditch and was completely wrecked. When the occupants were released they were immediately rushed to the Ross Memorial Hospital, where it was found that Mrs. Conley sustained a bad gash in her back a foot long. Her shoulder blade as well as her arm were also broken. Mrs. Hunter of Bobcaygeon had three ribs broken and her breast was also lacerated. Mrs. Carl Hunter had her arm broken and was badly cut about the body. Mr. Hunter escaped unhurt.

TORONTO MILK FEUD.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—A deadlock exists between the Toronto Milk Producers' Association and price the latter must pay the associa-Toronto milk distributors over the tion for milk during the winter term that commences next Monday. The price now charged for an eight-gallon can is $2.20, and the distributors maintain this is sufficiently high for the winter months in view of the lower price of feed. The producers, however, are demanding $2.50,

BRITISH VISITORS TO CANADA

The above photograph taken at Montreal recently, shows a distinguished British party at present visiting Canada. Left to right: Captain Alfred Duff Cooper, D.S.O. (in rear); Viscount Ednam (in front); William Ward, Viscount Ednam's son, and right, Lady Diana Manners (Lady Diana Duff Cooper), famous English society beauty, daughter of the Duke of Rutland, and well known as the heroine of "The Miracle," during its American production. The party will make an extensive tour of Canada, and are expected to visit the bungalow camp at Nipigon, Ont.; thereafter continuing as far as Vancouver.

FOUR TIE FOR DOLLAR DAY MONEY ALL GUESSED CORRECT NUMBER FIVE SECOND PRIZES ARE EQUAL

Number of Estimates By Public in Friday and Saturday's Big Annual Sale Was 22.201—Heavy Task For Examing Staff.

FOUR WINNERS GET $27.50 EACH.

Twelve Prize Winners Were All Close to the Mark—Dollar Day Well Up to Average—Rain Interfered Saturday.

Another successful twin Dollar Day has come and gone. Up to the time the rain started on Saturday afternoon, it looked like a record event, but a wet Saturday evening took the cream off, and kept the business total down to a good average. Friday was the best first day of any twin Dollar Day event so far but the gain made was offset by Saturday evening's loss.

However, only once before has the number of tickets dropped in the contest box been exceeded, the fine total of 22,201 being disclosed when the count was completed. Full to within a few inches of the top, the big box presented a formidable task to count and sort out the winners, and the job was only completed by the staff at a late hour on Monday evening. To the surprise of the workers, four people were found to have made a correct estimate, and had put down the exact number, 22,201. To them the first four prizes were equally divided, giving to each the comfortable sum of $27.50. To add to the interesting features, Miss J. McCarthy, one of the first four, made her estimate on an Examiner ticket and is awarded the Examiner Special prize of $10.00 for that reason.

Two other sets of ties, one lot being only one number away from the correct figure, and the other group but two over or under the number, divided the balance of the prize money between them. The pet number seemed to be 22,222, no less than fifty one tickets being found with the magic string of 5, 2's on the line. At that it was a close estimate, being only 21 above the right figure.

A good deal of fun and added interest was created by the Examiner's Mysterious Miss Dollar, impersonated most successfully by Miss Florence Curtis, from the Grafton staff. All day Friday she eluded capture though many were on the hunt for her, armed with the necessary clipping from The Examiner, and she had numerous narrow escapes. However, on Saturday, aided by the description posted on the bulletin boards at The Examiner Office, Miss Dollar was finally captured in the Richard Hall Store by Gordon Pammett of 661 Armour Road, who is awarded the $10.00 in cash offered by The Examiner to the one who brought her in.

Following is the list of winners. The money will be paid out at The Examiner office on Friday, August 29

	Estimate	Prize
1—J. McCarthy, 292 Simcoe,	22,201	$27.50
2—Herbert Kennedy, 552 Armour Rd.	22.201	27.50
3—E. J. Dibben, 30 Lafayette Ave.	22,201	27.50

ANAEMIA FATAL TO LON CHANEY STAR OF FILMS

Paid Heavy Price of Cruel Exaction of Strange Roles.

MILLIONS OF FANS.

Worked His Way to Fame—Began as Stage Hand.

LOS ANGELES, August 26 (C.P.). —Lon Chaney, whose grotesque screen characterizations won him the sobriquet of "the man of a thousand faces," died here early to-day after a valiant fight against anaemia and congestion of the bronchial tubes.

A hemorrhage of the lungs shortly after midnight suddenly cut short the noted actor's fight for life after he had been reported on the road to recovery. eH was 47 years old.

Chaney entered a hospital on August 15 for treatment of an anaemic condition resulting from a severe attack of pneumonia suffered in New York early this year. He failed to respond readily to treatment, and last week three blood transfusions were reported to. Last Saturday he became critically ill, but safely passed the crisis. Yesterday he was said by hospital attaches to be resting easily.

A devoted husband, father and grandfather; a good citizen, liver of a blameless, upright life; a philosopher; a plain,outspoken man; and a thorough trouper, the niche Lon Chaney hewed and occupied will never be filled by another. He was a credit to the motion picture industry.

Chaney was the son of poor parents who dwelt in Colorado Springs. They were deaf mutes. At an early age he was thrust into the world of work, and began his career in the trade of carpet-laying. One of his boasts was that he could make a living at it again if "anything went wrong."

Life of Trouper.

Later he drifted into show business—as a stage-hand. Perhaps his most cherished possession—in any event the one most frequently displayed — was the card attesting his membership in the union of that craft. It was in those days that he became interested in the art of make-up which has borne so important a part in his film career. From the wings he used to watch the late Richard Mansfield and marvel at the effects that great player attained with paint, pencil and putty. Even then he began to experiment on himself. Incidentally, Lon Chaney in real life was the possessor of a profile rivalling that of Barrymore. In fact, their silhouettes bore a marked resemblance. And Chaney's had the edge for beauty of contour.

From his beginning in the theatre he developed into a director and producer of popular-priced vaudeville acts. Later he played burlesque and was recognized as a dancing come-

PRICE OF COAL MAY BE HIGHER

Dealers Expect Advance Usually Quoted When September Comes.

SUMMER DEMAND LIGHT.

Advances in the price of coal may be expected to come into effect locally on or about September 1st, if the precedent set in previous years may be taken as any indication.

Enquiries from local coal dealers did not confirm or strengthen this supposition. The general opinion among the dealers being that it is a probability although not a definitely decided matter.

It has been the practice for many years past for householders to lay in their winter supply of fuel in the summer months, not only in order to take advantage of the lower prices which obtain, but as a measure of preparedness against any unexpected onslaught of "Jack Frost."

The trade this summer has been a trifule slower, dealers state, and consequently all orders received between now and September 1st can be filled from the stocks of fuel already on hand.

It is understood that the present market price for stove coal is $15.25 per ton, with nut coal at $14.75 per ton. The prices are it is stated, on a par with those ruling at this period last year. Any raise in price would probably be in the neighborhood of 50c per ton on all grades of fuel.

New Organist

DAVID RENFREW HOWAT.

The appointment of Mr. Howat as organist and director of music, was recently confirmed at a meeting of the Session and Music Committee of George Street United Church. Mr. Howat is known in Britain and Canada as a keen musician and always anxious to put forward all he has towards the advancement of standards in music. Mr. and Mrs. Howat will take up residence in this city during the first week of September.

TWO ELEVATOR EMPLOYEES DIE IN FATAL BLAST

Explosion Shot Flames High Into Air and Scattered Debris.

CAUSE IS UNKNOWN.

Milwaukee Elevator Converted By Flames Into Towering Torch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 26. —(C.P.)—An explosion in an old grain elevator turned it into a towering torch, sending two workers to their deaths to-day.

The dead are Philip Olson 32, Harold Barnett 26.

Fire broke out immediately after the explosion sending flames high in the air and scattering debris over a large area.

When the explosion occurred the two men had almost completed their first shift on new assignments as machine operators. The cause of the explosion was not definitely determined but was believed to have resulted either from spontaneous combustion or as a result of a small fire originating in the machinery. The structure was known as the W. P. Devereaux company elevator, but was operated by the E. F. Carlston company.

Barnett's widow, the mother of a baby a few weeks old, his parents and two sisters, and Mrs. Olson and her three year old son, watched the rescue efforts.

THREE GIRL TOURISTS INJURED IN CRASH

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 26 (C.P.). —Three girl tourists from Columbus, Ohio, were injured, one of them seriously, when their auto skidded from the highway at Valtrie, Que., yesterday, and crashed into a tree. The girls, who were en route from Quebec to Montreal, were taken to the Royal Victoria Hospital here, but two of them were discharged when minor cuts and bruises were attended to.

Most seriously injured was Lucille Schumacher, 21, of 246 South Tarrace Avenue, Columbus, who was badly hurt about the head. Her sister, Mildred, and Gladys Lensenmayer, received slight injuries.

NEGRO'S ANTICS BRING FINE

PAARL, South Africa, Aug. 26. —(C.P.)—Abraham Combrink, colored laborer was charged recently in the magistrate's court with having obtained $10 from Mrs. E. C. Rabe, a European woman by false pretences. He pretended that he was endowed with certain supernatural powers, which he could exert in such a way as to cause her husband, Christopher Frederick Rabe who was living apart from her, to return to her. He was sentenced by Magistrate J. B. Miller to five months' imprisonment with hard labor.

In England deaths from tuberculosis are now one per thousand, or half the rate at the beginning of the century.

SILENT WELDING SUBSTITUTE FOR RIVET HAMMERS

One of Largest All-Welded Buildings in World.

900 TONS OF STEEL.

The last of the steel has "gone up" on the Canadian General Electric $400,000 addition in this city and the brick-laying and construction of the roof is now proceeding. The job is going ahead on schedule and it is expected that the building will be ready for the installation of machinery in the vicinity of October 1.

Conspicuously absent has been the sound of pneumatic riveting hammers during the erection of the tremendous steel frame for the structure which consists of two bays 80 feet by 400 feet and one bay 80 feet by 100 feet. All connections and joints, even those of small cross-pieces and braces, have been made by electric welding and the frame forms one solid mass. The building is not only the first largest all-welded structure in Canada but has one of the largest tonnages of steel of any all-welded building in the world. The steel tonnage is estimated to be about 900 tons. The welded building with the greatest steel tonnage is said to be a shop owned by the General Electric Company at West Philadelphia in which 987 tons of steels were used.

Contract Sub-let

The Canadian Bridge Company of Walkerville, Ontario, has had charge of the steel work. The contract was sub-let by T. A. Brown Company which holds the bulk contract for the addition, but has been subject to the supervision of the Canadian General Electric Company. All the steel used was fabricated in Canada. From 40 to 80 men have been on the job at various times during the summer.

Regular open-arc direct-current welding has been used in the erection of the steel. By this method the portion of the frame work already erected is "grounded" and a steel electrode is used. Where a joint is to be made, steel from the electrode is fused with the steel at the joint by the arc caused by current of very high amperage. The steel is not painted until after welding.

When asked why welding had been chosen for the new building to riveting or bolting, a C. G. E. official said this morning the use of electric welding was at least theoretically cheaper.

ROCK ISLAND FIRE LOSS IS $150,000

SPREADS OVER BORDER.

ROCK ISLAND, Que., August 26 (C.P.). — Fire of an unknown origin breaking out at three o'clock this morning destroyed several of the principal business buildings in the business section of this town and spread across the international boundary, damaging several buildings on the American side. The loss, which is estimated in excess of $150,000, was partially covered by insurance.

The principal buildings destroyed in Rock Island were the newly constructed Holland Creamery plant, the storehouse of the Three Villages Building Association, a large storage shed owned by the Butterfield Company, a flour mill operated by Henry Demick, together with several smaller shed owned by the Butterfield Com-Caswell & O'Rouke's store in Derby Line and a second flour mill owned by Mr. Demick were the main buildings to suffer on the American side.

Youths Rob Homes During Funerals

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 26. (C.P.) Police have arrested three young men, Edward Robertson, Robert Norman and Cameron Hayes, in connection with a peculiar series of thefts here. At homes where funeral ceremonies have been taking place the young men attended, only to sneak into other portions of the homes and ransack rooms for money and valuables. In one case a sum of $70 was stolen and the police allege the trio arrested are responsible for the thefts.

KIDNAPPING CASE BLOWS UP POLICE FIND PRETTY SLAV GIRL WEDDING HER CHOICE

Whole Countryside Around Milton Heights in Furore When Tiny Girl Reports Seeing Village Beauty, Nellie Zenith, Dragged Into Car By Three Men.

OFFICERS UNABLE TO INTERFERE AS GIRL IS OF AGE AND ELOPED FROM HOME OF HER OWN ACCORD

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.). — Police discovered here this afternoon Zitita (Nikoeza) Zenith, pretty Slav girl of Milton Heights, Ont., who was said to have been kidnapped from her home there to-day. No action will be taken as the officers have found that the girl was not kidnapped and is being married here to one of the men of the party. As she is 19 years old and left her home of her own accord, officers point out that she has the right to marry here if she wishes.

When Elsie Kriminsky, 10, saw her getting into a motor car early to-day in what has turned out to be evidently a carefully planned elopement, she gave the alarm of a kidnapping.

Unrequited love and the spurning of a would-be lover's advances were said to have prompted the supposed kidnapping of pretty Nellie Zenith, Jugo-Slavic maiden, by three male compatriots while she was drawing water from the well of her sister's home at Milton Heights early to-day. Every police officer within a radius of 50 miles was engaged in a wide search for the 19-year-old girl, who was spirited into an auto driven in the direction of Campbellville. The car was said to be owned by Charles Larsenby of Milton.

One of the men was recognized by the girl's sister as Paul Loretto, until yesterday an employee of the Gypsum Lime and Alabastine Co., and who boarded in the same house as Miss Zenith. Two other men were in the car. Pursuit was impossible without another auto, and the road was empty at the time.

Loretto, who was discharged yesterday from the firm for which he worked, is described as being tall and dark. Nellie had only been in this country about a year, having lived in Milton with her sister for the past two months. She was noted in the village for her beauty.

A description of the car has been broadcast to police surrounding Milton.

According to Provincial Officer Thomas Owens, the girl was pulling water from the well when the two men drove up to her home at Milton Heights. A small girl, Elsie Krimin-

WHEAT POOL'S FIRST PAYMENT 60c

FIRST PAYMENT TO FARMERS FOR THIS YEAR'S WHEAT CROP LOWEST IN HISTORY OF POOL

Announcment Follows Long Deliberations By Executive of Grain Growers.

OTHER GRAIN PRICES.

First Payment For Barley 35c. and Oats 30c.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26 (C.P.)—The initial payment by the Canadian Wheat Pools on wheat of the 1930-31 crop delivered to-day and hereafter until further notice will be 60 cents a bushel. The advance, announced last night after a long wait for the official statement, is made on the basis of No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

The initial payment now stipulated is a 10-cent drop per bushel from the interim initial payment set on July 15, cut-off date from the 1929-30 crop. The initial payment on rye is placed a 5 cents a bushel more than the July 15 figure, but other grains are to be granted initial payments equal exactly to the amount named in mid-July. The other initial payments, as stated last night for deliveries henceforth, are, per bushel: Barley, No. 3 C.W., 25c; oats, No. 2 C.W., 30c; rye, No. 3 C.W., 35c; and flax, No. 1 N.W., $1.25.

The figure for wheat is 25 cents a bushel below the lowest mark hitherto noted in Wheat Pool records and 40 cents below the initial payment in every year but one. Since the formation of the Wheat Pool in the West seven years ago initial payments on wheat have always been $1, with the exception of 1928, when the heavy crop sent prices down far enough to make necessary placing the initial payment at 85 cents.

NINE ONTARIO BREWERIES ARE TO BE MERGED

Brewing Corporation of Ontario and Canadian Brewing Corporation in Control.

SECOND LARGEST IN CANADA.

Aim is to Stabilize Brewing Industry and Cut Cost of Sales.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—(CP)—A merger involving nine of the principal brewery companies of Canada, under control of the Brewing Corporation of Ontario and Canadian Brewing Corporation Limited, is the basis of an offer to be submitted to the shareholders of the latter company for ratification.

The boards of directors of the two major concerns have agreed on the terms of consolidation, and the offer to the shareholders goes forward immediately with the recommendation of the board. It is understood the new company will be named the Brewing Corporation of Canada.

The properties involved in the transaction are: Dominion Brewing Company, Limited; Toronto Brading Breweries Limited, Ottawa; Grants Spring Brewery, Limited, Hamilton; The Hamilton Brewing Association Limited, Hamilton; Taylor and Bate Limited, St. Catharines; The Kuntz Brewery Limited, Waterloo; British American Company, Limited, Windsor; Kiewell Brewing Company Limited, Winnipeg and Empire Brewing Company, Limited, Brandon.

Second Largest in Canada

It will be the second largest organization of its kind in Canada, handling a large proportion of the total domestic beer business of Ontario, with plants in each of the important center of Ontario and Manitoba.

The members of the board of directors are: K. S. Barnes, Montreal; C. S. Jennison, Montreal; C. S. King, Windsor; G. H. Levy, K. C., Hamilton; C. D. Magee, Toronto; D. J. McDougald, Toronto; C. W. Rowley, Toronto; E. T. Sandell, St. Catharines; E. P. Taylor, Toronto; Lieut. Col. P. B. Taylor Ottawa.

The combined assets of the companies concerned reaches a total in excess of $6,000,000. In a statement C. S. Jennison, chairman of the Board described the purpose of the consolidation as a move toward stabilization of the brewing industry in Ontario, greater economy in the cost of sales and bringing the present process production to the level of requirements.

EPIDEMIC NOT SEEN IN CAMPBELLFORD

School Board Discuss Children's Health—Co-operation of Teachers Asked.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening with the president, Dr. H. O. Richardson, in the chair.

The question of the examination of the children by a school nurse was gone into very thoroughly and discussed from all angles. It was felt that during this season when there is some danger of the spread of infantile paralysis and spinal meningitis that precautions should be taken to protect the children.

Dr. B. Longmore, speaking on the subject, said that as far as he knew no known cases of the dreaded disease had been located in Campbellford. Many rumors had been going the rounds as to cases in town, but so far there was no truth in them.

After much discussion it was moved by Dr. Longmore and seconded by C. M. Benor, that the principals of the schools be asked to hold meetings of the staffs and to ask the teachers to report any symptoms of sickness or any sickness itself, so that action could be taken.

It was also passed, on motion, that the crack in the steps of the Public School be filled in, and reported by W. Henson that the leak that was fixed in the roof of the High School was satisfactory.

A motion was also passed ratifying the action of the Internal Committee in the appointment of Miss Dickson to the staff of the High School.

All the accounts were read and approved.

THE EXAMINER CONTEST ON DOLLAR DAY

Total Number of Beans in the Jar Was 3,326—Special Prize of $10.00 Won This Year.

The regular special estimating contest conducted by The Examiner in conjunction with the Merchants' Twin Dollar Days, proved just as interesting as ever and practically a new lot of winners is announced today.

The correct number of beans in the jar was 3,326 and while no one estimated the exact number there were five estimates of 3,325, only one away and three of 3,327, also only one away. J. A. Robinson had two estimates, one of 3,325 and one of 3,327; Miss Trotter also had two, one of 3,325 and one of 3,227, but contestants are limited to only one prize. R. J. Gillespie of Hall's Bridge while winning a prize with estimate of 3,325 also had another of 3,328, just two from the correct number.

The list of prizes was as follows:

First nearest estimate	$10.00
Second nearest estimate	5.00
Third nearest estimate	4.00
Fourth nearest estimate	3.00
Fifth nearest estimate	2.00
Sixth nearest estimate	1.00
	$25.00
Our special prize of	10.00
	$35.00

As there were eight winners all tied in their estimates the following will each receive $3.13 to be paid on Friday night:—

Mrs. R. Hutchinson, 305 Rubidge street.
Walter Garnett, Indian River.
Miss T. Trotter, 591 Sherbrooke street.
M. Scott, 549 Bethune street.
R. Crowe, Euclid avenue.
Mrs. Jos. Welsh, 313 Reid street.
J. A. Robinson, 505 King street.
R. J. Gillespie, Hall's Bridge.

The special prize of $10.00 offered by The Examiner to the person winning the first prize in the Merchants' contest using an Examiner ticket was won this year, the first time it has been claimed, in some seven or eight years, by Miss J. McCarthy, Simcoe street, who is a tie with others for the first prize in the Merchants' prize list.

The Examiner Estimating Contest always attracts a good deal of interest and helps to make Dollar Day the real success that it is.

ORPHANAGE IS RAZED BY FIRE

Delaware County Home Burns Leaving 100 Children Homeless.

FIREMAN HURT.

DELAWARE, Ohio, August 26. — Fire thought to have originated from defective wiring completely destroyed the Delaware County Children's Home here yesterday. No inmates were injured.

Approximately 100 children, inmates of the home, were left homeless by the blaze.

The fire originated in an upper floor of the home. Many of the children were in the yard when the blaze was discovered about 5 p.m. They turned in the alarm, and employees and older boys brought out others who were inside the building.

Several firemen were injured slightly while fighting the flames, which raged for nearly an hour.

$7,000 VOUCHER STARTS UPROAR IN YORK COUNCIL

Action Seen As Attempt to Frame Members Pushing Probe.

TAKEN FROM VAULT.

Reeve W. J. Dean Denies Threat Been Made on His Life.

TORONTO, Aug. 26.— Mysterious appearance of a $7,000 voucher at Councillor W. A. Toogood's seat in the York Township Council chambers yesterday afternoon gave color to startling rumors yesterday that some person is trying to "frame" members of the council who ordered a judicial probe into township engineering contracts.

There was a ripple of excitement among the members when Councillor Toogood announced his find and demanded to know how it got there. None could explain why it had been removed from the vault in the treasurer's department.

The councillor first noticed the voucher when he took his seat before the arrival of the other councilmen.

He enquired as to who had placed it there, but was unable to discover anything and thought someone intended to draw something about it to his attention.

Later, when the meeting began, he related the finding of the voucher to the rest of the Council members, all of whom denied any connection with it. It was understood that the voucher was for a contract completed last Fall, but the exact nature of the document was not divulged, as it is possible that the finding of it may enter into the probe.

Presence a Mystery

Clerk John Harvey could throw no light on the appearance of the voucher His assistant, John McGuire, could not remember seeing it when he was arranging the Council table several hours previous to the meeting. Similarly, its appearance was inexplicable to members of the treasurer's department. Treasurer C. M. Wrenshall was at a loss to understand how the voucher was missing from the vault, as no one had apparently requested it. He was instructed by Council to investigate.

Asked whether he thought it was a deliberate attempt to put him in an uncomfortable position, he was non-committal. He also added that he had received an anonymous letter, containing a threat, which he had thrown away.

The finding of the receipt for the completed contract climaxed a day of rumors to the effect that unless the judicial probe was "soft pedalled" an organized attempt would be made to prevent the re-election of the council and that even Reeve W. J. Gilbert Dean's life was in danger, though this was denied by the latter.

MISSISSAGA RESERVE CLOSED.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—On account of the serious fire hazard prevailing in the Sault Ste Marie district, the Ontario Government has closed the Mississaga Reserve to travel until the hazard has abated. BRIDE-TO-BE DROWNS.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—Stepping into a deep hole while wading in McGinn Lake at Kinross, Johanna Besteman, 20, bride-to-be, of Hudsonville, was drowned in full sight of 10 other bathers. The body was recovered 20 minutes later.

GRIMSBY YOUTH KILLED BY BOLT TWO ARE INJURED

NO STORM WARNING.

Woodstock Gets Severe Storm —School Badly Damaged.

GRIMSBY, Aug. 26.—Howard Biggar, aged 19, of Grimsby, was instantly killed, and his uncle, Floyd Johnston, also of Grimsby, severely burned and partly paralyzed, while another uncle, Gordon Johnston, was slightly shocked, when lightning hit an apple tree under which the first two named were working late yesterday afternoon.

Gordon Johnston was standing in a barn door about thirty feet away from the tree when it was hit. Biggar and Floyd Johnston were picking peaches on a sorting table under the tree, when, without any warning of an approaching storm, a bolt of lightning hit the tree, killing Biggar instantly. Floyd Johnston was thrown a considerable distance, and was picked up unconscious. Dr. Gesnon rendered first aid, and stated last night that he would recover. Dr. Gordon A. Sinclair, coroner, said no inquest would be held on Biggar.

Another flash of lightning hit a tree on Fairview Avenue, and set the grass on fire, but the blaze was extinguished before any damage resulted. Only a few drops of rain fell in Grimsby, but in the Winona fruitland vicinity the downpour assumed almost cloudburst proportions for a time.

Storm at Woodstock.

WOODSTOCK, Aug. 26.—A severe electrical storm passed over Woodstock about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and much damage was done to city property, when one bolt of lightning caused thousands of dollars damage to Victoria School, burned out a number of telephones, and put a number of factories out of business when the power plants were burned out.

ALL MINISTERS ARE UNOPPOSED IN BY-ELECTIONS

Acclamations Clear Way For Calling Early Session of Parliament.

BENNETT COMING EAST.

Expect Premier to Announce Date After Cabinet Meet Wednesday.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Election by acclamation of Premier R. B. Bennett and 14 of his Ministers in yesterday's by-elections clears the way for calling a session of Parliament to deal with unemployment for early in September.

The date of the opening probably will be announced after a meeting of the Cabinet, now called for Wednesday afternoon, when a quorum of Ontario and Quebec Ministers will have returned to the Capital. Already bound eastward from Calgary, the Prime Minister doubtlessly will communicate his wishes within the next 24 hours or so on the date for convening Parliament. September 10 and September 2 are two of the days likely to be considered.

Only One to Be Elected.

Of the Ministerial slate, only one member in the new Conservative administration—Hon. E. N. Rhodes—now remains to be elected. The Minister of Fisheries will be nominated on Tuesday, September 2, for Richmond-West Cape Breton, and an acclamation is generally conceded. Sir George Perley, Acting Prime Minister, and Hon. J. A. Macdonald (King's, P.E.I.), as Ministers without portfolio, do not have to seek re-election.

Two members-elect in the recent general election—M. D. McLean, in East Kootenay and Dr. J. A. MacDonald in Richmond-West Cape Breton—at their personal offer, were appointed to offices of emolument under the Crown to make way for incoming Ministers. The appointment of Mr McLean created a vacancy in East Kootenay, for which constituency Mr. Stevens will sit; while Mr. Rhodes will offer himself for the seat formerly represented by Dr. MacDonald.

BOOSTING CO-OPERATION IS DIPLOMAT'S REAL JOB, SAYS NEW U. S. MINISTER

CANADIAN ANCESTRY

(Copyright, 1930)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—(Special to The Examiner).—Hanford MacNider, diplomat, soldier, good fellow and minister-designate to Canada, is going to his post at Ottawa impressed with the importance of his mission, full of ardent admiration for Canada and Canadians, and an enthusiastic advocate of international friendliness and co-operation.

"Jack," as his chums call him, is frank, outspoken, clear-thinking, direct. He is in the prime of life, athletic in build, hair thinning a bit, but youthful spirited, vigorous in mind and body.

He talked freely of himself and his conception of the new duties upon which he is entering.

"I was the most surprised man in the world," he said, "when President Hoover offered me this post. I realized at once its tremendous importance and the unique opportunity it afforded for real service. I'll do my best."

"In a sense," he continued, "it is like going back home. My family came from near Belleville. My father's father, Thomas MacNider, was married at Kingston and started family raising in Canada, but moved to Iowa before the job was finished. My father was born in Iowa and so was I, even though I am not much for looks."

"They say Mrs. MacNider makes up for you in that respect," was suggested. "Well, I think so," said Mr. MacNider, "and we have three fine boys, four and a half, three and a half and two and a half.

Family is Scotch.

"About 1848 seven brothers came from the eastern banks of Loch Lomond, Scotland, and landed at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. The MacNiders are of the Macfarlane clan. My great-grandfather, one of them, settled in Ontario. Now you have my family history.

"Yes, I have been in Canada often, but never in Ottawa. I have visited Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, and have been through your West several times. Just pleasure trips, though I have some land in Manitoba.

"Canadians are great people, and are rightly proud of their fine country and justly glory in their historical background.

"I have not seen anyone who will deny the fact that friendship and co-operation with Canada are absolutely necessary for the prosperity and well-being of this country. My great ambition and endeavor will be to promote that friendship and co-operation.

"Now, I have not met Prime Minister Bennett. I did meet Mr. Mackenzie King when he was in Washington a few years ago.

"There are great questions in which our countries are mutually concerned," Mr. MacNider remarked. "The St. Lawrence waterway is one, both from the standpoint of navigation and power. I am not yet familiar with the details, but will make it my business to become informed."

Significance as to Waterway.

This is taken here to indicate the importance which the President attaches to Mr. MacNider's mission to Canada. Talk here insistently links this with Hoover's hope for a beginning of construction on the St. Lawrence waterway during his administration.

"Canada did a particularly fine thing in prohibiting the export of liquor to this country," said Mr. MacNider. "Your action in this regard is a rare example of helpful, unselfish co-operation, an instance of the real friendship that functions even when it costs. I hope my country will approach other international problems in the same generous spirit."

Hanford MacNider is a soldier. He has been national commander of the American Legion and has been, and is, intimately associated with the activities of that organization.

PLANE HITS CHURCH CROSS

LONDON, Aug. 26. (C.P.) — The churchwardens of Holy Trinity, Henley, have issued an appeal for information concerning an aeroplane which they allege in flying low over the church displaced a large stone cross surmounting the bell turret and also damaged the lightning conductor.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

THE ALLIGATOR NEEDN'T THINK.

From the purely animal point of view the alligator might be regarded as leading "the life of Reilly."

If he is sufficiently distant from civilization to be undisturbed by the human habit of killing things for the sake of killing, he can get all he wants to eat, a comfortable place to sleep, and plenty of sunlight in which to bask through a life which sometimes extends for 3,000 years.

He is large enough to protect himself against the foes which terrorize the fish in his stream and the birds and the animals along the bank.

He can eat at one meal enough to last him for a long time. And food is usually at hand.

So there is never any strain on that brain of his, which, despite his great size, occupies a space in his skull which would hardly accommodate a croquet ball.

Even if the alligator had an intelligent brain and could use it, he would have had to get out of the way of the march of progress.

It is not his lack of intellect which is destroying him, but the fact that population is spreading into the country he inhabits, and that very soon there will be no room for him.

Probably in your grandchildren's time he will be as extinct as the dodo and the great auk.

As long as he remains he will still be free from the necessity of thought, still well enough equipped with teeth to provide him food, and with rivers under which to disappear silently when a really dangerous foe comes along.

Now the purpose of this article is not to convince the reader that he ought to be like the alligator and has reason to blame creation because he is not outfitted in the same fashion.

Men do need to think.

They had to think in the dawn of history to protect themselves against wild animals.

They had to think through the ages to protect themselves against tyrants.

And because they had to think, through generation after generation, their brains have grown larger and of better quality, and to-day men are capable of enjoying life as it should be enjoyed.

There is still a great deal of thinking to do before we get rid of wrong and cruelty and war.

But it will be done, and there will be plenty of enjoyment in the doing.

The power of thought is a great blessing and without it life would not be worth living for man, though the alligator would be perfectly satisfied.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Just recently I have discovered that there are two types of "company meals."

• • • • • • •

Perhaps you think that I am a bit backward and I must confess I really am sometimes, but let me discuss this subject to-day, anyway.

• • • • • • •

One type of "company meals" is prepared as a feast, when special delicacies are set forth for the enjoyment of guests. The work involved may be arduous, but the event warrants the labor.

• • • • • • •

Many a special occasion deserves to be celebrated with the best one's larder can afford, made into the most delectable concoctions the housewife's culinary skill can produce.

• • • • • • •

Labor is not a matter of importance in this case.

• • • • • • •

A homemaker takes delight in preparing such a meal for her guests or even for her own family. Sometimes it is a returned member of the family who has been long absent, who is made ready for as a guest.

• • • • • • •

Then there are there when the preparation must be continued to a series of special occasion meals, when fatigue looms instead of pleasure as the chief result.

• • • • • • •

When a homemaker has guests in the home whom she must consider as requiring specially elaborate meals three times a day, the guests are not classed as pleasure-giving company.

• • • • • • •

The second type of "company meals" comes as a relief from such thoughts.

• • • • • • •

The meals are especialy prepared to save the homemaker's time and thereby enable her to enjoy the company in leisure moments.

• • • • • • •

The menus require careful planning, for saving time rather than for elaborateness. Simplicity is stressed, but not thrift.

• • • • • • •

Should it be apparent that the task of preparing the food has been slight, that should make a guest glad since it indicates that her companionship was sought, and labor lightened to procure it.

• • • • • • •

Otherwise hostess and guest, although under the same roof, could not enjoy the anticipated talks and exchange of ideas.

• • • • • • •

In this simplified method of preparing company meals the homemaker should be careful to honor her guests with home cooking. Those whom we invite to our table deserve to have homemade edibles set before them.

• • • • • • •

In some instances part of the cooking can be done prior to the arrival of the guest. But in many cases there are fortunately innumerable menus of delicious foods that require the minimum of time to prepare.

• • • • • • •

The occasions for elaborate "company meals" and simple ones are so different that a hostess will have no difficulty in knowing when to serve the former and when the latter.

NEW GAS PISTOL

BERLIN, Aug. 26. (C.P.)— The Prussian police are henceforth to be armed with a novel kind of pistol with which successful experiments have recently been made. The pistol it is said, discharges a gas bullet which spreads a cloud of gas and irritates the mucous membranes to such an extent that the victim becomes helpless and in a short time unconscious, but otherwise suffers no injury.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SAFETY FOR TUBERCULOSIS PATIENTS.

One of the usual symptoms in tuberculosis is the feeling the patient has that he is getting better and is sure to get well.

Now this is helpful, of course, because it means "hopefulness" on the part of patient, and hope is a great aid to recovery.

However, this hopefulness, this feeling that he is getting better, may cause the patient to take chances with his health that may prove disastrous.

Often, also, he so influences his physician by his encouraging statements about how good he feels, that the physician may allow him more liberty of action than is wise.

The X-ray may show a partial clearing up of the lung condition, there may be some increase in weight, and the temperature be almost at normal, and with the patient's assertions that he is feeling so much better, a little exercise is permitted.

Sometimes the results of this exercise are beneficial but often the patient was really not in as good shape as he thought he was, and his recovery is delayed some months.

It is therefore gratifying to know that further experimenting with the 'sedimentation' test of the blood has proven its effectiveness as an actual guide to the patient's condition.

This is the length of time it takes for the red blood corpuscles of the patient's blook to sink to the bottom of the vessel into which it has been drawn.

Dr. D. M. Dunlop, Edinburgh, examined the blood of thirty individuals suffering from various types of tuberculosis, in varying stages of severity, and also the blood of five healthy individuals.

He found that the length of time it took the corpuscles to sink gave an exact record of the condition of the patient. The shorter the time the more severe or serious was the condition of the patient.

Drs. J. W. Cutler and L. Cohen, Eagleville, Pa., studied this sedimentation test in 500 patients, all of whom came to the dispensary before going to the tuberculosis sanitarium, or after they had been discharged as cured.

They believe that the sedimentation test is the most valuable single means of knowing just how active the tuberculosis is. They estimate that it is exactly right in 94 per cent. of the cases.

This test shows the general disturbance in the body caused by the tuberculosis.

This means then that even if a patient says he feels good, and that he knows he is improving, this test tells the doctor exactly his condition, and whether it is improving or growing worse.

It is gratifying to know that there is now this safe means of estimating the patient's condition.

A Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

"UNCLE WIGGILY'S BABY BATH."

"Come on! Come on! Everybody in the water!" cried Buster.

"That's right! Everybody jump in!" yelled his brother Custer.

"Don't let the boys beat us! Come on, Jingle!" called Jangle to her twin sister.

"I'm not going to be last!" murmured Baby Bunty and the little orphan rabbit child started hopping down the sands toward the salty ocean.

"Tum on! We go in otter!" mumbled Tootsie.

"Ess," said her little twin sister Wootsie.

They couldn't talk very well, these very newest members of Uncle Wiggily's big family, but Tootsie and Wootsie, tiny as they were, could do as they saw their older brothers and sisters doing, and away they hopped toward the sea.

Uncle Wiggily had brought his family to the shore to live in a seaweed bungalow during the hot weather. They had motored from Woodland near the Orange Ice Mountains one hot night. They had gotten stuck in the sand, some of the little bunnies had plopped out of the car and then Uncle Wiggily dug a cave in which they stayed until he could build the seaweed bungalow. Mr. Bow Wow, the dog gentleman, who has also come to the shore with his family, helped Uncle Wiggily.

And now, on this, their first morning near the sea, down to the salty ocean hopped all the little rabbit children, in their cute red, green and yellow bathing suits, ready for a dip in the waves. There was a race to see who would be the first in, and Buster won. The others quickly followed him, splashing into the water.

"Isn't it lovely for the darlings?" murmured Mrs. Longears who sat with Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy in front of the seaweed bungalow.

"Wonderful," agreed the muskrat lady housekeeper. Then, all of a sudden she screamed and rushed toward the foaming waves.

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily as he hopped around the corner with a sand pail and shovel.

"Look!" cried Nurse Jane. "A big wave knocked over Tootsie and Wootsie and they're rolling on the sand. Oh, they'll be drowned!"

It was true that a big wave knocked down the little baby rabbits, but Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow who were also in swimming, rushed to pull Tootsie and Wootsie up the beach and out of the way of other waves, so the little twins were soon safe, though they were crying. For they had swallowed too much water and some had gotten in their eyes. Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears picked the darlings up in their paws.

"I don't—don't like it here!" sobbed Tootsie.

"Bad ole wocean!" sobbed Wootsie.

"They are too little to go bathing in the rough waves with the others," said Nurse Jane.

"Indeed they are!" agreed Mrs. Longears as she dried their little pink noses. "Isn't there some safer part of the beach where our little ones may bathe, Wiggy?" she asked her husband.

"Why, I'll try to find one," answered the rabbit gentleman. "Or I'll make a special bath tub for Tootsie and Wootsie. How would that be? A special little bath tub all for themselves."

"Oh, 'at's 'ice," lisped Tootsie, meaning it was nice.

"Yes, I'll make you a bath tub right out here on the sand where you will be safe from the big waves," promised Uncle Wiggily.

"How are you going to make a bath tub in the sand?" asked Nurse Jane. "If you dig a hole in the sand and fill it with water it runs out about as fast as you pour it in. The bath will be dry."

"Not the baby bath I am going to make!" said Mr. Longears laughing.

He hopped down the beach until he found a clam shell as large as a wash tub. To this big shell the rabbit gentleman tied a long rope made of sea weed twisted together and then, with the help of his wife and Nurse Jane, he hauled the shell up the sand out of reach of even the highest of the big waves. Digging with his paws, Uncle Wiggily made a hole in the sand and the big clam shell was pushed into this so it would not slip.

"Now fill it with water!" cried Mr Longears. Jingle Jangle, Baby Bunty and all the others, even Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow took tin pails, dipped them full of sea water as the waves rolled in and soon the clam shell bath for the baby rabbits was filled. No water ran out.

"Pop in," cried the jolly daddy of Tootsie and Wootsie. The little rabbits, in their cute bathing suits, popped into the ocean water that sparkled in the big shell. It was a lovely bath for them and no big waves could roll in to knock them down. So they splashed away, having lovely fun while the other rabbit boys and girls jumped into the surf. And they had a happy time.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

SANCTUARY

In the streets there is noise unending,
There is tumult and strife and din,
With sound to the skies ascending;
But here it cannot creep in.
For the walls of the temple shield me
From the clamor of strident sound
And here is a glimpse revealed me
Of peace and its bliss profound.

In the world there are toils and troubles
And the stress of great loads men bear,
The worry that mounts and doubles share;
But the temple is shut to sorrow,
Here is never an angry note,
Here is calm which the soul may borrow
With the cares of the throng remote.

So I come to your presence knowing
That my need will be met and fed,
With the wine of the spirit flowing,
With the food that is more than bread.

A FITTING TRIBUTE.

An outstanding feature of the British Empire games has been the splendid spirit of sportsmanship that has distinguished every contest, the games providing a refreshing revelation of the British attitude toward athletic prowess, which puts the stress upon playing the game and not upon victory.

It is singularly appropriate, therefore, that the Canadian Legion should have seized upon the opportunity to pay a tribute to such an attitude by honoring J. D. Beresford, the British oarsman whose display of sportsmanship in the Diamond Sculls when he waited for Joe Wright to recover after missing a stroke and thereby lost a chance to win himself, is still fresh in everybody's mind.

Fitting, too, was the presentation to the English sculler of a Canadian canoe, a gift that will be particularly appreciated by such a lover of aquatic sports as Mr. Beresford.

Canadians generally will hope that he will spend many happy hours in this trim Canadian craft, and that it will serve to remind him of the fact that the people of Canada appreciate the spirit that refused to accept victory through the misfortune of a competitor.

ONTARIO'S JAILS CONDEMNED.

Of especial interest among the many sections of the report of the Commission on Public Welfare is that dealing with Ontario's jail system, a section that makes articulate the feeling of many people in this Province who have long realized that there is much in connection with Ontario's jails that calls for improvement.

The commissioners have not spared any of the weaknesses of the system—in fact, provincial jails come in for a slashing attack in the report which describes them as "the most difficult feature of our social system" and as "inferior in nearly every sense of the word."

"Almost their only merit," says the commissioners, "is that they have four walls inside which people are confined."

The fault, of course, does not lie with the jail officials, but with the system that has long been followed, which makes little attempt to classify prisoners and provides almost nothing in the line of employment for jail inmates, the greater number of which spend their period of confinement in idleness.

In addition, many of the jails in Ontario were built many years ago and are inadequate and obsolete, lacking proper sanitary conveniences and bathing facilities, and being deficient in other respects.

Radical indeed is one of the suggestions advanced by the commission that the Government should take over the jail responsibility, abolish all the present jails, and substitute half a dozen under Government management, charging to each municipality the cost of prisoners coming from those municipalities.

STEPS TO PROVIDE WORK.

The dozen suggestions prepared by the Employment Service Council of Canada as a result of its conference at Ottawa should be of great assistance to the Government in preparing its unemployment program for the special session of Parliament to be held next month.

Delegates to the Council have shown a proper realization of the seriousness of the problem, and deserve thanks for the earnestness with which they tackled the various angles of the question.

Among other things, the Council suggests the immediate commencement of public works of a permanent nature by federal, provincial and municipal authorities; the extra cost to be shared by all three bodies, who are asked to use their influence with private corporations and individuals to carry on contemplated construction.

Furthermore, all government bodies are urged to place as many advance orders for supplies as possible.

Other suggestions include the appropriation of funds for unemployment relief at the coming special session of Parliament; a survey of imports with a view to ascertaining what percentage of these are or could be made or produced in this country, and the continuation of the present immigration policy of the Government.

Undoubtedly these recommendations will prove useful to the Minister of Labor upon whose shoulders much of the responsibility for providing an adequate program of unemployment relief has been piled.

A MEATY REPORT.

The Royal Commission on Public Welfare appointed by the Ontario Government last October to investigate the charitable and corrective institutions of the Province evidently did not go at its task in any half-hearted or perfunctory spirit.

Its findings comprise a report that will give the Government much about which to think, and include many recommendations that will sooner or later be acted upon by the Government, although the proposed changes are sweeping and the full program would entail expenditures running into many millions.

While the public may not agree with everything proposed by the commissioners, there will be a ready admittance that Mr. P. D. Ross, of Otttwa, the chairman, and his associates have made a most exhaustive inquiry, and that most of what they have developed is of great public value and importance.

Notable recommendations include a modernization of the present jail system, extensive additions to charitable and corrective institutions, the provision of a cancer hospital, the establishment of a mental institution in Northern Ontario, the formation of a department of public welfare, the making of general hospitals a charge upon the municipal and provincial governments, a lowering of the cost of nursing and radium treatment, and the raising of public revenue to defray hospital costs by means of a tax on meals costing more than one dollar, as is already done in the Province of Quebec.

The Ontario Government will undoubtedly seek to implement a number of these recommendations through legislation to be submitted at the next session of the Legislature.

NEWSPAPERS—OLD AND NEW.

The Victoria Colonist, a very excellent and well conducted paper from the news as well as from the editorial point of view, has an article on the change which has taken place in newspapers. One feature of this, it truly remarks, is the decline in interest aroused by parliamentary debates. There was a time when such news, and, we might add, political platform speeches, practically monopolized the space. Now these are of secondary importance, and, says the Colonist, "the newspapers have made it so." Incidentally, it goes on to remark that shorthand, once considered to be indispensable in a newspaperman's equipment, is no longer a necessary part of it. In fact, in the ordinary routine of news gathering and reporting it is an impediment rather than an adjunct. If we may further explain, the reporter now seeks to get the essential parts of a man's speech or interview. The newspaper of to-day may be compared in a sense to a departmental store, in which different kinds of news are served up on different counters.

The number of things in which readers are interested is so diverse and numerous that there must be organization and classification of news, so that different tastes may be quickly and conveniently satisfied. But all this is not a reflection on the old-fashioned newspaper, and the Colonist does not fairly realize that or do justice to it. Journalism is an evolution and has developed according to the requirements of its readers, neither faster nor slower, and it does not follow that old-time newspapers were a whit less enterprising than those of to-day. They depended largely on individual effort to get news which to-day is supplied by such organizations as the Canadian Press.

When telegraphy was first brought into requisition, telegraph tolls were very high, and only the larger and richer newspapers could afford to pay them, and the use was greatly restricted as a consequence and to events of unusual importance. Now we have co-operative leasing of telegraph wires and the use of automatic telegraph printers.

After the Atlantic Cable was successfully operated in 1864 or 1865, a new era began, in that newspapers, who could afford it, began to publish news received by cable. Prior to that all news came to America by mail packet and was necessarily very slow in reaching its destination. But cable rates at first were almost prohibitive so far as news was concerned. The first to take advantage of them was the New York Herald. The editor and proprietor, James Gordon Bennett, spent what would now be considered enormous sums in getting European cable dispatches, and his feats of enterprise in that respect were considered almost prodigious. All that gradually changed, and we have complex and comparatively cheap cable services utilizing the Seven Seas of the world.

But there were other features of old-time journalism, say, in Canada. Fifty or sixty years ago, diversions were few as compared with to-day, and business and other activities correspondingly so. Interest was more largely centred in politics than anything else, and long reports of parliamentary doings and political speeches, all reported in short hand, were almost as eagerly read as the sporting news of to-day, or the news of extraordinary happenings. And, talking of sporting news, it is interesting to know that the sporting page, now a feature of every paper on the continent, was first established in the Toronto Mail about forty years ago, and a well-known sporting writer of that day, the genial Mr. Harry Good, was responsible for it. He made it very popular and it was soon a feature of all daily newspapers. It is, therefore, not quite accurate to say, as the Colonist does, that "the interminable verbiage which the Hansard records belongs to the Hansard, and not to the public press. It took many years for the newspapers to discover this." What happened to be news years ago happens to be not the kind of news the people want to-day; but in a general way the Canadian press has always kept up to the demands of its readers.

The Colonist quotes John Malcolm Bulloch, a British literary critic, who states that the change in journalism has also its paradoxical side. He says the pivot of the world is the parish pump; in other words, purely local news has the greatest appeal. And this is explained thus:

> "The reason why small local papers flourish alongside their national contemporaries is because of their domestic news. Mr. Bulloch says there is a much bigger story in a street accident in your own town than in a pitched battle in a foreign country. What also should be remembered is that people, more and more, are demanding news about actual happenings. They are caring less about what people say, for it is only on the rarest occasions that people say something new or anything worth treasuring in the mind."

Which is simply another way of saying that, notwithstanding all the mutations of time and circumstance, the world still remains very human, and clings to the things in news, as otherwise, that influence immediate surroundings and, like the weather, form the subject of daily gossip.—Ottawa Journal.

The Office Hound

We have a letter from a young lady—dated Sunday....the letter, not the young lady. Unless the letter is very misleading, the young lady is anything but dated. However, she hides under the cloak of "Mademoiselle X" and takes us for a pretty little ride. Whether she is the elusive Miss Dollar or not, we cannot say; but we print the letter in full because it is probably more amusing than anything we could say.

O——H

And in the doldrums of mid-August we'd print a page from the telephone directory if it would give us that extra hour on the wilds of the miniature golf course....God's wide open spaces, where men are men—until they miss a two-foot putt.

O——H

Dear Andre:

I take my pen in hand—excuse me, I notice on second glance that it's a pencil—a very nice pencil, too,—a "No. 2 Soft," a "Black Knight." Don't you think that's an adorable name for a pencil? You see, no matter where I go, I am accompanied by a black knight! I mentioned this to my young brother and he asked me if he was a gentleman of color! Really, the rising generation is almost unendurable. Now, in my salad days—but that's another story, as dear Shakespeare remarks.

And, anyways, as I was about to digress—in regard to your detective mystery story—or should one say "with regard" instead? One can't be too particular about the nicities of speech. Do you agree with me? I am sure you do. It gave me quite a thrill to hear dear Polly Moran struggling along with her 'vocal-berry," as she called it, in "Caught Short." Her talk was so refreshing!

Well—about the murder. You can't imagine how I felt when I read about it in your colyum. The description of the victim was so detailed that I could almost see the poor man lying there covered by the noon edition. There seems to me to be some significance about his preferring the noon edition as a pall. Do you suppose it might have been a case of suicide caused by his name's having been omitted from an account of a threshing-bee or barn-raising? Do you agree with me? I am sure you do. I just know you have a very sympathetic nature, and a soulful temperment. Tell me, have you large, dreamy eyes?

But to get back to our mutton—or murder, rather,—and that single policeman. Now, I regard a single policeman as a most unfortunate occurrence. According to the Scriptures, man was not meant to live alone. Of course, St. Paul did not care much for the ladies, but then he was a misogynist, as everyone knows. Don't you agree with me? I am sure you do. And of course, he was greatly pestered by Thecla. She followed him around and must have worn the poor man's temper to a frazzle.

But about the policeman:—In the interests of public safety, single officers of the law should not be tolerated. Suppose he were called upon suddenly to identify a drowned lady, and he had to describe her clothes. Could he do it? Could he tell the difference between tricotine and agrbadine? Would be know whether she was a squab or a stylsh stout? Could he say for a certainty whether she used chair or rachelle powder? I'll say he couldn't. So you can plainly see where he is liable, being unmarried, to fall lown on the job at any moment.

Now, I am considered quite good-looking by my friends and passable by my enemies. I have a head of beautifully-waved blonde hair. I just had a permanent a week ago and the man said it would last a month when I paid him the $2.50 for it. And I have only two teeth that aren't my own and they are on a bridge. I always keep my complexion right up to date with the latest shades in cosmetics. I am five feet, eleven inches tall, and wear size five, triple A, shoes. I have languishing clear blue eyes and small hands.

Now if you, dear Andre, would like to help along a Real Romance, you might just tell the policeman that I will meet him on the corner of George and Simcoe streets between eight and half past (D.S.T.) any evening this week. I could tell him for sure if he would wear a pink rose. But if the Chief objects to a P.C. dolling up, tell him just to put his hat on sideways and I'll spot him.

I'll be carrying a handbag with a bottle of dandruff lotion, a pair of steel arch-supports, and a cure for bromidosis. I believe, dear Andre, in helping those we love. Don't you agree with me? I am sure you do.

Yours hopefully,
MADEMOISELLE X.

P.S.—I just wanted to say I don't mind his being fresh—not in the least. I think a policeman, like any other sort of an egg ought to be fresh. Do you agree with me?

O——H

I am sure, dear Mademoiselle, I do.

O——H

And in the morning mail we have another epistle, to wit:
dear hound:

Was that supposed to be the end of your mystery story today? or is there more? and what is the meaning of "denoun cement"—see saturday's hound. henrietta.

O——H

Yes, Henrietta, that—contrary to all indications—was the end. And in addition to being our favorite typesetter's version of "denouement" the thing "denoun cement' is the material used to hold a story together.

O——H

And in the meantime we anxiously await a reply from our friend, the single policeman. If he resists the blonde Mademoiselle, he's a better man than we are, Gunga Din.

—Andre.

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

He left me to finish dressing, and ponder over this fresh development. It undoubtedly was a point to bear in mind; and if he was correct it accounted for a great deal. More than likely words spoken in the little room below, even in a low tone, would be heard perfectly distinctly by anyone listening in just above the chimney.

"John is coming to lunch," he said as I joined him below. "Moreover, he is bringing the plan of Temple Tower. And that is another point, Peter, which is going to have a bearing on the situation. The possession of that plan is a very big asset in our favour. For without it, as far as I can see, no one is going to get inside the house. Our friend of the Marshes may get inside the grounds, but there he will stick."

"Here he is. Morning, John. Got the necessary?"

"I have not," said the other coming into the hall. "Look here, Hugh, you didn't play a damn fool practical joke on me last night, did you?"

"Not that I'm aware of," he answered. "Why?"

"You remember that plan I was telling you about—the one of Temple Tower?"

"I do," said Hugh sitting up suddenly. "You were going to bring it over this morning."

"I know I was. And I haven't, for a very good reason. Someone broke into Laidley Towers last night, and stole it."

CHAPTER V.

In Which we Come to the Wood at Temple Tower.

For a while we stared at him in silence, and at that moment Freckles came down and joined us.

"You're certain, John," said Hugh at length, "that it isn't hidden away in a drawer somewhere?"

"Of course I'm certain, old man," answered the other. "The darned thing was framed, and it used to hang in a corner of the hall. When I went to get it this morning it wasn't there. I sent for the butler, and he swore on his Bible oath that it was there yesterday. Besides, there is more to it than that. It appeared that when we were at dinner last night, a man called to see me. One of the footmen answered the door, and told him that I had a party. The man looked all right apparently, and when he said that he would wait and that I was not to be disturbed on any account, the footman showed him into a room off the hall. Then the darned fool forgot all about him for some time. As soon as he remembered he went back to the room, and found that the bird had gone. He made a hurried survey, and when, as far as he could see, nothing was missing, he decided that his best policy was to say nothing about it. Of course when I found out what had happened, I gave him hell. He was very contrite about it: assured me again and again that the man had looked like a gentleman: that he had driven up in a car and all that. But when it came to describing him to me it was hopeless. He gave a description that would fit a hundred people And all he could really say was that he would know him again if he saw him."

"It just bears out what we were saying, Peter," said Hugh thoughtfully. "Where were we discussing the plan? Why, in the little room again. And we were overheard there. It stands to reason. An old plan of Temple Tower is of no earthly value to anybody, unless they are connected with this business. A pony to a tanner it is the woman. By the way, John, I suppose it wasn't our bearded friend who visited you?"

"Not unless he'd shaved off his beard. Even my mutton-headed poop would have noticed that amount of face fungus. But there is one rather important point, which I forgot to tell you yesterday. The plan was framed, and on the back of it is some writing. And that writing gives the clue to the secret entrance. The plan, of course, shows where it is approximately, but without the writing at the back you can't get in."

"And you haven't any idea what is written there?" I asked.

"Not the remotest. Dash it, old boy! I was only about eleven years old at the time."

"As you say, John, that is very important," said Hugh. "Because what it boils down to as far as I can see is that unless the bloke that pinched it takes it out of the frame it is useless to him."

"That's about the long and the short of it," agreed the other.

"Gosh! You fellows," cried Hugh, "I'd give something to see a little daylight in this. Anyway, let's go and gnaw a bone."

And all through lunch we argued it backwards and forwards. Was it the man we had seen at Spragge's Farm who had stolen the plan, or was it, perhaps, Jean Picot the chauffeur?

"That's a point, John," said Hugh. "Go and ring up your place and find out if the footman can say what sort of a car it was the man came in. See if he remembers the colour that might help."

But again we drew blank. The car had not been left at the front door, and the man had no idea on the subject.

"The more I see of it, Scott," said Hugh as we finished lunch, "the more do I think that the first real daylight we shall get is from Miss Verney. I want you and Peter to be there from two to three this afternoon, in case she gets a note over the wall. I'm going to turn in for a couple of hours, and then this evening our work really begins."

"The Marsh again?" asked Freckles.

"No, young fellow—Temple Tower," said Hugh gravely. "If anybody gets inside that wall we're going to follow."

And so two o'clock found Freckles and me ensconced in the little wood which lay opposite the front gate. Hugh had turned in. John James had returned to Laidley Towers with the definite intention of getting some kit and then coming back to the house. As he pointed out, it was his plan, and if there was any fun and laughter going begging, he was going to have a dip at it.

Not unnaturally, the boy was a bit on edge, and I certainly didn't blame him. All that we could see of the house was the tower the rest of it was hidden by the wall. And in the hot, drowsy afternoon the whole place looked more like a prison than ever. Even to me it was so gloomy as to be depressing, and I hadn't got my fiancee inside.

We hardly talked at all, and when we did for some reason or other, we found ourselves whispering. Save for the drone of countless insects, the silence was absolute: even the birds seemed stricken dumb. Once a farm waggon creaked slowly by, the driver half asleep but except for that the road was deserted. And after a while Freckles began to doze.

I suppose I mus have followed his example, because I distinctly remember that I had a brief vivid dream of the beast-faced man at Spragge's Farm. And then, quite suddenly, I was wide awake. Something had moved not far away, and the sound had roused me. I sat up and glanced at my watch: it was a quarter to three. I looked at Freckles: he was sleeping peacefully. Then I stared round me: what was the noise I had heard?

A NEW PROBLEM IN UNEMPLOYMENT.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Your editorial in last night's Examiner, I think, was splendid. I myself being one of the large number of men idle because they are no longer young. Not past work, Mr. Editor, if given the chance to do it. I agree with you that probably we could not follow up road work or rough construction work, but there are lots of jobs even in this small city that we could do if given the opportunity. If the employers feel they must give preference to younger men, I for one have no kick against the young man. We know he has got to live as well as the rest of us, but I notice the young man is even taking a job that always was the middle-aged man's, or come to that old man's job, the night watchman. Now I contend there is a job that could absorb a few middle-aged, not-past-work men. Nearly all night watchmen's hours in factories are 13 hour shifts, 6 p.m. to 7 a.m., seven nights per week, 91 hours per week. Why not make two shifts of that class of work. I have heard night watchman at several factories say it's like being in prison seven nights a week, 13 hours per night. A double shift could easily be made of that class of employment, say from 6 p.m. till 12.30 midnight, from 12.30 midnight till 7 a.m.

While I admit this would not help all the middle-aged men, I think another good thing would be to make the pensionable age of our old-age pension system 60 years of age, and make it contributory, deduct so much per week out of wages, employer as well; if he wants to stand men out in the prime of life, let him do his share to keep them after he thinks they are of no further use to him.

I trust, Mr. Editor, you will find space in your paper for this, and hoping that some more able pen than mine will feel inclined to give opinions on this new unemployed problem. Yours faithfully,

One of the Idle Because He Is No Longer Young.

What To-day Means To You.

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU. "Virgo."

If August 26 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 8.30 p.m., and from 10.30 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8.30 a.m. to 9.30 a.m., and from 1 p.m. to 2.30 p.m.

Dynamic astrological influences will play on your life this date, stimulating activities, arousing emotions, and crowding events one upon another. Concentration will be difficult—postpone important business transactions.

Children born on this August 26 will be temperamental, and will have poor self-control. They will be excessively gay, affectionate, or attentive to work, and then suddenly, for no apparent reason, they will become miserable, unfriendly, lazy or angry. They will be nervous and high strung.

Your modesty is the most pronounced characteristic which you possess. You profit from all the virtues of this trait, but you are also handicapped by its defects. It makes you a shy, gentle, lovable being, but not a forceful one. It has given you refinement, in tastes and manners, and has made your ambitions simple. On the other hand, it has made you draw into your shell too much to give the world a chance to properly judge your merits. You lothe publicity, notoriety or being made conspicuous. Flattery embarrasses you greatly, although you are not ungrateful for honest praise.

You are a deep thinker, a thorough student, and a keen worker. You are not boastful of your knowledge, and you do not seek it for display. If you have access to books, you are happy and not lonely. You have to be put at your ease with people before you enjoy them, or are like yourself. You never under any conditions feel yourself a superior being, although you are superior in so many respects. You are capable of admiring and loving people very much, but the subjects of your esteem are often unaware of its existence. You should not suppress your finer emotions as much as you do. You would be happier, if you could be freer and more spontaneous with those who are near and dear to you. You have a good ear for music and languages.

A Thought

SOCIAL EVILS

There are few commoner and few sillier phrases than the one which says that you cannot cure great social evils by pious talk and that preaching is no use in the practical affairs of life. If by "pious talk" and preaching" mere aimless invective is meant, there may be some truth in the statements quoted. But if the efforts to educate the public mind, and to create a healthy public opinion, are meant, we may safely say that great social evils are never cured, nor the practical affairs of life improved, by any other means.—Canon Peter Green.

THOMAS LAYING PLANS FOR TRADE

EXCLUDES OUTSIDERS.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 26.—(C.P.)—A plan whereby Great Britain would purchase in bulk primary products from the Dominions and providing for the exclusion of competing commodities from other countries, is being prepared by Rt. Hon. H. J. Thomas, Secretary of Dominion Affairs for submission at the forthcoming Imperial Conference, according to the Financial Times.

The Financial Times further says that this plan is based on complete monopoly and is intended to stabilize demand and encourage investment of British funds in developing the Dominions.

It is further proposed, the Journal declares, to buy commodities produced in the Dominions on a participating scheme. Publicity undertakings would be established, one to handle wool from South Africa and Australia, one for wheat from Canada, and another meat and other staple commodities.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT GIVEN IN CANAL TRAGEDY

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—A verdict of accidental death was returned last night by a coroner's jury in the case of Richard Flint, 30, and James Foreman, 21, who lost their lives when the motor car which Flint was driving and in which Foreman was a passenger, plunged into the Michigan Soo Power Canal at 11 o'clock last Wednesday evening and was not recovered until forty hours later, half a mile from where it entered the water.

The verdict said that Foreman died from drowning and Flint from drowning and dislocation of the neck.

No trace of alcohol was found in the system of either young men.

In the last 10 years nearly 230,000 passengers have crossed the English Channel by air.

NICKEL SELLS UNDER 22 MARK

Softness of List Leaders Mirrors General Tone of the Market.

NICKEL TURNOVER LIGHT.

TORONTO, August 26 (C.P.). — Brazilian Traction sank to a new low for the year and longer on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, touching 31 where it was a point below last night. Volume was comparatively heavy on the reaction.

International Nickel sold under 22 and the rights touched a low of 8. The softness in these leaders mirrored the general tone of the market. Gypsum, City Dairy, Consolidated Bakeries, Canadian Canners, Page-Hersey Tubes, Walkers, Service Stations, were other well-known stocks to lose from a small fraction to one point. The turnover in Nickel stock was light and trading in other stocks was also very slow. The rights, however, were again active.

Massey-Harris was able to resist pressure and Ford of Canada A also held unchanged. Oils were less resilient to-day, International Petroleum dipping under 18, B.A. Oil selling down to 15½ and Imperial just keeping up its front.

MOURNED DEAD, BROTHER IS ALIVE

Kingston Woman Hears of Brother Who Went to South African War.

IS IN CALGARY.

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—Mourned as dead for more than twenty years, during which time no word has been received of him, Mrs. T. C. Marshall of this city this morning received word that her brother, Frederick La Bonte, is alive and well and living in Calgary.

Mr. La Bonte had gone to the South African war, and on his return went West. Word was received more than twenty years ago that he had died, and since then nothing was heard of him, and it was really believed that he had passed away.

Mr. Fred Hebert of the local post office staff and Mrs. Marshall's brother-in-law, in attending a convention in Calgary, saw Mr. La Bonte and spoke to him, discovering that he was the brother of Mrs. Marshall, and this morning Mrs. Marshall received word from Mr. Hebert of the discovering of the long-long mourned brother.

TWO ON HALIFAX HARBOR COMMISSION RESIGN

HALIFAX, N.S., August 26 (C.P.). —Charles W. Ackhurst and John Murphy, members of the Halifax Harbor Commission, issued a joint statement to-day announcing that they had resigned. The Commissioners said they had sent their resignations to the Minister of Marine to take effect at the pleasure of the Governor-in-Council. In their statement the retiring Commissioners said the interests of the harbor made it necessary that the incoming administration be given ample time to take over the work, and the statement said, "We understand that the Government is prepared to name a new Board of Commissioners."

Peter R. Jack, who was chairman of the Commission, resigned when he accepted nomination in Halifax County as a candidate in the last Dominion election. He was defeated at the polls. The Halifax Harbor Commission was formed in 1928.

3 YEARS FOR CAR THEFT

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Clarence Eastman, 19 years of age, was to-day sentenced to three years in Portsmouth Penitentiary by Magistrate Burbidge, when convicted of stealing an automobile.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 26 (Special to The Examiner).—Wheat yesterday was a featureless affair with prices during the major part of the session being unchanged to one cent. lower. The local market acted heavy yesterday and about the only thing that saved the market from recording further losses was the relative firmness in Chicago. There was very little outside business but Chicago was buying our December from time to time in a moderate way. Outside of a little hedging pressure there offerings were not heavy, but the local trade appeared to be on both sides of the market with a certain amount of commission house buying on the dips. Export sales over week-end were quite small and disappointing being confined to a few odd scattered loads, which was worked by the Pool. Ideal weather prevails over Western Canada for harvesting operations, wheat cutting is now general and considerable threshing is being done and indications are that yields generally are better than expected generally speaking. This would seem to indicate that hedging sales will increase from now on and consequently that much more difficulty to hold present price levels although wheat prices yesterday are considered quite cheap. The local cash market was dull and draggy and while offerings continued light, sales were confined to a few odd scattered loads, which traded at unchanged spreads. On Passage Statement increased 2,120,000 bushels, out of a total worlds shipments of 17,416,000 bushels indicating a good consumptive demand abroad. The Canadian visible decreased 3,867,000 bushels. Winnipeg closed about on the bottom and showed losses of 1 cent to ⅝ from the close on Saturday. Continue to advise sales on all moderate upturns.

Coarse Grains

These markets were all weak largely in sympathy with a break in corn and the absence of any particular demand for cash stuff. Trade in the futures was rather light with some scattered liquidation in evidence. Oats closed 2 cents to ½ lower. Barley 1¼ lower and rye 2⅛ to 1⅞ lower.

Flax

Quite weak, demand extremely poor with some scattered selling by tired holders. Closing 5 to 5¼ cents lower.

Liverpool due ½ to ⅝ lower based on Winnipeg.

NEW YORK READY TO WELCOME FLIERS

Germans Will Be Met By Official Tug at Statue of Liberty.

New York, N.Y., Aug. 26 (C.P.) — Plans were completed to-day for an official welcome to the German fliers expected to alight on the water near the Statue of Liberty in late afternoon.

It was decided to send out the city tug Macom with members of the Mayor's committee and greet the ocean fliers in the harbor, inviting Captain Wolfgang von Gronau to board the tug so that he might be carried to the Battery in the same fashion as have many other heroes of the air.

Details of the reception ceremony were not decided on pending consultation with the fliers themselves.

LEGUIA SURRENDERS

LIMA, Aug. 26.—(CP)—Official announcement was made today that the cruiser Almirante Grau, on which is quartered former President Augusto B. Leguia, "has surrendered."

Presumably the Almirante Grau will deliver the former President to the new military Junta in Lima, following requests by students that Leguia be prosecuted.

SMUGGLER SHOT IN RUNNING DUEL

Coast Guards Capture Liquor Laden Speed Boat Off Newport.

VICTIM BADLY HURT.

NewPORT, R.I., Aug. 26.—(C.P.)—One man was wounded by coastguard gunfire and a liquor-laden speed boat was seized early to-day after a chase off Newport.

Coast Guard officials gave out the name of the captured rum runner as the "Marzelle," but expressed some doubt as to the accuracy of the spelling. They said that, since the shooting occurred in waters within the jurisdiction of the New London base, that the captured craft would be towed to that point later to-day.

The chase and the shooting occurred in the same general vicinity of the "Black Duck" case, which resulted in the death of three rum runners when a coast guard boat raked the decks of the fleeing craft with machine gun fire.

The wounded man, whose surname was Munson and who was believed to be a resident of Fall River, was taken to Fort Adams for first aid by the coast guards. He was shot through the right side. Army officials reported his condition as serious. A guard of coast guardsmen was posted at his bedside.

KIDNAPPING CASE ENDS AT ALTAR

sky, 10, in the yard, saw the kidnapping and raised the alarm.

Mike Philitove, brother-in-law of the girl, said that Loretto came from Toronto four months ago and had accumulated a good-sized board bill. "He would not work, and left the stone quarry yesterday, collecting $60 or $70 in pay. He wanted to marry Nellie but she would have nothing to do with him."

Mrs. Philitove cried when she told about the strange happening. "Nellie was a very pretty girl. Everybody liked her. Paul wanted to marry her but she told him she did not like him. I would give a million dollars if she could come back to me.

"My sister got breakfast for the boarders before they went to work to-day. She had only a cup of coffee herself when I sent her up the hill to get water for the dishes. She had to go under the bridge, and those men got her as she was coming back."

It was Elsie Kriminsky who described the alleged kidnapping. "I saw Nellie go to the well with two pails. She was walking back down the hill when Paul met her. He grabbed one pail, dumped the water out of her hand. He spoke to her, then he grabbed her by the arm and made her go to the car."

"Nellie screamed and did not want to go to the car, but he pushed her along and put her in the back seat. The men in the car drove away," said Elsie.

Ascribe Decline of Prices As Due to Overproduction

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Numerous economic writers in this country continue to attribute the present reduced level of commodity prices to an inadequate or ill-distributed supply of gold. It is safe to say, however, that the average business man and most of the bankers who would not be classed as theorists ignore that possible influence, and ascribe the present position to overproduction and reduced consumption.

It is held that statistics relating to all important commodities strongly support this view. At the moment, while it is thought that in several directions prices are now scraping bottom, it is also believed that no early recovery is likely. The feeling is, however, that if trade were not so universally depressed, there would be hope for a quicker approximation of demand to supply.

LIBERALS WILL CONTEST WATERLOO SOUTH RIDING

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—It was announced to-day by H. H. Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, that Liberals of the riding of Waterloo South, in the Ontario Legislature, had decided to contest the by-election, made necessary by the resignation of Kark K. Homuth, Conservative, who unsuccessfully contested Waterloo North in the recent Dominion General election. Waterloo South Liberals will hold a convention at an early date to nominated a candidate.

ENGLISH SPORT FOLLOWER SUCCUMBS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 26. (C.P.) —Percy Fisher, vice-president of the English Amateur Athletic Association, in Canada for the British Empire Games, died to-day in the Montreal General Hospital where he was taken by ambulance direct from the boat on his arrival from England some days ago. He was a victim of sleeping sickness.

More than $1,200,000 was spent this year in advertising France as a recreation country.

London has only 5,646 able-bodied men receiving poor relief in May, according to a recent report.

Girl Bandit Given 30 Days in Prison

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—(CP)—Violet Ramesbottom, 18, who pleaded guilty last week along with her husband to holding up a local drug store proprietor was sentenced to 30 days in jail here today. Her husband Lance Ramesbotton, was given three years in penitentiary and ten lashes for the offence.

GUARDS DENIED USE OF PLANES

U. S. Authorities State Airplanes More Useful Locating Lost Fishermen.

RUM ROW INTACT.

Such was the word received here from the headquarters of the United States coastguard at Washington.

A storm of protest would arise, coast guard officials said, if planes now at Gloucester, Mass., and used to locate fishing vessels and save lives during storms, were sent to Lake Erie for anti rum-running work. There are many drowning cases near Gloucester, it was pointed out, and the planes there have important work to do without being transferred elsewhere for prohibition enforcement purposes.

In the meantime, W. Rasmussen, commander of the coastguard in this district, is noting continued activity on the part of small liquor craft, and is convinced that the so-called rum row recently established on the lake, still is intact. The supply ships are in Canadian waters, some place between Long Point and Port Burwell.

FOX AND LOEWS CORPORATIONS GAIN THREE POINTS AS LIGHT "BULL" MOVEMENT SHAKES LIST

Advance Helped Along By Extremely Conservative Buying Recommendations.

CALL MONEY AT 2.

Individual Gains Registered By Air Reduction, American Telephone and Standard Gas.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 26 (C.P.) —The motion picture stocks combined to show a few mildly bullish scenes in to-day's stock market. Such a coincidence as dismissal of the Warner Bros. receivership petition on the day of publication of an optimistic report to Fox Film shareholders from the new msanagement, at last provided professional traders with some excuse for bidding up stocks.

The advance was helped along by extremely conservative buying recommendations issued to clients by a statistical organization which has been bearish for some time. The market was sluggish during the early trading, and worked lower under the influence of selling of the agricultural implements, oils and coppers. By mid-day, however, the motion picture stocks turned emphatically upward, and were soon joined by a wide assortment of popular trading favorites.

Short covering appeared in some volume. The market continued mostly the private affair of professional traders, however, as no widespread inclination to buy stocks developed.

Fox Gains 3 Points

Fox gained more than 3 points, and Loews nearly as much. The balance sheet, as shown for June 30, indicated a complete reversal of the cramped position shown six months previously. Total assets were carried at about $192,500,000, a gain of more than 30 per cent from Dec. 31.

The advance was joined by practically all groups, and individual gains of 2 to 3 points were numerous, appearing in Air Reduction, Mathieson Alkali, American Telephone, North American, Standard Gas, Vanadium, Byers, Norfolk and Western, New York Central, Dupont, Gillette, Eastman Kodak, and National Biscuit. Such shares as U. S. Steel, American Can, and General Electric gained more than a point. The utilities displayed more notable strength than of late.

A conspicuous weak spot in the list was International Telephone, which sagged persistently, getting down more than 2 points. The stock has been under considerable pressure at various times in recent months, owing to curtailed earnings resulting from world wide depression.

Oils were easy.

Call money continued at 2 per cent.

STRATFORD MAN FACES CHARGE OF FORGERY

STRATFORD, Ont., Aug. 26.— (C.P.)—George Box, of this city, was arrested last night by city police and this morning faced a charge in police court of obtaining from the Canadian Bank of Commerce $200 by means of a forged document.

He was remanded until Saturday.

According to information received from the police Box will face other charges of a similar nature and they will involve over $11,000. Box is the treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen and it is the funds of this brotherhood that Box is alleged to have tampered with.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

The construction of the huge canal which will be a feature of the Beauharnois power development continues to make steady progress, as is also the case with the building of the power plant. The initial walls for the canal have been set up for a large portion of the distance that will be essentially covered, namely 15 miles between Valley Field and Beauharnois. Rapid progress is also being made on the excavation for the new power plant, with some 55 feet of solid rock already blasted out. In a few days the first cement will be poured into the forms that will constitute the beginnings of the power plant. Nearly 2,000 men are engaged in different phases of the work.

Leading Issue

International Nickel's position on the stock market is a mute evidence of the importance attached to this company not only as a leader in its own particular field but in the wider industrial work. Nickel has long been looked up as a leader on the Canadian markets and of late is been accorded international recognizance as a leader. Monday on the New York stock exchange, Nickel was fifth in point of turnover ranking under only Vanadium, United Air Transport, Radio Corporation and Radio Keith.

Following behind Nickel were Sinclair Oil, General Motors and United Steel Nickel's turnover in New York amounted to 49,000 shares, exclusive of rights. Locally in the neighborhood of 3,000 shares were traded while the right amounted to more than 63,000.

Shareholders of Matachewan Canadian Gold Ltd., which holds some 340 acres in the Matachewan gold area, including nine claims acquired from Matachewan gold mines and eleven claims from Matachewan Rand gold mines, are in receipt of notice on the annual meeting and a special general meeting to be held here on September 2. The purpose of the gathering is to consider by-laws reducing the board of directors to five or three and authorizing two by the directors to negotiate a sale of the whole or a portion of the undertaking of the company, or to carry out whatever may be necessary towards refinancing of the present company including the formation of a new company to acquire the assets of the old and any other assets of a similar nature that may be capable of being developed.

Strikes New Low.

Brazilian Traction Struck a new low for the year this morning in the Toronto and Montreal exchanges. The deprecation in the value of the shares of this company is attributed to the weakness in the Brazilian milreis which was quoted at the lowest level in some years at 9.33 to 9.40 this forenoon. Brazilian Traction recovers a portion of its revenue on a gold basis and the balance in Brazilian currency. Private wires to Toronto, however, intimate that support for the milreis, which was withdrawn a short time ago, will again make an appearance and any improvement in the rate of exchange effected in this way will help the company. The special general meeting of the shareholders of the City Dairy Co. held Aug. 19, for the purpose of having shareholders approve of the proposed sale to August 25, stands adjourned.

Both preferred and common stockholders voted to accept the offer and their action was later confirmed by the courts. Adjournment of last Tuesday's meeting was to provide for any contingency that might arise in the interval and as nothing cropped up, there was no business to transact at the adjourned session Monday. Under the terms of the proposed sale the Borden Co. have until Sept. 19 to complete their examination of City Dairy's assets and on completion of this shareholders will be informed when and where to forward their certificates. Preferred stockholders will receive $135 cash and the common stockholders seven shares of Borden for eight City Dairy.

New lows were established again to-day as the stock market lacking active support, sank gradually lower. While there is nothing of an alarming nature in the action of the market, this slow decline, continued over a prolonged period, carries prices down just as effectively as the more precipitous and 'scarry break." Brazilian touched a new low for the year this morning. Nickel was a scant point or so above its low while the better known oils were all within a fraction of their previous low.

There is this to be said, however that so slow is the decline that investors have plenty of opportunity to safeguard accounts or to re-arrange their portfolios.

SOFTNESS IS PREV ALENT ON MINING LIST THIS MORNING

International Nickel Leads Downward Movement, Dropping Well Below $22 Mark.

NORANDA HOLDS FIRM.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Softness was the previaling note throughout the mining list prior to noon to-day.

International Nickel led in the downward movement, dropping well to below $22. The rights were off a couple to 9. Hudson Bay, which has been strengthening of late, moved up another 20 to $7.75 however, and Noranda held fairly firm around $21.25. Waite-Ackerman, at $3.15, was up 5 from last night. Falconbridge and Sundbury Basin, off a few points each, showed the only movements. Ajax Oil falling another 7 to $1.90; Calgary and Edmonton 5 to 55. Home Oil 4 to $2.11, Dalhousie 3 to 62, and Nordon a point.

Losses outnumbered gains in the gold group. McIntyre and Lake Shore dropped recent advances, both selling off a quarter to $17.75 and $23.25 respectively. Kirkland Lake Gold lost a couple to 43, and Siscoe and Granadi eased a point each. Hollinger and Teck Hughes firmed slightly, selling up 5 each at $5.80 and $6.30 respectively.

Elevator Runs Wild Operator Is Killed

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (A.P.)—An elevator in the Hotel Gotham Fifth Avenue ran wild yesterday, causing a flood and killing a man. Andrew Dublin, an assistant engineer, was repairing the car at the street level when it started upward suddenly then dropped to the bottom of the shaft, then shot to the top, crashing into a water tank on the roof. Water poured into the lobby and cellar. Dublin's body was found at the bottom of the shaft half submerged.

NO WORD FROM BURWASH.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—While no word has been received from Major T. L. Burwash, who is on a flight to the magnetic North Pole by the North-West Territories branch since Saturday, officials expect he is in the neighborhood of Cambridge Bay or on King William Island. On Saturday the explorer left Coppermine.

A Modern Habit.

Toronto and Montreal have more telephones than the combined number in six of the other provinces. Telephones — everywhere a necessity — are accepted as an integral part of big-city life. And the habit of calling friends and loved ones at a distance is growing apace.

Canadian Industries Display At The C.N.E.

Visitors to the Canadian National Exhibition, which will be held at Toronto, August 22nd to September 6th, will see an elaborate display of Canadian Industries Limited products in the Industrial Building.

Ancient Greece has furnished the architect with the motif for the building to house this display. It will be seen in the form of a Grecian temple, 75 feet in length, 10 feet deep and 15 feet high. The entire display is decorated in polychrome effect which will give a stone appearance. The series of columns in the front will have bronze links swung from pillar to pillar. Behind these pillars will be long counters, tile covered, to hold the assorted displays of products from all Divisions.

The background of the display is draped in green velvet, and seven posters in black enamel, with the lettering cut in relief, will hang from the rear wall. Each poster will be illuminated with high power nitrogene lamps and reflectors.

The public may circulate behind the counters, and the floor of the interior of the display is in battleship linoleum, marble finish in a tile design.

Between the centre pillars of the exhibit will be the giant figure of a scientist, 8 feet high on a 2 foot pedestal, making the total height ten feet. A well known sculptor is now working on this model.

Salesmen will be in constant attendance at the display to answer enquiries in regard to the various products.

The Canadian National Exhibition is one of the outstanding annual exhibitions in the world. With an average attendance of considerably over a million persons each year the display should impress a large number with the great variety and quality of C.I.L. products.

Wild animals are becoming cheaper in Europe, good specimens of lions being offered at $750 each, hippopotamuses at $2,500, elephants at $3,000, and giraffes at $5,000 a pair.

PRISON BREAK IS FRUSTRATED

Belleville Turnkey Holds Three Prisoners Till Help Arrives.

IS HIT WITH PIPING

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 26.—(C.P.)—An attempted jailbreak was frustrated early yesterday by Robert E. Colling, Turnkey, at the County Jail when he grappled with three prisoners, who were trying to escape. His son, Kenneth, and the jailor, Tom Ketcheson, rushed to the scene and easily subdued the prisoners but not before injury had been sustained. Mr. Colling was injured internally when hit with a piece of piping, while the son required a number of stitches to close the wounds inflicted. Mr. Ketcheson was only bruised. The three men Gordon Aselstine and David Little were awaiting transportation to the reformatory for eighteen months for breaking and entering and theft, while Bailey had been sentenced for theft of a car and breaking and entering. Little apparently was the ringleader of the attempt, he having concealed about his clothing a piece of iron piping. The men were being taken from the cell block for their daily labor when the attempt to break jail took place. The men will appear in police court this morning.

The British Medical Association has expressed the opinion that where traffic control by color system is in force there should be alternative signals for color-blind autoists.

Before Her Baby Came

"I have used several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and find it helps me wonderfully, especially before childbirth. I have five lovely children. After my last baby came I had a miserable pain in my right side so I bought another bottle of the Compound and I feel fine now. I work outside during the fruit season in addition to my housework." — Mrs. Charles Slingerland, R.R. #4, St. Catherines, Ontario.

ACADIANS FLOCK TO SCOTIA SHORES FROM LOUISIANA

Descendants of Those Who Left Land in Sorrow Gather for Celebration.

ROMANTIC SETTING

French Shore Prepares Wonderful Reception for Kinfolk From South.

(Copyright, 1930)

HALIFAX, Aug. 26. — (Special to The Examiner). — Travelling thousands of miles from Louisiana to the land from which their ancestors were deported 175 years ago, one of the most interesting and romantic delegations which has ever invaded the shores of Nova Scotia is welcomed here this week.

Acadians, descendants of those Acadians who left the shore of Acadia in sorrow and trouble, came to meet the descendants of other Acadians who somehow made their way back to the land of Acadia and became prosperous and happy.

The group on the pilgrimage made a strange contrast to the Acadians of Nova Scotia. The former have to a great extent lost many of their racial tendencies, although they speak the almost extinct French of Normandy and Brittany, which they have retained like the Acadians of Nova Scotia in a singular purity and old world form. But the Acadians of Nova Scotia have kept to a remarkable degree through the centuries old customs and characterizations which France herself has long since forgotten.

Along the French shore Acadians still sail the old broad breamed fishing boats made on the scale and style that the Acadian sailed many years ago.

500,000 Descendants.

In Louisiana there are 500,000 Acadians, descendants of those who were exiled 175 years ago. Various groups settled in different places and, while many different towns and cities are represented in the group which are in Nova Scotia this week, the largest comes from the district where Notary Rene LeBlanc settled his weary band. In charge of the group returning to Nova Scotia is Dudley LeBlanc, of Layfette, a direct descendant of the notary. Mr. LeBlanc is a newspaper man and a member of the Board of Public Utilities.

For weeks the French shore has been busy preparing a truly wonderful reception for the visitors and there will be many entertainments which do not figure on the strictly official program. And so "in the Acadian land, on the shores of the Basin of Minas, distant secluded and still," the Acadians of Nova Scotian and the Acadians of Louisiana make whoopee this week in a picturesque and thrilling program that is drawing visitors from all other of the Maritime Provinces.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 26. — The demand for all lines at cash grain here yesterday was fair and values were firm. Flour, millfeed, and rolled oats were unchanged.

A feature of the dairy and produce markets was the easier feeling that developed for butter and values were reduced one cent per pound. The demand was fair. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized was quoted at 28¼c per pound. To retailers solids were sold at 31c and prints 32c per pound. Receipts were 17 boxes.

The cheese market was fractionally lower. Quebecs sold at 14¾c, while Ontarios were 15c to 15¼c per pound. Receipts were 2,234 boxes.

The egg market was firm under a good demand. B.C. eggs sold at 34c to 35c for extras, 32c for firsts, and 30c for pullets. Ontario strictly fresh were offered at 34c to 35c for extras, 20c to 30c for firsts, and 26½c for seconds. Prairie eggs were 32½c to 33c for extras, 29½c to 30c for firsts, and 26½c for seconds. All prices delivered Montreal. Receipts were 1,351 cases.

The first arrival New Brunswick potatoes reached here yesterday. They were offered at $1.00 to $1.05 per 80-pound bag. Local stock sold at 90c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—A bigger increase of the United States wheat visible supply than generally was expected gave an advantage to believers in lower prices for garin. Buying demand waned, with the amount of wheat on ocean passage much larger than either last week or a wear ago, and Liverpool quotations failing to respond well to price advances on this side of the Atlantic. Moreover, an increase of 4 per cent. in 1930 wheat yields of twenty-two countries was reported, compared with 1929.

Chicago wheat values closed unsettled, ¼c to ¾c lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to ¾c down, oats unchanged to 3-8c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to a rise of 7c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 26. — Fluctuating within a cent during the entire session, wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday finished 1⅛c to ⅜c down. Despite disappointing exports, selling failed to develop in volume and firmness at Chicago aided in keeping quotations steady.

Reports of heavy business last week, which was not indicated in pit trading, pointed to large wheat pool sales. Trading, however, remained light and featureless on the Winnipeg market. Cash wheat demand was draggy and coarse grain demand indifferent, with the result that little business was done in either line.

200 PERSONS ENJOY PICNIC

Delightful Supper Served by Ladies' Guild of Haultain United Church.

MOUNT JULIAN, August 26 (Examiner Correspondence). — The recent annual picnic of Holy Trinity Church, Haultain, to Mount Julian provided a jolly event for over two hundred persons. The afternoon was spent in social intercourse, and various games and contests were staged both for young and old. Supper was served by members of the Ladies' Guild of the church. The sports were under the supervision of a committee of visitors who are staying at Mount Julian Hotel. Judges, Mr. Lech, Rev. Mr. Robbins, a former rector of the church; starters, Messrs. R. Lord and R. Lawrason; race recorder, Miss Annie Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Thompson, proprietors of the Mount Julian Hotel.

Prize-winners.

The prize-winners were as follows: 50 yard dash, girls 8 to 10 years—Roxie Dunsford, Katherine Acton.

50 yard dash, boys 8 to 10 years—Jack Matthews, Raymond Lean.

100 yard dash, boys 12 to 14 years—James Bilkey, Allan Grey.

Winner of greasy pole competition—George Sherin.

Good Attractions.

Other attractions were the greasy pole and a tug-of-war competition between the residents and visitors. The former were victorious by a very small margin. The victors in the horseshoe contest were Messrs. W. R. Thompson and Cecil P. Sheuwen. The grounds were very prettily decorated with flags and bunting. The attractive booths also had many customers. Joy was everywhere. Miss Leana McCauley very ably supervised the fish pond. The sale of work was capably looked after by Miss Margery Dunsford, while Messrs. M. Stone and C. P. Sheuwen were kept busy in the ice-cream booth. The music poured forth, and the crowds surrounded the fortune-telling booth, which was in charge of Miss Warner and her many assistants. The day was brought to a fitting climax with a concert held in the dance pavilion of Viamede Hotel. The place was crowded for the occasion. Rev. Mr. Robbins occupied the chair. The short program opened with a lively sing-song, with Miss Jackman at the piano, after which the A.Y.P.A. of All Saints' Church, Peterborough, entertained the audience with a play entitled "Say It With Taffy." The cast was under the direction of Miss Dorothy Worboy, to whom special thanks was tendered.

At the close of the play Mr. A. J. Forte moved a hearty vote of thanks to all who had helped in any way to bring the day to such a successful close. William McCauley seconded the motion. The program was brought to an end by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and the National Anthem. The Ladies' Guild and Wardens of Holy Trinity Church wish to extend their gratitude and indebtedness to the many friends who helped to make the picnic such a splendid success.

"Dad has passed away, I'll have to leave"

THIS LAD must leave college with his education uncompleted. His life's plans are all wrenched asunder. Before he is fitted for it—he must go out and look for a job.

His father wanted to give him a good education. But, he failed to take steps that would have guaranteed that his son's start in life would be amply provided for — whether he himself lived or passed away.

Have you a son or a daughter whom you would like us to protect from such a disaster? We'll make a bargain with you whereby we will pay over to your son—or to you on his account—at a stated time, any amount of money you decide will be required. If you should die before that time, the money will be paid immediately to him or to his guardian.

Thus your boy will be sure of his chance in life. He deserves it, doesn't he?

It's a duty you should perform now—while you are insurable.

MOVE TO HANDLE OWN WHEAT CROP IN SASKATCHEWAN

Special Legislature Session May be Called to Decide on Plan.

FAVORED BY POOL

(Special to the Examiner Copyright 1930)

REGINA, Sask., August 26—With the new wheat coming on the market it is quite possible that a special session of the Saskatchewan legislature will be called to consider the advisability of making provisions so that the wheat pool of that province may handle the entire 1930 crop.

Such a request has already been forwarded to the government by the pool and Premier Anderson has urged members to wire in their views on the proposals. This means that the session may be called in the immediate future.

Further speculation as to constitution of the provincial wheat board concerning which premier desires specific information from the members is that some provision is being made for the inclusion of non-pool growers on the board.

A conference called recently to discuss pool proposals and the formation of a western wheat board did not meet because of the inability of representatives from Manitoba and Alberta to be present.

Ex-Premier Gardiner declared he had received no official invitation from Premier Anderson. Members of the pool, however, representing 60 per cent. of the yield of the province have sent a resolution to Premier Anderson advocating the formation of a wheat board. The extent to which the Premier will act on suggestion evidently depends on the action of the Manitoba and Alberta Governments.

The wheat pool has not yet announced its advance to members on grain deliveries. Pending an ultimate decision, members of the pool are receiving 70 cents a bushel, the lowest in the history of the pool.

There has only been one developwheat pool, headed by Honry Wise Wood, to suspend operations of the coarse grain pool for the next year and to handle coarse grains on a market preb isacisgi0orf the2rvx.faD market price basis. The reason advanced was the low ebb of the market. It is not expected that the pools of Saskatchewan and Manitoba will follow this lead.

Pool Statement

Following is a brief of the statement issued by the Saskatchewan wheat pool:

"It should be very clearly understood that the proposition presented to the government at this time has no direct relationship to the proposal for a legislative pool, which is now being balloted on by the members of this organization. The Saskatchewan wheat pool already has the necessary machinery to successfully market all of the grain likely to be marketed this year; and the proposal to market all our wheat through the organization for a period of one year is an emergency proposal only. The other proposal is one implying the creation of a complete province-wide, 100 per cent poll in which all growers would have direct and equal representation and regarding which there is ample time for mature and careful consideration. So far as this organization is concerned, the two propositions are not being considered in relation to each other at all."

In the last five years for every air accident involving death or injury 1,279,000 aircraft miles were flown, compared with one for every 357,000 miles in the previous half decade.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

Mrs. J. R. Russell of town received a very pleasing and exceptional gift last week when her aunt, Miss Margaret McConnachie, who is 88 years of age, sent her a hand-made dress as a present. The garment is made to perfection and is of the latest mode. Miss McConnachie, who lives with another niece, Mrs. Henderson at Coe Hill, is a dressmaker by profession, and although the years are encroaching on to her, she has lost none of her ability.

A near accident happened on Monday morning at the intersection of Front and Bridge streets, when the front wheel of a car belonging to the local jeweller, P. Tweedie, came apart and nearly lowered the front axle on to the ground. Fortunately Mr. Tweedie was going at a low rate of speed past the corner, and was able to stop the car before any further damage was done.

His Lordship Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough, and the Rev. Fr. O'Sullivan, of Hamilton, were the fishing guests on Friday of the Very Rev. Dean F. O'Sullivan at his cottage at Crow River.

Mrs. A. D. Bennett and children have returned from their vacation which they spent at Brockville and other points.

Mrs. H. Coxwell and children are spending a week's holiday at the cottage at Trent River.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Catching his hand in a barn door on Monday, John I. Adams of Campbellford met with a painful mishap when three of the fingers of his left hand were broken and the hand itself severely bruised.

Mr. Adams, who has been threshing in the district with a new Waterloo Champion outfit, has had some good results from the machine. Working for Russell Stephens his machine put through 23 bushels of oats in four minutes 43 seconds, and 18 bushels in three minutes.

At John Gorman's in the Welliman's Settlement on Saturday, Mr. Adams put through 800 bushels of oats in four and a half hours. He reports that crops are good in the Campbellford district, and that the yield is excellent.

MAJ. T. BURWASH HEADS TO ARCTIC ON OLD MYSTERY

Canadian Would Unravel Fate Which Overtook Sir John Franklin.

LOST OVER CENTURY.

Famous Explorer Using Plane—Will Visit King William's Land.

OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Officials of the Northwest Territories Branch of the Department of the Interior denied here last night that Major L. T. Burwash, famous Canadian Arctic explorer, is heading toward the North magnetic pole in an airplane. His objective, they said, was King William's Land, where he hopes to unravel much of the mystery surrounding the fate of Sir John Franklin, who was lost there with his ships, the Erebus and the Terror, more than a century ago. Emphatic denial was made by officials that any attempt would be made to continue north to Boothia Island, the centre of the magnetic pole.

Major Burwash is being piloted by W. E. Gilbert in a radi-equipped Western Canada Airways plane. He has been in touch with the department here since the start of his long trip. A slight delay was caused at first, due to engine trouble in the original plane, but a new ship was despatched and the flight undertaken. His first stop was made at the Coppermine River, which was thrown open to prospecting for the first time this summer. This territory has been long considered a possible location of the legendary copper deposits referred to by Indians for generations.

On Saturday last Major Burwash took off from Coronation, at the mouth of the Coppermine River. He flew east toward Victoria Land.

ENGINEERING IS ROTARY THEME

G. A. Ironside Addresses Campbellford Club on "Engineering as a Profession."

ASSOCIATION FORMED.

CAMPBELLFORD, August 26 (Examiner Staff Correspondence). — Featuring the weekly luncheon of the Campbellford Rotary Club held in the St. Lawrence Hotel on Monday, G. A. Ironside was the guest speaker, giving an interesting talk on "Engineering as a Profession." The club president, H. N. Carr, occupied the chair and introduced the speaker.

Mr. Ironside asked the question that is often before man as to why he has been put on this earth, emphasizing the fact that one of the reasons is that of progress. Man knows that he must keep moving, and this fact was evident as the history of the human race is studied. In the world of engineering, it started with man using the simple lever to move weights. This was then given over to slaves to do, and later to beasts of burden. During this period man's progress along this line was lax owing to his ability to get others to work for him.

It was not until the invention of the steam engine in 1769 that the mechanical enterprise became on the increase, and from then on very great strides had been made. Fifty years ago the ability to apply electrical power became known, with the result that the age of electricity is only just dawning for the human race. The utilization of that unknown force is becoming so common now that man is no longer surprised at the inventions that are given to the world from time to time. "Electricity is a good friend to man," the speaker went on to say, "because it can exert more force where the load is increased, and can retard the force where the load is removed." Mr. Ironside continued to say that the importance of engineering as a profession was made clear by the fact that universities are spending vast sums of money every year to further this aspect and turn out qualified engineers. As a profession engineering was making great strides, and the speaker stated that in the future it will take its place in the nation, country, and town as do other professions, and work with them on a common basis.

The Province of Ontario had already gone a long way in furthering this aim by passing a law in 1922 which called for the establishment of an engineering association. Industry had also helped along this line by taking young graduates into the different concerns and using them. This action called for keen competition in the profession and created efficiency.

N. A. MacColl passed a hearty vote of thanks to the speaker for his able address, which was conveyed to him by the president.

PAVING SUSPENDED

OMEMEE, August 26. — According to present indications, the six-mile stretch of road between Fowler's Corners and Omemee will not be paved this year. This will be the only unpaved gap in the new through highway from Toronto to Peterborough via Lindsay, and the fact that it is not being completely finished is causing much criticism locally.

The Jupp Construction Company, which is doing the paving, has finished the road east of Fowler's Corners and is now engaged at the west end of Omemee. Work was halter on Friday, as there was still no epthat the contract for the stretch between Omemee and Fowler's Corners might be let, but the hope was not realized.

SIR HENRY ARMSTRONG CHANGES HIS VIEWPOINT

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Sir Henry Gloster Armstrong, for eleven years British Consul General here, is retiring, with a changed economic viewpoint. Relinquishing his belief in Free Trade, which he gained in his youth from John Bright whom he knew personally, he has become an advocate of Protectionism.

Sir Henry will return to England with the avowed intention of winning his country over to a complete policy of Protection. He will retire from official life and seek to aid in the unemployment and economic situation, he said to-day.

Montreal-Toronto Staging Bitter Battle for Third Place

ROYALS LEAD BY HALF GAME

Pair of Pitching Performances Gives Both Canadian Teams Shut-out Victories.

BIRDS MAINTAIN PLACE.

TORONTO, August 26 (C.P.). — While Rochester and Baltimore wage a savage battle for the lead in the International League, the two Canadian entries, Montreal and Toronto are putting up just as close a fight for third place.

To-day's standings showed the Royals undisputed holders of the third rung, but with Toronto only half a game away.

A pair of great pitching performances gave both Canadian teams shut-out victories yesterday, Montreal beating Reading 6-0, while the Leafs were turning back Newark 2-0.

Gowell Claaset was responsible for Montreal's easy triumph. He held the Keys to three singles and never was in danger of being scored upon.

Johnny Prudhomme was the star of Toronto's victory. He gave Newark only five hits, spread over as many innings. The Bears got only one man as far as second, and that was due to a wild throw by Burke on an attempted force play. Myles Thomas pitched well for Newark, but was nicked for three hits and a run in the third and three more hits and another run in the seventh before he retired in favor of Cooney.

Rochester easily won the opening game of the series from Jersey City 9-2. The Redwings pounded four Skeeter pitchers for 15 hits and scored five runs off Johnny Allen before a man was retired in the second inning. After giving Jersey City three hits and two runs in the first inning, John Berly pitched great ball, blanking the Skeeters with five hits. He also aided his own cause with three hits, including a double.

Maintains Place.

Baltimore maintained its place, a half-game behind Rochester, by beating Buffalo 6-3 in a night game at Buffalo. Only a sensational rally in the last two innings enabled the Orioles to win. Joe Bloomer blanked Baltimore for seven innings, but he was nicked for two runs in the eighth and then for four in the ninth, the last three coming across on McGowan's home run with two on.

SUGAR BOWL READY FOR WEDNESDAY

Bowlrites Rarin' To Go in Second Tilt of Ontario Soft ball Playoffs.

The Sugar Bowl softball team went through a hard workout last night in preparation for their game with Trenton on Wednesday. This game is the second of the Ontario Softball play-offs.

The Bowlrites are in good shape and rarin' to go. They are confident they can take the Trenton boys into camp.

The C.P.R. team is one of the best that has represented Trenton in many seasons. Fans will be given a real treat when they see Kennedy, the Trenton left fielder. This boy is not very tall and tips the scales well over the two hundred pound mark. But he is one sweet ball player, and can hit and field.

The Sugar Bowl have to win tomorrow night's game to stay in the Ontario series. They lost the first game in Trenton and a loss on their own grounds will put them out. It is expected that Len Forsythe will be sent right back in an effort to halt the C.P.R. lads.

The game will be played Wednesday evening a 6.15 sharp and will be staged at Central School grounds. The grounds are being put in shape for the game and the bench in left field has been moved, giving the fielders plenty of room in the outer garden.

Mrs. Mary St. Leger Harrison (Lucas Malet), author of "Sir Richard Calmady" and other novels, has been granted a British Civil List pension of $500 a year.

NEW WESTMINSTER WINS IN WINNIPEG

British Columbia Champions Defeat Manitoba Titlists By 9-6 Score.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26. — Sniping Johnny Vernon bored through a stubborn Winnipeg Argos' guard last night to give New Westminster Salmonbellies a 3-goal victory over the Manitoba champions in the first game of the Mann Cup semi-finals. Vernon pounded three shots into the Winnipeg net in the fourth quarter as the Far Westerners won by 9 to 6.

On the last lap of their prairie sally the British Columbians had to fight all the way with the Winnipeg team. Argos went into a lead in the first quarter and held the Salmon Bellies to even terms until Vernon's fighting finish. Bert Hawkins, flashy Argo goalkeeper, was responsible for keeping the Westminster rally in check.

ATHLETICS FEATURE AT BELLEVILLE FAIR

Outstanding Athletes to Compete—Harness Races Are Scheduled.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 26.—Belleville Fair opens to-day with an athletic day, the first to be ever held in this district. The committee in charge have arranged an excellent card of events, with some of the most promising athletes in attendance. The Newfoundland team, which took part in the British Empire Games at Hamilton last week, are in the city, and will compete in all the events. The Parkdale Ladies and the Canadian Ladies are both sending down their relay teams, but they will meet stiff opposition from a relay team from Ottawa. Ravensdale, the hurdler; Smallacombe, the broad jumper; Dallas Creamer, Rosa O'Neill and other feminine stars will display their wares to the visitors. The 100 and 220 yard sprints have attracted the fleetest in the class, and, with a fine cinder track, the Canadian records should be at least equalled.

The following three days will be given over to harness racing, and some of the best horses in training will be on hand. Willis Grattan, who broke the track record at Napanee; Ramona Grattan, the Goderich sidewheeler, and Sid Hal, also from Goderich, with Jean Ganot, Joe Patchen and others here, the free-for-all will be the main attraction. The track record of 2.09¼, now held by Sid Hal, is likely to be considerably reduced at the meet, as the track is in excellent condition after the heavy rain of the week-end. Most of the horses competing here will journey to Toronto for the meet next week.

BLONDE COUGAR STRIKES AGAIN

Add Billy Townsend of Vancouver to the international boxing firmament. The "Blonde Cougar" has struck again and in his battle with Joe Glick, time-tested lightweight veteran of Brooklyn, N.Y., showed he has the stuff. Towsend is alreay the Canadian lightweight champion, though Glick clearly gave him a pasting in their bout at Toronto. The fight was the best in many moons at the Queen City. Any time they meet again there's sure to be fireworks.

CRICKET NEWS

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Fighting to escape defeat at the hands of the Australians the Count, of Gloucestershire cricket team put up a fine struggle. Wally Hammond, their International player, was responsible for their improved position when stumps were drawn. Gloucester failed in the first inning, making only 72. Australia then scored 157. Ponsford hitting up 51 and Goddard taking five wickets, of which Hammond scored 76, not out. Scores in other matches at the close of play today were:

Leicestershire vs. Warwickshire at Hinckley: Warwick, 372 (Wyatt, 174 not out); Leicester, 10 runs for one wicket.

Benefit Game For Injured Players

Softball fans are asked to turn out to tonights' benefit game between Harrison's and Westclox, which will be played at Central School grounds.

The game tonight is for injured players on the two teams. These two teams gave the fans some real ball during the final series and should repeat tonight. Both teams will be at full strength and Darling will pitch for the Clockmakers with Parsons or Montgomery for Harrison's.

Fans who turn out tonight will not only see a good game but will also be helping a good cause. The game will start at 6.15 and will be played at Central School grounds.

CHAMPIONS TO TEST PROWESS IN ICY WATERS

Swimmers Have Spent Weeks in Training For Physical Grind.

$15,000 PRIZE.

Eddie Keating, Ernest Vierkotter, Clarence and Norman Ross Favored to Win.

(By TED OUTRAM)

Smeared thick with grease, nearly two hundred and seventy of world's best marathon swimmers will plunge off the dock at the Canadian National Exhibition breakwater just before dinner to-morrow, and will strive to churn their way for 15 miles through the cold waters of Lake Ontario in an endeavour to win a heavy pot of gold.

It will be the Fourth C.N.E. Marathon Swim and to the winner goes $15,000 in crisp bank notes. Not only that but he will be crowned king of swimmers and be in line for much honor and publicity until he fails in another long distance wriggle over waves.

Among that little band of muscle and brawn which will splash off with such high hopes will be some twenty champions and near champions, who on previous occasions have tested their prowess and grit against the icy grip of the lake. For weeks and months these few have been raising themselves to the highest point of physical perfection in preparation for the supreme try at fame and fortune. They know the chill of that merciless Ontario water that creeps into the marrow and renders the swim an almost unbearable test of endurance. Some few of these, if the lake is in a friendly mood, will cross the finish line and reap the rich rewards.

Little Chance to Win

But mixed liberally among these super-human fish will be a number of swimmers who have little chance of getting around the five-mile post. Mere puddlers these. Good swimmers as compared with the usual run of summer resort breast-strokers, but hopelessly outclassed and unfit when it comes to this hour-after-hour plowing through the frigid blue-green water needed in the marathon. Some will hold up weak arms at the end of the first mile. Others mile by mile will be dragged into the attending boats and rushed off to the comfort of hot drinks and warm blankets.

But who knows, perhaps one of these small town unknowns will with grim tenacity stroke his way out in front of such favorites as Eddie Keating, Ernest Vierkotter, Clarence and Norman Ross.

Fails to Materialize

Three years ago the first C.N.E. marathon was swum. It was planned as the main attraction at the big fair as an opportunity for George Young, hero of the Catalina Channel, to perform before the cheering Toronto fans.

It failed in its purpose for Ernest Vierkotter, the blonde German baker, won the contest. Young passed out of the picture early. He led the pack for the first five miles, but gave up when Vierkotter passed him like a great tireless shark.

It took the winner eleven hours and forty-two minutes to complete that twenty-one mile grind. Some five hours later George Michel, the Frenchman, eased himself into the finishing dock. The sun had sunk hours before the hardy Michel completed the course, and only harbour lights, searchlights and bonfires lit the scene for those still plodding their way out in murky darkness of the lake.

Come in Third

At 3.31 a.m. the day following the start William Erickson, the Atlantic City floater, bobbed up to the finish to win third place. Even at that time there were several other swimmers out in the water striving to forge their way to the end. None succeeded.

Vierkotter was rewarded with $30,000 and Michel $7,500, while the "floater" received $5,000.

In 1928 the marathon was run again, since it had proved its worth as a headline attraction the previous year. But the swim was never a race. Lake Ontario was in its worst mood. Human flesh and blood could not stand its piercing cold. Not a swimmer finished of all the 200 that took the starting plunge. The temperature of the water was 52 degrees, more than five below what it had been for the first swim.

The three swimmers of the previous marathoners were outstanding in the unsuccessful battle against cold and the lamprey eels. Vierkotter was the fastest; Michel was in the longest and went the furthest; and Erickson displayed form that raised him above the floater class. Michel was in the water from eleven in the forenoon until ten-thirty that night. The distance that year had been cut to 15½ miles.

Keating Comes First

Last year 234 men and four women dove into the lake at the start. The prize was $25,000 and Eddie Keating, 25, of New York, with a smooth overhand stroke and splendid physical condition won first place, doing the 15 miles in 8 hours, 18 minutes and 13 -15 seconds.

He defeated Vierkotter, who made a great bid in the final lap, by a scant 500 yards. Norman Ross, of Chicago, was third, Isador Spencer, youth of Port Colborne, Ontario, was fourth, and Mendell Burdett, smiling husky of Toronto was fifth, with Myron Cox, Venice, Cal., sixth.

Some 150,000 people jammed the breakwater all day to cheer as the swimmers bobbed past, showing that the swim had lost none of its attraction.

Scores didn't finish that race and George Young was one of them. Clarence Ross, of New York, led most of the way but was forced to quit near the finish. One of the saddest parts in the whole affair was that Marvin Nelson, who was in sixth place, which would bring him a prize of $500, was 100 yards from the finish line when he collapsed. After swimming the whole course but those last few yards he couldn't finish.

The race this year will hold its same tale of suffering, courage and the splendour of human endurance, and if the water is at all favorable it should be a great event. To pick winners is impossible but Vierkotter, who has made his home in Toronto and has become a naturalized Canadian, and Burdett are considered great favorites.

HOOPLERS

EGAD! Not to mention, By Jove! Major Hoople is off again! He has sprung three more "HOOPLERS" in "OUR BOARDING HOUSE"—and they're on this page—read 'em and see if you can answer them.

In the meantime he has prepared the answers for the two "HOOPLERS" that appeared yesterday. These are the Major's own answers and he sticks to them.

QUESTION 1—How cold is it when it is twice as cold as zero?

ANSWER—When it is twice as cold as zero, it would be that much colder than zero, as zero is colder than what you think is cold. (Hoople denies twice as cold as zero would still be zero, even though he admits two times zero is still zero.)

QUESTION 2—If a hole were bored through the earth, to the opposite side, and you dropped a flatiron down it, would it come up in the air through the other end of the hole?

ANSWER—In the first place you can't bore a hole through the earth because below about 60 miles it would constantly fill up—the earth at that point being plastic. However, if the hole could be bored and a flatiron dropped through it, the heat of the earth would melt it. But—if the heat wouldn't melt it, the flatiron would pass practically all the way through, on its own momentum, but then be pulled back by the force of gravity and again it would pass the center on its own momentum. The iron, in other words, would swing back and forth like a pendulum, but eventually stop at the center—goodness knows when.

"SAD SAM" JONES HOLDS MACKS TO SIX HITS AND SENATORS DEFEAT THE ATHLETICS 3-2

Washington Club Making Great Play to Oust Philadelphia From Loop Leadership.

CRONIN AIDS WITH BAT.

Tigers Beat Browns 7-5 in Only Games Played in the Major Leagues.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Back in 1915 a youth of 23 years, with a mediocre minor league record, and answering to the name of Samuel Pond Jones, made his bow to major league baseball as a member of the Cleveland Indians. It was not an auspicious debut but the boy from Woodafield, Ohio, who cost the Indians $600, stuck.

Hither and thither he wandered in the American League—from Cleveland to Boston, then to New York, out to St. Louis and finally to Washington. Long before he reached the Senators in 1927, however, his name had been shortened to "Sad Sam." Maybe it was because of the expression on his face, or his ability to spread grief among opposing batsmen or again it may have been the fact that he played in four World Series without winning a game.

But regardless of why the nickname, "Sad Sam" is still in the American League, spreading grief, especially among the Philadelphia Atheitics, as they strive to tighten their grip on the league leadership. Seven years ago, "Sad Sam" first showed his mastery of the Athletics, when as a member of the New York Yankees, he held the present world champions without a hit or run. Although 38 years of age and lacking much of the speed and deceptiveness that has kept his all-time pitching record above the .500 mark, "Sad Sam" still retains his cunning and is using it to aid Walter Johnson and the Senators in the battle to oust the Athletics from the league leadership.

Johnson, a master at handling pitchers, has not used Jones in a single relief role this year, with the result that the veteran has gone the route and won 12 games. His season's record reads 13 victories as against five defeats. He has defeated the A's in three out of four games.

Jones accounted for his sixth straight game, in five of which he started and finished, yesterday in downing the Athletics 3 to 2. Lefty Grove was opposing him but Sad Sam bent to his work and set the champions down with only six hits. In outpitching the Mackmen's southpaw ace he broke Grove's string of eight consecutive triumphs. Lefty shaded his more experienced rival in strikeouts and base on balls, but Jones had the slugging Athletics winging in the air when hits meant runs—that is in all but one inning, when doubles by Bishop and Summa and Foxx's sacrifice fly counted for two runs.

Swing Wicket Bat

In the game lending powerful aid to Jones, was 24-year old Joe Cronin swinging a wicked bat. He accounted for all of the Senators' runs, sending Heinie Manush across in the fourth, with a powerful drive into right field stands and scoring Sam Rice with what proved to be the winning tally with a single in the eighth.

The victory left the Senators six and one-half games back of the Athletics with two more games remaining in the series.

Tigers Beat Browns

The only other games played in either of the major leagues saw the Detroit Tigers take the measure of the St. Louis Browns 7 to 5 after Tom Bridges, rookie hurler from the Three-Eye league, had issued 12 bases on balls.

Bridges, who as a record of striking out 160 batsmen in 12 consecutive games last year, received credit for winning his first major league start although Waite Hoyt was called the the rescue in the ninth with two men out. Previous to Hoyt's appearance Ferrell had cleaned the loaded bases with a triple. Bridges may have been wild but he was stingy with his hits, giving the Browns only seven.

Butler of Guelph Wins Outboard Motor Event

TORONTO, Aug. 26.—Bill Butler of Guelph won the five-mile class B Canadian championship in the outboard motor races staged on the Exhibition waterfront last night, making the distance in 8 minutes 35 seconds in the final heat. There were nine entrants. All raced in all three heats, with the championship awarded on a points basis.

The competitors and their boats were: W. Butler, Miss Guelph; H. E. Ballard, Question Mark; Alec. McKenzie, Flying Kid; R. E. Matthews, Toots; H. W. Clark, Passing Bye; R. Straiton, Ahmic; P. F. Farwell, Miss Coo-Coo; F. Reynolds, Second Edition; Frank Jones, Tadpole.

The results:

First heat—1, W. Butler; 2, H. E. Ballard; 3, Alec. McKenzie; 4, P. F. Farwell; 5, R. E. Matthews; 6, R. Straiton; 7, F. Reynolds; 8, H. W. Clark. James did not finish the first heat.

Second heat—1, W. Butler; 2, H. E. Ballard; 3, H. W. Clark; 4, P. F. Farwell; 5, Alec. McKenzie; 6, R. E. Matthews; 7, R. Straiton; 8, Frank James; 9, F. Reynolds.

Final heat (time, 8 min. 35 sec.)—1, W. Butler; 2, H. E. Ballard; 3, Alec. McKenzie; 4, R. E. Matthews; 5, H. W. Clark.

CLARA BOW IN 'True to the Navy'

WITH FREDRIC MARCH, HARRY GREEN

A Paramount Picture

"Approved U"

Clara sings! With her voice, her eyes, her whole body! In a fleetful of sweethearts she finds "There's Only One Who Matters." She fights the Navy for him. Remember Fredric March in "The Wild Party"? He's her boy-friend again. And Harry Green's a riot in a real comic role!

Will be the Opening Attraction of the New Show World Season

KIWANIS CLUBS WILL MEET IN INITIAL TILT

Game Should Be One of Best Junior Games Witnessed Here in Years.

STARTS AT 4.45.

Understood Don Wood Will Be on Mound For Locals at Exhibition Park.

The first game of the Ontario semi-finals will be played here on Wednesday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock when the Kiwanis Juniors of Toronto will meet the local Kiwanis Juniors. This game should be one of the best junior games witnessed here in years.

The Toronto Kiwanis possess a real smart bunch of ball players. They eliminated last year's champs, the Toronto Elizabeths, and then took the Hamilton Victorias for the count. The local juniors are one of the best aggregations to represent the city in years. They have real fighting spirit as was demonstrated in the Belleville series. They are also a good hitting and fielding team.

The series between these two teams should be a wow, as both teams are in great form and will be at full strength. Cripps, Wood and Foley are all ready for mound duty for the locals with Whatley and Morrocco on the receiving end.

Fans will be well rewarded for their trip to the Exhibition Grounds and will also be giving the juniors encouragement in their Ontario games, by their patronage.

EIGHT TEAMS IN SOCCER LEAGUE

Prospects For Next Season Reviewed at P. and D.F.A. Meeting.

GAMES SCHEDULED.

The regular meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association was held last evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, with Vice-President Leith in the chair.

Schedule of Games

To-night the Canadian General meet the Brinton Athletic in a league match on King Edward Park. Kick off at six o'clock, otherwise the referee will have to conform to the instructions of the board that they play only 35 minutes each way.

Referee—James Hawthorne.

On Thursday evening, the Caledonians meet the Brinton in a battle for points in the league. Kick off at 6 o'clock. Referee—Alexander McKinley.

On Friday night the final game between the Caledonians and the Canadian Packing will take place on King Edward Park in the Peck Cup. Referee—Alex. McKinley. Duration of the game, 90 minutes. Linesmen—T. Stewart and J. Liddell.

No game Saturday.

Next Tuesday, Sept. 2, Caledonians and Packers meet in the semi-final of the Gordon Cup.

On Thursday night, September 4, Canadian General and Brinton on King Edward Park. Referee—James Hawthorne.

On Saturday afternoon, final of Gordon Cup. Referee—Alex McKinley.

Deloro Played Saturday

After waiting until seven o'clock on Saturday evening, many of the local players decided to go home. To their surprise the Deloro team arrived in a downpour of rain and played against a number of the local boys who had remained. According to reports the Smelter boys have a good aggregation and won the encounter by the score of six to two. It would be to the benefit of the game if the Association would permit them a free entry to the remaining cup tie—Gordon Cup—which would sure draw a good crowd.

Club Prospects

With the approach of the season being at an end, many reports are in circulation from various quarters that a few more clubs will be in the league next year. The assurance of affiliation has created a spirit of co-operation with all the officials of the clubs. No greater enthusiasm could be shown by the fans than the splendid attendance at the games which has added vim into the play of the participants, who have abided by the decision of the official referees. The board have given the Knights of the Whistle explicit instructions that they have full control of the game and will back them to the limit in carrying out the [illegible] of the code. Every player know[illegible]m. He requires no lessons.

Deloro executive have intimated that they will be back into the league next year with a fast aggregation to carry them well into the league.

Belleville is busy getting data relative to their entry in the local association next season. This will be an important question for local clubs. Some of the city club executives have a tendency to repudiate any progress along that line, but a little argument is all that would be gained. Belleville will have every team in the league once. So this will necessitate the Belleville team travelling here no less than six times—then, why should the local teams object to one visit. It will be only to the advantage of the game that they be admitted into the league. Of course, this question is on the agenda for the general meeting.

It is reported that the Moose will trot out a team next season. If all goes well, too, a very live executive will handle the De Laval. So here is the prospect list for next season:—Canadian General, Caledonians, Canadian Packing, Brinton Athletic, Moose, De Laval, Deloro and Belleville. This would make an eight league schedule.

German Swimmer Sets New Record

BERLIN, Germany, Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Lina Dadke of Germany, women's Olympic 800 metre champion, bettered the world's record for 1,000 metres yesterday when she ran the distance in 3 minutes 6 5-0 seconds.

The listed world's women's record for 1,000 metres is 3.08 1-5, set by Miss Trickey of England at London in 1924.

WARM WATER LIKELY FOR ANNUAL SWIM

Indications Point Marathoners Will Get Break in Weather This Year.

STRONG U. S. CONTENDERS.

Officials Appeal to Toronto Public in Breaking Annual Boat Famine.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26.—(CP)—The annual boat famine has cropped up to add to the worries of entrants in the men's 15 mile professional swimming championship to be held on Wednesday at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Some 270 men and one woman have signified their intention of competing in the long, cold grind that repays the winner with the world's marathon championship and $10,000 in cash. All participants must have boats and attendants ready to pick them up at the start, according to the marathon regulations. Today there did not appear near enough boats to go around.

Martin Stern, secretary of the International Professional Swimmers Association, has appealed to the Toronto public for aid in securing craft for the competitors, many of whom are forced to pay exhorbitant prices for the rental of boats on the day of the race.

Pass Examinations

Yesterday 130 of those seeking the fickle Goddess of Fortune via the water route, passed the medical board and were pronounced physically fit to start. The balance will be examined today completing preparations for the C. N. E.'s greatest sporting attraction.

Indications point to the men getting a break in the weather this year. In the previous marathons they have been forced to swim in icy waters but with a temperature of between 65 and 68 prevailing today and no change in weather forecast, it is expected the water will be as warm as it was for the women's section of the marathon held last Friday.

Strong Contenders

Under these conditions, three United States swimmers stand out in the forefront of the so-called strongest contenders. This trio consists of Norman Ross, Chicago, Clarence Ross, Brooklyn, and Sammy Shields, Miami, Fla., these are admittedly the speediest, among those of known reputations, entered in the race, but they require water of more than average high temperature to last the route.

Anne Priller Benoit, Holyoke, Mass. is the lone feminine contender. She finished fifth in the women's race last Friday and strange as it seems Anne complained the water was too warm for her liking and she is hoping for colder weather to-morrow. She is a singularly determined young woman asserting that one reason she enter the men's race was, because what the mere male could do she was certain a woman could duplicate.

MISS NUTHALL BEGAN TENNIS CAREER AT 7

Won Junior Championship of England Six Years Later—Took Hard Court Title in 1927.

MOTHER ELATED.

Expresses Regret That Daughter Was Unable to Meet Mrs. Helen Wills Moody.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Miss Betty Nuthall, who first took up the game of tennis at the age of 7 under her father's tutelage, won the junior championship of England six years later, and also retained it in 1925 and 1926. She played in the Wimbledon championships for the first time in 1926, and in the same competition a year later triumphed over Mrs. Molla Mallory, then the holder of the American championship, by scores of 2-6, 6-2, 6-0.

The young English girl also captured the English women's hard court title in 1927, and in that year she was selected as a member of the Wightman Cup team to play in the matches in the United States. Miss Nuthall accounted for one of England's two victories in the Wightman Cup competition by defeating Miss Helen Jacobs, 6-3, 2-6, 6-1.

Bows Before Helen Wills.

Following the Wightman Cup matches Miss Nuthall engaged in the American women's championships and won her way into the final, only to bow before Mrs. Helen Wills Moody at 6-1, 6-4.

In the Wightman Cup matches of 1928 Miss Nuthall was allowed only four games by Miss Jacobs. However, in the 1929 matches Miss Nuthall extended the young American girl before the latter triumphed at 7-5, 8-6, and forced Mrs. Moody to extra games before the national champion won at 8-6, 8-6, to clinch victory for the United States Wightman Cup team. Later in the American championships Miss Nuthall went down to defeat before Mrs. Mallory in the quarter-finals at 6-3, 6-3.

Miss Nuthall and other members of the English Wightman Cup team played in several exhibitions in the United States in September of last year and following these Miss Nuthall captured the women's title in the Pacific South-West championship tournament by defeating Mrs. L. A. Harper of San Francisco, 8-6, 7-5, in the final at Los Angeles.

Again Defeated.

Miss Nuthall was not a member of the victorious English Wightman Cup team in June of this year and she bowed before Miss Elizabeth Ryan of the United States at 6-2, 2-6, 6-0, in the quarter-finals of the women's singles at Wimbledon early last month. Also in the doubles at Wimbledon, with Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall as her partner, Miss Nuthall lost in the quarter-finals to Miss Sarah Palfrey and Miss Edith Cross of the United States by scores of 4-6, 10-8, 6-3.

Mrs. Nuthall Elated.

LONDON, Aug. 26 (C.P.). — Miss Betty Nuthall's victories Sunday in the women's United States tennis championships assures her of one of those welcome homes that are the lot of champions.

Last night her mother, who has been her tennis guide and counsellor since her father's death a few years ago, expressed her great pleasure at Betty's victory.

"I am only sorry that she could not have met Mrs. Moody," said Mrs. Nuthall, "because Betty told me she was going to America not so much in the hope of winning the title as to have another match with Mrs. Moody. I am glad to see my daughter has refuted all suggestions that she has gone back in her play. After all, it is a great achievement to win the American championships before she is 21."

FINE LIQUORS WORTH $80,000 TOSSED INTO HALIFAX HARBOR

One Flourishing Bootleg Firm Finds Market For Large Stock.

WAREHOUSE EMPTIED.

(Copyright, 1930)

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 26.—(Special to The Examiner). — Thousands of gallons of choice liquors were fed to the fishes in Halifax Harbor last week when the Franco-Canadian Import Company, Limited, decided to dispose of a large stock rather than put up the double duty bond required by the authorities under a law recently passed by the Federal Parliament.

In the heyday of the rum-running business the Franco-Canadian Company carried on lucrative export operations, but with the legislation against export liquor houses they found themselves with a large stock for which they could not find a ready market.

Permission was at Ottawa for the company to send some of the liquor to St. Pierre, which was done. The balance was offered to the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission at reduced prices, but as the commission would have to pay duty on it, and as it was not one of the brands on their list, they refused to purchase.

As a result, the company finally decided to dispose of the liquor by dumping it in the harbor, so last week the warehouse on Central Wharf was emptied of from $50,000 to $80,000 worth of the stock.

NEW RUM STUNT UP TO BENNETT

Sir Henry Drayton Says Federal Government Has Power.

LIGHTERING OF BOOZE.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 26.—Asked if he had any comment to make regarding the Vedas incident and the inference from Ottawa that the Provices "are now to be made shoulder the onus of preventing liquor-laden ships lightering in coastal waters" if promiscuous rum-running is to be prevented, Sir Henry Drayton, chief of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, leaned back from his desk in his characteristic way and replied:

"I do not anticipate any difficulty in the Dominion being able to enforce its law under which the exportation of liquor to the United States has been made illegal.

"Its teeth, however, have not yet been applied.

"Under the Act power is given the Governor-in-Council to make such orders and regulations as he may consider necessary for giving effect to the Act.

"So far as I have been able to ascertain, however, no Order-in-Council has been passed, and no action therefore taken to ensure the propr enforcement of the Act as contemplated.

"Under the powers given the Governor-in-Council, repetitions of the irregular export made by the Vedas can well be prevented."

"Would you suggest how the teeth of the Act might be applied" the reporter asked.

"That is all I have to say," replied Sir Henry.

It was all very brief and very definite, as Sir Henry usually is in such matters. It is obvious, however, that he had Clause 3 of the Act in mind when he referred to "its teeth." Clause 3 reads:

"(3) The Governor-in-Council may make such orders and regulations as he may consider necessary for giving effect to any of the provisions of this section."

It is quite obvious, also, that this clause leaves the way open to stop rum-running effectively by control at the source of supply. Liquor cannot be taken out of bond for shipment without the Dominion authorities having knowledge of such shipment and its destination. It is obvious that if the Dominion authorities made regulations whereby liquor could be taken out of bond for shipment, other than to Provincial liquor stores, and enforced such regulations, there would be no opportunity for such flagrant violations as have been reported, and no necessity for shouldering the responsibility on the Provincial Liquor Control Boards.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

In the feature game of the evening our secretary trimmed the treasurer. As both these officers are suppose to be tight-fisted, the game was naturally tight, Roy Disney finally nosing J. T. out by two shots.

"Newsie" was listening in last night at a committee meeting and can give you the inside "dope" on Wednesday's tournament. The draw is called for 1.30; three games, and there will be six prizes if the entries warrant.

Our good friend and worker Scotty McLeish leaves us Wednesday. We sure will miss him. He was a great worker and this column wants to go on record as wishing him all the luck that we would wish for ourselves. Be on hand to-night to tell him what you think of him.

The first step was taken last night on our financial drive, and according to Alex. Grant our "pressing" need is money.

We heard a good one on Harold Freeman. Here it is:—

Harold (to customer in the chair): "You need your hair cutting badly, Sir.'"

Customer: "Oh no, I don't. I want it cut nicely; you cut it badly last time!"

We are having out-of-town visitors for our bridge party on Thursday night, so our own members had better make their table reservations early. It is going to be a big night—free eats an' everything.

If it's Club news, you will find it in this column daily. —Newsie.

If you buy out of town, and I buy out of town, and all our neighbors buy out of town, what in thunder will become of our town? Ever think about it?

TOM THUMB GOLF

Miniature golf is not only a popular sport; it has become the dress parade of the democracy.

Players are dressing for it as society once dressed for the races, and as it still does for the opening night of a grand operat season.

Fine feathers may not make fine players, but what does the score card matter if the sporting outfit shows to full advantage?

Decoration is older than dress and to strut is a human instinct.

Men and women painted their bodies long before they thought of clothing them. Of late years they have been wearing less and less, but moralists need not be alarmed. What may not be preserved for modesty will still be preserved for decoration.

And the decorated human loves to be admired; loves to attract attention, and there is no better opportunity than the brightly lighted stagelike setting of the miniature golf course.

It is an all-too-conservative estimate that gives $125,000,000 as the total expenditure on the new sport. That is not the half of it. A far greater amount has been spent in dressing for the game.

That is good for business. The sport takes young and old into the open. That is good for health.—New York American.

How Pimples Go In Three Days

Sometimes Overnight

Absurd? Not at all because remember now, you're not using any worthless fancy creams and lotions but that powerfully healing and soothing Peterson's Ointment!

Peterson's doesn't peel the skin—it gently soothes and starts right in to heal those unsightly eruptions the minute it's applied. Mild pimples disappear overnight and it's not a bit surprising to see people whose beauty has been ruined for years by pimples with enchantingly clear and velvety smooth skin after 3 days treatment.

A superb skin remedy to end Eczema, Acne, Rashes, old sores and ulcers in the surest, quickest way. A 50c box proves it. All drugstores.

J. W. Spears writes: "The doctor told me it was just my age and that my pimples would go away but I sent for a box of your Peterson's Ointment and it started right in to clear up my skin—it sure is a wonderful Ointment.

PLUMBING FIXTURES SET NEW RECORD

First Seven Months of 1930 Show 603 Installations.

More and more Peterborough citizens are being won over to the opinion that cleanliness is next to Godliness, judging by the number of plumbing fixtures installed in homes during this year. More plumbing permits have been taken out from Plumbing Inspector Arthur Metheral during the first seven months of the current year than for the same period in any other year. The permits totalled 193, an increase of 19 over 1929 and 29 over the previous year.

Plumbing fixtures installed during the same period reached 603 as compared with 539 in 1929 and 431 in 1928. Thirteen drinking fountains were installed. In all 118 kitchen sinks were placed in local homes and bath tubs and basins also reached a new high.

NEW ZEALANDERS SAIL FOR IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

WELLINGTN, New Zealand, Aug. 26 (C.P. Cable via Reuters))—The New Zealand delegation to the Imperial Conference in London sailed for Vancouver to-day.

Prime Minister the Rt. Hon. G. W. Forbes, in his farewell speech at Auckland, expressed the opinion that the problem of Empire trade was so important that the fostering of greater economic relations might go a long way towards holding the Empire together.

Sir C. HURST SUCCEEDS HUGHES

THE HAGUE, Netherland, Aug. 26 (A.P.)—Sir Cecil Hurst has been appointed a member of the Court of Summary Jurisdiction by the Permanent Court for International Justice, taking the place of Charles Evans Hughes, who recently resigned.

A previous report that Mr. Hughes had been reappointed to this office was erroneous.

(E) Inter-County Bacon Hog Competition

This competition is a co-operative activity of the Canadian Packing Company, Peterborough; the Peterborough Exhibition Board, and the Ontario and Federal Departments of Agriculture, and is conducted with the object of promoting a greater interest among the farm boys of the district in the breeding, feeding, management and marketing of swine. The competition was so successful in 1929 that the membership has been doubled in 1930.

Rules and Regulations

1. General rules of the Peterborough Exhibition hold except that there is no entry fee and exhibitors need not be members unless they desire to enter in the open classes in swine.

2. Exhibitors must be members of the Inter-County Bacon Hog Club, which membership is open to ten boys of from 13 to 21 years of age from each of the following counties: Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria.

3. Members of the club must (a) exhibit their hogs at the Peterborough Exhibition in the club competition; (b) submit an essay of about 400 words, giving his experience with his pair of pigs.

4. All entries must be on the Exhibition grounds, Peterborough, by four o'clock p.m., Tuesday, September 9th.

5. Judging will take place Wednesday, September 10th, at 3:30 o'clock, and hogs must be shown by the exhibitor.

6. Members are urged to compete in the Swine Judging Competition at 11:30, September 10th.

7. Exhibitors will provide feed and the management will arrange for a caretaker for the hogs.

Prizes

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 46 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Jane realized she was being borne away a captive. She struggled desperately. But Tarzan's strong arms held her more tightly. Once he looked down into her eyes and smiled. The face above her was of extraordinary beauty. Presently he took to the trees. On and on they went for many miles.

Now they had come to their destination. In his strong arms Tarzan placed her softly upon the green turf. She noted his magnificent figure towering above her. Its perfecty symmetry, the poise of his fine head upon his broad shoulders. Surely his purpose could not be base or cruel.

With a bound Tarzan sprang into the trees and disappeared. Had he left her there to her fate in the lonely jungle?....She heard a sudden, slight sound!....There stood Tarzan, his arms filled with luscious, ripe fruit. He stroked her hair and tried to comfort and quiet her.

The last few hours had taught her to trust this strange, wild creature. It commenced to dawn upon her that she, possibly, learned something she had never really known before—LOVE. She wondered—and then she smiled....And still smiling, she pushed Tarzan gently away, pointing to the food.

Together, in silence they ate. He handed her his knife—motioning her to sleep. She entered, while Tarzan stretched himself upon the ground across the entrance.

CARGO OF BEER GIVES OTTAWA LEGAL TANGLE

Ponders if Preventing Transfer is Provincial or Federal Responsibility.

IN CANUCK WATERS

By WILFRED EGGLESTON
(Special to the Examiner Copyright 1930)

OTTAWA, August 26—When the Vedas started unloading part of her cargo of beer and ale in Lake Erie she wove a complicated legal web for experts at Ottawa to unravel, it now appears, and the situation has by no means been cleared up yet. Though it appears plain that the Export Act was not involved in the incident, the question arises as to whether the Federal Government or the provincial government is responsible for the prevention of such transfer of cargo in Canadian waters.

The Vedas cleared from Montreal for Port Arthur, the cargo being ultimately destined for Winnipeg, according to the lading. The wholesale purchase of the liquor was legal in the province of Quebec, and the federal government collected its excise duty before the beer left the brewery.

No manifest giving a detailed description of cargo is required when coastwise steamers carry goods between Canadian ports, The Examiner is advised. There is therefore no check on her subsequent actions by customs authorities, and if she decided to unload part of her cargo en route no one would be the wiser unless she were detected.

There is, however, a Federal statute with provincial obligations as to enforcement, entitled the Importation of Intoxication Liquors' Act, which according to legal experts here, was being broken when the Vedas started lightering her cargo. It is now said that instead of the federal preventive officers being responsible, the Ontario authorities should have stepped in. The Ontario Liquor Control Act, it is urged, makes it illegal for anyone to have liquor in Ontario—including Ontario waters—which was not purchased from a government liquor store. Instead of seizing the Vedas the customs officials should have notified the provincial police and the liquor control board, it is now said here.

Federal preventive officers were, however, quite within their rights in seizing smaller boats which had violated the customs laws by leaving Amherstburg without reporting outward, it is said.

A $400 bond, rightly or wrongly, was collected by the Federal authorities before the Vedas was permitted to proceed. The owners of the vessel and cargo have 30 days in which to submit their case for the release of the bond. In the meantime the whole legal situation is being explored by the department of justice.

WIFE ELOPES AFTER SELLING FURNITURE

East City Woman Leaves Five Children With Husband.

A David-and-Johnathan friendship which existed between two local men for many months had a sad ending last week, when one of the friends wooed the other's wife and ran away with her. To finance the trip the woman sold the furniture in the home in East City; and she left her five small children behind. The man also was married, and naturally his wife was left to bemoan the loss of her erring spouse.

A search throughout Ontario is being pressed for the pair, and meanwhile the children are being cared for by the Children's Aid Society.

Like the villain in the old melodrama the man gained his way to the heart of the woman under the cloak of friendship, while her husband was away at work. The unsuspecting friend returned one afternoon to find his wife gone, his home barren of furnishings, and his five children crying for their mother.

The deserted husband is having little to say, but the forlorn wife is not taking the affair so easily. She is leading the search and vows heavy punishment.

THREE FIRES

Fires caused by dirty chimneys were responsible for three calls on the services of members of Peterborough Fire Department to-day. The outbreak at 578 Stewart street proved to be a particularly stubborn type of fire and necessitated a repeat call being made.

At 10.40 a.m. a run was made to 475 Albert street.

The Fire Chief wishes once again, to call attention to the necessity of keeping chimneys free from accumulations of soot and points out that failure to do so is a contravention of the Fire Prevention By-law. He further suggests that this is the most favourable period of the year to have any sooty chimneys examined and cleaned before the fires are lighted on the first signs of winter weather.

WEDDING BELLS

SAMIS—THORNE.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at Mark Street United Church Saturday, Aug. 23rd, when Jean Emeline, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Thorne was united in marriage to Floyd Roscoe Samis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Samis of Warkworth, Ont. Rev. Mr. Lehigh officiating.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father to the wedding march played by Mrs. Greenslade. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white silk flat crepe and long veil of tulle lace with sea pearls and snowdrops, with shoes an dhose to match and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Mrs. Fred Hall of Keene, who looked charming in a gown of blue and sand silk flat crepe with hat, shoes and hose to match and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern.

The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Raymond Samis of Bowmanville. Mr. Albert Thorne, brother of the bride and Mr. Delbert Coward, cousin of the bride, acting as ushers.

During the signing of the register Miss Jean Hurl sang very sweetly "I Love You Truly." The church was very tastefully decorated by the Sunday school class of Mrs. A. J. Throop, of which the bride is a member.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served to about 70 guests at the home of the bride's parents, 434 Driscoll Terrace. Mr. and Mrs. Samis left by C.N.R. train for Toronto and points west, the bride travelling in ensemble of rich brown silk flat crepe with hat, shoes and hose to match. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome brown leather purse, to the bridesmaid a necklace set with brilliants, to the soloist a necklace set with brilliants, to the organist a sterling silver bar pin and to the best man a pair of golf cuff links.

The young couple were the recipients of many useful and beautiful gifts, among which was a hand-painted pearl set tray and china tea set from the Western Clock Co., a silver tea service from Vimy Ridge L.O.B.A. and a silver cake and sandwich plate from the Young People of Mark Street United Church.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. George Thorne, grandmother of the bride, Major A. V. Thorne and Mr. Austin Thorne of Millbrook, Mrs. Samis, grandmother of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Samis and Howard Samis of Warkworth, Miss Vera Forder of Toronto, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Samis of Rochester, N.Y.

DANIEL—MASON

A quiet wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock, when Dorothy Rose, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Mason became the bride of Alfred Daniel, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Daniel, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Father Costello.

The bride wore a gown of peach georgette with net lace and large picture hat of white mohair and carried a bouquet of peach and white gladioli. The bridesmaid, a sister of the bride, wore a pink gown with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink and white gladioli. Francis Daniel, brother of the groom acted as best man.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mason entertained at supper for the young couple at the Downeyflake Tea Room, when about forty-five guests were present. Following the supper, dancing was enjoyed.

McCARTHY—GRISDALE

The marriage of Marita Esther, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred J. Grisdale of 582 Aylmer street, to Francis Dennis McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis McCarthy of 449 Rogers street, was an interesting event of this morning. It was solemnized at eight o'clock at St. Peter's Cathedral by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien, rector of the Church of the Sacred Heart and cousin of the bride.

To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Lillian Hurley, the bride entered the church on the arm of her father. She was gowned in a beautiful frock of peach colored silk moire. Falling to the ankles in the back, the skirt was perfectly plain, while the front, slightly shorter, had three ruffles of the material. Long points accented the hem, back and front, with picot edging, and a bow of the taffeta, at the waistline, was caught with a lover's knot in gleaming strass. Tiny inverted tucks made a shadow design on the bodice, back and front. The frock had a rounded neckline and tiny puff sleeves.

A hat of natural tagel braid with transparent brim had a band and bow of peach velvet.

Long white silk gloves, silver brocaded slippers with gold kid trimming, peach-colored silk hose and a necklace of peach crystal, completed the bride's costume. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliff roses and wore a white fox fur scarf, the gift or the bridegroom.

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen McCarthy of Detroit, sister of the bridegroom, wore a lovely gown of blue georgette with eggshell hat, shoes and white gloves. She carried a bouquet of Premier roses.

Vincent Crowley acted as best man. Timothy and George McCarthy, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers.

During the progress of the Nuptial Mass, Mrs. L. Picard sang an Ave Maria and several other hymns.

After the ceremony, a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. About forty guests were in attendance. Messrs, Hooper and Sons catered and decorations were carried out in yellow and white streamers and bells with a profusion of gladioli through the rooms and on the table, which centered by the bride's cake and arranged with yellow candles in silver candlesticks.

Mrs. Grisdale, mother of the bride, wore a dress of cinnamon brown lace and velvet, with brown velvet hat, matching shoes and hose, and corsage bouquet of sweet peas.

Mrs. McCarthy, mother of the bridegroom, was in brown crepe with brown hat, shoes and hose, and corsage of sweet peas.

Mr. and Mrs. McCartny left by motor for a trip to Detroit, Buffalo and Hamilton, to be followed by a boat trip to Muskoka. The bride travelled in an ensemble of cocoa brown georgette, with printed silk blouse. She wore a small velvet hat of rose beige trimmed with insets of brown and orange. Her shoes, hose, gloves and purse were in matching tones of brown and she carried a coat of navy tricotine with collar of butter mole fur.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy will live at 721 Bethune street.

Many gifts were received by the young people from a large circle of friends. The gift of the bridegroom to the bridesmaid was a necklace of blue crystal and to the best man a pair of cuff links.

OBITUARY

DAVID C. QUINLAN

The funeral of the late David C. Quinlan, who died on August 20, took place on Friday morning from the family residence to the Immaculate Conception church.

High Mass was sung by the Rev. Father Carroll. The pall-bearers were K. Throop, H. Gainey, J. Lewis, G. Downer, G. Irwin, J. Bowen.

MRS. J. C. LANGEVIN.

Mrs. (Dr.) J. C. Langevin of Huntingdon, formerly Olive Letellier of this city, died on Monday morning at Notre Dame Hospital, Montreal, at the age of thirty-nine years.

The remains will be brought to this city on the C.P.R. train arriving here at 5.50 E.S.T. to-morrow (Wednesday) morning, and will repose at her former home, 215 Crescent street, prior to the requiem Mass which will be celebrated at Sacred Heart Church at 10 a.m., followed by interment at St. Peter's cemetery.

The late Mrs. Langevin, who left here to take up residence at Huntingdon following her marriage sixteen years ago, was a charming, amiable girl with a host of friends, to whom her untimely passing will be a deep loss. She is particularly remembered in the south-eastern section of this city, in which she spent her happy, care-free childhood days, and attended Sacred Heart school. Sterling qualities of heart and mind so evident in the child increased as she reached womanhood's gracious estate, and were bestowed generously upon all with whom she came in contact.

The late Mrs. Langevin, claimed close relationship with the de La Plante family, one of the most outstanding pioneer families in this city, while on her husband's side she had the distinction of belonging to another famous pioneer family whose name is a household word in Coteau du Lac.

She leaves besides her sorrowing husband and daughter Marcelle, of Huntingdon, her father, L. D. Letellier, and Mrs. Letellier, one brother Alerie and three sisters, Louise, Eva and Cecile all of this city.

MRS. ELIBABETH McINTOSH

Mrs. Elizabeth McIntosh, 138 Antrim street, died this morning after a brief illness. She leaves to mourn her loss one son, Stewart, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Wm. Maudsley of 701 Elcombe crescent.

The funeral will be on Thursday at 2 p.m. from the residence, 138 Antrim street, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

SOCIAL WELFARE NEEDS PASSED

Ontario Gov't Starts at Once to Fill Royal Commission's Recommendations.

SPEND $20,000,000.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.) — Immediate steps are being taken by the Ontario Government to put into effect all the major recommendations of the Royal Commission on Social Welfare. The Commission estimated that amount of money necessary to do this would be approximately twenty million dollars.

This was the statement made by Premier G. Howard Ferguson in discussing the report of the Commission which was appointed last year by the Provincial Government.

The work being carried out by the Government at the present time includes:

Construction of clinics to embrace the whole Province for the purpose of arresting at an early stage an indication of mental or physical defects in children and adults and to provide education for parents on how to care for their children at home.

Erection of new buildings at Orillia at a cost of $800,000 to provide increased accommodation for patients and proper segregation of different types.

Increased accommodation at Woodstock for epileptics at a cost of half a million dollars.

Construction of nurses' home at Mimico at cost of $200,000.

Immediate construction of an institution costing $300,000 to provide for the criminally insane, who are now housed in crowded quarters in the reformatory at Guelph.

Reconstruction of institution at London at cost of three-quarters of a million dollars.

PARALYSIS TAKES 2 IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 26 (C.P.).—Two deaths from infantile paralysis were reported here to-day. Eight new cases were discovered, bringing the total for this city to 61 since the first of the year and 40 for this month.

ANAEMIA FATAL TO LON CHANEY

dian. After that he took a turn at opera, the fame of the troupe resting mainly in the fact that the names of Chaney, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, and Director Robert Z. Leonard were inscribed upon its scrolls.

About eighteen years ago he went South from San Francisco to Hollywood. In the beginning he stopped many a custard pie. But in "Hell Morgan's Girl" he blossomed forth as a heavy. In that picture his screen vicissitures began. The script called for him to topple from a roof. He did so, and landed on his head.

"It ain't been right since," Lon was in the habit of grinning.

His real fame started with that greatest of star-making photoplays, George Loane Tucker's production, "The Miracle Man". It "made" Thomas Meighan and Betty Compson as well as Lon. In "The Miracle Man", Chaney gave the first of his first superbly terrible cripple and freak characterizations. He was the helpless beggar in the picture. A long succession of gruesome roles followed. But for this film Chaney would have been a director, for he had already guided the destinies of the current matinee idol, J. Warren Kerrigan through a dozen thrillers.

One of Chaney's best parts was as "Blizzard", the legless, pathetic villain in "The Penalty".

In "The Phantom of the Opera", Lon contracted an infected nose from the torture of hooks inserted in his nostrils and stretched back by wires under a wig in order that his eerie appearance might be further accentuated. His gums ever afterward bore the scars from the awesome set of tusks worn in that production.

Emotion in Eyes

In "The Unknown", where Lon was the 'armless wonder", the pressure on his tightly strapped arms ruptured a bloodvessel. In "East of Suez" he dared blindness by injecting a fluid in his eye to simulate blindness.

He was proud of his work in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Chaney believed that any emotion may be registered through the eyes, even though the lower part of the face be completely covered. Inclined to be brusque with players in his cast, and always jealous of his perogatives as star of the picture, he nevertheless has helped many an actor to improve the brand of histrionics.

Chaney's pet gag was the one about himself—"Look out, it might be Lon Chaney!" He declared it had been worth money to him—and to his pictures at the box office. He hated posing for pictures, never answered fan mail nor autographed photographs, refused flatly to do any radio or personal appearance work.

The place that interested him most during his next to last visit in New York was a sawdust spot 'way over east in the Fifties. With a cap over his face and a pair of dark glasses, he spent hours there sipping beer and studying the types that drifted to the bar. He objected strenuously to the talkies, although when he finally bowed to public—and studio—demand for his appearance before the microphone, his deep, vibrant voice proved one of the most effective heard on the screen. Before the sound version of "The Unholy Three" he said:

"No, ma'am, not me in the talkies! That needle'd jump right off the track. Me, I'd bust the microphone. Can you imagine the parts I play becoming audible? If I had a battle with some other roughneck in which the language wouldn't be exactly refined, the censors would have me saying, 'Oh, for mercy's sakes alive;' "

And to illustrate how he'd say it, Lon pirouetted around the place with one hand on his hip.

SOMETHING WRONG HERE

Breaking open a white egg of medium size and average appearance produced by a leghorn hen, Mrs J. C. Thomas of 43 Princess street this morning made a peculiar discovery. Inside the egg she found the usual yolk but also another completely formed egg, shell and all. It was about the size of a robin's egg, Mrs. Thomas reports, and was creamy white in color.

CARS COLLIDE

Two motor cars figured in a smash up at the corner of George street and Park Hill road at 9.20 this morning. J. G. Livingstone, 795 Water street, was driving south on George street and Warner Casey, R.R. 5 Peterborough, was proceeding north on the same street. The cars colided at the Park Hill road intersection and both vehicles were badly damaged about the front.

PRIZE-WINNING GOLF.

Mite-Tee Green are ready to pay last week's $5.00 in gold to the holder of score card number 1,273, which was selected as the winner for the week.

THE PENALTY!

For failing to provide food and shelter for his wife and four small children a local man was sentenced to two months in jail by Police Magistrate Langley this morning. It was stated that the family had been forced to vacate their home and were starving because the husband had failed in duties. The man had served a jail term before on a similar offence.

CHURCH SHOULD LEAD IN SOCIAL PROGRESS LORD DAWSON BELIEVES

Influence With Rising Generation Being Lost By Lack of Action.

FORWARD MIND BEST.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 26 (C.P.)—Lord Dawson of Penn, soft-spoken physician to King George, is in Winnipeg to-day. The man who guided the King of England from threatening death late in 1929 to sturdy health, yesterday made his first entry to the Canadian Prairies by airplane. He flew from Kenora, in Ontario's beautiful Lake of the Woods country, to Winnipeg, where the Prairies start to roll westward.

Last night at the residence of Hon. J. D. McGregor, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, Lord Dawson rejoiced in the clear air of a new country—a land whose far-west mountains he plans to explore. Before directing his light-toned slow-spoken comment to topics of the day, the King's physician puffed at a cigar—a rarity for a pipe-smoker like him—and looked forward to a holiday in the Rockies beyond Calgary, Alta.

Conclusions of the Lambeth Conference of the Church of England on the question of birth control are almost certainly a compromise decision, believes Lord Dawson. He hesitated to comment on the trend of the Church of England officials—who have been reported as giving "condition sanction" to birth control—before seeing the text of the conclusions.'

Church May Lose Influence

"Surely, as a matter of fact, the younger generation in Protestant churches has already decided the matter for itself," commented Lord Dawson. "If the decision of the Conference is a 'halting' one, the effect may be that the churches will lose influence, which should be theirs."

The broad-shouldered physician hesitated to venture too far into discussion of the Lambeth decree, but he chatted on the policy of the church in general.

He lamented the "unfortunate tendency for the Church to be dragged at the tail of progressive movements of certain forms" rather than to take the lead. As a result, he believes, the Church is losing its influence with the rising generation—losing the influence it would command if it stood at the head of social progress. It is the force of circumstances, he considers, which has converted the Church, instead of the Church having guided the movement.

"Take the observance of Sunday, for instance," remarked Lord Dawson, smiling at a reference to the plethora of miniature golf courses popping up here and there to vie with the churches for Sunday popularity—unless banned at church-service hours. "Most churches have come around to the observance of a rational Sunday, and in the matter of Sunday-observance views, the Roman Catholic Church has been quite a way ahead of other churches," he added.

Lord Dawson hastened to point out that he is not in any way hostile to the churches. But he summed up his opinion of ecclesiastical attitude on matters of social progress in a few words: "It is far better to have a forward mind and to give a reasoned approval to-day than to concede a grudging acceptance a year hence."

HIGHWAY GRADING WILL BEGIN SOON

J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., Writes Chamber of Commerce.

Following recent assurances from T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P. for Peterborough East, that work on connection with King's Highway No. "2" east of this city would commence "at once" a communication was received this morning by James Dutton, President of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, from J. F. Strickland, M.P.P., for Peterborough West, containing the declaration that grading would be "under way this fall."

Although August 1 was definitely assigned as the date for commencement of the long-mooted undertaking, according to a statement said to have been issued by the Department of Highways during the recent election campaign, no definite date is now fixed by the Department.

Mr. Strickland's letter reads:

August 25, 1930.

Dear Sir:

I am glad to be able to advise you that the Department of Public Highways are planning to have the grading immediately East of Peterborough under way this fall and that they are keeping in mind the very serious condition of unemployment and doing everything possible to assist in relieving same.

Yours truly,
(Signed) J. F. Strickland.

IF IT WILL HELP PETERBOROUGH AND DISTRICT, THE EXAMINER IS FOR IT.

$820 SHORTAGE IN LEGION FUNDS FULLY COVERED

Auditors Examine Affairs of Former Secretary Alex Shields.

OFFICIAL IS BONDED.

Restitution Made By Transfer of Deeds to Personal Property.

(Special to The Examiner)

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27. — A shortage of $820 in the funds of the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion was disclosed by the auditors instructed to inquire into the affairs of the former secretary, Alex Shields, it was learned from reports of the financial committee. No loss will be sustained by the legion as a result of shortage, however, Mr. Shields being bonded for such contingency by the Legion. Restitution has been made by the former secretary, who transferred the deeds on both his home and his motor car over to the legion. It is authoritively reported that the equity in both of these possessions will more than cover the liability.

Mr. Shields has been identified with the veterans movement for more than eight years. He served for three years with such an organization before the forming of the Canadian Legion, and has held the position of secretary in the provincial command ever since that time.

Expended Own Money.

His work on behalf of the latter organization has been painstaking and faithful a prominent member of the Legion informed the Examiner. It required his constant attention in all parts of the province and while on these trips he was required to do a considerable part of the entertaining out of his own pocket. In this way his services while appreciated in all parts of the province were not properly recompensed and in them an explanation for the shortage may be found said this officer in the legion.

Another officer of the legion when asked about the shortage said he had volunteered to come forward with $200 himself if the others would agree to make good the shortage in the Shields account.

The secretary had been absent from his office for about a week it is said when one of the officers in the legion made an examination of the books which suggested certain irregularities. The audit was then made and the matter reported to the financial committee at the annual meeting.

While reports have been rife that the shortage will amount to more the auditors who examined the books than $820 this is the amount which discovered after a careful investigation.

WEDDING REMOVES REGAL CANDIDATE

Former Empress Zita Congratulates Archduke of Hungary.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 27 (C.P.) — The Daily Express said to-day that the first telegram of congratulation received by the Archduke Albrecht of Hungary after his wedding at Brighton, August 16, to Mme. Irene Lelbach, commoner and divorcee, was from the former Empress Zita.

London papers asserted to-day that Albrecht either had renounced or must renounce claims to the throne of Hungary, to which he was a claimant, as a consequence of the morganatic marriage, thus leaving Zita's son, Otto, the only candidate for the throne.

British Laborites May Change Name

LLANDUDNO, Wales, Aug. 27. (A.P.)—The political organization which put Ramsay MacDonald in office as Prime Minister has among the first of the items on its annual conference agenda constitutional amendments which would change its official name —the Labor Party.

One amendment put forward by the extreme left wing would change the name to "the Socialist Party". Moderates who formed the great bulk of the party's members, however, have an amendment which would make the official name the "Socialist and Labor Party."

There are indications that this is the name which will be accepted by a majority.

STONE HOUSE IS REMODELLED FOR ST. PETER'S SCHOOL ANNEX

CONTRACT FOR $2,000.

Providing ample accommodation for sixty pupils, property at the south-east corner of Hunter and Rubidge Streets recently purchased by St. Peter's School Board, is at present undergoing extensive remodelling in the hands of James McPherson, contractor.

The contract was let on August 1, for $2,000. The work includes the removal of partitions and walls, which will provide a class room 38 feet by 28 feet. The building is also to undergo painting. Lights will be re-arranged in accordance with school requirements, while the somewhat dilapidated fence which formerly enclosed the property has been replaced by an artistic picket fence, which will harmonize with the fence surrounding th beautiful grounds of St. Peter's Cathedral in the immediate vicinity.

Plumbing and heating installations are in the hands of F. R. J. McPherson.

The work, which is now nearing completion, will ensure that the school room, which is to accommodate the second class of St. Peter's Lower School, will be ready for the school re-opening on September 2.

The spacious grounds on which the property stands is also to come in for attention, and it can be confidently stated that on the completion of the improvements at this corner the beauty of that section of the city will be greatly enhanced.

Rev. Paul Costello states that the house, which was recently occupied by Thomas Deforge, is built of the same stone as that used in the main walls of St. Peter's Cathedral.

FOG PROVES MENACE IN ST. CLAIR RIVER

Freighters Narrowly Avoid Collision—One Strikes Buoy.

SARNIA, Ont., Aug. 27.—A heavy fog over the St. Clair River and Lake Huron yesterday caused considerable delay and danger to shipping. The freighter Rufus Ranney, downbound narrowly averted a collision with an upbound unidentified freighter when they passed with only inches to spare.

The ore carrier Pegasus fouled a light buoy in midstream and nosed up to the Sarnia ferry dock with the buoy and its five ton concrete base in tow. The services of a tug were necessary to release the buoy.

A tug with a barge in tow became entangled with an upbound freighter and it was several hours before the vessels could be separated. A total of 23 freighters were at anchor at seven o'clock last night.

SAILORS SWIM ASHORE FROM DISABLED SHIP

Reached Beach Exhausted — Drifted Far in Dory.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 27.—(C.P.) Three sailors landed exhausted on the beach this morning in quest of aid for a disabled schooner, which they said they left adrift 16 miles out at sea yesterday with four other men aboard.

The three rowed 16 hours in a dory. When they came in sight of land, it capsized and they were forced to swim two hours and a half to reach shore, they said.

Coast guards immediately set out in search of the schooner.

The three sailors, who said they were John Larrie, Freeman Banbury, and Clarence Atkinson, all of Halifax N.S., were detained by the police pending the return of the coast guards expected some time late this afternoon. Warm food and dry clothing were given to them.

WORST PERIOD IS NOW PAST

Leading Industries of Canada and United States Expect Gradual Pick-up This Fall.

NICKEL SURVEY.

SUDBURY, Ont., August 27 (C.P.) —According to a survey which has just been completed by International Nickel Company of Canada through its sales department, there is a growing feeling among the leading industrialists of the United States and Canada that the worst of the prevailing period of receding business is past, and commencing this fall a gradual pick-up may be expected.

Seventeen out of 20 authorities in lines of industry where nickel finds a market, expressed the opinion that while the return to normalcy might be slow, a definite revival of confidence and vigor, so lacking during the past nine or ten months, is expected.

Six French Fliers Perish in Crash

CHARTRES, France, Aug. 27 Six army aviators were killed during the night when their plane, engaged in night manoeuvers, crashed in the village of of Chavannes, about a mile and a half from here.

The machine fell suddenly vertically to the street there and damaged three unoccupied houses. It was believed the accident was caused by loss of flying speed.

Lindsay Schools Will Not Open Until Sept. 15

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, Aug. 27.—As a further precaution against the possible spread of infantile paralysis in this district and also because of the fact of a certain amount of contagious disease, the local Board of Health has ordered the public and separate schools of the town to defer opening until September 15. Only one new case of infantile paralysis was reported this week by the local Medical Officer of health.

TRUCK AVOIDING COACH SWERVES INTO LOCAL CAR

Eric McKinstry in Hospital — Three Companions Slightly Injured.

HIGHWAY ACCIDENT.

Touring Car Was Parked on Roadside For Repairs.

Eric McKinstry, of Orpington Road, city, was admitted to Nicholls Hospital last evening suffering from a fractured rib and possible internal injuries as a result of being struck by a hit-and-run driver. His companions, Dawson Kennedy, 469 Albert Street, Leslie Church, 79 Edison Avenue, and Jack Adamson, Orpington Road, had miraculous escapes from serious injury, although all received minor cuts and scratches with the exception of Adamson.

It is learned that the injured man and his companions had parked their touring car at the east side of the Port Hope Highway near Percy Mowbrief's farm in order to make some repairs. Shortly after 9 p.m. a truck owned by Ed. Cooney of Peterborough and driven by Herbert Payne was about parallel with the parked car when an unidentified coach allegedly travelling at 70 m.p.h. crowded the truck to the side of the road. The truck sideswiped Kennedy's touring car, forcing it into the ditch, and causing injuries to the young men as already stated.

Traffic Officer Edward Hornick was notified of the accident and at once took steps to have the hit-and-run miscreant intercepted. The vigilance of the police has so far proved unavailing.

Comstock's ambulance was also summoned to the scene of the smash, but in the short interval of waiting, the injured man was conveyed to the hospital by a nurse, who was passing in her car. The nurse was presumably touring in this district, as her car bore a New York State marker.

COLLEGIATE BOYS CHASED BY POLICE

Three Lindsay Youths Were "Riding the Bumpers" on C.N.R.

Three Collegiate boys from Lindsay who were on the last lap of a Cook's tour about Central Ontario gave the police in this city a merry chase yesterday afternoon. They were found "riding blind" on a Canadian National freight train when it pulled in here from Belleville and were ordered to get off by trainmen. When they showed reluctance the police were called and the chase resulted. It ended in a complete victory for the police.

The three lads were brought to the station and held until this morning. As they had a hungry look about them, the police provided them with substantial suppers and breakfasts.

They told the Chief this morning that they "bummed" their way from Lindsay over to Toronto hoping to get jobs and moved down the lakeshore to Belleville in a fruitless search. At Belleville they decided to go back to Lindsay so took the next train out—but the train wasn't the right kind; it was a freight train so they hid in a coal car.

The police wouldn't divulge their names. The boys were last seen headed out the Lindsay highway on foot.

KICKED IN FACE BY HORSE

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.) —Kicked in the face by a horse he was leading to water, Bruce Wade, Norwich farmer, was found by his wife lying unconscious in a pool of blood near the watering trough last evening. Examination revealed a badly smashed nose. Though still weak from loss of blood, Wade's condition is reported as much improved to-day.

Young, Pritchard Both Taken Out; Spondor Leading

Both Young and Buffalo Entrant Victims of Stomach Cramps —Pritchard is Forced to Leave First Position With 250 Yard Lead After Setting Pace All Day.

PORT COLBORNE YOUTH HOLDS LEAD OF 400 YARDS OVER MARVIN NELSON WHO HAD CREPT INTO 2ND PLACE

Ernest Vierkoetter, Toronto's Hope, Plunges His Way Steadily Ahead Five Eights of a Mile Behind the Leaders When He Started His 5th Lap—Burdett and Two Ross' Follow.

LAKE FRONT, TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27.—(By W. R. Wheatley C. P. Staff Writer)—Frank Pritchard, after setting the pace for four laps of the 15-mile Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim to-day, was taken from the water at 2:43 p.m. this afternoon, twenty minutes after George Young, of Toronto, swimming in fourth place, succumbed to stomach cramps. At the time Pritchard was hauled out it was believed he was also a victim to the same ailment.

With Pritchard's removal, the lead swung to the youthful Isador Spondor, of Port Colborne, Ont., who had trailed at an average distance of 225 yards behind Pritchard from the start. Pritchard had gone about eight miles of the 15 mile course.

As Spondor passed the press tent on his fifth lap he held a lead over Nelson of 400 yards. Nelson's margin over Shields had increased to 150 yards, while Shields held an 85-yard margin over Blagen.

Marvin Nelson Second.

A newcomer among the leaders appeared at the beginning of the fifth lap, Marvin Nelson, who crawled slowly past Sam Shiers, of Coral Gables, Fla., as the latter stopped to take nourishment. Nelson, who hails from Ford Dodge, Iowa, is the youngster who collapsed within 75 yards of the finish last year, with a money prize in sight. Behind Nelson came 75 yards, came Eli Radakovich of Duquesne, Penn., followed by Stanley Pritchard, brother of Frank, and Ernst Vierkoetter. Vierkoetter was settling down to a long, powerful stroke in an effort to cut down the distance that parted him from the leaders. Trailing further down the course behind the German came Mendell Burdett and Clarence Ross of Brooklyn, N.Y., who had moved up to displace his namesake, Norman Ross of Chicago. Mendell Burdett of Toronto was between the two Rosses at the turn beginning the fifth lap.

Vierkoetter ⅝ Mile Behind.

As he started his fifth lap, half to five-eighths of a mile behind the leading Isador Spondor, Vierkoetter stopped and took a drink of nourishment from a bottle handed out from his boat. He smacked his lips and drained the bottle. He set out again with his long, steady stroke.

Scattered among the string of leaders were groups of swimmers who had been lapped. Ann Priller Benoit, only woman entrant to-day, was still in the water at 2.45 p.m., but was far to the rear.

LAKE FRONT, Toronto, Ont. — One hundred and seventy-three swimmers took the plunge into Lake Ontario at 11.02 this morning in the fifteen-mile men's Marathon swim championship. Late scratches and scarcity of accompanying boats reduced the large entry list by almost a hundred.

A swarm of grease-clad figures milled about the dressing tent enclosure long before the starter's gun sent them away. There were all colors and thicknesses of the coating that will protect them from the cold in the long grind to the $10,000 prize. The temperature of the water, however, was higher than has prevailed for the men's swim during the last few years, registering 69 inside the breakwater this morning and 66 on the outside.

George Young on Hand.

The great and the near-great were on hand for the big splash. George Young, installed as an almost eleventh hour favorite, was on hand bright and early. He appeared in excellent condition, and with a world of confidence. He is managed this year by Shier Mendelson, who piloted Eddie Keating to victory last year. The New Yorker is not in this year's long water trek.

Ernst Vierkoetter, who trailed in second behind Keating last year was on hand with his black coating of grease. Many of the experts call the "black shark of Germany," now a Toronto resident, to duplicate this year his triumph of 1927, when cold water sent many from the test hours before the finish.

Ann Benoit Entered.

The lone woman entrant, Ann Priller Benoit, of Miami, Fla., and Holyoke, Mass., was another early comer, and expressed confidence in her ability. She preferred colder water, believing a test of endurance would enhance her chances, but declared she had all to win and nothing to lose. She was the only one of the six prize-winners from last Friday's women's swim to start today, having finished fifth on that occasion.

At 22 minutes after 11, the first swimmer was turning out into the lake through the breakwater. He was reported to be Marvin Nelson, the Iowa kid, one of the favorites.

Fickle fate has generally provided the best of conditions for the ladies, but when the date of the men's swim rolled around there was on most occasions a frigidity of water temperature and weather conditions that took a heavy toll of starters early in the race.

Three Hurt in Start.

Despite this, there were three who crawled from the water a hundred yards or so from the start. All claimed to have been kicked and injured in the floundering around as the 173 starters struck the water simultaneously. Leslie Champman, of [illegible] was among the [illegible] the shoot. He was injured by a kick in the groin at the take-off. Bert Leslie of Chicago was another to report to the dressing tent a few minutes after the start. He claimed a shoulder injury, another kick from the scores of flying feet that went overboard with him. The third to call it a halt, this tipoe after half a mile had been completed, was Max Novis of Toronto.

Pritchard Takes Lead.

Exactly one hour after the start, the Marathon was led by Frank E. Pritchard of Buffalo, Isador Spondor of Port Colborne, Sam Shields of Coral Gables, Fla., George Young of Toronto, and Eli Radakovitch of Duquesne, Penn., an outsider.

Spondor Pushes Pritchard.

With two and one-half laps of the 15-mile swim completed at 1.15 p.m., Frank Pritchard of Buffalo, N.Y., was out in front of a large field by 250 yards. His nearest competitor was the youthful Isador Spondor, of Port Colborne, who was travelling at a remarkable fast clip in an effort to cut down the Buffalo man's lead. Spondor was cutting loose with a sharp

NEW FRUIT DUTIES PLEASE GROWERS

Government Scheme Will Protect Home Market For Local Produce.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 27.—(C.P.).—St. Catharines fruit and vegetable growers were delighted this morning when advised of the action of the Bennett Government to stop the dumping of surplus fruits and vegetables from the United States into Canada. The growers have complained bitterly of this practice, pointing out that American fruit was dumped on the Canadian market at distress prices, thereby ruining the market for the Canadian-grown products.

"That's the stuff," declared Howard Fisher, fruiter of Queenstown, when told that the duty on peaches would be 10 cents a pound, and he stated that he was very very pleased with the action taken by the Dominion Government. He remarked that the duty was nothing more than should have been done, a move to protect the home market while local produce is available.

Howard Raise, Port Dalhousie, vice-president of the Niagara Fruit Growers' Association, was also pleased with the new duty imposts and expressed the opinion that it would be of great benefit to the growers.

W. H. Bunting, well-known grower, declared that the duty should prove very advantageous to the growers.

Hudson Usher, Queenstown, expressed surprise at the announcement that the new duty on peaches would be 10 cents a pound. That will certainly keep them out, he said, but I think the figure is misquoted; that would bring the duty to over $1.20 a six-quart basket.

TOURISTS' CAR DROPS 175 FEET

Escape of Four Americans in Quebec Seemed Almost Miraculous.

CRASHED OVER CLIFF.

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 27 (C.P.) — Four American tourists escaped death in a way that seemed almost miraculous yesterday near Donnacona, Que., when their motor car fell from a height of 175 feet down to the Jacques Cartier River which runs in a gorge nearby the village. Although the car was a complete wreck, the occupants suffered only slight injuries.

The tourists, Frederick Kuck and his wife, of 1010 Long street, New York City, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Packer of the same city, were coming along the road with Quebec as destination, when coming around a curve on top of the Donnacona Hill, their car came suddenly face to face with another, driven by Arthur Lanfiel, 3157 Verdun street, Montreal. Instinctively giving a violent turn to his wheel, Kuck, the driver, sent the car bounding past the railing into the river, 175 below.

The car turned turtle in the water and finally rested its top on the bottom while the passengers, by almost inconceivable luck, managed to get out before being drowned by the rushing stream. They were taken to the St. Sacrament Hospital in Quebec, with no other physical damage than a severe shaking up.

COURTESY PLEASES AMERICAN TOURIST

Pittsburghers Coming Back For Winter Near Apsley.

Canadian people have made a good impression on Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Emmal of Pittsburgh. For six years they have been summering at lakes in the vicinity of Apsley and have just finished a 35-day stay at Jack's Lake. But they are not yet through with Canada for the year. They have returned to their home in Pittsburgh to "close it up" and will be back in six weeks to take up residence for the winter at Apsley.

"We are going back to Apsley just to see how we like it," Mr. Emmal told The Examiner. "We have found everybody in Canada so nice to us we enjoy every minute in the country. An American meets courtesy everywhere here." Mr. Emmal explained that a tourist is rarely treated with the courtesy and "decency" the Canadian has to offer, in the United States.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.). — Ailing for the past three weeks with sleeping sickness, Arthur T. Reading, a resident of the city for the past 20 years, died at his home, aged 46. He was born in Kitchener.

$150,000 CARGO OF RUM SEIZED BY U. S. GUARDS

Rich Haul of 1,500 Cases Captured Off Long Island.

A CANADIAN VESSEL.

Crew of Ten Under Arrest Heading For New York.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 27.— The Canadian sea dory "Nova V", with approximately $15,000 worth of liquor, in fifteen hundred cases was captured yesterday by the coast guard off Shinneocck, Long Island, and was brought into New York harbor today by the patrol boat "Cardigan." Ten members of the crew of the "Nova V" were under arrest.

The crew of the "Cardigan" said the "Nova V" was sighted about ten miles off the south shore of Long Island. The coast guard boat held off until the vessel was well within the twelve-mile limit, then overhauled her in tow.

Two customsmen went down the bay to question the members of the "Nova V" crew, after which the prisoners were to be taken to Brooklyn for arraignment. Late today the Canadian craft will be brought to coast headquarters at the Battery.

The "Nova V" is 80 feet long and of British registry.

PEER IS BURIED IN ABBEY VAULT

Funeral of Duke of Northumberland Recalls Family's Right.

SHARED WITH ROYALTY.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 27 (A.P.) — Exercising a right shared only by Royalty, the Percy family laid to rest in Westminster Abbey to-day the body of the late Duke of Northumberland, in a vault under St. Nicholas Chapel, the tomb of his forefathers.

Representatives of the King, the Duke of York and members of noble families assembled to honor the dead Duke, whose casket was carried by stalwart Guardsmen over whom the Duke served as an officer.

In the case of a person other than Royalty special permission must be obtained for burial in Westminster. To the Percy family it is an inherited prerogative.

The Dukes of Northumberland have a prescriptive right to burial in the abbey and share also with royalty the privilege of entrance by the west door. No other family in the land has this prescriptive right. The last occasion on which one of these vaults was used for burial was on the death of the seventh Duke, in 1869. The privilege has been waived twice since then.

After the burial to-day, the tomb will accommodate only three more coffins. As far as can be ascertained, the right to burial in the abbey was accorded the Percys by Charles II, but it is possible that it was originally granted by Henry VIII to the Seymour family. Algernon Seymour, seventh Duke of Somerset, was created the Earl of Northumberland in 1749.

PSYCHOLOGICAL ASPECTS OF FOOD WILL BE STUDIED BY UNIVERSITY

Question of Physical Benefits of Flavor and Appearance to Receive Attention of Scientists—A Dietary Enquiry.

HAMILTON, N.Y., Aug. 27.— Here is unusual scientific news for those who enjoy eating.

Scientists at Colgate University this fall are going to digress from the usual routine of finding out what is good for a person to eat, and see whether there may be direct benefit from eating according to what a person likes.

Colgate will analyze the benefits of flavor, savouriness and eye-filling appearance.

This work will be done in the Department of Psychology under direction of Dr. Donald A. Laird. The plans are announced in the Colgate laboratory, which says:

"There has been a tendency in diet work for the past decade to treat man as a purely chemical machine working on calories, vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, etc. Taste, odour and appearance of food have been largely neglected, and it is these which will occupy most of our attention."

FRUIT DUMPING HALTED FROM U. S. BY GOV'T ORDER

New Order to Protect Canadian Growers of Garden and Orchard Commodities.

9 PRODUCTS LISTED.

Duties Be Assessed on What Department Considers Fair Price.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.) — The dumping of fruits and vegetables from the United States into the markets of Canada, which has been the cause of strenuous protest for some time has been stopped by the Federal Government.

Yesterday, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, announced the fixing values for duty purposes of ten fruits and vegetables which are among the common food commodities on the Canadian table. The fixing of value for duty purposes means that such fruits and vegetables entering Canada must pay a duty on the basis of the valuation determined by the minister.

Government to Fix Value

Provisions of the Customs Act permit the Government to fix valuation on commodities entering Canada if they consider such action desirable. In the past, on the floor of the House of Commons as well as outside Parliament, the claim has been made by representatives of the Canadian Fruit and Vegetable Growers that the "cream of the Canadian market" went to United States producers because they were in a position to bring forward their product earlier than it could be produced in Canada. There was also the claim that when the United States market was satisfied, fruit which would otherwise have flooded that market was dumped into Canada at a much lower price than prevailed either in United States or Canada. This, it was claimed, constituted unfair competition which the Canadian producer could not be expected to meet.

The fruits and vegetables upon which valuation has been fixed together with their values for duty purposes when entering Canada from United States, are as follows:—

Apples, per pound	6
Cabbages, per pound	5
Cantaloupes, per pound	13
Celery, per pound	10
Onions, per pound	4
Peaches, per pound	12
Pears, per pound	9
Plums and Prunes, per pound	8
Tomatoes, per pound	10

Ontario Pool Confident In Co-operative Association

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.). — A resolution expressing confidence in Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited, the central selling agency of Canadian grain pools, was unanimously passed at the concluding session of the Ontario Grain Pool meeting here. The executive of the latter body was urged to continue affiliation with the central agency for the sale of all grain offered by the Ontario membership.

During the discussion in regard to the failure to market last year's wheat crop, delegates attributed the blame to an inclination to "smash the pools by paying higher prices than were justified." It was agreed all that was necessary for the pool to regain its former position was confidence and loyalty on the part of pool membership.

CHINESE WAITER KNIFED TO DEATH BY COUNTRYMAN

Brantford Victim Rushed to Hospital Dies Without Naming Assailant.

CAUSE OF FIGHT UNKNOWN.

Constable Arrests Chinaman Found Fleeing Along Highway.

BRANTFORD, Aug. 27.—Attacked with a butcher-knife, George Lin, Chinese, was fatally stabbed at the American Cafe, Dalhousie Street, last evening at the supper hour. Bob Wong, a fellow-waiter, is in custody on a charge of murder.

Constable Kellas, who hastened to the cafe in response to a telephone call, found several Chinese. One, a cook, Jim Wong, was supporting the wounded man, who was taken to the hospital, where he expired. Sergeant Blower and Traffic Officer Campbell were there at his death. Lin was able to talk, but would say nothing about the attack. He passed without mentioning the name of his assailant or implicating any one.

The officer brought Wong to the police cells, surprising those who were looking for him. The Chinese quarter was searched for some time by officers. They were met with silence regarding the accused. Little is known about Lin or the motive for the deed. Some persons say the pair had quarrelled Sunday, but those in the restaurant denied that there had been any controversy. They could throw no light on the affair, and late this evening Acting Crown Attorney Boddy ordered the police to obtain an interpreter who could question any Chinese who might be in a position to throw light on the affair.

Lin was about 32 years of age and said to be married. His first wife died in China. The accused is married. His wife and two children are in China. An inquest was ordered for tomorrow morning.

URGES SIX-HOUR DAY.

Solution of Unemployment Says Trainmen's President.

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 27. — A six-hour working day as a solution to the unemployment situation was advocated here yesterday by A. F. Whitney, Cleveland, O., president of the international association of general chairmen, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

"With more than 5,000,000 persons unemployed, the situation is growing more acute daily," he said. "If America is to enjoy prosperity, the purchasing power of the average workman must be increased."

The most plausible plan to decrease idleness, Whitney believes, is to inaugurate a six-hour working day in virtually all manufacturing plants and in many lines of business.

LIBERAL WINS—YAMASKA

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 27. (C.P.) Disregarding an injunction issued against him by another judge of the superior court, Mr. Justice Coderre yesterday proceeded with the recount of votes cast in Yamaska County in the recent federal elections and found Aime Boucher, Liberal candidate, elected by one vote. The result confirmed the original count of the returning officer.

Fall Wraps Will Be Long, Very Long

When the chill breezes begin to blow with penetrating insistence, the beloved hip-length evening jacket must yield to the lang wrap. The new wrap is long, very long, and fabrics employed are very sumptuous, including such articles as velvet and lame, plain or patterned and often lined with velvet. Ruby red fashions the wrap in the Vogue illustration. A circular flounce joins the wrap in a shaped line and affords the gradual fullness that covers the long skirt. The collar, shown of velvet might effectively by fashioned of summer ermine. Shirr fulness add interest to the sleeves. Wool crepe in a warm autumnal red is the feature of the fall mode as shown in the picture above. The normal waist-line is indicated by a fabric belt, and touches are lent by white pique revers on the lapel.—Sketch is by Vogue.

BLAZING VESSEL PULLS INTO PORT AFTER LONG RACE

Crew Aboard Japanese Freighter Fought Fire Three Days.

DECKS RED HOT.

Captain Forced to Run For Victoria After Getting 800 Miles Out.

VICTORIA, B.C., August 27. — With her decks red-hot, her steel bulkheads badly buckled and bent, and the paint on her funnel blistered and peeled from the terrific heat, the Japanese freighter Oregon Maru dropped anchor in the Royal Roads yesterday. After a stiff but successful fight by the crew of the local steamer Salvage King to extinguish the fire, the Japanese ship docked at the Ogden Point piers for discharge of cargo, survey by underwriters and repairs. She will probably remain here two or three days before putting to sea again to resume her interrupted voyage to the Orient.

Captain Y. Kikuyama, master of the Oregon Maru, stated that since early on Saturday morning he and the crew had very little sleep, and had been fighting the fire continuously. The work checked the flames, but not before they had spread to the bunkers and the stokehold, and several times seriously threatened the entire ship. Water was turned into No. 3 hold, where most of the smoke was originating, and the hold was battened down so that the wind could not get to it.

The fire was discovered early on Saturday morning, and the master did not turn the ship about immediately, as it was thought the fire could be extinguished. But when it was seen that the flames had made great headway and endangered the ship, it was deemed necessary to turn around and head back for port with all possible speed. The ship was then 800 miles from Victoria.

REDS MENACING CHANGSHA AGAIN

Foreign Women and Children Fleeing Chinese City as Hordes Approach.

TROOPS SENT TO RELIEF.

SHANGHAI, China, Aug. 27. (C.P.) Foreign women and children were fleeing from Changsha, Hunan Province Capital, for Hankow, to-day because of the increasing menace of 5,000 Communists approaching the city with the evident intention of attempting to recapture it.

With no protecion except a weakened garrison of Provincial troops of doubtful loyalty at Changsha, it was felt to be imperative to evacuate as many foreigners as possible to avoid the possibility of an attack such as hordes of Communists recently made on the city, when foreign property was looted and burned.

Hoping to prevent a repetition of the sacking, President Chiang Kai-Shek has ordered 20,000 troops detached from his army in Shantung Province and sent to Hunan Province to punish the Reds.

FLIER WINS FIGHT AGAINST REPTILE

Pilot Badly Bitten By Rattler While 4,500 Feet in the Air.

MANAGES TO LAND PLANE.

SCOTT CITY, Kan., August 27.—S. (Happy) Wiggins, a salesman who pilots airplanes as a hobby, is all that his name implies. For Happy narrowly escaped with his life in a battle with a rattlesnake at an altitude of 4,500 feet, and is recovering to-day from bites received in the fight.

Wiggins' sky battle with the rattlesnake ended when he finally hurled the reptile from the cockpit of his plane. But Wiggins did not escape unscathed in his fight, the rattler striking the aviator twice in the struggle that took place in the cockpit. Wiggins is recovering from the wounds on the hand and arm caused by the snake bites.

After Wiggins had managed to throw the reptile from his plane he headed his plane for a farm house eight miles away. He landed with great difficulty, narrowly averting a crash in th hurried landing in a pasture. He was given emergency treatment at the farm house and then rushed to a physician. The snake is believed to have crawled into the plane while it was parked in a hangar here.

Although made deliriously ill from the venom, Wiggins is expected to recover, his physician said.

SAULT VISITOR IN FATAL CRASH

Cable From Freighter Pulls Victim From Speed Boat.

HURLED INTO WATER.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., August 27. — Thrown from his speeding outboard motor boat by a cable stretched from the lighter Champion to an anchorage in St. Mary's River, Edward Steele, aged 33, of Rogers City, was killed last night at Detour, where he was visiting friends and relatives.

The accident occurred while Steele was returning from a spin on the St. Mary's River. He and his wife, daughter of Captain Martin of Detour, had arrived at 7.30 o'clock and Steele went out alone in the boat.

It was dark when he returned. The lighter Champion lay at the Dutcher Dock with a cable on the opposite side holding her to an anchorage. At the point where Steele passed, the cable was just far enough out of the water to permit the boat to go under. It caught Steele just above the eyes, snapped his head back, and threw him into the water, while the boat sped on. His body was recovered.

Whether he was drowned or whether he was killed by the collision with the steel cable has not been ascertained.

EMERGENCY TARIFF MEASURE PLANNED

House to Meet in Second Week of September.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27. — September's extraordinary session of the House of Commons wil lopen Monday the 8th, or as late as Thursday the 11th.

At this session, measures for relieving and remedying unemployment will be brought down, including an emergency tariff adjustment. The tariff matter is being worked upon at present by the government with the assistance of the permanent officials. The measure will be designed to encourage and enable industries to increase their activities and provide more employment.

The special session will not last much more than two weeks, if that long. The government is determined to have it over in time to permit of the departure of the Prime Minister and his delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference.

THREE NEW ARRESTS IN AUTO THEFT CASE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Aug. 27. —(CP)—Three men, Cyril Weese, Rossemore, Romeo Martin and Gilbert Shear of unknown addresses, have been arrested at Echo Bay charged with the theft of an automobile from Naughton. Provincial police from Sudbury will take the men back to that city.

The trio it is believed, are connected with Victor Powers and E. Jackson, Toronto, the former under arrest here and the latter at Burks' Falls, charged with the theft of a local car. Jackson recently complained to police he had been held up and robbed by hitch-hikers of f$400.

WESTERN GAS COMPANIES ARE IN BIG MERGER

Union Natural Gas Joins With United Fuel Investments.

$42,000,000 INVOLVED.

All Western Ontario to be Served By New Company After Union.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27. (C.P.)—Plans for the consolidation of two large public utilities designed to bring under one control the operations of companies having total assets in excess of $42,000,000 have been announced here.

Under the plan, Union Natural Gas will exchange for each fully paid share of United Fuel Investments, six tenths of a fully paid common share. The holders of more than sixty percent of the outstanding common stock of United Fuel have already agreed to sell their shares on those terms.

An offer will be forwarded to all other shareholders in United Fuel within the next ten days to exchange their shares on the same terms.

The amalgamation will include City Gas Company of London purchased by Union Natural Gas, United Fuel Investment with its three subsidiaries, Hamilton By-Product Coke Ovens Ltd., United Gas and Fuel Company of Hamilton, Ltd., and United Suburban Gas Company, Ltd., forming one of the largest distributors of gas and coke in Canada.

Takes All Common Stock

Union Natural Gas, which, under the merger, takes over all the common stock of United Fuel, on December 31, 1929, had an authorized capitalization of 1,000,000 shares no par value capital stock of which 619,927 were outstanding. Through a stock dividend in June of this year, the outstanding was raised to 631,825 shares.

The company has no funded debt and no preferred stock. It holds $1,164,000 first mortgage five percent bonds of the Windsor Gas Company, Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary. The company serves 33,000 consumers in the counties of Essex, Kent and Lambton, particularly in the Border Cities area. It was incorporated in 1911.

On March 31st, 1930, United Fuel Investments had an authorized capitalization of $25,000,000 of six percent cumulative preferred stock par value 3100 of which $9,000,000 were outstanding and 25,000 shares of common stock, no par value, of which 100,000 shares were issued.

The subsidiaries of United Fuel have a funded debt outstanding of 33,339,200 in bonds and $425,000 in notes.

Youths Rob Homes During Funerals

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 26. (C.P.) Police have arrested three young men, Edward Robertson, Robert Norman and Cameron Hayes, in connection with a peculiar series of thefts here. At homes where funeral ceremonies have been taking place the young men attended, only to sneak into other portions of the homes and ransack rooms for money and valuables. In one case a sum of $70 was stolen and the police allege the trio arrested are responsible for the thefts.

TRAIN SMASHES JIGGER SIX ABOARD ESCAPE

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 27. (C.P.)—Six employees of the bridge and building department of the Canadian National Railways jumped to safety west of London at noon to-day an instant before their gasoline jigger was struck and demolished by the Chicago-Montreal express. The passenger train hit the jigger at 60 miles an hour and tossed it a hundred yards but all of the men were clear and unhurt.

EMPLOYMENT IN ENGLAND SHOWS SLIGHT INCREASE

Statistics For Third Week in August Improve in Some Sections.

ONLY SECTIONAL GAIN.

Mining and Industrial Centres Are Still Inactive.

LONDON, Aug. 27. — At least a momentary gleam of hope in England's unemployment crisis is revealed by the industrial statistics for the third week in August. For the first time in many months there is a report of an increase in the number of men who got jobs.

It is true these favorable indications are regional, applying only to parts of London and the rural south and southeastern counties, while Wales and the industrial North of England show no similar gain and the situation for the country as a whole is not improved.

But even the sectional check to the depression is better than nothing at all. The idle man in the country village can get just as hungry as the jobless laborer in the factory town and his dole costs the Government just as much.

Districts Showing Improvement.

The regions which show less unemployment than last month are scattered through the counties of Essex, Berkshire, Hertfordshire, Middlesex, Kent Surrey, Sussex and Hampshire. The total number of workers in these eight counties entitled to unemployment insurance is 1,434,760, and of these only seven per cent., including all classes of workers, are now idle. This is a material gain over last month. Similar improvement was reported for various London boroughs and for the entire metropolitan district the percentage of idle is now only 7.6, which is only slightly above the unemployment average in normally prosperous periods.

It is a very different tale in the mining and manufacturing sections, with the unemployment rate reaching its highest mark, a trifle over 30 per cent., in the Welsh county of Glamorgan and in Monmouth. The next worst is the Lancashire cotton mills region, with 28 per cent. unemployed. The unemployment percentages in the seven industrial counties of Staffordshire, Durham, Cumberland, Northumberland, Yorkshire, Cheshire and Worcestershire range from 21 to 27.

Some Work Resuming.

But even in these depressed areas better conditions are promised in a few enterprises for the near future. One steel concern in Glamorganshire says it will resume full operations next month, thereby restoring 2,000 men to work after seven weeks of idleness. In Northumberland one mining company which laid off 2,000 men a fortnight ago has recalled 800 to resume work this week on the assumption that the coal business is going to improve and in anticipation of the winter demand.

In Yorkshire two linen mills which had been completely idle for several weeks will resume operations within a few days. In Cheshire, where a big cotton mill was on the eve of closing because of the inability of owners to meet immediate bills, 1,600 employees have agreed to accept a 5 per cent. cut in wages to enable the company to carry on and the offer was accepted.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 27. — Foreign demand for Canadian wheat fell off to only light buying for immediate needs and the Winnipeg wheat market lacked support of any kind, dropping back to close 1¼ cents to 2⅜ cents lower. The wheat pool's announcement that the initial payment on No. 1 Northern at Fort William would be 60 cents a bushel had no apparent effect.

Farmers delivered two and one-half million bushels to country elevators in the West on Monday. The only support yesterday came from Chicago sources that took up fair quantities of the May future.

Demand for cash wheat was light and coarse grains, also in limited trading, fell off in sympathy with wheat.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Aug. 27.— Receipts of cattle at the Union stock yards yesterday were: 535 cattle, 373 calves, 640 hogs, 1,180 sheep and lambs.

Left-overs totalled 1,100 cattle. Trade was slow, with prices generally steady. Common to medium butchers sold from 5 to 6½ cents a pound, and good cows sold up to 6. Heavy bulls are wanted for export up to $5 a cwt. Well finished cattle are very scarce on the market. Calves are stronger at 11 to 12.75 cents a pound, with commons downward to 5. Hogs are unsettled with prospects steady at 10¼c f.o.b. and 11¼c w.o.c. for bacons, with selects at $1 a head premium. Lambs are unsettled, with bids at 8½ cents a pound for best ewes and wethers and asking 9c. Sheep are weak at 4 to 5 cents for the best ewes.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.— A feature of the local cash grain trade yesterday was the easier feeling that developed for barley and oats and values were reduced one cent per bushel.

The highlight of the flour trade was the strength of white corn grades and prices were marked up 30c. to 50c. per barrel.

The demand for butter continued fair, and values were well maintained. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized sold at 28½c per lb., to retailers small lots of solids sold at 30c to 31c per lb ,and prints at 31c to 32c per lb. Receipts were 452 boxes.

The cheese market was quoted at 15c for Ontario grades, and 14 3-8c for Quebec. Receipts were 6,721 boxes.

New, locally-grown potatoes were unchanged at 90c. per 80-lb. bags, while New Brunswick Cobblers were offered at $1 to $1.05.

A fair trade was done in eggs and values were steady. B. C. eggs sold at 34c to 35c for extras, 32c for firsts and 30c. for pullets. Ontario strictly fresh were offered at 34c to 35c for extras, 29c to 30c for firsts and 26½c for seconds. Receipts were 2,693 cases.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 27.— Wheat and corn went downgrade in price most of the time yesterday, although corn scored a sharp transient rally. For the first time this season December delivery of corn brought a premium over December delivery of wheat. Good harvest weather both in Canada and Europe, together with continuing doubt as to whether the Canadian growers' pool would be compelled to hedge its wheat holdings this season, did to press values here down.

Closing quotations on wheat were heavy at the day's bottom level, 1¼c to 1¾c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed nervous, 3-8c to 1 1-8c down; oats, 1-2c to 1c off, and provisions varying from 5c decline to an equal gain.

OBITUARY

MRS. MATTHEW McMURRAY

WARSAW, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Corerspondence).—The funeral of the late Mrs. Matthew McMurray was held on Sunday afternoon at four o'clock. The service was held in St. Patrick's church, Douro, and conducted by Rev. Father McGuire.

The bearers were her own five sons, Clarence, Leonard, William, Vincent, and David, and a cousin, Garrett McMurray.

Interment took place in Douro Cemetery.

BERNARD MURPHY DERRY

MARMORA, Aug. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Death claimed, at Westboro, early on Friday morning, one who was highly respected there as in the Marmora district, where he formerly lived, namely Bernard Murphy Derry.

Deceased, who was in his sixty-eighth year, was born on Lot 16 in the 10th Concession of Marmora Township; his father was the late William Derry and his mother's maiden name was Mary Murphy.

After earlier years had been spent at farming, the late Mr. Derry became employed at the Gold Mills at Malone. In 1908 he moved to Deloro where he spent four years in the employ of the Smelting and Refining Company. This was followed by a two-year residency at Cordova.

In 1914, the deceased accepted a position at the Department of Mines, Ottawa, at the time of his death being Mill Superintendent.

With his integrity of heart and generous spirit, it was only natural that the late Mr. Derry should enjoy a large circle of friends. He had been ill since last April. He was a staunch Anglican and was for many years a member of Marmora A. F. and A. M. 222. Brethren of the Masonic Order in Westboro honored the departed brother by conducting a service at his residence there. Besides his widow, there are left to mourn his loss, two sons, Charles and Milton, and one daughter, Mrs. Alfred Ferguson, Brockville. He is also survived by two brothers, Thomas of Marmora Township and Anthony of Cobalt.

The remains arrived at Bonarlaw station at 2.30 p.m. on Monday, being met there by officers and brethren of Marmora A.F. and A.M. 222. The cortège proceeded to St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora, where service was taken by the Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

Among the special hymns chosen was "Rock of Ages,' 'a favorite with the deceased. The Rector's words of consolation were an elaboration of the 23rd Psalm. After the interment in Marmora Protestant Cemetery, the last rites of the Order were taken by Wor. Bro. A. V. Yates and Bro. Rev. A. B. Caldwell.

The pallbearers were T. Warren, C. A. Bleecker, W. A. Sanderson, W. D. Donnelly, T. E. Laycock and H. W. Sabine. Many floral tributes were sent.

In the passing of the late Mr. Derry, Marmora A. F. and A. M. 222 has lost its third member within a month.

LAURA C. WIGGINS

MARMORA, Aug. 27 (Examiner Correspondence)—A life of exemplary character closed on Friday in the passing away of Laura E. Wiggins, at her home in the 1st Concession of Marmora Township. Deceased, who was 41 years of age, was the daughter of the late John Wiggins and Rachel McConnell, and though spending most of her life in the township where she was born, resided for a number of years at Cupar, Sask., with her two brothers, William and John, who were engaged in farming there.

In Cupar she was a valued worker for the Methodist Church. Returning to the neighborhood of Cordova she became the organist of the Cordova Methodist Church, and was also one of those instrumental in the organization of young people's work in that district. She had been ailing for several months, but until six weeks ago was able to be around.

She is survived by four brothers George, Niagara Falls; William, Cupar, Sask.; and John and Robert, at home; and one sister, Mrs. R. Kennedy, Marmora Township.

The funeral, which took place on Monday afternoon, was largely attended. Service was conducted at Marmora United Church by the Rev. F. H. Howard, pastor, assisted by the Rev. J. N. Lovelace Joblin and Spencer, all four having served on the Cordova circuit. Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

There was a large number of beautiful sprays and wreaths which afforded mute testimony of the respect in which the deceased lady was held. Those from a distance attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. James Wiggins, Cherry Valley; Rev. and Mrs. Colquhoun, Lucknow; Mr. and Mrs. John Downey, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Downey, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Kilpatrick and Mrs. Richard Downey, Ivanhoe; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. McConnell, Belleville; Mr. P. Williams, Cardinal; Miss M. McGahey, Miss McConnell and Mrs. Whitehead, Toronto.

ST. JOHN GROWING.

SAINT JOHN, N.B.—In a comprehensive little booklet on the City of Saint John, issued by the Commissioner of the Saint John Board of Trade, it is pointed out, among other things indicative of the city's present growth, that building permits issued in the first four months of the present year, exceeded in value those of the whole of the previous year and more than doubled those of 1927, the comparisons being:

1927	$ 614,176
1928	843,438
1929	1,244,805
1930 (Four months)	1,479,894

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1930

THE CABINET IS ELECTED.

Allowing Premier R. B. Bennett and the members of his Cabinet to be returned by acclammation was good sense, good politics and good business.

The country has recently spoken its mind with no uncertain voice and has given the new Government a mandate to put into force the policies enunciated during the campaign.

It would have been, therefore, a foolish act to place unnecessary obstacles in the path, and there is no doubt that the people generally would have resented any attempt on the part of the Opposition to do so.

The way has been cleared for the special session of Parliament, and secure in their positions, the new Ministers will be able to devote their full attention to the business of their offices, which is as it should be.

Incidentally, it is to be hoped that among the legislation to be introduced by the Bennett Government will be an act to do away with the necessity for members of Parliament who have been promoted to the Cabinet having to return to their constituents for endorsation at a by-election.

Any need that may have existed for that procedure has long since passed, and there is no reason why the Federal Parliament should continue to keep in force an antiquated practice that has been abandoned in Ontario, and also in Great Britain.

Elected members of Parliament should be permitted to take office as members of the Cabinet without the formality of another election.

MAY NEED ANOTHER SENSATION.

The lessened interest in the marathon swim at the Canadian National Exhibition to-day supplies its own proof of the fact that the directors of the Exhibition will shortly have to seek some other sensation as a master attraction.

The long distance craze has had its day; as a spectacle it never justified the initial attention it received, and as a sport it has been marred because in its effect upon the participants it has imposed hardship and suffering.

There were many people who deprecated the action of the Canadian National Exhibition directors in bolstering up its receipts by staging contests more in line with the cruelty of the old Roman ampitheatre than with the modern conception of sport, pointing out that while such circus attractions might have a temporary stimulating effect upon the attendance, the appeal would in time wear out and then the management would be faced with the problem of finding some other spectacular features to replace it.

Apparently that time is not far off, and it is evident that the task of securing a substitute will not be easy.

That is the trouble with events of that kind; they whet the appetite of the sensation-seeking public, but once they lose their interest-producing faculty it is necessary to provide still more exciting features.

All in all, it may yet be found that the staging of professional long distance swimming was a mistake in policy.

A DANGEROUS QUESTION.

It looks as if Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario's Minister of Game and Fisheries, is paving the way for a first-class controversy in issuing a questionnaire to Ontario huntsmen asking them, among other questions, "Are you in favor of the use of dogs for the hunting of deer?"

Mr. McCrea should know by this time that a question of that kind is dynamite.

There is nothing that dissolves friendships quicker than to drop a question about dogs in the midst of a coterie of Ontario deer hunters.

All the famous arguments of history, the old controversy as to whether strawberry shortcake should be cake or biscuit, the never ending debate as to the merits or otherwise of daylight saving, the tussle over New Zealand butter, all fade into insignificance compared with the heat that is engendered over arguing as to the practice of driving deer into the water with dogs as compared with sneaking up on them and shooting when they are not looking.

Families have been split right up the middle, hunting clubs have been scattered to the winds, old friendships have been severed forever, by this vexed question, which finds Ontario hunters divided into two camps deametrically opposite in their views.

The only suggestion The Examiner has to make is that during the coming season still hunters should be compelled to hunt with dogs and advocates of the use of hounds should be forced to try one season of still hunting.

The beauty of that plan is that they'd all have to learn something about the other fellow's game.

WHY THE DELAY?

From the tone of the communication received by James Dutton, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, the conclusion is justified that the Ontario Government has no intention of rushing the work on the new provincial highway east of Peterborough, although the need of proceeding with such work as a means of affording unemployment relief has been strongly urged by the City Council and other bodies.

The intimation that it is hoped to proceed with grading work this fall is decidedly more indefinite than the promise of T. P. Lancaster, M.P.P., on the eve of the general federal election that work would begin on this section of highway on the first day of the present month.

August is practically over, and not only has the work not commenced but the only hint of any action is the announcement that some grading may be done this fall.

Once again may The Examiner point out that in view of the unemployment situation the Ontario Department of Highways should be prodded into action, and that it is the duty of the city and county representatives in the Legislature, J. F. Strickland and T. P. Lancaster, to camp on the doorstep of the Government until the need for a speeding up of the road-building program in this section has impressed itself upon the Minister of Highways and other members of the Cabinet.

BETTER TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES.

Transportation and power are the prime necessities for Canada's growth. The development of power is progressing as rapidly as the manufacturing and agricultural needs of the country require, but much yet remains to be done in the field of transportation.

If Hon. Mr. Bennett and the new Parliament fulfil their pre-election promises to build a trans-Canada highway and to give federal aid to the Provinces in road-building, they will do much to advance the economic future of this Dominion.

These promises were made largely with an eye to the relief of unemployment, and there is probably no work upon which the Government can embark which will give employment and at the same time give the public full value for the money expended, more than will the construction of roads, canals, bridges and grade-separation improvements.

England's industrial supremacy throughout the nineteenth century was due very largely to her superior transportation facilities resulting from the inventions by James Watt and Robert Stephenson. The industrial supremacy of the North Atlantic States in the United States has been due largely to their canals and railroads; having harbor and transportation facilities superior to other sections of the country, those States have been the logical location for industries.

But transportation methods are changing. Just as Stephenson revolutionized wagon-trail methods, Selden, Winton, Ford and other pioneers of the horseless wagon started another industrial revolution. Highway transportation, in conjunction with a superior system of canals, may in the twentieth century give to Canada the industrial supremacy that was England's in the nineteenth century. Power, as provided by Watt's inventions, was the revitalizing influence that lifted English industry out of the slough of despond into which it had fallen in the middle of the eighteenth century—power, aided by transportation. With cheaper power, and hence with greater manufacturing ability, and with cheaper transportation, England became truly great.

To-day both power and transportation have changed in character. The methods of the nineteenth century are not the methods of the twentieth century. We have turned another page of economic history and are writing a totally new chapter. On these new pages, Canada's picture will be a glorious one. With a climate most favorable for active work, with abundant raw materials, with a plentiful supply of cheap power, and with adequate transportation, Canada's industrial future will be ensured. Surplus of manufactures, surplus of agricultural products, foreign trade, prosperity—these will follow just as surely as night follows day.

Transportation is essential. Millions of dollars can well be put into roads and canals. Provided that they are properly planned and ably built, and provided that they form an integral part of a logical system of national development, every dollar so spent will be well spent. Most of the North Atlantic States in the United States strained their credit to the utmost in order to aid the construction of railroads, but they rapidly recovered in financial strength as industrial growth followed the transportation facilities so provided. And highways are easier to finance than railways; gasoline taxes, license fees, drivers' fines and many other sources of legitimite revenue are of great assistance.

Good roads save more than they cost. To the general public purse there is an actual saving in gasoline, wear and tear on vehicles, drivers' time, and other items, that more than pays the cost of the road improvements. But that saving is so general in character, and roads are used by traffic from such distant sources, that it is difficult, and unfair, to assess very much of any expenditure against any one locality. The national purse profits from road-building, and the national purse should participate in road-building.

There are specific arguments of more detailed character for federal aid, such as that the Dominion Government should pay its proper share of providing mail routes and roads that are needed for national defense. These are all true, but over and beyond these there is the fact that the people of Canada as a whole benefit so generally that the people of Canada as a whole should pay a large share of the initial costs.

The federal-aid measure that was passed by Parliament in 1919 gave the first real impetus to road construction in Canada. It was the measure that resulted in the organization of most of the provincial highway departments in this country. It encouraged the Provincial Governments to appropriate dollar for dollar with the Dominion grant, and it educated the provincial, county and township authorities in the matter of roads to such an extent that it was not long before they were spending better than dollar for dollar.

If Mr. Bennett will implement his pre-election promises—and there is no reason to believe that he intends to do otherwise—road-building in Canada, and canal construction in Canada, will be given tremendous impetus. Improvement of transportation facilities alone will not ensure prosperity, but it is an essential part of a comprehensive program of national development that would assist producers, distributors and manufacturers to meet foreign competition at home and in world trade. With broad, vigorous, well-directed efforts of this kind, Canadian industry will progress, the cost of manufacturing and trading will decrease, our production will increase, our national income (and therefore the amount available for distribution as wages) will be enhanced, and the small remaining endemic percentage of unemployment will again become a problem for sociologists rather than for economists.—The Canadian Engineer.

The Office Hound

Dear Hound:

Sure! I'd like to meet Mademoiselle X! The dizzy blonde! And the idea of meeting at the corner of George and Simcoe is O.K. by me. I'm off duty tonight at six o'clock so I'll rush home and grab myself a plate of beans and wash behind my ears and change outa my unyform. This blonde don't want to be seen walking off with no cop in a unyform. Her friends is liably to think she's arrested or something. Anyway, I'll be at the corner of George and Simcoe at half past eight and I'll be wearing a sport model suit with big checks and an orange tie and light tan shoes. I won't be wearing no pink rose and I won't have my hat on sideways. She'll know me all right, by my flat feet and the sticking plaster on my chin.

Yours, etc.

THE COP, (Single)

P. S.—And then we can go off and play miniature golf or git lit or something.

A despatch from our society correspondent, Lady Dribble, dated at Blister Beach, says that the season at Blister Beach is waning. "Tuesday will see the Four Hundred returning to the city in their thousands," she says. She is bringing back her latest acquisition, Theodore, the Minor Poet from Port Hope. The scion of a noble family, he gave it all up for his art. Instead of working eight hours a day in his father's office and praying for an improvement in business conditions, he now sleeps all day in a hotel bed and sallies forth at night to prey on simple society folk. He will lecture at local women's clubs, according to Lady Dribble, and has soft eyes, long hair, and a thrilling voice. . . . Oh-oh!

TEMPLE TOWER

By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

The undergrowth was dense. I could see nothing. But that noise which had sounded like the cracking of a twig must have been caused by something. Or somebody. And then—I cannot explain it—I began to be aware of a peculiar sensation, a sensation I had never experienced before. Someone was watching me; I knew it.

Once again I stared all round me; once again I saw nothing save the brambles and trees. But the feeling grew on me, till it amounted to a certainty. I was being watched. Back to my mind came Hugh's words of that morning: he, too, had felt the same sensation in the sand dunes. And after a while I could stand it no longer. I got up. Still no sound, still no sign, but the feeling remained. The silent watcher was still there. I took a few steps forward, and there came the sudden crack of another twig. And now I knew I was right: we were not alone in the wood.

Absurd I know, and I am almost ashamed to admit it, but for some reason or other the most unreasoning panic began to get hold of me. And only by taking a firm pull at myself did I remain where I was. In the middle of a summer's afternoon, for a grown man to be frightened in an English wood was utterly ridiculous, and yet the plain fact remained that I was. The noise had seemed to come from the direction in which I was facing, and acting on a sudden impulse I plunged into the undergrowth. There was nothing—nothing, at all. A bird startled by the noise flew away chattering angrily, but of anyone human there was no sign. I took a few more steps, peering in every direction, with the same result. And then, suddenly, I heard Freckles calling me, an his voice was urgent.

"Darrell! Darrell! Where are you?"

"Here I am," I answered. "What's the matter?"

I found him sitting up, rubbing his eyes with the back of his hand.

"I must have been dreaming," he said slowly. "And yet I could have sworn I was awake."

"What did you think you saw?" I asked.

"It is a most extraordinary thing," he said, "but I thought I saw a black figure through those bushes over there. It was all black, standing between those two trees. Just at first I thought it was you, until it moved then I saw it wasn't. And then it suddenly vanished."

"Let's go and have a look," I said and together we walked over to the two trees. But there was no one there, and though we stood listening intently we heard no further sound. The wood had relapsed into its drowsy silence once more.

"A trick of the light most probably,' he said. "Some shadow or other."

"Shadows don't come and go," I answered. "As a matter of fact for the last five minutes I've had the impression that we were being watched."

"But damn it," he cried, "if there really was someone there, what was he doing in that extraordinary rig. He was absolutely black, and a most peculiar shape."

"What do you mean by a peculiar shape?" I said.

"I'm blowed if I know what I do mean," he answered, scratching his head. "But he didn't look normal."

"When you say black," I persisted, "do you mean he was a nigger?"

"No he didn't seem to have a face at all. He was just a black outline." He gave an irritable laugh. "Confound it, Darrell, I'm not tight. And I know I was awake. What the deuce is in this wood?"

"It's a bit too big a proposition to explore at the moment," I said. "I think we'd better return to our observation post; we don't want to miss the letter if it comes."

We went back to our original position and lay down again. And for the next ten minutes while we waited I have no hesitation in admitting that I frequently found myself looking over my shoulder into the shadows behind us. What was this mysterious being that I had heard, and Freckles had seen?

After a while I glanced at my watch: it was ten minutes past three. And I was on the point of suggesting that we should give it up, when something skimmied over the wall and fell in the road, not two yards from where we were lying. It was the letter, and it had hardly reached the ground before Freckles had it in his pocket.

"Pat," he called out in a low voice. "Pat."

"Hullo!" I just heard her answer from the other side.

"Are you all right, darling?"

"Yes, quite. Look here, Tom . ."

But whatever she was going to say we missed, because at that moment Freckles glanced up the road. He let out an urgent "Shut up," and bolted back under cover beside me.

"The Vandalis," he muttered, and even as he spoke I heard the roar of their car in the distance. It drew up almost in front of us, but fortunately in such a position that we could see the gate. The woman was driving, and we wormed our way a little further forward in order to see better. The whole thing was evidently cut and dried beforehand, and a direct frontal assault was the plan. Vandali got out of the car, looking even more overdressed than he had in the Dolphin, walked over to the bell and rang it. Then he lit a cigarette, and coming back to the car, stood leaning against it and talking to the girl. Once I thought he must have seen us, because he stared perfectly straight at me, and seemed to pause for an instant in his conversation. But he gave no further sign, and a few moments later, the hole in the gate was opened and Gaspard looked out.

Vandali turned round, and for a while he and the girl stared at him in silence. Then Vandali spoke.

"Is Mr. Granger at home?"

"That's as may be," retorted the other. "Who are you, and what do you want?"

"My name doesn't matter. But I wish to see your master."

"Well, he don't wish to see you, nor anyone else."

He made as if to shut the hole in the gate, but Vandali stepped forward.

"Wait a minute, my friend," he said. "You know who is down there on the Marsh, don't you?"

"I don't know what you are talking about," said Gaspard hoarsely.

"Don't lie: it is foolish," said Vandali. "You know that you are found at last—or rather your master is. And you know what that means."

Gaspard moistened his dry lips with his tongue.

"Tell me who you are?" he repeated.

"As I said before," answered Vandali, "it doesn't matter who I am. But go and tell your master that someone who knows everything is outside and wishes to speak to him. And tell him further that he need have no fear."

For a while the man hesitated then he slammed and bolted the panel of the opening and we heard his steps departing up the drive.

"I wonder," said Vandali thoughtfully to the girl, "if it will work the trick. We hit the mark all right over Marillard. Still it is only guesswork."

"Guess-work that is a certainty," she answered impatiently. "My dear Paul, look at the house, look at the precautions he has taken against anyone getting in. Of course it is the man."

"I suppose you are right," he agreed. "Anyway, we can but try the bluff."

He lit a cigarette, and stood leaning against the car.

"And if the bluff doesn't succeed?" she remarked, "what then?"

"I see nothing for it," he said, "but the police."

The panel suddenly opened again, and he swung round. And framed for a moment in the hole in the gate was an unpleasant, shifty-eyed face. The owner himself, I decided, and evidently Vandali had come to the same conclusion

"Mr. Granger, I believe," he said quietly.

But if he expected any further conversation he was doomed to disappointment. A querulous voice said: "I don't know you go away," and then the panel slammed to again.

"Wait a moment," called out Vandali. "I know you don't know me, but I know you."

"Go away," shrieked the voice from the other side of the wall.

"Listen to me, you fool," snarled Vandali, losing his temper, "or it will be the worse for you. Unless you consent to see me, and discuss things, I will put the police on to you."

A Thought

MUTUAL LOVE

Much of the love that promises to be eternal fades and pales from the lack of mutual service. Friends at first eager to pour out their love in every possible way, thinking no task too hard and no sacrifice too great that may add to the happiness of each other, after a while relax their efforts, perhaps almost unconsciously. Each one, however, is keenly alive to the change in the other, and hence arise suspicion and distrust and a sense of injury; and love in such an atmosphere is sure to languish.

AUGUST MEETING FRASERVILLE L.A.

Many From District Attend Gathering in Orange Hall —Usual Program.

FRASERVILLE, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence). — The August meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held on Wednesday in the Orange Hall, Fraserville.

The meeting was opened with singing the hymn, "More Love to Thee." The Scripture reading, taken from Revelations, 22nd chapter, was read by Miss Mildred Moncrief. The Lord's Prayer was then repeated in unison.

Sixteen members answered "present" to the roll call. During the afternoon a beautiful quilt was quilted for Mrs. Will Hanbidge. Supper was served about 5.30 p.m.

Those present were: Mrs. (Rev.) E. P. Swayne, Mrs. R. Moncrief, Mrs. W. A. Kidd, Mrs. James Lackey, Mrs. W. A. Wood, Mrs. G. F. Clarke, Mrs. Ray Finlay, Mrs. Croft, Mrs. A. Hewitt, Mrs. S. Hogg and Edgar, Mrs. J. O. Pue and Eleanor, Mrs. C. Lawrence, Mrs. B. Seabrook, Mrs. R. Holden, Mrs. W. A. Pue, Mrs. J. A. Carl, Mrs. W. Hanbidge, Mrs. D. Moffatt, Miss Marjorie Swayne, Mildred Moncrief, Ruby Cunningham and Roberta Wood.

Personals.

Mrs. Croft, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. Ray Finlay.

Miss Mildred Moncrief returned home on Sunday after spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. John White, Ida.

Mrs. J. A. Carl, Miss Pearl Carl and Mr. Earl Carl visited friends in Toronto and attended the Canadian National Exhibition.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Moncrief were guests of the latter's aunt, Mrs. J. Gainer, South Monaghan, on Sunday.

WARKWORTH MAN ATTACKED BY BULL

George Skinkle Has Narrow Escape From Death on Sunday Last—Badly Shaken Up.

WARKWORTH, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence). — George Skinkle was attacked on Sunday morning by a bull which had got untied in the stable. Owing to his blindness, he could not tell whether the animal was angry or not. He was trying to tie it when he was knocked against the wall. He immediately called for help and a young boy kept the animal at bay with a pitch fork. Mr. Skinkle was badly shaken up and also received a broken arm.

What To-day Means To You.

"Virgo."

If August 27th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10.30 a.m., from 2.30 p.m. to 3.30 p.m. and from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m., and from 6.30 p.m. to 7.30 p.m.

Fate will start to shift the scenes in your life on this date for a new act in your life's drama—only time can tell whether it be for a comedy or tragedy, much however, depends upon yourself. Finances uncertain.

The child born on this August 27th will be a timid being, and will lack self-confidence. To overcome its self-consciousness, it should be discouraged from thinking of self at all—it should be taken out of itself. It will have a very unselfish nature, and will be warmly affectionate.

You are a rather discontented person because you desire more from life than you have the courage to demand. You allow your pluck to stay at zero, and you cannot climb because fear has shackled your feet. You are afraid to go after the things you want, and naturally they will not come to you unasked. You do not tackle your jobs whole-heartedly enough—you do not trust your cause. You are over-confident in others, and expect them to do that which only you can do yourself. "Whatever is attempted is never well done till the doer breathes himself into his deed."

You are not an optimist among the Jonahs; your spirits are usually a reflection of the atmosphere which surrounds you. You weep with the mourners, and laugh with the joy-makers. You are too much affected by your environment for your own peace of mind and physical good. You are afraid of criticisms, of opinions and ridicule, and you wilt if they be adverse. Your mental courage is weak, your physical courage is strong. You have a very psychic and instinctive nature, and are uncannily intuitive.

You are naturally kind and very hospitable. You are passionately fond of animals, and they quickly sense that you are their friend. You are not a money hoarder, in fact it slips through your fingers too easily. Harmonious partnerships with Capricorn or Taurus people.

People at Warrenpoint, Ireland, are clashing as to whether Sunday night dances should be permitted in the town hall.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Consolidation of Union Natural Gas Company and United Fuel Investments will result in a company ranking as one of the foremost in the industry in the Dominion. Strength of the organization will centre in Hamilton and along the waterfront from Lake Huron to Lake Erie. It must not be overlooked, however, that the new organization will have a network of pipe lines and wells through the entire southern portion of the Peninsula and with the recent acquisition of the London company's plant it is in a strategical position to expand activities in the central district of the Peninsula. Chief competition has come from, and likely will continue to come from, the Dominion Gas. The merger terms are not unfavorable to United Fuel Investments.

CALLS IN NOTES

Notice has already appeared that Hamilton By-Products Coke Ovens Limited, is calling for redemption this Fall the balance of the six per cent. serial gold notes maturing from April 1, 1929, to October 1, 1931, and amounting to $425,000 interest of the notes is payable half yearly on April 1 and October 1, while it is specified that the issue is redeemable at a premium of ½ of 1 per cent for each unexpired year or part thereof. As the notes are called for payment on October 1, they will command 100½ The notes are guaranteed by United Gas and Fuel Limited of Hamilton, in turn as a subsidiary of United Fuel Investments, Limited, which has received an offer from Union Natural Gas.

All the stock exchanges on the continent will take an extended holiday this week-end with the markets deciding to close the Saturday before Labor Day. Wall Street and the Toronto Stock Exchange has already taken action on Saturday closing and the Montreal, Standard and Dominion Exchanges are expected to follow this example. With the market closed for this duration there is a possibility the lists may run into selling in the final days of the week by speculators wishing to save a few days interest charges.

Brewing Consolidation

All details in connection with the offer to be made to the stockholders of Brewing Corporation of Ontario and Canadian Brewing Corporation for consolidation under the name of Brewing Corporation of Canada have been completed and a letter is now in the course of preparation which will be forwarded to the shareholders of each company almost immediately. Canadian Brewing has outstanding only the one class of stock, consisting of 118, 500 shares of no par value and the outstanding capital of Brewing Corporation of Ontario comprises 100,000 ordinary shares of no par and 50,000 preferred shares of no par carrying an annual dividend of $2.50 a share and preferred assets in distribution at the rate of $40 per share. There is nothing to be had officially on the capital structure of Brewing Corporation of Canada, but it is understood the set up will include both preferred and common stocks with the preferred carrying a similar rate of dividend as the preferred shares of brewing corporation of Canada. The proposal to be made will not be a cash payment but an exchange of securities, it is said.

There was not much change in the forenoon session on the Toronto Exchange today with International Nickel and Brazilian Traction recovering from the lows of Tuesday and Massey Harris sinking to another new low for the year. For weeks now activity has been confined to the leaders at the expense of the general list as a whole and speculative interest is entirely absent in the majority of issues.

Weakness in Brazilian Traction has cast a damper over the entire board and this being blamed on Montreal, where liquidation of the unity stock is rather heavy, sales of Brazilian Traction for days have been running into thousands of shares in the eastern market, and the only explanation to be had is that selling is coming for an account that must be liquidation. The liquidations has struck at a time when buying however, is depleted, and the drop in the exchange value of the milleries has declined from speculative interest in the stock. International Nickel rights will expire on Saturday, and the committee of the Toronto Stock Exchange has ruled that trading will cease at the close of the market on Thursday. Those wishing to deal in rights on Friday will have to do for cash and over the counter.

Shareholders taking up the stock through rights, paying cash in full, will receive the dividend of 25 cents a share to be paid on September 30, and, as Saturday and Monday are holidays on the local market, the stock will go ex-dividend on Friday. Trading in Nickel rights for the past ten days has been extremely heavy and to-day New York was a heavy purchaser on the Canadian Exchange.

NEW YORK LIST IRREGULAR AS FACTIONS FIGHT FOR CONTROL

Profit Taking Creeps Out in Considerable Volume During Later Trading.

LEAD ISSUES DROP.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 27. (C.P.)—Speculators for the rise found the stock market still determined to-day to take administrations of bullishness in small and cautious doses.

After a substantial extension of yesterday's gains during the first hour, profit taking cropped out in considerable volume and bears unsettled the list by searching out weak spots. Operations for the advance were strenuously pressed forward, but the price movement became somewhat irregular. Trading was in the largest volume in several days.

After advancing a point, U.S. Steel attracted selling and sold off a point or so under yesterday's close, but was supported well. On the whole, pivotal shares moved narrowly. During the early rise, in which utilities and specialties were prominent Allied Chemical rose 8, Delaware and Hudson 6, and Atchison, Eastman, Worthington, Safeway, American and Foreign Power, Electric Power and Light, Stone and Webster, New Haven, Sears Roebuck and American Tobacco "B", 2 to 3. These advances were reduced later, although good buying reappeared in some of the merchandising amusement and manufacturing shares.

Vanadium was heavily sold, breaking more than 4. Oliver Farm common and Aluminum dropped 4 to new lows and Oliver Farm preferred sold off about 7, before rallying.

Professional operators appeared determined to make the most of the more cheerful tenor of business and trade news. Although the indicated improvement thus far is slight, and few bankers or statistical services are predicting any spectacular acceleration of business in the fall, the fact that the tide appeared to have turned instilled renewed bullish enthusiasm.

An encouraging deveopment was an improvement in building operations F. W. Dodge Corporation's daily average for the first three weeks of August showing a slight increase over the extremely low levels of July. Freight car loading for the second week of the month showed a gain of about 2 percent over the previous week, a little more than the normal seasonal advance, but the total was still the lowest since 1922. The Amercian Federation of Labor estimated that unemployment in August had been cut down 3-10 of one percent from July.

Credit showed a slightly firmer undertone, perhaps the first reflection of the month end and holiday requirements call money still held at 2 percent.

MASSEY-HARRIS AT LOW RECORD

Prices Show Slight Improvement as Pressure Against Leading Stocks Relieved.

BRAZILIAN UP.

TORONTO, Ont. Aug. 27.—(C.P.)—Pressure against leading stocks on Toronto stock exchange was relieved to-day and prices either remained stationary or improved. There was an occasional exception, Massey-Harris being conspicuous in this regard, the stock selling down to 22¼ this morning, the lowest it has been in well over a year.

International Nickel advanced to 23, where it held well while the rights rose from 12, the final last night, to a high of 17 and settled at 13. Brazilian, while not impressively buoyant moved up fractionally. Ford of Canada gained a point and the oils were making a firmer stand. Durant Motors and Service Station were unchanged.

Walkers eased to 8 1-8 its low for the year is 8.

LEVEL OF LAKES RISES

Recent Rains Refill Reservoirs of Trent System.

STONEY LAKE, Aug. 27. — The water level in Stoney and Clear lakes which during the past five weeks has sunk as far as a foot below normal has returned to the average mark for this period of the year with the advent of the recent rains. The lack of precipitations during the latter part of July and August is said to have been the chief reason for the low levels.

NEW YORK GIVES GERMAN FLYERS WARM WELCOME

Throng of 5,000 Cheer as Flying Boat Lands Off Statue of Liberty.

VON GRONEAU PLEASED.

Dream of Noted Pilot's Life Realized as Trip Completed.

NEW YORK, N. Y., Aug. 27.—(CP) — Nine days after their unheralded departure from Germany Captain Wolfgang Von Gronau and his three companions rested here today having completed the fourth successful westward crossing of the North Atlantic by airplane. They landed their Dornier-Wal flying boat off the battery wall at 2:45 p. m. (E.S.T.) yesterday having made the last lap of their flight from Halifax in six hours.

The flight fulfilled for Captain Von Grenau, crisp-spoken veteran of the German Imperial Navy Flying Service, an old dream and gained him the distinction of being the first to land a trans-Atlantic plane in New York harbor.

Added glamor was given the flight by the fact that it was made in an old reconditioned ship, used by Amundsen in Arctic exploration and by Captain Frank Courtney in an abortive attempt to span the Atlantic.

Covered 4,000 Miles

It was estimated the fliers covered about 4,000 nautical miles in a flying time of 47 hours. Enroute here they stopped in Greenland, Labrador and Nova Scotia.

A shout from 5,000 throats heralded the planes arrival. It headed across the tip of Manhattan, circled the Statue of Liberty in salute and then came down, landing gracefully about fifty yards from the aquarium.

It had been expected the plane would land off the Statue of Liberty and the municipal tug Macom with a reception committee aboard was headed there when the plane came down. The tug turned about and the fliers were transferred to her. After a reception ashore they returned to their plane and flew it to the east river where it was housed in a police hangar.

Captain von Gronau said they had no idea when they left the Isle of Sylt in the North Sea that they were on their way to New York.

"I wanted to see how it would go, how the weather was and so on, before I definitely decided to continue" he said.

Dream Comes True

"I can hardly express my feeling in being here. The dream of my whole pilot's life has been to alight some day in this wonderful harbor of New York and see your grand city."

He paid tribute to Lieut. Commander Reade of the U. S. Navy who flew to Europe in 1919 and to the army round-the-world flyers who in 1924 flew over much of the route followed by von Gronau.

"We hope it is not very long before a trans-Atlantic seaplane is landing in New York harbor every day" he said, but declared it would take a great deal of broad organization to make possible a trans-Atlantic commercial service over the North Atlantic route.

The Captain von Gronau said he and his companions expected to remain in New York several days and and then hoped to visit the air races in Chicago, stopping in Wanhington.

ORIOLE STOCK IS SUSPENDED

Action Follows as Result of Non-sale of Issue From Loaning Post.

IN PUBLIC INTEREST.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27—Following a meeting of the board of governors of the Dominion Stock Exchange yesterday, an official statement was issued to the effect that the stock of Oriole Mines Lt., has been suspended from all future trading on this Exchange.

In explaining the above action a Dominion official pointed out that it is the custom to suspend from trading the issue of any company whose stock is not available at the loan post following a formal demand for same.

The board of governors was further influenced in this matter by the sensational price-run Oriole has had on the local exchanges recently, deeming it to be in the public interest to eliminate trading in the stock on its floor.

PRICE MOVES ARE CONFINED

International Nickel Moves Up to $23 For Gain of $1.35 at Mid-day.

GOLD GROUP SOFT.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.)—Trading was unusually listless on the mining market during the early period to-day, even renewed strength in International Nickel failing to secure any following of importance. Price movements throughout the list were confined and irregular in trend.

Opening slightly above last night's close, Nickel moved up to $23 for a gain of $1.35 at mid-day. Rights were well taken at 16, 4 above the previous close. Noranda showed a firmer tendency, but Hudson Bay was slightly easier at $7.60. Sudbury Basin, off 5 to $1.10, exhibited the only change in the Lindsleys, and other base metals were stationary.

Golds were a rather soft group, with Granada and Big Missouri, up a point each to $1.15 and 58, displaying the only strength. Hollinger and Teck Hughes eased 5 each to $5.70 and $6.30; Lake Shore sold down 15 at $23.25, and Vipond was off a point to $1.22.

Home Oil recovered 5 to $2.15 and Nordon a point to 90. Other oils were weak, Alberta Pacific, under renewed selling pressure, dropping 10 to 30.

ELECTION ACTION

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 27. (C.P.)—Action to annual the election of J. Fernand Fafard, Liberal M.P. for L'Islet County, has been taken here by L. J. Gauthier, unsuccessful Conservative candidate in the general Dominion elections of July 28, last, on the grounds of alleged irregularities.

WINNIPEG WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 27 (C.P.). — Wheat: Oct. unchanged to ⅝ lower at 90¼ to 89⅝; Dec. ⅛ to ⅝ lower at 91⅝ to 91¼; May, ⅛ to ⅝ lower at 98 to 97⅝.

NEW FEEDER PURCHASE POLICY TO OFFSET UNFINISHED SALES

Encouragement to Finish Cattle Aided By Bright Spring Market Outlook.

PLENTY OF ROUGH FEED.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 27. (C.P.)—Untimely liquidation of unfinished cattle on the fall market will be avoided to a considerable extent by the feeder purchase policy authorized by Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture in the opinion of officials of the livestock branch. The policy will also stimulate the consumption of course grains in livestock feeding.

We have low priced cattle and low priced grain" said R. S. Hamer, chief of the cattle division, "and if we have a reasonable outlook as regards our market next spring, which with the opening up of the Old Country trade we hope to have, it should be a better year to finish cattle than we have had for a long time. The several Provincial Governments, livestock associations, and grain interests are co-operating with the Federal Department in the move to stabilize the livestock industry and to facilitate the marketing of coarse grains in the form of better finished beef and livestock.

Aid Purchasers

H. S. Arjell, Dominion Livestock Commissioner states that the object of the policy is to facilitate the selection and purchase of feeder stock from the breeding and range districts of Western Canada by farmers or groups of farmers in other parts of the Dominion who have an abundance of rough feed and at the same time to develop the marketing of coarse grains through the medium of livestock.

The policy recognizes that there are areas in Canada which are ideal for the breeding and raising of cattle, and other areas particularly suited to feeding, and seek to bring these two important phases of agricultural production into proper and mutually profitable relationship. It also recognizes the market demand for better finished beef cattle, particularly younger stock, and the utilization of coarse grains by the feeders in putting a proper finish on young cattle.

It is expected also that the feeder purchase policy will do much to alleviate the present somewhat unsettled condition of the livestock market and forestall any unnecessary liquidation of unfinished cattle on the fall market. Coupled with the livestock market situation is the rather spotty crop condition in many parts of the west. There is also an abundance of rough feed and coarse grains, the latter being cheaper than they have been for a long time.

EERIE MUSIC, RAIN, INCENSE FAIL TO ENTICE THIS GHOST

Dobson Farm House "Spook" Does Not Appear in Spite of All Spiritualists Can Do.

WILL TRY AGAIN

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 27.—(Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1930)—And the Dobson ghost failed to appear! Soft mysterious lights, flowers, eerie music and spiritualists all combined in an attempt to produce the spook, ghost or what have you, which has been haunting the Dobson Farm in Mulmur township from January until May when the family were forced to leave.

Last Saturday night, Ivan W. Hutchins, a spiritualist from Toronto, paid a visit to the Dobson farm. He was accompanied by his wife, two young ladies, a man, and a reporter. The large room, which used to serve as the parlor was to be the reception room for the guest. In one corner stood a speaking trumpet, incense burner, flowers and bells. A black blanket hid this from the spectators' view. The windows were all darkened by heavy brown paper. The guests sat upon planks placed on chairs, and were instructed to hold hands. At eight o'clock the seance commenced.

The portable phonograph rendered some very inspiring music about prison bars and lost sweethearts. A soft blue light played about the ceiling; the audience began to feel creepy until someone cried, "Keep your hands out of my pockets." They came down to earth after this. They continued to hold hands and play soft music for an hour, but nothing appeared. The spiritualist then declared a recess, in order that they might entice the spook by different means.

They tried again for an hour. This time the music was more modern and popular, but after another hour of patient hand-holding in the dark, nothing appeared. So another recess was ordered.

A third time, the audience filed back into the stuffy little room. A third time they held hands. They pleaded with the ghost to appear. A plank crashed to the floor taking a spectator with it. He immediately blamed it on the spook. Some bright young bachelor declared aloud that the ghost's wife wouldn't let him out at nights. Suddenly there was a faint sound from somewhere in the house. All was expectancy. People whispered, "Come out, Mr. Ghost." Still nothing came. Then there came from the regions of the cellar a faint "Meow". This was the last straw. The party broke up, after imbibing some light refreshments.

Mr. Hutchins is firmly convinced that a ghost actually haunts the old farm house. He declares that he will make another try some night this week. It should be popular. There was a large crowd out to his first meeting.

NEW U.S. MINISTER FLIES TO OTTAWA

First Diplomat to Use Airplane to Reach Post.

WASHINGTON, August 27 (C.P.). —Piloted by Captain Ira C. Eaker, of the Army Air Service, Hanford MacNider, American Minister to Canada, took off from Bolling Field today to fly to his post in Ottawa.

A special aluminum apparatus had been installed in the plane for Captain Eaker's use, because of the continued weakness of a strained ankle received last week when he jumped by parachute from a falling plane.

The Minister is the first United States diplomat to fly from Washington to a post to present his credentials.

A stop for refuelling will probably be made at Syracuse, New York.

BORDEN STAYS SILENT ON POST IN LONDON

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 27. — (By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Correspondent.)—"I decline to make any statement whatever on the subject," replied Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war-time Prime Minister and now one of the Dominion delegates to the forthcoming League of Nations meeting, when he was asked today if there was any foundation for the rumor that he was likely to assume the High Commissionership for Canada, if only temporarily.

The rumor has been canvassed considerably in diplomatic circles within the last few days. References have been made to Sir Robert's long association with conference on his side. He was the first overseas Minister of the Crown ever to be invited to attend a meeting of the Imperial Cabinet at Downing Street.

VEDAS ACTION LULLS

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.) — No further announcement can be made at present in respect to the steamer Vedas, said R. W. Breadner, Commissioner of Customs, to-day. Mr. Breadner was reported to have stated that action would be taken to deal with the new liquor traffic methods adopted by this vessel, in Lake Erie. He declined to elaborate on the statement when questioned.

GRAND MASTER RE-ELECTED

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Aug. 27.—J. B. Moon, Mount Forest, Ontario, was to-day re-elected Supreme Grand Master of the Loyal True Blue Association in annual session here. The next meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge will be held in Winnipeg.

OIL MAN LEAVES MILLIONS IN WILL

Estate of T. B. Slick Valued Between 75 and 100 Million.

THREE CHILDREN SHARE.

CLARION, Penn., Aug. 27 (C.P.)—An estate estimated at between $750,000,000 and $100,000,000 was disposed of in the will of Thomas B. Slick, independent oil operator, which was probated to-day. Slick was reputed to be the wealthiest independent oil operator in the world.

The vast fortune was left to the widow, three children and Slick's mother. While no estimate of the value of the estate was contained in the will, Slick's attorney and others who were closely associated with him provided an estimate of its worth.

The oil operator's mother, Mrs. Mary Slick of Clarion, was provided with $5,000 a year as long as she lives.

The widow, Bernice Slick, of Oklahoma City, Okla., was left one-third of the remainder of the estate, and the remaining two-thirds was left in trust to the three children.

DOCTORS' CONVENTION.

British Medical Association Meets in Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 27 (C.P.)—Hundreds of medical men to-day settled down in earnest to the technical studies involved in the sessions of the British Medical Association. After an opening day marked mostly by ceremony yesterday, 2,000-odd delegates from around the world delved into the strenuous portion of the four-day 98th annual meeting of the association. Physicians from the United States by the hundred are included in the host of doctors attending the Empire gathering.

Unusual importance of radium discussion at the current meet has centred attention on the section of obstetrics and gynecology, where uses of radium in treatments for women are being talked.

CAMPBELLFORD HIGH SCHOOL HAS MANY ADVANTAGES FOR STUDENTS

Modern School Conditions, First Class Teachers, and Ideal Recreation Grounds.

FINE RECORD IN PAST.

CAMPPBELLFORD, Aug. 27.—(By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—With the opening of the schools on Tuesday, Sept. 2, thoughts are being turned to the preparation of the children for future life, and the best means and methods to be employed. What school offers the best advantages, is the question asked, and this can easily be answered by a short summary of the standing and opportunties given by the Campbellford High school.

The object of the school is to give a sound, practical and liberal education which will be useful in every walk of life, the home, the farm, the trades, business, the professions, and the universities. But not only to impart useful information, but to subordinate this to the knowledge of principles and the training and development of the faculties of mind and heart. Also to develop bodily health and vigor by advancing field sports and encouraging exercise, and to cultivate a literary taste, promote business habits, teach lessons of sound morality, self discipline, submission to authority, and a love for things and of good report.

Up-to-Date School.

The Campbellford High school is one of the most modern and up-to-date schools in the Province of Ontario. Situated in the north east part of the town it is surrounded by a fine campus that give the pupils ample room for sport.

The building is a two storey brick structure trimmed with marble and containing six class rooms, besides an art room, physics laboratory, chemistry laboratory, teachers' room, manual training and domestic science rooms, a gymnasium and a fine large assembly hall. The rooms themselves have excellent windows securing ample light besides being fitted with fine electric lighting system. The blackboards in the class rooms are situated so that there is no light glare from them. The building has a fine steam heating system, and the rooms are ventilated with a fan arrangement, whereby the air is changed in each room nine times in the hour.

The school also possesses a library of 1698 volumes, all of which are at the disposal of the students, besides a fine Carnegie Library in town which caters to the needs of the scholars and has a fine selection of reading matter.

The science department is very fortunate in having two science laboratories, one for physics and one for chemistry. These rooms are fitted with tables and chairs where the student conducts his own research work. Practical work is done in every form. A museum has also recently been added to the school and contains specimens of Canadian minerals, and rocks, pressed plants, birds, and animals. This collection is being added to from time to time. The commercial room is also well equipped and students are given a good grounding in business methods in preparation for entry into the business world.

Electric stoves are being installed in the boys' and girls' lunch rooms, giving them the opportunity for a hot drink in the winter, and it is hoped that arrangements can be made for some warm food occasionally.

The teaching staff of the school is a first class one comprising eight teachers in all, who hold the degree of B.A. and are all specialists. Principal E. H. Greig heads the staff with physical culture and science. Following are Miss Kathleen T. O'Shaugnessy, physical culture, French, and history; Miss Kathleen B. Ferris, arts, elementary certificate in physical culture, art English and history; E. Stephens, elementary certificate in physical culture and mathematics; Miss Marjorie Harrington, Latin; Miss Jean Moore, elementary certificate in physical culture and assistant in general work; Miss Margaret Rodd, elementary certificate in physical culture and commercial; and Miss Marion Dickson, who is an addition to the staff this year, specialist in physical culture, English and history.

Scholarship Awards.

Many scholarships are given to the students, among them being a gold medal to the student standing highest in the Norman Entrance Examinations, the Bemersyde Chapter, I.O.D.E. Scholarship of $10.00 to the student standing highest in English in the Middle school, Mr A. L. Riendeau's Scholarship of $10.00 to the student standing highest in Latin and French in the Middle School, and four Board of Education Scholarships, 1, an award of $15.00 to the student standing highest in second form examinations, and 4, $10.00 to student standing second in second form examinations; 3, $15.00 to the student standing highest in first for mexaminatons, and 4, $10.00 to the student standing second in the first form examinations. In addition there will be offered a number of scholarships in the Middle School.

There are also many school activities among which is a Literary Society, which meets about every two weeks in the assembly hall, the annual field day and the Commencement Exercises. At the annual Junior and Senior Oratorical Contests Dr. O. C. Watson has presented a cup for the winner of the Senior group, and Mr. J. C. Fowlds of Oshawa a cup for the winner of the Junior contest.

The gymnasium gives ample opportunity for basketball and indoor baseball, and gymnastics of all kinds, while on the school grounds outside football, tennis and baseball can be played. There is also an excellent Cadet Corps attached to the school.

The Campbellford High School has a history behind it of great achievements, and has always been noted for its success helping as it does its students in securing departmental certificates. The past year's results show a pass for the whole school of eighty-six per cent, and it is hoped that this feature for the coming year will be increased.

ONE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE ATHLETES IN BELLEVILLE SPORTS

Rosa O'Neill Wins Century Dash —Newfoundland Runner is Victorious.

GIRLS' RELAY TEAMS.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 27—The first athletic meet to be held in this district took place yesterday in connection with the annual fair. There were 175 entries, including the athletic team from Newfoundland which competed at the Empire Games; Johnston, mile champion of Ontario; Cooper, Cobourg, Ont., boys' hurdle and pole-vault champion, and the girls' relay teams from Parkdale Ladies and Canadian Ladies, Toronto.

The star event of the afternoon was the five-mile open, won by Stone of Newfoundland, with Walberg of Saskatchewan second. Rosa O'Neil had little trouble in winning the 100-yard open for girls, running the distance in 11 seconds. The surprise of the afternoon was the defeat of the Parkdale Ladies' senior relay team by the junior members from that club. J. R. Cooper, schoolboy champion, upheld his record by winning all the intermediate field events and also the senior pole-vault.

FROM THE STANDPOINT OF GOOD BUSINESS

A GOOD BUY

JUDGING Oldsmobile from the standpoint of good business is one of the best ways to assure yourself that Oldsmobile is the car you want. For Oldsmobile has all the characteristics which identify a good buy.

First, it is a known quantity . . a product backed by its own remarkably successful record over a third of a century.

Second, it provides known quality. Engine, chassis and Fisher body are designed, not as units of individual excellence, but . . by Oldsmobile principles of balanced engineering . . as parts of a perfectly harmonized whole.

Third, in smart appearance, in luxurious comfort and in absolute dependability . . Oldsmobile offers marked value. Every comparison serves to make that value more apparent.

But why not make your own comparisons . . let your own sound judgment be your guide. You will find Oldsmobile to be an outstanding performer in every way . . and from the standpoint of good business . . a good buy.

We will be glad to explain to you General Motors' Owner Service policy, the most complete in the automobile industry, and G.M.A.C., General Motors' own plan of deferred payments.

RICHARD HALL LIMITED

SHORTAGE IN CANADIAN CATTLE GROWN RAPIDLY LAST 4 YEARS; SITUATION IN U. S. DEPLORABLE

Only Slight Demand for Feeders Due to Severe U. S. Drought.

PRICE BOTTOM OUT

Time Right for Canadian Farmers to Buy Light Unfinished Stock.

(By H. P. Kennedy)

A great many enquiries have come to our office for the past several weeks regarding our views on the cattle situation, we have what we consider the most reliable information as to the conditions of the trade in all important markets in the United States, Great Britain and France, and give the following facts concerning the present position of the cattle industry.

Correspondence and cables received from Great Britain during the past few days gives the latest up to the date information regarding the markets there. Forfar, Scotland, reports by cable forty-five shillings per cwt. (45/- per 112 lbs.) for the best 1000 pound feeding steers. London, England, reports best Irish steers and heifers making 8¼d to 9d, good useful cows 6d to 7d, fat bulls 5d to 6½d all in sink, with heavier supplies of Irish cattle for September, October and November, prospects lower. Cable received from Paris, France, quotes best steers five francs per pound, practically nineteen and a half cents for dressed beef.

Correspondence received from representatives in Chicago, August 7th, 1930, gives the following information: "The cattle situation in this country is most deplorable. Last fall all of our feeders paid up around $10.50 to $12 for the good feeders, and we are now selling them, after eight to ten months feeding, at from 8 to 9c per pound, with a few extra prime cattle up to 11c.

We are selling cattle this week lower than any time this year. On today's market you can buy pretty fat cattle, weighing 1050 to 1150 lbs. from $7.50 to $8. You can buy nearly choice cattle at 9c and heavy cattle, which we are selling at $9.50 to $10 are good enough to go anywhere. Some prime yearlings sold up to $11.00, but it takes choice ones to bring $10.25 to $10.50.

We have had a very severe draught in this country, in fact, most of our pastures are nearly burned up and it does not look like we will have over half to two-thirds of the corn crop. On this account there has been a very slight demand for feeders, in fact, I do not believe half the supply of last year has gone out to the country. On the present market you can buy a good fair grade of stock cattle around 5c, with very good kinds from $5.50 to $6, and choice stock cattle around $7.00."

We quote Chicago prices as all other United States markets are based on Chicago values. With a tariff of three cents per pound for cattle 700 pounds and over, and two and a half cents per pound for cattle under 700 pounds, it would be impossible to market any of our Canadian cattle in the United States, except at heavy losses.

The Situation in Canada

There has been a market shortage of cattle during the last four years. Statistics compiled by the Union Stock Yards of Toronto as of July 31st, 1930, giving the receipts passing through all Stock Yards in Canada, shows the following:

The month of July, 1930, as compared with the same month 1926, shows the total number of head of cattle passing through all markets:

	Head
1930	44,389
1926	102,025
Shortage	57,636

Year to date for seven months:

	Head
1930	321,137
1926	633,555
Shortage	312,418

From this information, together with statistics from the Government and the live stock trade generally, there is a marked shortage of cattle in Canada and with careful marketing the Canadian trade should be able to take care of all suitable stock offering and maintain a price to the producers better than any export market can offer. While prices for cattle on the Canadian market have fallen practically forty per cent since the month of May, yet, the price paid on Canadian markets to-day are in most cases above what the net return would be from any outside market.

Take Advantage of Prices

With the present prices of grain, it would seem good business for the light unfinished cattle that have to be moved in Canada this fall to be kept on feed by the Canadian farmers themselves, and those who are short of young cattle to take advantage of the opportunity of present low prices to increase their herds. There is no doubt there will be the usual surplus of heavy feeders and heavy finished cattle of all classes to be moved through the markets during the fall months, therefore, if the present prices of finished beef in Great Britain and Europe were maintained and some arrangement made between our Government and the Canadian steamship companies for lower space rates any surplus of heavy feeders and heavy finished cattle could be moved to the European markets to protect any further decline in the present price ruling in Canada.

Taking the long view, it must be quite evident to the careful observer that a period of depression throughout the world, causing wholsale unemployment, has lessened the consumption of meat. When the present low prices for live stock are reflected in similar reductions to the consumer the demand for meats will increase, and with a return of employment and prosperity consumption will further increase to an extent that will cause an upward trend again in prices for live stock.

With properous conditions throughout the world, even to a limited extent, the markets of Great Britain, Europe and United States will be available for Canada's surplus of live stock and our farmers, who carry over their calves and yearlings as well as those who purchase these light cattle on the different markets, and take them back to the feed lots, should confidently look forward to enchanced values.

We are attaching the latest report from the Federal-States Marketing Service of Pennsylvania giving the number of feed August 1st, 1930.

SATIRE ON DROUGHT.

Virginians Reminded That Smith Was "Wet."

WARRENTON, Va., Aug. 27.—Virginia farmers can still get some fun out of the drought. John Waller of The Plains recently advertised in a newspaper as follows:

"For sale, a good pocketbook, has not been used for twelve months, and as the owner has no further use for it, will sell cheap."

Mrs. E. S. Blackwell then inserted an advertisement offering a sow and eleven pigs in exchange for the pocketbook, saying that though she has no use for either, the purse does not eat. She received the following answer ananymously from New York:

Remember the proverb that sounded so queer,
You can't make a silk purse from a sow's ear.
So you and John Waller to the old law must bow,
He to fatten his purse, you to fatten your sow.
If the cause of your trouble's the drought with you yet,
If you'd elected our "Al," the South would be wet.

WINNIPEG, Man., August 27 (C. P.). — Physicians and surgeons from every portion of the British Empire, from every Province of Canada, from United States yesterday are gathered in Winnipeg. More than 1,000 in all, they are in attendance at the 99th annual meeting of the British Medical Association. To-day's program is the most easy-going of the four-day session.

Premier John Bracken of Manitoba offered greetings to the visiting delegates as they gathered by the hundreds under the roof of the Winnipeg Winter Club. Lieut.-Col. Ralph H. Webb, Mayor of Winnipeg, added his welcome on the part of the city, and presented to the British body a flag of Winnipeg, later to be hung in the great hall of the Association in Tavistock Square, London, with the flags of other cities where the organization has met in its near-century of existence.

Before the adjourned general meeting of the British Medical Association opened shortly before noon, President-elect W. Harvey Smith, M.D., had officially opened a commercial and a scientific exhibition at the Winter Club. The earliest event on the day's pat was the clinic on "Surgical Cases" by Hugh Cairns, F.R.C.S., of the London Hospital, and one of the honorary secretaries of the surgical division of the association.

Health Insurance Stressed.

The value of health insurance was stressed in the presidential address of Prof. W. Harvey Smith, Winnipeg, named 1930 leader of the British Medical Association.

A system of health insurance is the only method by which competent medical service may be placed within the reach of all on a satisfactory basis, Dr. W. Harvey Smith declared in addressing the annual meeting of that body here to-day.

"A prolific source of criticism," the speaker continued, "arises from the failure of our profession to provide competent service to the various sections of the community under a financial plan that will meet the needs of every class of citizen. The economic organization of medicine has not kept pace with its scientific progress."

If corporate medicine could not, or would not, recognize and meet demands so insistently made for development of a system under which medical aid would be available, for rural districts especially, no protest could be raised if Governments took steps to inaugurate a system of medical service of whatever type and character seemed best.

CRASH VICTIM IS IDENTIFIED

Ministry of Justice Claims Finger Prints Are of W. Randall, Toronto.

NO CRIMINAL RECORD.

KITCHENER, Ont., Aug. 27. (C. P.)—The white man killed in an automobile accident near Breslau early on Saturday has been identified as Wilfred Randall of Toronto. Albert Jacobs of Windsor, colored, is being held on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the accident.

Word of the identification of the victim was received to-day from the fingerprint department of the Ministry of Justice, Ottawa, by the Provincial Police. At the same time there is no knowledge of a criminal record against the dead man. No one has claimed the body, but it is expected burial arrangments will be made shortly.

Jacobs has been removed from hospital, where he had been undergoing treatment, to the jail. He is on remand until next Tuesday.

NEW SCIENCE OF SOUND CONTROL

Expected to Have Far-Reaching Development in Every-Day Life of City.

ALSO IN BUILDING

A new and practical branch of science, noise control, is fast being perfected and seems likely to bring about a far-reaching development in city building methods, in transportation, and in everyday life, in the opinion of The New York Times.

Engineers have discovered that three inches of snow will reduce New York's roar by about one-fourth, it is pointed out. While such a relief may be welcome, it is at the same time essentially undependable. The noise problem became so acute that recently a scientific campaign was launched for the purpose of controlling one of the banes of metropolitan life, and it has already unearthed some amazing facts. The work is under the direction of a "Noise Abatement Commission," appointed by the Commissioner of Health.

While every large city is suffering more or less from the noise of the machine age, it is believed that New York, with its vast activities compressed into the narrow limits of Manhattan Island, suffers more than most.

"Already notable accomplishments have been made in noise control," says James C. Young of The Times, in discussing this subject. "Scientists in a dozen fields are working to establish the causes of a city's noise; to measure the volume of it collectively and in its various parts; and finally discover the best methods of control.

"During the tense weeks in Wall Street last Fall, certain brokerage houses had cause to be thankful for their newly-acoustically treated offices. Clerical staffs, traders and officials withstood the strain to better advantage than those in offices where every sound is amplified. Within six months some forty financial houses have employed the science of acoustical activities to reduce noise. The innovation is spreading to other offices, notably law offices and the inner sanctums of corporations. The day is in sight when any official, called upon for long hours of concentration, will decline to work in a noisy, clamorous office. Business suddenly has come to a realization of the impaired efficiency, the lost effort, that results from noise.

Noiseless Skyscrapers

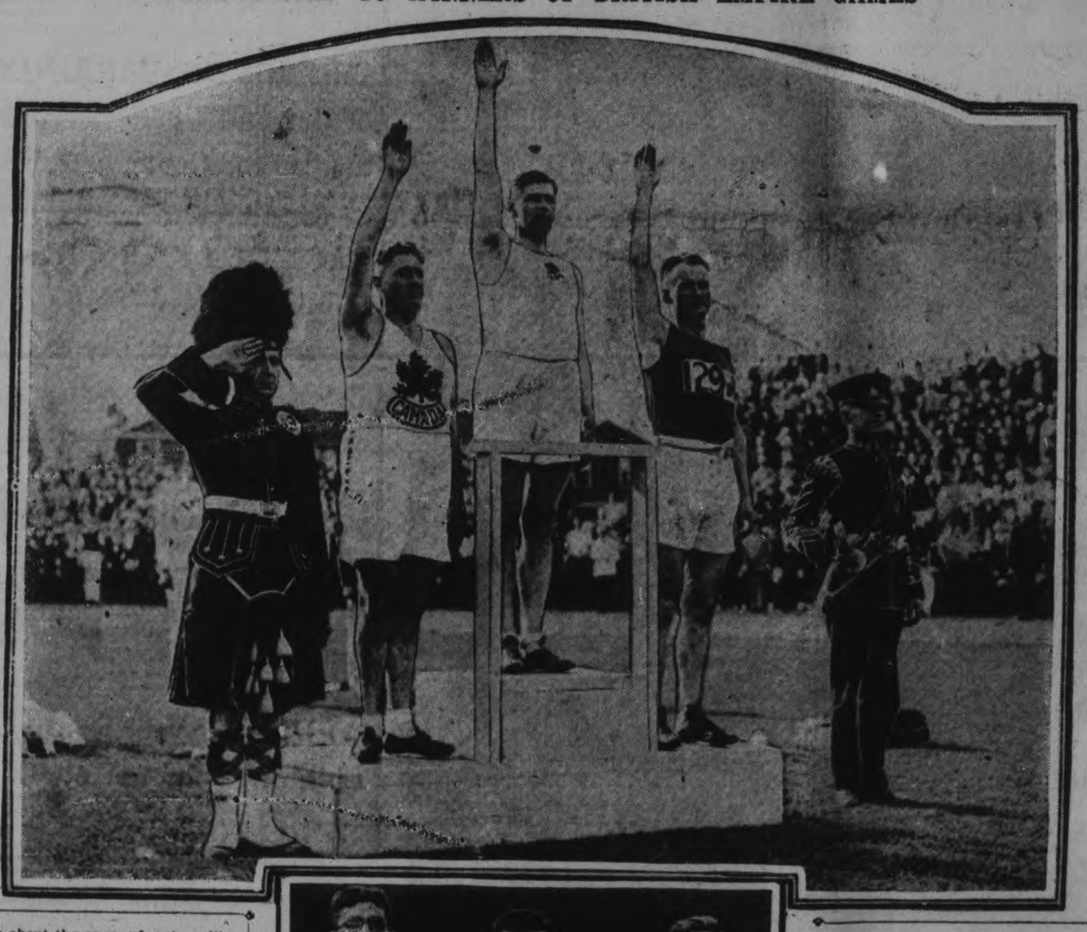
"Hence the 'noiseless skyscraper,' rising in various cities, the most important example being the New York Life Insurance Building on the site of the old Madison Square Garden. More than 400,000 square feet in walls and ceilings of the new building which have been treated to absorb noise, which is reduced about one-half.

"The principle of sound-absorption has been rapidly adopted by hospitals, universities and libraries. Even private home may be quieted, although in a somewhat different way. One of the wonders of constructions to-day is the building insulated not only against noise, but also against fire and weather.

"The control of outside noises, the reduction of street clatter is another and vast field of experiment. Before control could be asserted, it was necessary to arrive at an understanding of the origin and volume of noises.

"New York's Noise Abatement Commission has learned a number of facts about the cause of metropolitan din. The survey now under way has shown, for instance, that the more obvious causes are radio amplifiers, motor vehicles, street cars, subway and elevated trains, police traffic whistles, pneumatic riveting hammers, the crash of cans thrown about by milkmen and sanitary workers, and similar nuisances of a domestic kind. Practically every one of these can be controlled and modified.

TRIBUTE PAID TO WINNERS OF BRITISH EMPIRE GAMES



The TOP panel shows M. C. Nokes of England (CENTRE), W. Britton of Ireland (No. 129), and John Cameron of Canada, who were first, second, and third in the hammer throw, receiving the homage tendered the winners at the British Empire games. The lower strip shows the first three in the half mile event. No. 45 is T. Hampson of England, winner of the half-mile event; R. H. Thomas, also of England, who was second and A. Wilson of Canada, who was third. Phil Edwards was unplaced in this feature event.

HOME TOWNERS

Tidbits, Interesting and Humorous CAMPBELLFORD

The band concert given on Monday evening by the band of the Northumberland Regiment was again quite a success, featuring as it did a program of old time music and national airs. Many citizens turned out to listen to the concert and many more had the privilege of a front veranda seat.

We are glad to hear that Fred Ingram, whose shoulder has responded to treatment, will be on the Campbellford line-up when they go to Oshawa on Wednesday to play that city in the last of the play-off games in the Intermediate group of the O.A.L.A.

The good ship "Betty B" which has been tied up at the Bridge Street wharf for the past two weeks is likely to be here another week or more. Some repairs are needed for the craft's boiler to enable her to continue on her way. The yacht is registered at Toronto.

The Rev. N. Clark Wallace was the official delegate to the annual conventon of the Provincial Command of the Canadian Legion B.E.S.L. held at Hamilton last week. Mr. Wallace, who represented the Campbellford Lodge No. 109, Canadian Legion, reports a good convention, the numbers being above par and the business centering around the pension schemes.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Craighead were visitors to Peterborough on Monday, motoring up in the afternoon and returning the same day.

Mr. J. R. Battisby was a visitor to Belleville on Tuesday.

Many of the people of town attended the Fair at Belleville on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. McEachern are visiting at the Toronto Exhibition this week.

The new waterworks at Chelmsford, England, will supply 1,000,000 gallons of water daily.

SETTLES POINT FOR CANADIANS

U. S. Immigration Commissioner Discusses Question of Legal Entry.

SITUATION EXPLAINED

BOSTON, Aug. 27.—Anna C. M. Tillinghast, U.S. Commissioner for New England District in a letter to THE BOSTON POST answers a very perplexing problem of Canadians in New England. The letter follows:

"To the Editor of the Post:

"Sir,—I saw in the issue of the Boston Post of Friday, June 27, in the column under 'What Post Readers Say', an article entitled 'Canadian Seeks Advice," and signed 'Canadian"

"This reader states, 'I am a Canadian who came here on my honeymoon three years ago. I do not suppose you would call it entering illegally. While honeymooning in Chicago, I met an acquaintance who offered me a position in New England ,which was available at once. I took it and have been here ever since. I have a child born here, pay my taxes and in general, conduct myself as a good citizen should. I want to become a citizen and am prepared to go back to Canada, secure a non quota passport for my wife and myself, pay our head tax and return, but am hesitant because of all this recent talk of deportation, refusing admissions, etc. Should I let well enough alone and remain here (never able to become naturalized— and take my chance of never being discovered or will I be able to adjust things properly without any difficulty?'

"Your correspondent states that he would appreciate it if this matter could be brought to the attention of the United States Commissioner of Immigration for the district and a ruling obtained.

"I should by all means advise this Canadian to return to Canada with his wife and legalize their status. They are at present illegally in the United States, and if they should be apprehended, they would be liable to arrest and deportation, and if deported under the law passed in March, 1929, they could never re-enter the United States. The fact that they had entered the country illegally, and now desire to return to Canada voluntarily (at their own expence) for the purpose of legalizing their status, will not in any way militate against them.

"Before returning to Canada, I would suggest that each secure two certified copies of their birth certificates, as proof of Canadian citizenship, also that each secure four passport size unmounted photographs. They should present themselves to the U.S. immigration officials at some border port for examination. If they be found admissable, they will be directed to a physiaicna for physical examination. When in possession of a medical certificate, they will be directed to the American Counsel to secure a non-quota immigration vise which will cost them $10 each. After securing the vises they should return to the U.S. immigration officials and pay a head tax of $8 each. They may then re-enter the United States with a legal status and proceed with their naturalization.

"If they will follow these directions, I feel very confident that they will have no difficulty whatsoever in re-entering the United States.

"It is exceedingly unfortunate that so much misinformation has been published in the newspapers concerning Canadian immigration.

"I shall appreciate it if you will insert this article in your paper."

Anna C. M. Tillinghast,
U. S. Commissioner of Immigration for New England.

PETERBOROUGH INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION A REAL SHOW THIS YEAR

Midway, Grand Stand Attractions, Horse Races, Agricultural and Manufacturing Exhibits Promise to be Best Ever.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition which opens on Monday Sept. 8th and continues for the week has been planned to appeal to all classes.

Primarily, the basis of an exhibition is the display of live stock, poultry, agricultural products and industries and the educative value of the competition in the various departments. These have been given special prominence and the prize list was made so generous that there has always been record entries in all classes and from enquiries already received, this years' show will be another record breaker in this regard.

The special attractions at this Fair are numerous. The Bands of the 57th Rangers under Llet. Peryer and the Kawartha Concert Band, under the direction of Prof. Gliddon will provide the music this year. Both bands are going to provide excellent programs.

Grey's Super Midway of rides, games and clean shows will provide a lot of fun for every visitor to the Fair. In front of the grand stand there will be a wonderful vaudeville bill comprising the Rosard-Harrison combination of men and women acrobats in novel spectacular and comic acts. Every act a feature. Racetrack frolics, an exhibition of genuine horse sense by six driverless horses. No act like it has ever been seen before in these parts. Daredevil Kurtzo and Kurtz. Sensational high pole artists. Ike and Mike—Ike presenting a novelty of Oriental juggling and graceful and delicate balancing, assisted by a clown juggler.

Mike, an artist on the piano-accordian. He will play and sing any old song you want.

Horse races, Wednesday, Thursday Friday and Saturday afternoons, and these will be the finest string of racing horses ever seen in Peterborough.

Fireworks. Peterborough Fair this year will be better balanced than ever before.

CHILDREN ENJOY K.W.M.B. PICNIC

Good Program Provided at Social Gathering Held in Roseneath Fair Grounds.

CAPABLE COMMITTEE

ROSENEATH, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Wednesday was a gala day among the kiddies of the village and surrounding country when the members of the King's Workers' Mission Band held their annual picnic on the Agricultural Grounds here.

There was a full program of sports to make fun for everybody, consisting of running races for both the girls and the boys. A boot and shoe race for the girls made a great scramble, while the boys enjoyed an obstacle race. Abundance of fun was made over the drinking contest when both boys and girls took part.

Cash prizes were given to the winners. The canteen as usual was well patronized in the selling of candy, popcorn, etc. Then the bountiful picnic luncheon was thoroughly enjoyed and ended the afternoon's outing.

Mrs. Delbert Brisbin, Mrs. Reg. Crego and Miss Hildred Taylor, leaders of the Mission Band, deserve much credit for the interest they have taken with the children in keeping them alert and active for the good and noble cause in mission work.

INSTITUTE MEETS AT CHARD'S BRIDGE

Regular Monthly Meeting of Belmont Society Takes Form of Picnic.

BELMONT, Aug. 27. — (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute for August was in the form of a delightful picnic outing to Chard's Bridge, Tuesday, August 19th, when about forty members, their families and friends, spent a pleasant afternoon. The roll call was well responded to, and some correspondence read and dealt with. After the business had been disposed of, some interesting contests were held and were won by Mrs. Menzie, Miss Williams and Miss Sexsmith. No strenuous games were played as the ladies were disposed to have a social time and treat and enjoy the cool breeze off the river. Long tables covered with snowy cloths and laden with good things were twice filled, as dinner and tea were both partaken of at the picnic grounds. Swimming and paddling were indulged in by those who preferred to do so, and a good time was had by everyone present.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

REDUCING WEIGHT.

I cannot understand why health writers advise readers who wish to reduce in weight to continue to drink all the water they want.

Now there is no question about the value of water for the majority of us. As a matter of fact we do not drink enough water. Every cell in that body of yours is really like a little fish and needs water in which to swim.

However, we are not all alike in the way the water is handled by the tissues. Some individuals are what ought to be called 'wets' and others are 'drys'.

The wets are those in whom the tissues are always thirsty for water, and will take and hold large quantities of it; in fact if they can't get it otherwise their tissues will take in water from the air itself. Prof. J. Bauer tells of experiments where these overweight wets have increased their weight by some pounds within a period of two hours in this manner, without eating the slightest amount of food.

The abnormal tendency for storing fat just under the skin, is nearly always found in these 'wet' individuals.

The whole idea of reducing weight is just to use common sense.

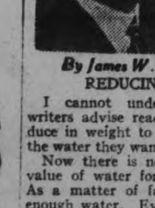
In the majority of cases it simply means cutting down gradually the amount of food eaten, particularly starches, and increasing the exercise. You may get the fat because you overeat and do not exercise, or because you put on fat easily, you do not feel like exercising.

Then there are the individuals mentioned above, the wets who should cut down particularly on water and salt; and finally there are the cases where the individual has always been fat, or become fat at puberty. These latter cases should consult their doctor and take the thyroid treatment under his direction. Thyroid extract will help burn up fats.

So take a look at yourself, and study the matter out. Try to decide which of these types you are (or you may be a combination of two of them) and reduce yourself in a common sense yet scientific manner.

One pound per week irrespective of method used is fat enough. Keep an extra three to five pounds above the ideal weight for your age and height. It is something to come and go on.

The eighteen day diet now so popular, is better than most reducing diets as it gives eggs or meat every day, and thus keeps muscle tissue from wasting away. It also provides grapefruit, lettuce and tomatoes with their minerals and vitamins. However, I believe if it were stretched out over a month, instead of eighteen days, it would be safer for the majority of individuals.



OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

SOMEWHAT CONFUSED.

Mothers are not to be blamed if they are somewhat confused by the battle of words that is waged about their heads as they grope for understanding in this matter of child training. Each school shouts aloud. Each seems to say, "Follow me and be saved."

They cannot all be right? Or can they? Is it safe to raise a child in freedom or shall we abide by the old customs and decide what is best in our own way after our own fashion? As usual I take the middle of the road.

I do not believe that there is any one road that leads to salvation. Any road will do if it is the right one for the person who takes it. I am not begging the question. I am trying to make a rift in the fogs that are gathering about us who try to head children the right way.

There is a time in the early years when children learn to use language. Make the most of that time as it comes along and accent language teaching. There is a time, too, when memory, verbal memory is very strong. Use it for all it is worth and store up poems, rules, tables, the fundamentals of learning,—what the teachers call "tool subjects," reading, writing, spelling, number and language rules. Hold the children to them in the early grades—usually the first three years of school.

There is a time when the children respond to rhythmical exercises of all sorts. Use that time for teaching lists of words, tables, dancing, singing, dramatics, health habits formed through daily rhythmical practices of one sort and another.

The way to get children to grow is by teaching them the things they need to know AT THE TIME WHEN THEY ARE BEST FITTED TO LEARN THEM. Work in season is never too much of a burden for the child to carry. The habit of work, the habit of performing the duty at hand to a high standard is essential to the healthy mental and physical growth of children. To allow a period of growth to pass without utilizing it to its full is in my opinion, a great mistake.

It is a mistake to think that children can be turned loose in a school and told to help themselves. If they could do that nature would never have permitted parents a long life time. She tolerates older people because they are necessary for the support of the younger one. We are permitted to live because we are useful to children. Then why not perform our function to its utmost?

Freedom means freedom from ignorance, not freedom from duty, not freedom from the bonds of brotherhood imposed upon us in spiritual and physical laws. Freedom does not mean neglect of any kind. It means the higher development of every mind and body in the community. That is gain by increase of wisdom. And wisdom comes through interpreting life honestly, by facing it bravely, by living it in consecration to a high ideal.

That is never easy. There are strict laws, strict standards, severe trials ahead for those who would know the joy of a free soul. School and home must understand this and work toward the freedom that is knowledge seasoned to wisdom.

ST. PETER'S SOCIAL LARGELY ATTENDED

Band Program Pleasing Feature of Evening's Entertainment.

Great success attended St. Peter's Cathedral Social held at St. Mary's Convent grounds last evening. Commencing at an early hour with a splendid program of music rendered by members of the 57th Regimental Band under Lieut. Peryer, the evening's entertainment was kept going at high pitch up to a late hour. In addition to various booths run by a willing band of church workers there were several drawings. In one instance a three-tier iced cake donated by the sisters of St. Mary's Convent was to be won by the person who could guess the name of a certain prominent business man contained in an envelope.

Rev. Father Paul Costello, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral expressed himself as being gratified with the success of the event which is designed to raise revenue for the work now being undertaken on the stone house situated on the south east corner of Hunter and Rubidge streets and which is being converted into a schoolroom to accommodate the second class of St. Peter's Lower School.

The prize drawing in connection with the social which was scheduled to take place last evening has been postponed to next Monday evening, when it will take place on the Convent grounds at 8 o'clock.

Those who were instrumental in making the event such an outstanding success were:

Fish pond: Miss Annie Simons (in charge), also the Misses Clara O'Toole, Agnes Burns, Josie Lynch.

Wheel booth: Messrs. T. Turcotte and T. Deforge selling.

Ladies: Mrs Frank Lynch (in charge), Mrs. Ed Foley, Mrs. J. F. O'Brien, Miss Mary Moloney, Miss Clara Fontaine, Miss Lillian Simons. Also Mr. J. E. Sullivan as cashier, assisted by Ernest Wolfe.

Ticket sellers for wheel booth: Thos. Ryan, Herb O'Heron, Dr. R. Sheehy, D. A. Costello, Bob McCabe.

Bingo game: V. McCabe (in charge) John Southern, J. F. MacKenzie, Dr. M. Crough and F. Pepe.

Lunch counter: Leo Pearson, Ed Foley, John McCarney, Frank Carroll.

Men putting up booths: Jas. MacPherson, Thos. McMurray, W. C. Bennett, M. Whaley, M. S. Donohue, J. Minicolo, Joseph O'Donnell, David Flynn, Harrison Wright.

Ice cream, soft drinks and candy: No 1 booth: Miss Norah Killen (in charge) the Misses Mildred Archambault, Helen Carson, Lillian O'Toole, Marguerite Thomas, Agnes Kirby, Agnes McCarthy, Clare MacPherson.

No. 2 booth: Miss Bottie Hogan (in charge), the Misses Eleanor Robinson, Marita Collins, Dorothy Grainger, Mary Lynch, Agnes Grant, Frances Clancy, Florence Murray, Josephine Hunt.

PRINCE MAKING ARGENTINE BID

British Drive For Trade Seen By U. S. Observer.

ORGANIZED EFFORT.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—The announced visit of the Prince of Wales to Argentina at a time to coincide with the opening of the British Empire Trade Exhibition in Buenos Aires next spring, is seen as the start of a well-organized effort to re-establish British trade in Argentina to its footing of pre-war days, the Pan American Information Service here reports in a recently distributed dispatch from Buenos Aires.

"These moves are being met in the most cordial and sympathetic manner by official circles here," the dispatch says. "The powerful Argentine Rural Society has not alone permitted its spacious grounds and buildings to be used for the Empire fair, but has canceled its exhibition of dairy products so that the British exhibition may be held at a period when fine weather is a rule.

"The grounds of the Rural Society will be transformed into a bit of England in the heart of Buenos Aires, and every branch of Empire trade and industry will be represented in this first British Empire Exhibition ever held in a foreign country. The Argentine press is filled with details of this very notable event, and from now on and during the exhibition publicity will be intensified. There can be no question that the British Empire and its products will be brought to the attention of the public in a most impressive manner.

"Argentina is the best customer of the United States in Latin America. Last year we sold Argentina merchandise valued at $210,288,300, or 40 per cent. of all exports to South America. American investment here at the beginning of 1930 totaled $658,589,000, as compared with $40,000,000 in 1914.

"British efforts in this part of the world are of the utmost significance, and there is urgent need for keen appreciation in the United States of what is at stake. Another factor of importance is that contrary to the unfavorable climatic conditions ruling in the United States, conditions here are exceptionally favorable. There has been abundant rain, crops are progressing most satisfactorily, and with increased prices for grains and other products Argentina should be able to make notable gains during the next few months."

Nearly two-thirds of the boys discharged from the Bortsal reformatory institutes in England two years ago are still at liberty without coming in conflict with the law.

WEDDING BELLS

McKAY—ANDERSON.

HAVELOCK, Aug. 27. — (Examiner Correspondence). — St. John's Anglican Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Tuesday, August 19th, at 11 a.m., when Mary Elizabeth Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, became the bride of Frank McKay, of Havelock, Rev. P. C. Howard officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with summer bloom, and the softly filtered sunlight shining through the stained glass windows gave an added beauty to the happy occasion. The bride was charming in a regulation wedding gown of white crepe georgette, with veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Laura Anderson, as bridesmaid, in a lovely gown of yellow figured chiffon and bouquet of variegated roses. She wore a yellow mohair hat and shoes to match the costume. The groom was supported by Isaac Anderson, a brother of the bride.

The service was fully choral, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Howard sang, "O Promise Me," in her usual good style. Miss Jean Anderson presided at the organ. After the ceremony, which was attended by a large number of friends and relatives of bride and groom, a dainty wedding breakfast was served to the immediate families, and the happy couple left for a trip to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle.

The bride travelled in a brown ensemble, with hat and shoes to match, and wore a beautiful fox fur neckpiece, the gift of the groom. They are followed by the best wishes of a large circle of friends in Havelock and vicinity.

"Go Slow, Mary" Is Good Entertainment

ROSENEATH, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Owing to the heavy rain on Saturday evening, the attendance to hear the play, "Go Slow, Mary," was not very large, but those who were present were not disappointed in hearing an excellent entertainment.

On account of the rain, the baseball game 'etween Alderville and Baillieboro for Saturday afternoon was called off.

"GOOD TO THE LAST DROP"

Correct Diet Builds Body, Gives Energy

BY EDWINA NOLAN

Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

HOUSEWIVES are hearing a great deal these days about vitamins, proteins and carbohydrates; about mineral elements in food, about food preservation and about what goes on the family table.

The body requires fuel to carry on its various functions; it burns up the food and takes out what it needs. It uses certain foods as a source of energy, others as building material and others to regulate body processes.

Energy is derived, we are told by biochemists, from fats — butter, cream, salad oils, sausage meat, bacon and other fatty meats; from carbohydrates, such as flour cereals, rice, macaroni, potatoes and sugary foods; and from proteins, such as milk, meat, legumes, fish, eggs, nuts, cheese.

Building material comes from mineral elements, abundant in milk, eggs, fruits, green or leafy vegetables; from water in milk, and all common foods except fats, sugars and starches; and from proteins.

Foods to regulate body processes are found in mineral elements, water and vitamins, the latter being abundant in milk, eggs, leafy vegetables, raw fruits and vegetables.

Now, how may the housewife select from this list the proper combination of foods so that her menu will furnish everything the body needs? Dr. E. V. McCollum, noted biochemist and discoverer of important vitamins, says that if certain foods are first provided, then the rest of the menu may be planned to suit individual taste. First allow, he says, a quart of milk each day for each person; serve one cooked leafy vegetable each day; serve an uncooked fruit or raw vegetable twice a day. Protective foods, of course, also are perishable and they must be kept properly refrigerated to be wholesome and to retain their best flavor and full amount of food value.

SHE THOUGHT:

"You'd be so nice—if it weren't for that hint of 'B.O.'!"

Yet, to be polite,

SHE SAID:

"I won't ask you to come in. It's rather late."

A cold good-night

... was "B.O." the reason?

(Body Odour)

TOO LATE to ask him in? Why, it was only 10 o'clock. There must be another reason. Why had she turned so cool? Why act so strangely? Friendly at first—then suddenly distant.

Now he knows the reason — knows how to correct the fault that once made people avoid him. Today he's welcome everywhere. "B.O."—body odour—no longer robs him of popularity.

It ruins romance

Many a budding romance has been wrecked because one or the other of the couple was careless about "B.O." Of course no one means to offend. But it's so easy to be guilty and not know it.

Pores give off a quart of odour-causing waste daily—both visible and invisible perspiration. We quickly become so used to this ever-present odour that we don't notice it in ourselves. But others do!

Why take chances when the remedy is so simple, so delightful? Just wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. Its creamy, abundant, antiseptic lather leaves you gloriously, satisfyingly clean—purifies pores so deeply that "B.O." hasn't a chance.

Fresh, radiant beauty

And what a fine complexion soap Lifebuoy is! Work its bland, penetrating lather well into the skin. It frees the clogged pores from impurities—freshens dull skins till they glow with healthy beauty. Its pleasant, extra-clean scent—that vanishes as you rinse—tells you Lifebuoy purifies. The rooms were prettily decorated in orchid and green, with huge bowls of orchid asters and phlox, baskets of orchid and yellow gladioli and ferns. The guests were received by Miss Martin, who wore an orchid frock, assisted by Mrs. Gallagher attired in a becoming green gown. The color scheme of orchid and green was carried out in the decorations for the dining room, the table having a Madeira lace centerpiece and matching lace doiley, a silver basket of orchid asters and gladioli surrounded by a wreath of green smilax and orchid sweet peas. Tall green candles in low silver holders and mint baskets fashioned of orchid sweet peas and containing orchid and green sweets completed the decorations. Mrs. Frederick Brooks poured tea and Mrs. Vernon Morphet cut the ices. Assistants were Mrs. Reginald Cuffe, of Kansas City, Mrs. Harold Conway, Miss Edna Dingman and Mrs. Kenneth Poole. The gifts of green enamel kitchenware were wrapped in orchid and green and tied to a clothes horse which was brought in by Miss Dorotny Galley and Miss Mabel Brown and presented to the bride-elect. After expressing thanks to the donors, the evening was spent in music, games and dancing and the evening concluded with the guests singing, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

T THIS SEASON of the year housewives not only in Peterborough, but everywhere, find that household tasks which they must do are nearly always tiresome.

• • • • • • •

Of course, the weather has a great deal to do with this. One does not feel like working when the sun is shining so warmly, and everything seems to lure one out of doors.

• • • • • • •

Those who have summer homes at which they spend a couple of months in summer are indeed fortunate, because their housework is very light in most cases, but those who are compelled to remain in the city all summer must find some way of lightening their work.

• • • • • • •

There are two simple ways in which a homemaker can save herself work if she wishes.

• • • • • • •

One is by making careful lists, the other is by watching opportunities to avoid unnecessary steps. One housewife calls the latter "comings and goings."

• • • • • • •

It certainly is descriptive when you are initiated into the significance of the words. Whenever she is coming in one direction she takes things that should be put away in the place to which she is going—or near it.

• • • • • • •

Whenever she is going in the other direction she carries whatever she sees that should be in the other part of the house or which will soon be needed where she is going.

• • • • • • •

She seldom goes empty-handed, either coming or going.

• • • • • • •

The beauty of such a plan is that work is done without extra trouble or without taking steps that really are useless—since they can be avoided.

• • • • • • •

It is amazing to find how much this simple measure does to promote order. It also proves the number of things one is constantly needing in places other than where they are.

• • • • • • •

You realize, perhaps, that much of housework consists in getting things out and in putting them away, and in carrying articles from one spot to another.

• • • • • • •

When clearing the table after a meal, when returning to the dining-room from the kitchen, don't go empty-handed if there is something that belongs to the dining-room.

• • • • • • •

Nearly always you will find there will be something to be returned.

• • • • • • •

Besides saving steps, this coming and going plan makes a homemaker observant. She is quick to discover disorder and she becomes equally quick to restore it.

• • • • • • •

Lists are most useful when made as a need arises. To do this, keep a pad handy, and jot down the article when its lack or its need is discovered.

• • • • • • •

When one shopping trip has ended, begin a new list by setting down articles you were unable to get so that they will be remembered next time

• • • • • • •

Do not wait until you are about to start out, and then hurriedly try to make a list, because something is sure to be omitted. Don't forget the list when you are ready to go, either, for a forgotten list is disturbing.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

VOICE OF THE TURTLE.

Of the splendors of Solomon all the world knows,
Of his wisdom, his wealth and display,
Of his Temple, whose columns like cedars arose
And his palace that rivalled the day!

But King Solomon sang long ago of the Spring,
When he wearied of purple and gold;
Of the beauty of pomegranates' bright blossoming
And the voice of the turtle he told.

Long the wonders of Solomon's matchless array
On the winds have been scattered and tossed;
They are whirled in the dust, they are swept with the spray,
Priceless glories he treasured are lost!

Yet, still, as of old, in the bowers of the King,
By the south wind the lilies are stirred,
Still, the pomegranates redden the garments of Spring,
And the voice of the turtle is heard.

TRENT RIVER.

"Athlone" summer resort, where Mr. and Mrs. Martin McCann and family of Toronto have occupied during the season, presented a gala scene on Friday night, when invitations up to nearly 60 were accepted from friends from Campbellford, Havelock and a number of cottagers to a corn and marshmallow roast. Four tables for bridge were placed on the verandahs, while the younger folk enjoyed the camp fires. Delightful refreshments were also served.

The following from Campbellford were in attendance: Mr. and Mrs. Jas. P. Archer, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Linton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Linton, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McLaren, Messrs. Paul and Eric Douglas, Messrs. J. M. Ferris and Douglas Maybee, Mrs. (Dr.) Killoran and son Jack of Toronto, Martin McCann of Toronto.

The party broke up about midnight. This is an annual function as the end of the season draws to a close. Mrs. McCann and family expect to return to Toronto on Sunday.

HOW IS THE AIRPLANE?

(By J. H. Burnham.)

In a comprehensive article upon commercial airplaning and its future the Republic of New York says: "However, the fact remains that the commercial world demands greater and greater speed in transportation. If the airplane with its 110 to 180 miles per hour (it has done 347 miles in an hour) were discarded it would be sorely missed and its return demanded. No less imperatively the military world demands new and more effective arms. The airplane is the deadliest weapon yet known and in the next war it willl make battleships useless". Nor is there any international agreement to limit the waves of the air. Over one thousand millions of dollars has been invested in commercial airplaning in the U. S. A. alone and now that Canada and the U. S. have signed a treaty governing international airplaning we may see airplane stations rise up in Canada like mushrooms as they are doing in the U. S. The safety of airplaning as well as its speed is best indicated by comparison. In commercial airplaning and the many thousands of miles of airlines now covering the whole world almost like a net the risk of disaster is much less than in the automobile world and the service is over land and mountain, desert and lake immeasurably smoother as well as faster and much less expensive on that account. It takes but a moment's thought to show us that a system of transportation which has its roadbed and highway already prepared for it will be when fully developed and safe-guarded by radio weather reports, sure to supercede all other forms of conveyance.

No less than 1195 new stations or airports as they are called were licensed by the government in the U. S. last year. Flying between North and South America is now established in all directions and is run on regular systems of timetables.

Its safety as well as speed means lowered rates of insurance and the opportunity of rivals to get ahead of each other. This factor alone will, it is surmised compel the same, if not greater and more sudden and sensational development as the motor car experienced. Already air stocks are in what is known as acute demand, but it is hoped that "flying kites" will not outspeed even the airplane itself and that air stunts and fancy flying which provide so many accidents will not interfere with a form of locomotion that can be learned in half a day.

Royals Maintain Half-game Margin Over Toronto

LEAFS DEFEAT NEWARK 5 TO 2 ON HOME FIELD

Bears Hand Homesters Bad Scare By Rally in the Ninth Frame.

ROYALS WIN 5-4.

Red Wings Protect Slim League Lead By Trouncing Skeeters 4-1.

The battle between the Rochester Redwings and Baltimore Orioles for the International League lead has turned into a war of attrition with each waiting for the other to crack.

The Redwings protected their slim lead yesterday by turning back Jersey City for the second straight day, 4-1. It was a well pitched game that lasted only one hour and 20 minutes. George Grant went the route for the Redwings and held the Skeeters to five hits. Jersey City scored its lone run in the first inning when Walker singled and West doubled. The Redwings tied the count in the second on a wild pitch by George Maner with Martin on third base. The game was decided in the league leaders' favor in the fifth when Brown walked, Watson tripled, and Southworth doubled, accounting for two runs. Another was added on three swings in the sixth.

Montreal maintained its half-game lead over Toronto in the race for third place by whipping Reading. The Reds battered John Pomoroski for three runs in the first inning and added another in the sixth while Lonnie Warneke was holding the Royals helpless. Pomoroski was replaced by Roy Buckalew in the eighth. Tom Gulley hit a home run with one on.

Toronto's victory over Newark was scored a bit more easily, but the Bears gave the home club a bad scare in the ninth. Frank Barnes had permitted only seven hits in the first eight innings, two of them home runs by Layne and Zitzman, but he weakened in the ninth and the Bears filled the bases on a hit and two passes with one out. He was yanked from the box and Nick Harrison went in to force Layne to hit into a double play, ending the game.

box but Holmes counted on Anderson's hit. Burnett and Macoun counted when Kerr threw two successive wild ones, but McCulloch and Rutherford were out to end the agony.

Holmes paved the way to defeat when he walked Petherick and Fred Fry to start the inning. Harry Owens crashed out a safe hit to score one. G. Kerr was out but Roy Fry hit safely to even up the count. Watson's sacrifice hit to first brought in the winning run.

Petherick and Roy Fry scored twice for the locals with F. Fry, H. Owens and G. Kerr getting the others. Burnett and Macoun counted twice for the west side, while Holmes and C. Anderson, Jr., counted the others.

An effort is being made to have another game this week and this should prove very interesting as the teams are evenly matched.

The Petherick's team have won six games and tied one in seven starts this year and are out to keep their record intact.

The line up:

Petherick's—G. Kerr, p; T. Owens, c; H. Owens, 1b; R. Fry, 2b; Watson, 3b; L. Anderson, ss; D. Kerr, lf; Petherick, cf; F. Fry, rf.

PETHERICK'S TIE 4-GAME SERIES

Keen Rivalry Continues Between Eastern and Western Teams of Seymour District.

IN SOFTBALL

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Aug. 27 —(Examiner Correspondence).—Ever since the days of the old Seymour Baseball League the rivalry between East and West has been very keen in sporting activities and when softball was first played here in 1927 a game was staged between the locals and the West Seymour team at the Crowe River community picnic. This encounter went to the westerners. The next year at Stanwood lawn social Petherick's came through with a win in a close game. Last year at Campbellford the west side again won against a weakened local aggregation. On Thursday night of last week the annual game was staged at the high school grounds when the Petherick's aggregation defended the honor of the east and tied up the four-year series by winning 7 runs to 6 with two out in the fifth inning when the game was halted by darkness. The east side team hit Holmes freely in all but one inning, but over-anxiety on the bases prevented scores when most needed. The westerners' hits were well placed and a few errors helped their cause.

The Play.

The West side lost the toss and went to bat first. McArthur and Chadwick fanned, Anderson being out at first. Petherick and Fred Fry hit safely for the Easterners but H. Owens and G. Kerr were out. Fry made the third out by leaving first too soon. Roy Fry went into the box for the second spasm. Holmes was out, Burnett picked a good one for a three bagger, a good throw by Petherick cutting off a circuit clout. Macoun scored the catcher but was out at second on Anderson's hit to the bag. Anderson scored when McCulloch and Rutherford hit safely but McArthur was out. Petherick's failed to score, Watson being the only player to get on base by the walk system. After Anderson had secured four balls, Kerr retired the heavy hitters, Chadwick, Holmes and Burnett in order. Petherick's got their first count in the third. After D. Kerr had fanned Petherick got his second safe hit, and scored on F. Fry's single. Fry was forced by H. Owens who was out for leading off first too quickly. The West added one in the fourth when Macoun scored on Rutherford's and McArthur's safe hits. The locals got two in the fourth to tie the count. G. Kerr and Roy Fry hit safely. Watson fanned and the two runs counted on Anderson's single to centre. Anderson went to second on a passed ball, stole third but was caught at the plate when Owens drove a hit at Holmes' face, which the short stop retrieved.

Score In Fifth.

The West looked good to win in the fifth when they filled the bases with none out. Chadwick was forced at the plate on Mac Jun's tap to the BATTLE IN WEDNESDAY'S MARATHON SWIM AT C.N.E. FOR $10,000 PRIZE

Some 270 swimmers are chalked up to take the plunge in the Canadian National Exhibition marathon swim slated for Wednesday. Noted swim stars from many countries are among those who will battle over a 15-mile course for a purse of $10,000, first prize. ABOVE are shown some of the more well-known entrants. (1) Geo. Korheer of Germany, aged 21, who has done twelve miles in four-and-a-half hours. (2) Wm. Palmer of Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. (3) Ernest Vierkoetter, Toronto, popular big swim champion, who will be a familiar figure again this year. (4) Sam Shields of Florida, who recently did 27½ miles around Manhattan Island. (5) Mendel Burditt, popular Toronto swim star, who has been in money in former swims. (6) Geo. Bladgen of Memphis, Tenn. (7) Paul Chottean, French violinist, who has temporarily forsaken his instrument for the rigors of marathon swimming. (8) Jas. Tenant. (9) Arthur Compton. (10) Louis Mathias, of British Guiana, who finished in last year's money. (11) Roland Tegtmeir, giant Seattle lumber jack, who is a veteran in Toronto's big swims, and (12) Geo. Young, who, according to his trainer, is going to do a comeback this year.

Five-mile Event Added To Oshawa Sports Card

OSHAWA, August 27. — In response to many requests from runners all over Ontario, the Oshawa Amateur Association has added a five-mile open race to the list of events for the athletic meeting to be held here on Thursday, September 11, in celebration of the opening of Oshawa's new cinder track and athletic field. Several entries are already in for the race, and it is expected that it will attract a large entry list, as a handsome silver trophy and medals are being offered as prizes. Entries for this event and for the others on the program should be sent to M. McIntyre Hood manager and secretary., Oshawa, Ont.

United States Games At Chicago To-day

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 27.—(C.P.).—Picked athletes of the British Empire gathered here yesterday to oppose the aces of Uncle Sam's athletic deck in track and field events today.

Arriving from the Empire games at Hamilton, Ont., the British delegation, started a round of entertainment which precedes the competition scheduled for tonight. Representatives of Great Britain, Canada, Ireland, South Africa and Australia will meet the Americans.

Mothered by three of the country's outstanding track minds, the Yankee contingent swung into town yesterday ahead of their rivals and were feted jointly with their competitors.

SHAMROCK V. GIVEN FIRST TEST SAIL

America's Cup Challenger Limbers Up Off Newport.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 26—There was heat aplenty under awnings when the yachtsmen gathered here for the trials of the America's Cup yachts Sunday and discussed the possibilities of the four boats contending for the honor of defending the cup against Shamrock V. No racing was indulged in, but expression of opinion reached the poitn of a contest.

Shamrock was taken out for her first sail in American waters, but it was only a stretching for a new mainsail. With Charles E. Nicholson, designer and builder on board, she stood out past Brenton lightship for four miles. There a jibtopsail was put on her in addition to her two lower headsails, and she made a hitch in a southerly breeze of fifteen miles an hour. She moved smartly and easily under it, although she has been called only a light weather boat.

Turning back, her spinnaker was run out. There was nothing conclusive about her performance, as there was no other yacht near by by which to measure her speed. Resolute, the old defender, had gone out for a sail ahead of her, but kept on some distance out to sea.

Familiar With Surroundings

Shamrock will have on board one man thoroughly experienced in local tide and weather conditions. He is William Stewart, who was a member of the crews of the challengers Valkyrie II, and Shamrock I, and who has been a boatsman hereabouts for years. He was born in England, but is a naturalized American citizen.

Farewell and Butler Win Sea Flea Races at C.N.E.

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—The greatest number of boats ever to face the starter in a Toronto race lined up on the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront last night for the 15-mile free-for-all, yesterday's event in the two-mile Sea Flea Regatta.

Twenty-five competitors lined up and shot down the course in one of the most spectacular starts ever seen in a local race.

Winners in the respective classes were:

B Class—1, H. Farewell; 2, Alec. McKenzie; 3, Ted Matthews.

C Class — 1, J. R. Ardiel; 2, Art Heaven; 3, Tommy McClure.

D Class— 1, H. Dallamore; 2, A. Clelland.

F Class—1, Bill Butler; 2, "Red" Foster.

Runabouts—1, W. Todd. Only one to finish out of four starters.

SCOTS VS. BRINTON THURSDAY NIGHT

On King Edward Park in League Match—Kick-Off at 3 o'Clock.

On Thursday evening, the Scots will have the Brinton eleven as their guests in a league match. In all probability the Scots will trot out the same team that did so well in the Peck Cup. Many changes will take place in the Brinton eleven owing to players being on the injured list.

This tussle is scheduled for King Edward Park, with Alexander McKinley officiating with the whistle. Kick-off at six o'clock.

NEW WESTMINSTER WINS EASTERN TITLE

Qualifies For Mann Cup Series Here By Eliminating Winnipeg 17-8.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 27.—New Westminster Salmonbellies hurled another obstacle in their path towards bringing back the historic Mann Cup, emblem of the lacrosse supremacy of the Dominion, by eliminating Winnipeg Argonauts in the play-down by a margin of nine goals in a two game series. The British Columbias won last night's contest 8 to 2 while the first also resulted in a 9 to 6 triumph, thereby giving them the round 17 to 8.

As a result of their triumph the New Westminster team leave for the East to-day where they will play Brampton Excelsiors on Saturday and Monday in the finals.

The story of the game was just too much Glass. Backed up by a stone wall defense that was seldom beaten and a speedy mid-field lead by the goal-getting Johnny Vernon, the British Columbians dominated the play from the start and after the first twenty minutes never looked like relinquishing their margin.

CUB PLAYER CONNECTS FOR 44TH CIRCUIT

Puts Finishing Touches to Chicago's 7-5 Victory Over Pirates.

5½ AHEAD OF GIANTS.

St. Louis Cardinals Continue Advance Towards Top By Defeating Reds 3-1.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 (C.P.)—Chicago baseball fans are about ready to look haughtily in the direction of New York and ask, "Who is this fellow, Ruth?" For Hack Wilson, hefty home-run hitter of the Cubs, has a new National League record in the Ruthian specialty and has drawn up on even terms with the great Babe in this year's competition at belting four baggers.

McHusky "Hackenschmidt" hit his forty-fourth home run of the season to put a finishing touch on the Cubs 7 to 5 victory over the Pittsburg Pirates yesterday, and in doing it passed the record Chuck Klein set a year ago. It took Klein the full season to beat Rogers Hornsby's old mark of 42, while Wilson has beaten the young Philadelphia with 31 games to go, and he is tied with Ruth in the season's totals, while the Babe still is a week ahead of the record he set in 1927.

The only consideration which may put a check on Chicago hopes is that the Cubs have only a week more at home before their start on their final road tour, and Wilson has hit most of his homers in Wrigley Field.

5½ Ahead of Giants

Hack's record smashing homer did not play a very important part in the Chicago triumph yesterday, which put the Cubs 5½ games ahead of the New York Giants, who had a day of rest before the start of their series with Brooklyn. But Wilson did contribute a very important single in the fifth, two innings before, which aided greatly in putting the game safely away, as the Cubs scored five runs. This one frame decided an otherwise close game, with Larry French having a bit the better of Fred Blake.

The St. Louis Cardinals continued their advance in the only other National League game, defeating Cincinnati 3 to 1, for their seventh successive victory. The Cards had a bit of trouble when the Reds put two men on base with none out in the ninth. But "Wild Bill" Hallahan, who had pitched a fine game, managed to get out of the hole. The victory left St. Louis only a half-game behind the third place Brooklyn Robins, with some prospects of improving their position as they continue against the Reds to-day while Brooklyn tackles the Giants.

Only one game was on the schedule for the American League yesterday and it finally brought the Philadelphia Athletics out of the difficulties which had beset them in the first two games of their series with Washington to a final 10 to 9 triumph which put them again in a fairly safe place, 7½ games in the lead.

The Senators, who had threatened to make it a real struggle for the pennant by taking two straight from the league leaders, failed to hold a five-run lead presented to them in the first inning. They remained in front until the eighth inning of a game which saw eight pitchers of the two teams yield 31 hits. In the eighth, home runs by Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons tied the score and two walks, a single and two sacrifices brought in the winning run.

St. Catharines Bantams Play St. Andrew's To-day

TORONTO, Aug. 27.—St. Andrew's bantam baseball team play St. Catharines in the second round of the O.B.A.A. play-offs at Stanley Park this afternoon at 4.45 p.m.

The Toronto team faces elimination in this game, having lost the first game in St. Catharines, 8-5. The St. Andrew's team will send Cherevaty to the mound and Parker will catch. After a hard week's practice the Toronto infield of Zapp, Greenberg, Jeffers and Axmith, should cut off many of the opponent's bids for hits.

HOOPLE SUGGESTS YOU TRY DROPPING THAT SAFE AND PIN TO SEE WHICH WILL HIT GROUND FIRST

"For thirty days' work, which would you rather receive—"

Pardonnez moi — we're getting ahead of the parade.

That happens to be part of one of the "HOOPLERS" that appears in the "OUR BOARDING HOUSE" comic today.

In the meantime did you work out the answers to yesterday's 'HOOPLERS"? And, if so, do your answers tally with the Majors? Here they are:

QUESTION 1: What makes a sun ray warmer, passing through a cake of ice?

ANSWER: Nothing does—because it doesn't get warmer. And besides, why waste the ice in this kind of weather?

QUESTION 2: Which will strike the ground first, falling from a height of 10 feet, a pin or a safe?

ANSWER: "In answering this question, kind friends," said the Major, "I must ask you to go back with me to the days of Aristotle and Galileo. Mr. Aristotle believed that if two bodies of the same substance fell from the same height, the heavier body would hit the earth first. That principle was considered correct for 1900 years or until Mr. Galileo came along. The leaning tower of Pisa had already started to lean, so Mr. Galileo went to the top of it with two objects, one weighing about 10 pounds and the other one pound. He dropped them and to the amasement of Mr. Aristotle's disciples, the two objects hit the ground at the same time.

"Mr. Galileo said that, except for a light article being resisted only slightly more by the air than a heavy article—on account of its relatively greater surface—all bodies fall at the same rate. The rate of fall is not in proportion to the weight. In a vacuum, the rate of fall is precisely the same.

"This is still a principle of physics and, therefore, I am able to advise you that the safe and the pin would hit the ground at approximately the same time if dropped from a height of 10 feet. Try it yourself, some time."

QUESTION 3: If you point in any direction at the north pole, what direction would it be?

ANSWER: South.

JUNGLE KINGS START HARD TRAINING GRIND ON MONDAY

Get Early Start on Season Because of the Western Trip.

VEALE O.R.F.U. COACH.

HAMILTON, Aug. 27.—Because of the western trip, which will last for some three weeks, and which will prevent the Bengals from getting in the same practice they are able to secure other seasons, the Jungle Kings are off to an early start on training.

With hopes of the big four squad centered upon another Dominion championship, and a bright outlook for the O.R.F.U. seniors, Tigers plan to throw everything into a short, but intensive training period for the champions, and a long steady grind that may bring the O.R.F.U. squad to the starting line ready to cop a title for the yellow and black.

An official start was made at the H.A.A.A. field last night, when all players and candidates, together with many officials and friends, held a friendly get-together and were officially told of the season's plans.

One of the most important announcements made was that Fred "Smut" Veale, former Tigers and Queen's star, had been selected as coach of the O.R.F.U. team. Mike Rodden, of course, will be back at the helm of the championship outfit, and Len Back is again the manager, so that both teams are in mighty good hands.

Asked for Co-operation

Following a brief program of sports and a ball game last night, all gathered about while President Stan Jeffress bid them welcome, called upon the players to rally and extended invitations to all newcomers to turn out. Then Coach Rodden took up the verbal cudgels and talked straight from the shoulder to the boys. He wanted no fooling this season, he said, because of the western trip.

"We won't be able to get in as much practise as we should have," he said, "and for that reason I want every man out when practise starts, ready to work and work hard. We must get into shape before we leave for the west, and as we won't have much time to practise out there, it is essential we confine every minute to preparing ourselves for the return home, when we step right into the championship schedule."

The coach requested the co-operation of all, saying that he believed Tigers would again go through to the championship. He stressed, however, the need for hard work and the proper spirit.

Real enthusiasm was shown, and when Coach Veale addressed his lads in similar strain, it could easily be seen that the gridders were all for the two leaders.

Outfitting To-night

All regulars and newcomers will turn out at the H.A.A.A. field to-night for outfitting. After the uniforms are issued the players will jog about the field for half an hour or more, their first real work, and practises will be called almost every night from now on. Even last night some of the lads had a football out booting it about, and every action showed that all were ready and anxious to get into the grind.

In the athletic program that was held, Seymour Wilson won the 100-yards' dash, with Jack Tierney second, and "Beano" Wright led all in kicking the football, with Eddie Crawford second. The team of Fear and Boadway won the three-legged race, with Sprague and Tedford second.

The ball game, as all such games are, resulted in a tie score.

ERRATIC SHOOTING ON THE PART OF C.G.E. SPOILS MANY CHANCES

City Soccer League Teams Put Up Fine Exhibition of the Old Code.

CLEAN PLAYING.

The weather was perfect for this game which brought out a big crowd and everybody was satisfied with the exhibition put forward by both teams. A noticeable feature was the sportsmanship of all the players, who did not waste any time quibbling with the referees decisions, but confined all their efforts and time to playing the game, which added to the enjoyment of the game. The Canadian General had an advantage on the night's play, but erratic shooting spoiled many pretty rushes.

Nice Combination

The game started late with nine men on each team at 6:40 p. m., eight minutes late r the full complement of players were stripped and in the game. The first real danger came from nice combination play with the C. G. E. forwards, but was nullified when B. McMaster shot hard over the bar. Brinton then took the play to the other end of the field and forced a corner which proved futile. A minute later Brinton should have opened the scoring account. Hanson came over from his wing and standing in front of the posts with no one to worry him, he shot weakly into the goal-keeper's hands from six yards range. C. G. E. then attacked on the left wing, the ball was passed inside to Wade, who shot hard, but just skimmed the crossbar. They came right back immediately but W. Jones fisted clear and stemmed the pressure. Brinton went down the field and attacked strongly forcing two corners, from the latter, which was nicely placed by Hanson, Anderson headed into the top corner of the net, well out of reach of Daynes to open the scoring for Brinton, twenty minutes from the start of the game.

Play Opens Up

The game then took on a little more vigor. O'Halloran for Brinton shot wildly out of play, still attacking from the left wing. Anderson put in a twisting shot which Daynes handled well. C. G. E. then had a good spell on the attack, good efforts by B. McMaster and Jack Wade just missing the objective. A nice combination play by Wade, Burgess and Rankin on the left wing terminated by Burgess landing the ball on the top of the net. Brinton forced the play to the opposite goal and the Generals only got relief when Tate handled right under the bar. The play was fast from end to end of the field and Cobbald for the C. G. E. sent in a long shot which hit the corner of the crossbar and upright—a close one. W. Jones removed the danger. Midfield play was in progress when Referee Hawthorne whistled for half time.

Second Half

On resuming the second half the Canadian Generals rearranged positions, Rankin and Burgess changing places, Jack Wade going center-forward and Robb to center half. This rearrangement had immediate results, going straight from the kickoff, Wade got in close but his shot hit the upright, however, Jack McMasters coming in fast netted the rebound giving Jones no chance to save. This tied up the game 1-1 and an interesting tussle was then carried on, both teams giving all they had to get the decision.

C. G. E. were attacking strongly right in the goal mouth, at least ten players forming a scrimage on the goal line when unfortunatly for Brinton Creighton handled. The penalty was taken by Blowers but W. Jones saved the shot. C. G. E. kept up the attack and Burgess netted, but the referees whistle had gone for offside previous to his shot. Brinton occasionally attacked and Anderson from a free kick missed by inches. C. G. E. were forcing the game and from two successive corners Wade headed over the bar. Just before the final whistle Hanson put in a good shot but Daynes was alert and made a nice save. As previously stated the C. G. E. should have won the game in this but erratic shooting nullified their best efforts.

Lineup:

C. G. E. —Daynes, goal; Chambers, R. B.; Blowers, L. B.; Stannard, R. H. B.; Wade, C. H. B.; Cobbold, L. H. B.; J. McMasters, O. R.; Robb, I. R.; B. McMaster, C. F.; Burgess, I. L.; Rankin, O. L.

Athletic Slugger Passes Lou Gehrig

NEW YORK, August 27. — Al. Simmons again was the only Big Six batter to get into action in yesterday's incomplete league schedule, and the Philadelphians profited greatly by the afternoon's work. Simmons hit two singles, a triple, and his thirty-first home run of the season in five times at bat, and lifted his average five points, enough to take first place in the American League batting race, and second in the Big Six, away from Lou Gehrig by a small fraction of a percentage point.

Simmons has a mark of .3964, while Gehrig's is .3957.

SECOND SOFTBALL GAME TO-NIGHT

Large Crowd Should Be Out to See Play-off at Central School Grounds.

The fast C.P.R. team of Trenton will hook up with the Sugar Bowl in an Ontario play-off game at Central School grounds tonight. Both teams are in good shape for the battle, and all set to go.

The Sugar Bowl feel they can take the C.P.R. boys for a ride tonight and will be battling all the way. They have to win to stay in the Ontario series. The Trenton lads are out to make it two in a row and wind up the series. Ernie Bowler will do the heaving for the Quinte town, while Len Forsythe or Bill Simmons will pitch for the Bowlrites.

A bumper crowd is expected to witness tnis evening's fixture, which commences at 6.15 sharp.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

The feature on the Club grounds last night was the farewell paid to our old friend "Scotty" McLeish. A few well chosen words by the president, Mark Bredin, explaining what "Scotty" had done for the Club was followed by a presentation by J. T. Braund, of a beautiful gold wrist watch, suitably engraved as from the fellow-members. Arthur replied nobly, although he was visibly moved, and all wished him good luck in his new venture. "Scotty" was always a bear for work, but should be at home in Tiger Town.

Besides tearing up the green, Harold Freeman pretty nearly broke his promise. He should give up throwing runners until he has had a few lessons from Bob Coleman. Last week Bob threw three runners on one end —and (quietly) gave his opponent seven shots.

One of the worst faults a skip can have is bowling too fast, without waiting for his vice-skip's direction. If you question this ask Jim Skinner.

Have you noticed the number of Benson we have in the Club. It is proving a good substitute for Jones, but there is only one John F. Benson. He is a big good-natured beggar, and how he can bowl—(sometimes).

It's just too bad that Mrs. Archibald and Mrs. Richmond were not at the Club house this afternoon. Alex and Jim would no doubt have been a little more careful of their behavious.

To-morrow is the big day. A large entry is expected and there should be a big crowd to watch the day's happenings. Newsie expects to be too busy watching his own game to pick up much news.

Some of the boys are battling it out for the right to go to Toronto to play in the Globe doubles. After years of failure it might be as well to send a couple of pairs of new bowlers. They can at least enjoy a ball game.

Don't forget the Club bridge Thursday night. Get your table reserved early.

CHICAGO GAMES OPEN TO-NIGHT

B. E. and U. S. Athletes to Tangle in Battle of Brawn and Flying Spikes.

SOME FEATURE CARDS.

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 27 (C.P.) — Under the refulgent rays of huge arc lights, winged Mercuries of the British Empire and the United States clash on historic Soldier Field tonight in another international classic of the cinder paths.

The battle of brawn and flying spikes, the fourth dual international track and field meet between the two English-speaking nations, promised an estimated throng of more than 25,000 spectators thrills and new records.

Great Britain and the Dominions presented a formidable front but was expected at least by Americans to lose in the 14-event struggle, although the result appeared to hinge on but two events—the 400 yard relay and the 480-yard shuttle races. In these two races the Americans had the best record on season's form.

BRITISH POLO CHAMPIONS READY FOR TOURNEY

CAPT. C. T. I. ROARK - LEWIS LACEY - CAPT. R. GEORGE - GERALD BALDING

When the British polo team lines up at Phipps Field, Westbury, L.I., although the team has not as yet been selected, it is reported, it will consist of the tentative line up engaged in the first of the test matches, as pictured above.

HARRISONS WIN BY SINGLE RUN

City Softball Teams Hook-up in Burlesque Fixture—Proceeds For Injured Players.

FINAL COUNT 10-9.

Harrison's defeated Westclox 10-9 in an exhibition game at Central School grounds last night. Although the game was burlesqued a bit the fans got a big kick and many laughs out of the engagement.

Manager Beckerman of the Westclox and Manager Harrison of Harrison's twirled the last few innings and got by nicely. Going into the ninth inning one run down Harrison's tied it up, the score being 7-7. In the tenth each team got one. In the eleventh Westclox counted another. It looked good for the Clockmakers, but Beckerman weakened and in their half of the inning Playford and Montgomery hit circuit clouts to give Harrison's a win.

Each player was charged twenty-five cents to play, the proceeds of the game going for injured players on both teams.

The line ups:

Westclox—White, c; Darling, p; B. Kitchen, 1b; R. Kitchen, 2b; Goodson, ss; Dorrington, 3b; Foley, lf; Cooper, cf; Curry, rf; Beckerman, p.

Harrison's—Connors, c; Montgomery, p; Smith, 1b; Calladine, 2b; Clarke, ss; Willshaw, 3b; Playford, lf; Gillespie, cf; Vinette, rf; Harrison, p.

Umpires—Nixon and Webb.

Sydenham Will Meet Hastings Wednesday

HASTINGS, Aug. 27.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The first game of the play downs in the O.B.A.A. which was to have taken place in Sydenham on Saturday afternoon was again postponed on account of rain. Sydenham will play in Hastings on Wednesday afternoon and the return game will take place in Sydenham next Saturday unless they are ordered to play sooner.

Americans are to develop the mica deposits in the Department of Huila, Colombia.

Drought has caused heavy losses in agricultural sections of the Dominican Republic this year.

Pilots Miss Britain I.

Scott-Paine, British sportsman, will shortly bring his speedy motorboat, "Miss Britain I," to United States to compete for the Harmsworth Trophy in the international speed-boat races at Detroit. He has designed and built a very unsual craft with a fuselage type upper structure built on a shallow hydroplane hull.

Trap Shooting.

The Peterborough Gun Club which is associated with the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, is holding a shoot on Friday evening at their grounds and all members as well as any gunners are invited to be on hand.

The shoot will start at 6.15 and ammunition can be procured on the grounds.

Several of the boys have been making good scores of late and are having a lot of fun shooting at the doubles.

There will be three events—two 20-bird events, and one 10-bird double event.

TRENT RIVER

Mr. Jas. Paget has taken up residence with Mr. and Mrs. David Burgess, "Cedar Lodge."

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham and children Marion and Almer of Brussells, Miss Annie Hutchinson of Toronto have been guests with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Preston, Havelock Road.

WILLIAMS LEADING FIRST

The photograph above shows the finish of the 100-yard dash in the British Empire Games at Hamilton last Saturday, with Percy Williams on the left swerving into Johnny Fitzpatrick's lane. Williams won by four or five feet after pulling a tendon in his thigh about fifteen yards from the finish. He collapsed as he crossed the tape and would have fallen on the track had not Fitzpatrick caught him in his arms. Close observers said that Fitzpatrick sacrificed second place to assist his team mate.

ADMIT CHICAGO CLUB DESERVING OF PLACE

Have Earned Right to Be Leading in National League, Review Shows.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—Although the New York fans' visions of another world series have been almost obscured by the fast moving Chicago Cubs, there is none here who doubts that the Cubs are deserving.

The Chicago club was five full games ahead of the Giants to-day and six and one-half games ahead of the Robins, both New York clubs having seen their pennant hopes fading in the recent crucial games. It was generally admitted that the lead wasn't handed the Cubs on a silver platter. When they thumped the Giants and Robins recently they climaxed a season which furnished more than its share of hard luck.

In addition to the usual Charley horses, stomach aches and bruises which are the lot of every ball club at one time or another during a season, the Cubs received two serious setbacks. One of these was the sudden death of Hall Carlson, right-handed pitcher, who had won eleven games the previous season. The other has been the inactivity of Rogers Hornsby.

Loss Keenly Felt

Carlson's loss was felt keenly and there was something more than a gesture in the spirit of the Cubs the next day—the day Carlson was scheduled to pitch—when they won a hard game.

Earlier in the season Hornsby developed an injury to his heel which slowed him up considerably. However, his availability was definitely settled later when an ankle was broken sliding into third base. The entire Cubs infield had to be revised.

May Not Weaken 'Em

Gabby Hartnett, moreover, had experienced trouble with his throwing arm early in the season and it was some time before he was able to throw accurately.

The Cubs play 22 of the 32 remaining games away from home and even though they are known to be somewhat weak on the road, it does not seem safe to predict that the Cubs will weaken on their tour and allow their pennant hopes to slip from their grasp.

MEDICAL MEN TAKE MERRY

Physicians From Empire and U. S. Attend Presidential Reception in Winnipeg.

RADIUM CHIEF TOPIC.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 27 (C.P.) —Two thousand medical men from all around the globe thronged the high-ceilinged halls of the Manitoba Legislative Buildings last night, making merry with their ladies. At the colorful presidential reception, physicians from Canada, United States and every part of the British Empire danced and chatted to the close of the first day of the British Medical Association's 28th annual meeting. Yesterday's activities were marked by little of purely medical nature, but by all the solemn ceremonial connected with the near-century of history of the noted British body.

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Premier of Canada, who is to present to the British Association a mounted buffalo head on behalf of the Canadian Medical Association, was present at the reception.

Radium will stand out as the most prominent topic in the three days of discussion starting to-day, in the opinion of Prof. Burgess, Professor at the University of Manchester. He points that radiology is allotted a complete session in three of the 14 sections of the meeting—Surgery, Radiology and Gynaecology.

Many Delay Too Long

In commenting on the value of radium in treatment of cancer, Prof. Burgess refers with regret to the fact that persons requiring treatment delay too long before seeking assistance. Cases of cancer, he points out, can be cured by use of radium in early stages. Prof. Burgess will speak to the Canadian Club on Friday, discussing "Radium and Cancer."

Birth control is a favored topic of interview-discussion by the visiting doctors from Britain.

Decline of the birth rate in the British Isles is commended by Dr. Robert Hutchinson, London's prominent specialist in children's diseases, who points out that limitation of the size of families means lower child mortality. He expressed the hope and expectation that by 1940 birth and death rates in England will balance.

Mention of Health Insurance in the presidential address of Prof. Smith as a vital need of to-day met with generous applause from the convention gathering. The opinion is undoubtedly shared by a large number of the delegates, Medical supervision in England's schools, coupled with new schemes from health insurance, is undoubtedly leading to State medicine, comments Sir Eustace T. Hill, Parkstone Forest, veteran Medical Officer of Health for Durham.

Uncommon Sense

By John Blake

THE WORLD'S WORST GANG.

It is an excellent thing that governments have at last begun to take some sort of United action against the world's worst gangs.

These are the gangs, some of which are intrenched in semi-respectability, and all of which are prosperous, that become rich by destroying their fellow men.

They are the agencies which gather and distribute and sell narcotic drugs, knowing that these drugs will be used, not for medicinal purposes, but to spread ruinous and well nigh incurable addictions all over the world.

For many years my work as a newspaper reporter took me into all sorts of places, and gave me the acquaintance of all sorts of people.

I have been much in police stations and police courts.

And I am convinced from my own experience, as well as from what I have learned from those whose trade is to control crime, that opium and cocaine have more to do with making crime habitual than anything else in exidtence.

There seems to be no hope for the drug addict, once he is in the grip of the habit.

His craving is such that there is nothing he will not to to get the temporary relief that the drug brings him.

His addiction breaks down his moral fibre.

His self-respect goes first, next his ability to discriminate between right and wrong, and lastly the caution which is all that keeps some types of people from becoming criminals.

The revelations of gang activities which have made life dangerous in many great cities—in Europe as well as in America, by the way—prove that "dope" has been a leading factor in lawlessness.

If you could see some of the so-called "bad men" who have been caught, you might be surprised to discover that they are not low-browed or burly crooks, but little, narrow chested fellows, who would stand no chance in a rough-and-tumble.

It is the "dope" that gives them the courage to shoot to kill when caught, or to plan desperate crimes.

In a world which is controlled, as we suppose, by intelligent people, it is astonishing that this crime-compelling trade should flourish and expand.

Yet there can be no doubt that it does. The drug addict seems to have little trouble in getting the powdered or liquid courage that makes him a menace.

And somewhere, somehow, there is a vast commerce in the stuff, and men are getting rich from handling it.

Here is one job that will have to be done soon, or we shall have to submit to murder, lawlessness and increasing crime.

It is a job that can be done, though it will be difficult.

But until it is done, there can be no effective battle against crime.

LORD BEAVERBROOK TAKEN ILL AT SEA

Yacht Puts Into Dover and Physician Called.

(Canadian Press Cable)

DOVER, Eng., Aug. 27.—Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of the London Daily Express and father of the Empire Free Trade movement, a dominating feature of British political antagonisms just now, was taken ill aboard his yacht today.

The yacht put in here where the publisher could receive treatment. He was said to be suffering from food poisoning.

Dr. Wilson of St. Mary's hospital, who arrived from London went aboard in attendance. The yacht remained in the harbor.

Lord Beaverbrook has become almost over night one of the most forceful and picturesque figures of British politics. He has been engaged the past few months in a persistent and energetic campaign against the Conservative organization headed by Stanley Baldwin because of their reluctance to come out for imposition of food taxes as part of a scheme of Free Trade within the British Empire and customs taxes against the rest of the world.

He has been able to reach an immense audience with his propaganda through the huge circulations of the Daily Empress, The Sunday Express, The Evening Standard, and a string of Provincial papers, while his force of character and able personal intervention in various bye-election campaigns have been no small factor in pushing his cause forward.

A BOAT TRIP TO CHEMONG

The "Stoney Lake's" Last Trip of the Season's Regular Outings.

Monday, August 25, was an interesting event in the annals of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, for it was their last trip of the season so far as this fair city is concerned. By the last trip, be it understood, I mean the last trip open to the general public, for on the two following days the boat had been chartered by private parties for Sunday School outings. The route advertised for this "last trip" was out by water to Chemong—a distance of approximately fifty miles by the water highway, although the distance by land, as the crow would fly, is only around a half-dozen miles.

Well, on a morning calculated to make everybody feel happy and comfortable at 8.30 a.m., by the sun's or standard time — thank goodness the daylight saving (?) time will shortly come to an end—at 8.30 (S.T.) I repeat, a very pleasant lot of people were congregated on board the good old steamer and friend—I mean, of course, the Stoney Lake (Captain Scollard, another good old friend), all possessed of one intention, viz., that of having (D.V.) a very happy, enjoyable day. They were mainly American visitors which possibly accounted for the friendliness and geniality that were manifest on the trip. Anyway we were all out to enjoy ourselves, and truly we did so.

Over this trip, which was inaugurated exactly a year ago, there had been grumblers, and the substance of their growls was that whereas Chemong was only by land some half a dozen miles away, why should they pay $1.25 and travel nearly fifty miles to get to it. This to my mind was a more pleasant trip than that out to Lindsay by water, returning by rail, for it is not long and strenuous, and one got back to the city in quite nice time.

We had some youth and beauty aboard with us, although most of them were strangers, and they—combined with the glorious sun—brightened us up as we entered the somewhat gloomy looking Lift Lock, with the result that all its apparent gloominess vanished.. On we steamed through the waters that I have frequently described, so shall not worry my readers with repetition. We came out of the canal proper and entered again the waters of the Otonabee River. In due course we made Lakefield and entered the lake region, and found ourselves at Young's Point, where we were joined by the captain's wife and little daughter.

Shortly I was summoned to the captain's table to dinner, and nothing loth, I attacked and thoroughly enjoyed a sumptuous repast, ably served by the ship's cook, Mrs. Little. Yes, I confess, I did justice to this good meal. By this time we had entered the narrows where there is a small Anglican church situated, strangely enough, between two points—one known as Hell's Gate and the other as the Devil's Elbow. Under the shadow of the church I felt safety.

On we steamed through the locks at Burleigh Falls, through Lovesick Lake, all looking beautiful in he heaven-sent sunshine until in due course we arrived near the Indian Village. Here we were to have stayed for three-quarters of an hour, but distant rumblings of thunder were heard and a storm cloud passed over us, and for about ten seconds, not much more or less, we had a few drops of rain. And that's all there was to it. So instead of disembarking at the Indian Village we steamed on to Chemong, where we left the vessel, bidding farewell to Captain Scollard, our genial chief engineer, the mate, and the rest of the crew, all of whom had contributed in their respective ways to our happiness and comfort.

After waiting a short time at Chemong Park a service of buses operated by the company now carrying on the city bus service carried us over quickly to Peterborough, where we arrived about 6.30 (D|S|T), ready to go to our respective places for supper, for which, I think, we were all quite ready.

Now in conclusion, let me remark that this was both the ultimate and yet the pen ultimate trip of the season. Oh, it really makes my heart ache to write "last of the season!" The last trip really will be a charter trip for the members of the choir of Mark Street Church have engaged the boat for a trip and after this the good old Stoney Lake, on which I have spent many happy hours, will be "tied up" for a spell until, I believe, the time when Bobcaygeon Fair comes off, when she will come to life again for a few day, and then say farewell to the season.

Altogether yesterday's was a very enjoyable trip, and everybody thoroughly enjoyed it. There was no mistaking that fact. It was just a friendly party. You pretty young ladies, who brightened me up with your miles and good looks, I just thank you. Frank Russell.

JUDD GRAY'S LETTER IS NOT FOR PUBLIC

Mother Shields Daughter From Press Curiosity.

NORWALK, Aug. 27.—Mrs. Judd Gray barred her doors against all visitors yesterday when she was to have given to her ten-year-old daughter Jane the third letter written by the child's father, who died in the electric chair with Ruth Snyder, three years ago. When newspaper men attempted to interview Mrs. Gray, she thrust her head from a window and called:

"Get off that porch or I'll call the police. I have nothing to say to anyone about anything. I will see no one."

Mrs. Gray and Jane occupy an expensive home on Walton Ave. and Clearview Park, which the mother bought recently. Before Judd Gray was electrocuted for the murder of Albert Snyder, he wrote a series of letters to be delivered one by one to his daughter on her birthday each year.

The contents of the communications have never been made public nor has Mrs. Gray admitted that they were read to the child.

A BEDTIME STORY

Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SAND FLOWERS.

"Yes, the seashore is lovely, and it's a wonderful place for the children," said Mrs. Longears, speaking to Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy one day. "But I miss the flowers."

"What flowers?" asked the muskrat lady housekeeper.

"The flowers that used to grow around our hollow stump bungalow at home," went on the rabbit lady. "Uncle

Carefully looking at the place.

Wiggily had such lovely blossoms growing around our old stump home that I miss them here in our seaweed cottage by the sea."

"But the Woodland blossoms will be blooming when we go back there in September," Nurse Jane said.

"Yes, I know," admitted Mrs. Longears. "But I would like the seashore much better if only some flowers would grow in the sand that is all about. Nothing seems to grow in it."

"Except seaweed," spoke Nurse Jane with a laugh.

"And even that nice weed doesn't grow up on shore where you can look at it," said Mrs. Longears. "It grows beneath the water and only when there are big waves, in storms, is the seaweed broken off the bottom of the ocean and cast up on shore. I certainly miss the flowers here at the seaside. I know the blossoms grow farther back on the shore, but I wish we had some here in the sand."

"Well, my dear wife," said Uncle Wiggily to himself as he heard this, "I am going to try to give you your wish." For the rabbit gentleman, sitting in the shade back of the seaweed cottage, or bungalow, had heard what was said. "I'll hop to the store now," said Mr. Longears, "and get some seeds to plant in the sand so my wife can have pretty blossoms to look at."

No sooner said than done. Uncle Wiggily hopped to a store in the village, and asked the old Sea Dog gentleman who kept it for some flower seeds.

"What kind?" barked the jolly old Sea Dog.

"Oh, all kinds," said Uncle Wiggily, "roses and lilies and violets and pansies and daisies and buttercups. I am going to make my wife a flower garden to look at."

"Pretty late in the season to start a flower garden!" growled the old Sea Dog. "But there are your seeds," and he gave several packets to the rabbit gentleman, who hopped back to the sandy beach in front of his weed cottage and, making sure that his wife wasn't looking, planted them.

"I want to surprise her," said Uncle Wiggily.

For many days after he had planted the seeds in the sand Uncle Wiggily might have been seen from time to time carefully looking at the place. Nurse Jane and his wife both asked the rabbit gentleman why he stayed on the beach so much instead of going in bathing.

"Oh, I'm just sunning myself and getting tanned," he would say with a laugh. But the truth was he was waiting to see the flowers grow in the sand. And at last a Sea Hawk, who had been watching Uncle Wiggily from day to day, whistled down on the beach and asked:

"What are you waiting for, Mr. Longears?"

"It's a secret and I know you won't tell my wife, for I jolly well want to surprise her," whispered the rabbit. "But I have planted some seeds in this bed of sand and I am waiting for the flowers to blossom."

"Then you are going to have a long wait," said the Sea Hawk with a laugh. "Not even the biggest alarm clock that ever was made can wake up those seeds you have planted in the sand. Nothing will grow in the sand, Uncle Wiggily, except perhaps some scraggily weeds. And especially nothing will grow in sand so near the ocean, for the salt in the waves kills everything. I don't know much about flowers, for I am a Sea Hawk and all I eat is fish. But I am sure you will never grow any flowers here in the sand for your wife."

"That's too bad!" sighed the rabbit.

"Indeed it is," whistled the Sea Hawk, "after all your hard work. The seeds will never sprout or grow in sand. They need to be planted in rich earth and kept moist by the rain and dew. It is because of the sand and dryness of the desert that no flowers grow there."

"I have heard of flowers of the desert," said the [illegible]

"Yes, [illegible] the desert are certain places, [illegible]ings, where there is water, [illegible] where palm trees grow, as I have heard," spoke the Sea Hawk. "There are flowers in a desert oasis, but you can grow no flowers in the sand by the [illegible]," Uncle Wiggily."

"Then [illegible] I do to give my wife a jolly [illegible]er surprise?" asked the rabbit gentleman.

"Listen [illegible]nd I will tell you," whispered the Sea Hawk, hopping closer to the rabbit. "It's a secret." And he began whispering so fast that he tickled Uncle Wiggily's ear.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 47 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The rising sun found them still separated. A great wonderment rose in Jane's heart. Though she had been in such terrible danger, yet she was unharmed. She moved to the entrance and Tarzan's lithe form dropped lightly from a nearby tree, his face lighted with a smile.

Jane's heart beat faster. She could not understand it. They finished breakfast. The magnificent diamond locket hanging about Tarzan's neck was a source of much wonderment to Jane. She pointed to it and Tarzan removed and handed it to her. Opening it, she beheld the likeness of Lord and Lady Greystoke.

She concluded this wild creature had simply found the locket in the cabin. But she could not account for the strange likeness between Lord Greystoke and this forest god. Tarzan placed the locket about her neck. Protesting, she would have removed it, but he held her hands tightly.

Motioning her to follow him, Tarzan walked toward the trees. Taking her in one strong arm, he swung to the branches above. The ardor of his first fierce passion had cooled. He knew why the ape had not killed Janes. But he must not be guided by the laws of beasts.

It was nearly sunset when they came to the clearing. Tarzan parted the tall jungle grass. There stood the cabin. He turned to leave her. Then she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him, unashamed. "I love you," she murmured. "I shall wait for you—always." He was gone.

WEDDING BELLS

BACON—CLANCY.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Immaculate Conception Church on Tuesday, when Helen Catherine, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Clancy, became the bride of Raymond Dennis Bacon, only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Bacon, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dean O'Sullivan.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Leona Hummel, wore a lovely gown of pale pink French georgette, ankle length, with net lace and a large picture hat of eggshell, with pale pink velvet trimming, shoes and hose to match, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and maidenhair fern.

The bride was attended by Miss Bernice Bacon, sister of the groom, who wore a gown of maize chiffon trimmed with tulle, large mohair hat with streamers of yellow velvet, matching shoes and hose, and carried a bouquet of Butterfly roses.

Mr. Michael Clancy, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and during the Nuptial Mass, Mr. Joseph Clancy, also a brother of the bride, sang very effectively several motets suitable to the occasion.

At high noon dinner was served to the immediate friends, decorations being carried out in pale pink and maize. The bridal couple left later for Montreal, New York and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a smart suit of woodland brown, with hat, shoes and hose to match. She also wore the gift of the groom, a fox fur.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a mesh bag, and to the groom a fountain pen. Many beautiful gifts were received by the young couple.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN C. McKEE

The funeral of the late Mrs. John C. McKee formerly Elizabeth Sears, who passed away at Toronto on Monday at the age of 78 years will be held at Little Lake cemetery on Thursday morning following the service which will be held at 31 Boustead avenue Toronto.

The deceased is the window of the late John C. McKee who is fondly remembered by the older residents of this city. For many years he conducted a successful drug business in the premises recently vacated by the F. G. Oke Company, George street, selling out to a Mr. Edmundson who in turn sold out to Mr. McDermid who carried on in the original premises for a couple of years before transferring to his present location.

The late Mr. McKee was for a number of years a member of the Ontario College of Pharmacy and represented the druggists of this city.

SHOOTERS IMPROVE

The Peterborough Gun Club has been holding shoots almost every Friday evening during the summer, and some of the members have become great shots. Trap shooters of note in the club are: H. V. Eldridge, J. W. Gravestock and Sid Black. Efforts were made to have the Cobourg club here this week, but the arrangement could not be completed.

LAST HALF HOLIDAY

Store employees throughout the city will be regretfully aware that to-day's half holiday signalizes the conclusion of the annual summer weekly half holiday, which has been in force from the first Wednesday in the month of June until to-day, inclusive.

END OF DAYLIGHT SAVING

Daylight Saving Time ends officially in Peterborough City at midnight on Monday, September 1st.

All citizens are hereby reminded that on the above-mentioned date all clocks will be set back one hour.

The D.S.T. measure, which came into effect in this city on June 15th, considerably later than Toronto and certain other centres, is likewise reverting to Standard Time earlier than certain other cities, which will observe D.S.T. until September 15th.

DOO-DAHS!

Main Street pedestrians are glimpsing a wide and varied assortment of gadgets and doo-hickeys of a decorative nature on the radiator caps of tourist automobiles. The apurtenances used to take the form of a modestly inconspicuous Diana or Mercury but the fad now calls for a more auspicious decoration such as a miniature airplane or dirigible. Propellers are quite popular with imitative whilewind power units. These sometimes measure a foot in diameter.

INJURE DMAN RECOVERING

A. Gleno of Bethune street, this city, admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday afternoon as the result of injuries received in falling from a gas-car while following his employment as lineman with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is reported to be progressing favourably. He is being attended by Dr. A. Moir.

LINDSAY WON TOOKE TROPHY.

In the game for the Tooke Challenge Trophy, played yesterday at Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club grounds, Lindsay captured the coveted prize with a 17-14 win over Peterborough.

Brennan skipped the winning rink while Cullen skipped for the challengers.

GRIFFIN.—In ever loving memory of our dear and eldest son and brother, Pte. Milton F. Griffin, who was killed in action at Monchy, near Arras, on Aug. 27th, 1918, at the early age of 18 years and 2 months:

Growing in the upper garden
Flowers the earth too rudely pressed,
In that land shall reach perfection
By the heavenly Gardner dressed.

Where the flowers bloom forever,
Death can find no entrance there,
All is life and light eternal
All is joy beyond compare.

BANK DEMANDS $50,000 RETURN BY HELEN KANE

Actress Bares Loans to President of Dress Company.

SHEDS MANY TEARS.

Transferred $90,000 Bonds Under Name of "Mary Marks."

NEW YORK, August 27. — It was weep-eep-a-deep yesterday for the boop-oop-a-doop girl, Helen Kane.

The young actress put her curly head down on a lawyer's big oak desk and sobbed. Lawyers, stenographers, lookers-on in the office of Referee Peter B. Olney, gathered sympathetically about her until the tears dried. Then the investigation into her association with Murray J. Posner, president of the bankrupt Bond Dress Company, continued.

The question that prompted the weeps instead of the famous boops came from C. Edward Benoit:

"Miss Kane, in the name of the Irving Trust Company of New York, which I represent as receiver for the Bond Dress Company, I demand from you the return of the $50,000 given you by Mr. Posner."

"Refused! . . . Unless the Court orders."

The reply came from David Haar, Miss Kane's attorney.

Helen was sobbing in her baby voice:

"He never gave me uh-uh anything, he just thought my money came easy to him, and I was always lending him mo-mo-money."

Helen next took out a new supply of gum, wriggled her high heeled slippers up to a rung of the chair, adjusted her black and white beret over her right ear and said with disarming frankness to Benoit:

"Excuse me, I'm stupid in my answers, I guess."

"Oh, no, you're not stupid, Miss Kane. No indeed!"

She told a straightforward story of her friendship with Posner for three years, and said she gave him $50,000 of her own money to invest for her in Liberty Bonds, as he had previously done with $30,000.

But he kept the $50,000, she said, in his "own big vault." Finally she asked him for it—while she was playing in Detroit—and he told her he had deposited the money to her account. He even came to see her, to her hotel, and told her, since she had the money, would she mind loaning him $7,500 of it. As Helen explained this:

"I was getting smarter then. I'd had so much unpleasant experience loaning money, and after you've given a man $50,000 to invest for you and he doesn't, you don't give him $7,500 more or like him any more."

So she rushed an order to remove the $50,000 from the Plaza Trust Company in New York on August 9, five days after Posner deposited it, to Chicago, with the rest of her bank account, totalling $90,000. She went on:

"I put the $90,000 into Liberty bonds under the name of Mary Marks, because you know what kind of a town Chicago is, and I didn't want anybody to know I had all that money, because gunmen there hold up actors and actresses and say they'll be bumped off if they don't come across, and I was afraid in Chicago, because Harry Richman was held up that way . . ."

Benoit could get no reason out of her for the hasty removal of the fortune from the safe-city of New York to dangerous Chicago. There, too, Posner visited her, she said, and begged her to help him because he was in trouble.

Milton Girl Leaves For Sault Ste. Marie.

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 27 (C.P.). — Nickoka Zamich, Milton girl, whose alleged kidnapping caused police to engage in a search for her yesterday, has left Guelph for Sault Ste. Marie. She was questioned by local police before leaving, and seemed quite contented. She told officers that she was to be married, but as far as can be learned, the ceremony was not performed in Guelph. She was with Paul Loretto, her fiance, when police saw her.

FUNERAL TO-DAY OF MRS. LANGEVIN

Tribute Paid as Deceased is Laid to Rest in St. Peter's Cemetery.

FORMER LOCAL GIRL.

Impressive tribute was paid to the late Mrs. J. O. Langevin, deceased daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Letellier of 215 Crescent Street, when funeral services were held in the Sacred Heart Church, and she was laid to rest in St. Peter's Cemetery this morning. The attendance of a great many friends and relatives and a wealth of floral and spiritual offerings eloquently bespoke the loss not only felt by those who knew the deceased in her girlhood in this city but in Huntingdon and Montreal, where she has resided for the past 16 years.

At 10 o'clock the funeral proceeded from the home of Mrs. Langevin's father on Crescent Street to the church. High Mass was sung by Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, with Rev. Dr. Masterson as deacon and Father K. Corkery as sub-deacon. Also present in the sanctuary were Father McCauley, Father James McGuire, Father Coffey and Father Maloney.

Miss Geraldine Collins, Miss Marita Collins and Mr. Sylvio Pelletier sang "Panis Angelicus" at the offertory, and a children's choir sang the Requiem. Mr. Armstrong presided at the organ.

At the church Father McCauley offered sincere tribute to the late Mrs. Langevin, whom he characterized as a devoted wife and a fond mother She led a virtuous life, and an exemplary Catholic life, Father McCauley said.

Services at the grave were conducted by Rev. Fathers McCauley, O'Brien, Corkery, and McGuire.

Pall-bearers were: J. R. McDonald, L. Picard, F. Hickey, R. M. Glover, M. Turner, and D. McKinnon.

Among those present from out-of-town were: Mrs. E. Couture, Ottawa, Mrs. D. Couture, Ottawa, Mr. A. Couture, Ottawa, Mr. Achille Couture, Ottawa, Mrs. A. Letellier, Ottawa, Dr. Leon Letellier, brother of deceased, Mr and Mrs. Fred Langevin Huntingdon, Mr. Joseph Langevin, Cote du Lac, Miss Marie Langvin Cote du Lac, Miss Alice Langevin, Cote du Lac, Miss Eva Langevin, Cote du Lac, Miss Jeannette Langevin, Cote du Lac, Mrs. Phillips of Huntingdon, Que.

SPONDOR TAKES LEAD IN 5TH LAP

overhand crawl stroke at the rate of 64 to the minute as he flashed by the press stand on his third lap. Pritchard, up in front, was ploughing steadily ahead with a 52 stroke.

Sam Shields, of Coral Gables, Fla., trailed Spondor by 235 yards, and fifty yards behind him came George Young, one of Toronto's hopes and conqueror of the Catalina Channel, who was making good progress with a slow stroke that was timed at only 42 to the minute. Young's bear-like arms were hauling him at a steady pace 200 yards ahead of George Blanden, of Memphis, Tenn., a "dark horse" threat, who had kept almost his same position from the start. Eli Radakovich, of Duquesne, Penn., a new-comer, was pressing Blanden, only five yards behind the southerner. Radakovich held a 75-yard lead over three closely bunched swimmers, with only five yards between the three. They were Stanley Pritchard of Buffalo, brother of Frank; Mendell Burdette of Toronto, swimmer who finished in the money last year, and Marvin Nelson, Fort Dodge, Iowa, boy, who is a regular entrant in Toronto's marathons. In last year's swim he collapsed 75 yards from the finish.

Vierkoetter Is 10th.

This trio held a 180-yard lead over Ernest Vierkoetter, the powerful German swimmer, now a resident of Toronto, who kept up a steady, even pace with no sign of worry at the lead his rivals had amassed. Norman Ross of Chicago was some 275 yards behind Vierkoetter. Lyle Hubbard, of Toledo, Ohio, another yearly entrant, was far behind the leaders, swimming at intervals on his back. John McMahon of New London, Conn., was plodding along ahead of the Toledo boy.

Despite excellent water and weather conditions, the starting field of 173 was cut down before one hundred yards had been completed.

Lindsay Boy Out.

Ferdinand Gerster of Lindsay, Ont., was in sixty-fifth place at the end of his first lap. He was then hauled from the water. No reason was advanced as to why he had left. The officials checked him on the first trek around; after that he was among the missing.

The water temperature at starting time, 11.02 this morning, was reported to be 68 degrees outside the breakwater and 69 inside. It was likely the temperature would rise before the race is finished early this evening. A zephyr that came faintly across Lake Ontario from the south at starting time left a calm surface for the swimmers. Three hours after the start there was little change in conditions, although the breeze was a trifle fresher and had changed more to eastward. A hot sun shone down from a cloudless sky, but this did not keep the thousands of spectators from taking up vantage points all along the water front. Scores of boats scooted around the course, while the big Dalhousie City, carrying a number of officials and a large crowd of spectators, drifted about outside the seawall.

Frank Pritchard's time on the first lap was 51.11, and his total time after the second leg was announced at two hours and fifty seconds.

DUMPING ORDER REAL EMBARGO

Local Opinion That Tariff Measure Too Drastic.

That the recent Order in Council to prevent the dumping of American produce on the Canadian market, is an embargo and not a tariff, seems to be the general opinion of local fruit wholesalers and retailers, interviewed to-day by The Examiner.

In effect it was stated by representatives of the trade that the duty will meet with decided disapproval from consmers particularly in cities like Montreal and Toronto where visitors from Chicago and New York expect to get the same kinds of luscious fruits on hotel menus as they can procure at all times in their own cities.

Members of the trade seem to be all in favour of protection but consider that countervailing duties on certain products which were previously in force was taking care of Canadian interests in a satisfactory manner. The new tariff is too high, in the opinion of the local trade.

It was pointed out that while Canada can produce certain classes of fruits and vegetables to equal those grown across the border, there are certain types of semi-tropical fruits which by reason of our climate we can never hope to equal; furthermore the season here is so short that the American market has to be recognised very seriously.

What effect will the duty have on goods invoiced since the imposition of the tariff?

In answer to this question, it was definitely stated that providing the Order had been correctly interpreted as having come into effect on August 20, it means nothing more nor less than a loss of thousands of dollars to jobbers and wholesalers.

Winnipeg fruit wholesalers, it was opined, will be up in arms against the imposition of the tariff, as they are so close to the Minnesota markets and so far removed from the Niagara Peninsula.

FATALL YINJURED

GUELPH, Ont., Aug. 27.—Henry Socket, aged 35, Rockwood, was fatally injured this afternoon when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by a train at a C.N.R. level crossing near Rockwood. Socket was brought to Guelph but died before reaching the hospital here.

REDS SPRAY U. S. BOAT

CHURCH CHOIR IS ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brackenridge Host and Hostess at Jolly Gathering.

PRESENTATION MADE

WESTWOOD, Aug. 27. (Examiner Correspondence) On Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brackenridge were host and hostess to the members of St. Andrew's United Church choir.

After the weekly practise, Miss Sargent was honored by an address read by the organist, Mrs. Ross Lobb, while a beautiful electric reading lamp and box of chocolates were presented by Don Cameron and Miss Mary Brackenridge, respectively.

Miss Sargent responded, voicing her appreciation of the gift and kind words and the motive which promoted them.

The evening passed very pleasantly with games and music, after which dainty refreshments were served.

Teacher Honored

A very pleasant time was spent on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Fife. About 7 o'clock the parents and pupils of S.S. No. 5, Asphodel, gathered to show honor to Miss Bessie Sargent, who has been teacher for five and a half years.

The long snowy table on the spacious lawn, set with all manner of good things to eat, looked very tempting to the seventy-five guests present.

After all had been served a short program was given, the pupils taking part with songs and recitations. Miss Sargent was then asked to come forward and Margaret Lynch read an address to her, while Stanley Fife presented a beautiful H. B. blanket, the gift of the school section.

Miss Sargent replied with a few fitting words, expressing her appreciation of the gift and also for the kindness shown her throughout her term of duties there.

Miss Sargent leaves for Toronto shortly where she has secured a position on the teaching staff of that city.

MOORE URGES UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

CLAIMS SHORTER WORKING HOURS HELP SITUATION

Labor Leader States Increase of Machinery Use Warrants Action.

GOV'T MUST ACT.

Trade Unionists Played Great Part in Cause of Fellow Workers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 28.—(CP)—Unemployment must be met by shorter working hours and a scheme of unemployment insurance, Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, declared today in a Labor Day message. Largely through the activity of Trade Unions, the menace of unemployment has been recognized, Mr. Moore said, not alone as a problem for the worker, but one to which attention must be given by Governments.

Corresponding to the increase in the use of machinery, there should be a shortening of the working day and the working week, while for those unable to secure work a system of unemployment insurance should be instituted

The Message

Deprecating excessive competition in trade, Mr. Moore expresses gratification that co-operative methods are more generally recognized. The message follows:

"Labor has just cause to cherish Labor Day. Established as a national holiday through Trade Union effort, it provides not only an occasion when workers and their families can meet in a spirit of festivity, but also a time when, through the columns of the daily press, an opportunity is given to make better known some of labor's achievements and ideals.

"In good times or bad, Labor's message is always one of confidence and hope for the future. Labor refuses to accept defeat, and however, dark the immediate outlook, maintains its confidence in the ability of the peoples of all countries wherever democratic Government exists to overcome any difficulty by constitutional means.

"The history of Labor's accomplishments through trade union organization justifies this position, and the measure of success already attained gives inspiration for still greater future efforts.

"Trade Unionists have persistently struggled to free themselves and their fellow workers from the thraldom of industrial slavery, and by their opposition to exploitation of those who toil in whatever form it presents itself, aim in general to improve by all legal means the social, moral and economic conditions of the communities of which they are an integral part.

Menace Hangs Over All

"To-day the menace of unemployment hangs over all countries, bringing misery and want into the homes of million of workers. Largely through trade union agitation this has now become recognized, not as being the problem of the unemployed worker alone, but one to which the Governments must devote their attention if civilization is to progress.

"Without entering into detail as to the many causes of this social blight or as to actions which are necessary to overcome the same, it can be said that there must be a shortening of the work-day and work-week corresponding to the increased productivity of machinery; an increase in the purchasing power of the masses so as to bring about a greater distribution of products at present choking factories and warehouses, and provision through a national scheme of unemployment insurance for those for whom remunerative work cannot be provided.

Boy and Woman, 72, In Hands of Law

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 28 (C.P.).—Two women, both beyond 60, and an 11-year-old boy were put on five years' probation, following their trials in Federal Court here on charges of violating the prohibition laws.

Mrs. Sallie Glassgow, 62 years old, of Birmingham, pleaded not guilty to a charge of selling a pint of liquor and four quarts of beer, but was found guilty by a jury.

Mrs. P. P. Ridley, 72, and infirm, pleaded guilty to selling a quart of blackberry wine.

Clyde Cox, 11, pleaded guilty to five counts charging selling liquor. The youth was said by his school teachers to be a model student. Agents said they bought liquor at a barbecue stand operated by the boy's father and that Clyde made the deliveries.

Judge W. I. Grubb imposed no penalties other than the probation.

Saving of $6,000,000 By Central Ontario Hydro Power Users

Peterborough's Power Rates Are Lowest in District, Report Says.

AMPLE SUPPLY ASSURED.

Many Rural Lines Established and Others to be Built.

The following article has been received from J. O. Herity, Belleville secretary of the Central Ontario Power Association:—

Great satisfaction is being expressed by those municipalities within the Central Ontario power zone where purchase of the local electrical distributing systems has been effected. Important profits are being realised in every instance and reductions in rates have been brought about or contemplated.

The City of Peterborough has the distinction of having the lowest combined rates for lighting and power among all the users in the Central Ontario System. But the people of Peterborough were wise enough to assume public ownership away back in 1914. In Peterborough the rate for lighting was reduced several years ago to 3 cents per kilowatt hour for the first 50 hours of consumption and 1½ cents an hour for greater consumption. In 1928 the mounting surplus enabled Peterborough to make a further reduction to 2½ cents and 1¼ cents for the two periods.

The Town of Picton which has now had ten years of public ownership enjoys the distinction and advantage of having lighting rates that are equally low with those in Peterborough, but power, because of the much smaller consumption in Picton, costs more than it does in the Liftlock City where the base rate is only $20 a horsepower per annum.

Lindsay's Reduction

The ratepayers of Lindsay took possession of their local power system, following a favorable vote on the part of the people in 1928. Their lighting rate had previously been 5 cents and 2 cents per k.w.h. Here too, a 20 percent. reduction has taken place and the people of Lindsay are now obtaining their lighting for four-fifths of their former bills while power has been reduced from $27 to $23 per h.p.

The City of Oshawa voted to purchase the electrical distributing plant in 1929. After only eleven months there was great enough a surplus accumulated to enable the public utilities commission to reduce the rates from 4½ to 3½ cents and power from $27 to $23.

The citizens of Belleville declared for public ownership by a referendum that was taken in August, 1929. The old rates were 4 cents and 2 cents for lighting and $24 for power. At the end of 9 months the commission passed out the agreeable surprise to the householders, business men and manufacturers of a 25 per cent. reduction in the rates for lighting and a drop to $22 per h.p. for industrialists.

Port Hope, Napanee and Brighton took over their electrical systems only this year. In each of these towns most satisfactory profits are being gathered in by the local utility, but

PORT COLBORNE TO GREET HERO

Citizens of Harbor Town to Stage Civic Welcome and Banquet For Spondor.

TOWN GOES WILD.

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Aug. 27.—(C.P.). — Preparations have commenced here for one of the greatest demonstrations of welcome the citizens of this harbor town have ever given a returning athlete. Unusual excitement and admiration prevailed here yesterday over the splendid showing of Isador Spondor, Port Colborne's butcher boy, in the world's professional swimming marathon at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Interest in Spondor's progress did not wane the least when Marvin Nelson, Fort Dodge, Iowa, took the lead from him, and a wild burst of acclaim broke out in front of the local newspaper office when it was announced the local boy had finished second.

It is planned to give him a civic welcome on Thursday, to be followed by a banquet.

ABANDONS CHANNEL SWIM

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, Aug. 28. (A.P.) — Miss Elsie West, English swimmer, to-day abandoned her attempt to swim the English Channel after being in the water since 10.30 p.m. yesterday.

Tiger Scalps Lad In California Zoo

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28 (C.P.)—Alfred Hill, aged 18, is in Police Hospital with a bare chance to live, as a result of climbing with another lad into the stockade of the tigers at Luna Park Zoo.

Alfred and his companion did not know the tigers roamed loose in the tangle of transplanted tropical thicket behind the seven-foot fence until the great beast bounded out at him and Carl Sabina, aged 12.. The tiger leaped on Alfred, knocking him to the ground and scalping him with one blow.

Melvin Kontz, a trainer, killed the beast with a rifle as it had chewed the boy's left arm to shreds.

FAMILY RESCUED FATHER IS DEAD

Futile Sacrifice By Parents in Destruction of Home.

MOTHER MAY DIE.

PENSGROVE, N.J., Aug. 28 (C.P.).—The head of the family was burned beyond recognition in the destruction of Selvadore Martell's home last night.

While the father and mother struggled through the burning hall, the one to death, the other to frightful injury, in an attempt to reach the six youngest members of their family. Two elder brothers rescued the children.

Albert Martell, 18, stood inside the window of the children's room and carefully dropped them one by one into the arms of Anthony, two stories below. Albert was badly burned before he completed his task, and himself, following his eldest sister, 15, leaped through the window.

At the last Mrs. Mantell dragged herself to a window and threw herself out. But the father, unaware that his sacrifice was unnecessary, died in the hall.

GUARDS SEEKING FOUNDERING SHIP

Three Sailors Staggering Ashore After 8 Hour Swim Tell Story.

FOUR LEFT ABOARD.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—(CP)—The fate of four members of the crew of the schooner Francis T., of Halifax, today hung in the balance as Coast Guard boats raked the sea for some sign of the craft which was thought to be foundering. The names of the four men were not given out.

Three known survivors yesterday staggered from the sea. They feebly made their way a few feet onto the beach. Then their knees gave out and they collapsed.

They are, John Larre 24; Clarence Atkinson 27, and Freeman Bonbury 24, all of Halifax.

Tossed into the waves when their dory capsized, they had swum for eight hours before reaching land and safety, they said.

DOMESTIC FRUIT TAKES BIG DROP

Quality Generally Poor and Dealers Reluctant to Buy.

CUT 10-30 PER CENT.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28. (C.P.)—Prices of domestic fruit and vegetables broke sharply in Toronto commercial markets yesterday as heavy shipments from producing areas began to arrive. The break, while disheartening to commission men and growers, effectively dispels any fears householders may have had as to higher prices under the recent tariff amendments.

Values of peaches, pears, plums, tomatoes, onions, potatoes and cucumbers were slashed anywhere from 10 to 30 per cent. over Tuesday's levels. Warehouses were filled with the incoming crops and at the close of business little of the new stock had been moved out to retailers. Quality was generaly poor and dealers were reluctant to buy.

TWO BOYS DROWN BATHING ALONE NEAR KITCHENER

New Hamburg Lad Goes to Rescue of Chum But Sinks in Deep Water.

BODIES FOUND TOO LATE.

Double Funeral Planned Saturday Following Public Service.

KITCHENER, Ont., Aug. 28.—(C.P.)—Two boys playing in the New Hamburg dam late yesterday were drowned when one of the pair got into deep water, and his chum apparently went to his rescue.

The victims were Andrew Eicheler, Jacob Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Eicheler, and Earl Huehn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Huehn of Waterloo street.

The lads had been swimming at the village swimming pool but apparently tired of this and went to the dam. They were bathing alone when the tragedy occurred. It is thought there were no witnesses. Floyd Huehn, brother of the lads, raised the alarm and the bodies were recovered in 20 minutes, but life was extinct.

A double funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon, with services at the homes and a public service at the Trinity Lutheran Church. Interment will be made at Riverside cemetery.

The Eicheler boy was seven years of age. It is learned Huehn had slipped into the water first.

Lawyer Charges Police Persecute Roadhouse Men

BRAMPTON, Ont., Aug. 28.—Appearing in local Police Court as counsel for Joseph Bailey, and Melville Campbell, proprietors of roadhouses situated on the Hamilton-Toronto Highway, charged with illegal sale of cigars, cigarettes and soft drinks E. J. Murphy M. L. A., for St. Patrick's, Toronto, charged Provincial police were persecuting roadhouse owners.

Disgraceful methods M. Murphy claimed, had been used in the searching for liquor outside these places by the police, operating under ministerial warrant.

Inspector Doyle denied Mr. Murphy's charges and said the officers did not "snoop" about but visited the places clad in uniforms.

Judgment in the cases was reserved by the Magistrate.

HAMILTON MAY PURCHASE RAILWAY FROM HYDRO

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 28. (C.P.) Announcement was made at a conference here between members of the City Council and Hydro Officials that the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission would sell the street Railway and the urban bus system to the city for $4,000 000.

F. A. Gaby, Chief Engineer of the Hydro represented that organization at the conference. No decision was reached by the civic officials but a committee, headed by Mayor Peebles, was appointed and instructed to consider the proposition and report later.

NEW PERUVIAN GOV'T IN COMPLETE CONTROL

LIMA, Peru, August 28 (C.P.).—A new military government, headed by Lieutenant-Colonel Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, who initiated the revolutionary movement at Arequipa just six days ago, assumed control in Peru to-day.

A new Junta, headed by Sanchez Cerro, was formed and sworn in. It displaced both vestiges of the eleven-year dictatorship of the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia, and the Junta of General Manuel Maria Ponce, members of which on Monday forced the president's resignation.

INTERNATIONAL ALLIANCE ACCEPTS CANADIAN SOCIETY

VIENNA, Austria, Aug. 28. (C.P.) The Congress of the International Co-operative Alliance has confirmed, by a large majority, the decision of its central committee to accept the application of the Canadian Wheat Producers' Co-operative Societies for membership in the alliance.

The decision marks an important step for the alliance, which has hitherto concentrated its efforts on consumers' co-operation.

A message from the Canadian Wheat Pools' organization was brought by Andrew Cairns. Mr. Cairns stated that the wheat pools were true to co-operative societies. There was no clash of interests between the co-operative producers and consumers, he declared.

Japan sent nearly $1,100,000 worth of menthol to the United States last year.

WATCH OF KITCHENER SOLDIER IS RETURNED AFTER 16 YEARS

Father Receives Gift to His Son From Companion Who Had Sought Him Since the War—Boy Had Presentiment of Death.

KITCHENER, Aug. 28—A poignant war echo of 16 year ago was heard in Kitchener yesterday by a father who gave his son to the allied cause. Sixteen years ago Emmanuel Pequegnat enlisted, being one of the first 18 to go from Kitchener. When he left his father gave him a watch engraved, "From Father to Mannie." The young lad must have had a presentiment of death for before one of the first big engagements in which his battalion participated he gave the watch to a friend, asking that in the event he did not return, it be returned to his father. "Mannie" went over the top and fell a victim in no man's land.

The Pequegnat Clock Company of the city yesterday received a letter from R. C. Spindlove of North Edmonton, Alta., in which the story was revealed to the Pequegnat family for the first time.

In the letter Mr. Spindlove says: "It always has been my aim to find his parents and return to them the watch he gave me before going into battle. All I knew was that his father was a watchmaker in the East and ever since the war I have been trying to locate him."

Heat Wave in Britain Causes Eight Deaths

Laundry Girls Work in Bathing Suits—Thermometer at 92.

EUROPE SWELTERS.

LONDON, England, August 28 (C.P.). — Most of Europe sweltered today in a continuation of a heat wave of the past few days which has taken at least eight lives from prostration in Great Britain.

The hot weather again caused much discomfort in the British Isles, and was also felt in western and central Europe, where high temperatures for this time of the year were recorded. In Germany 90 degrees was registered yesterday, and Italy had similar high figures, while France, Belgium, and Spain also suffered. Several industries in Bilbao, Spain, suspended work.

As far as Great Britain was concerned, [illegible] registered 92 degrees Fahrenheit at 3 p.m., and oppressive humidity made conditions worse.

The lightest of summer garb is being worn, and outdoor swimming pools are crowded. In one Sheffield laundry the work girls were allowed to wear bathing costumes to escape the heat.

Eight deaths were recorded throughout the country, including two Guardsmn engaged in military manoeuvres at Aldershot, while in the southern districts and along the Channel, heavy fog prevailed and delayed shipping. One liner arrived in Plymouth many hours late and reported that the fog extended for a distance of 1,000 miles.

Newsprint Exports Shrink During July

OTTAWA, Ont., August 28. — (C.P.). — Exports of Canadian wood pulp during July had a valuation of $2,968,267, it has been estimated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The corresponding figure for July, 1929, was $3,127,292, and for June, 1930, $3,208,864. Exports of paper of all kinds, including newsprint, amounted to $11,920,019 in July. A year ago, the figure was $12,257,309, and for June, 1930, $11,654,859.

SIX MEMBERS YORK COUNCIL ACCEPT GRAFT

Volunteer Witness Gives Startling Testimony at Contract Probe.

JUDGE DENTON IN CHAIR.

Reeve Dean Claims Employee Offered to Buy or Sell Information For $8,000.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—Evidence of a startling nature regarding the handling of contracts in York Township was given to-day before Senior County Judge J. H. Denton, who at the request of York Township Council opened a judicial probe into all engineering contracts entered into by the Township during the last five years.

Reeve W. J. Gilbert Dean swore that J. B. Strathearn, an employee of the township engineering department, offered either to buy or sell for $8,000 information "as to what was going on."

Basil Holden of the Nelson River Construction Company, a volunteer witness, testified that six members of the 1929 Township Council had accepted money from him.

Reeve Dean described the unanimous action of Council asking for the probe following a report from a firm of consulting engineers. "I felt that in view of the evidence, Mr. Strathearn should be advised of the facts, as evidence was damaging to him. I interviewed him and the interview was very peculiar. I told him it looked as though he would be the one to take the fall in his case. He said there were others who would take the fall, including mystelf," said the Reeve.

OTTAWA MAN SUICIDES.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—Carrying out a threat made yesterday, a man whose name is believed to be Pelletier, committed suicide to-day by jumping into the swift waters of the Ottawa River. His body has not been recovered. Yesterday he visited the river bank and told ferrymen of his intention to take his own life. He appeared to be about 40 years of age.

Matrimony Scoffer Is Led to the Altar

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—H. L. Mencken, spokesman for bachelorhood and scoffer at matrimony, is now a benedict. Though his marriage to Miss Sara Powell Haardt, of Baltimore and Montgomery, Ala., had been scheduled for September 3, she and the editor and irrepressible critic decided to escape zealous attentions of friends and were married by an Episcopal rector at an Episcopal church, that of St. Stephen the Martyr. Only their immediate families and a few friends were present.

GANDHI'S CAUSE SUFFERS BLOW

Wholesale Arrests of Almost Entire Personnel of Working Committee.

MEETING UNLAWFUL.

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 28. — Wholesale arrests of almost the entire membership of the working committee of the All-India Congress here yesterday left the civil disobedience campaign against British rule in India virtually leaderless.

The action was a serious blow to the Nationalistic passive resistance drive, and was taken to indicate the determination of the British to proceed with stern measures to check the campaign begun months ago by Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, now in jail at Poona.

The members of the so-called working committee—a body composed of the heads of the anti-British All-India Congress—had gathered in New Delhi to hold a conference and outline further agitation.

They met despite the fact that the authorities had decided Monday to declare gatherings of the committee "unlawful assembly." Flouting the law, the members present at the opening session were promptly arrested and jailed.

Among those seized were Vithalbhai Patel, elderly Gandhi lieutenant; Madamohan Malaviya, Mathradas Cicumji, treasurer; Dr. B. C. Roy, Sardar Mangal Singh, Deepna Rain Singh, Chawdiry Afzalhaq, Rajarao, the secretary, and Dunichard Ambalawala.

The arrests of the working committee members was admitted to be the heaviest blow the Government of India has yet dealt the Congress organization. All the important Swaraj, or independence, leaders not already in jail, were taken.

The committee, in accordance with the Congress's practice, probably will be reconstituted, and new leaders named. One after another has been named to carry the Gandhi banner against British rule — but the next leader will be from among those comparatively unknown

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE WILL BE ADOPTED IN CANADA TO REDUCE COST OF SICKNESS

Statement By Canadian Doctor at British Medical Convention.

PASTEURIZATION URGED.

London Doctor Scores Food Fads and Anxiety About Health.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—At one of the sectional meetings of the British Medical Association this morning, Pasteurization was given a great part for the striking decrease within the last decades of non-pulmonary tuberculosis cases in Glasgow by Dr. A. S. M. McGregor, Glasgow's Medical Officer of Health. He mentioned that of 360 cases of diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid and septic sores within 17 years, none had been traced to farms where milk was pasteurized.

Health Insurance

Some form of National Health Insurance will be adopted in Canada in the near future as a solution of the problem of present cost of medical care, forecast Dr. J. J. Heagerty, Medical Historian of Canada, in a paper given before the Medical Sociology Section. With one physician for every 1,000 of population in Canada, the annual addition of 400 graduates presents a problem of absorption in the country, he believed.

Dr. Heagerty outlined development in prevention and cure of disease from the days of Jacques Cartier down to the present.

Professor W. Harvey Smith of this city, newly-elected president of the Association, advocated a system of health insurance as the only method by which competent medical service may be placed within the reach of all on a satisfactory basis.

Lack of Economic Organization.

"A prolific source of criticism," he said, "arises from the failure of our [illegible] to provide adequate service to the various sections of the community under a financial plan that will meet the needs of every class of citizen.

"The economic organization of medicine has not kept pace with its scientific progress. If corporate medicine could not, or would not, recognize demands so insistently made for the development of a system under which medical aid would be available for rural districts especially, no protest could be raised if governments took steps to inaugurate a system of medical service of whatever type seemed best."

Dr. Smith here referred to a movement towards health insurance in British Columbia, the travelling clinic in Alberta, the union hospitals, mu-

Lindsay Lad Saves 8-Year Boy's Life

LINDSAY, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—Max O'Neil, 13, last night saved the life of Jimmie Perrin, aged 8, son of Mr. A. J. Perrin, who is visiting his father, J. J. Perrin, in town. The little lad was playing with some other boys on the bank of the river, and slipped and fell in; he kept his head and struggled to keep above water. The lads were none the worse for the immersion though without help Jimmie would have drowned as he could not swim.

"TEENAGE" BOYS DRUNK AT DANCE

Night Spent in Police Station Cells "Enough Punishment."

LIQUOR FROM FRIEND.

Following a severe reprimand, flavored with much fatherly advice, two local youths, 16 and 17 years of age, promised Magistrate Langley this morning, "never to do it again."

The boys were arrested by a Provincial constable at a dance hall in a neighboring village last night as "drunks." They were noisy and a nuisance about the place, and were thoroughly intoxicated, the officer said. Considerably chastened by spending most of the night in the cells, they explained that they had met a friend from whom they had accepted drinks.

No fines were levied, and the boys were not brought up in court, since it was considered sufficient punishment that they had the night in jail.

WITNESS FREED IN THEFT CASE

Justice Wright Claims Kingston Trial Very Badly Handled.

CROWN ATTORNEY ABSENT.

TORONTO, Ont., August 28 (C.P.)—Justice Wright at Osgoods Hall this morning ruled that the jailer at Kingston, Ont., had no right to hold Frank Challes as a material witness in an auto theft case and reserved judgment as to whether Challes could legally be held in jail on the theft charge. Justice Wright said the proceedings before Magistrate Bradshaw had been "very badly handled—about as badly handled as they could be."

Miss V. A. Robinson for Challes said: "A great injustice has been done."

Justice Wright: "I won't say that, but I am satisfied that if the Crown Attorney had been there, there would not have been this mix-up."

W. B. Common for the Crown, admitted proceedings had been sloppy.

Justice Wright: "Why was the man not tried before? He was committed on July 15."

Crown: "He had a solicitor."

Justice Wright: "It is the Crown official's duty to see a man is tried."

SHOOTING VICTIM IS LAID TO REST

Lad of 5 Shot at Elgin When Brother Trips and Falls.

HUNTING BLACKBIRDS.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., August 28 (C.P.). — The funeral was held this morning at Elgin of Maurice Hamilton, aged 5, who was shot and accidentally killed by his brother Bruce, aged 12, while the latter was aiming at crows or blackbirds near his home, unaware of the fact that the younger boy had followed him from the house. Bruce Hamilton was crawling out of a ditch and about to shoot at a blackbird when he tripped and fell, the gun being discharged and its contents entering the abdomen of the child, who lived for only half an hour. The two boys are children of Charles Hamilton, who lives about two miles north-east of Elgin Village.

SESSION OPENS ON SEPTEMBER 8

Date of Bennett's Emergency Meeting of Parliament is Announced.

CEREMONIES OMITTED.

OTTAWA, Aug. 28.—(CP)—Parliament will open on Monday, Sept. 8. Official announcement of the date of the opening was made last night by Sir George Perley, acting Prime Minister and war-time Canadian high commissioner in London.

The hour set for the opening, Sir George Perley stated, is 12 o'clock noon, although the more formal procedure will not take place until 3 o'clock in the afternoon. This arrangement will permit the House of Commons to get right down to business on the first day of the special session to deal with unemployment relief and doubtlessly take some action on the tariff.

Members of Parliament will assemble in the House of Commons at the noon hour with Arthur Beauchesne, clerk of the House presiding. After assembling, the members will proceed to the Senate chamber, where the deputy Governor-General will be present, and upon the direction of His Excellency will return to the Commons to elect a speaker. Adjournment will then be made until 3 o'clock when with the pomp and ceremony of tradition attendant upon the opening of Parliament Viscount Willingdon will arrive from Rideau Hall and proceeding to the upper chamber, His Excellency the Governor-General will read the Speech from the Throne.

The address in reply to the Speech from the Throne will then be moved by the mover and seconder. Former Premier Mackenzie King will then speak, followed by Premier R. B. Bennett in his initial address on the floor of the House as Prime Minister. In all probability, Robert Gardiner, U.F.A. leader, will continue the discussion and the debate will have the right of way until its termination.

Iowa Youth Spurts At Finish to Down Port Colborne Laa

New World's Champion Takes His Victory Lightly as He Sets Exceedingly Fast Time For 15 Mile Grind of 7 Hours, 43 Minutes and 36 1-5 Seconds—Finishes in Fine Condition.

ISADOR SPONDOR FIGHTS HARD BATTLE ALL WAY ONLY RELINQUISHING HIS LEAD IN FINAL LAP

Dark Horse From New York, William Goll, Takes Third Money, Beating Favorite, Geo. Blagden, Who Came Fourth—Vierkotter and Norman Ross, Seasoned Marathoners, Are Last In Prize List.

TORONTO, Ont., August 28 (By Edward Joliffe, C.P. Staff Writer). — A world's championship and $10,000 in cold cash was yesterday's achievement for Marvin Nelson, broad-shouldered six-foot youth from Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Nelson completed the 15-mile swimming Marathon staged by the Canadian National Exhibition in 7 hours 43 minutes 36 1-5 seconds, a new record.

The Iowa boy showed little signs of his long struggle when he emerged from the water, but appeared to be still in perfect condition.

Seven minutes after Nelson came Isador Spondor of Port Colborne, Ont., the 18-year-old boy who suddenly jumped into fame last year. From the time when Frank Pritchard dropped out in the fourth lap until he was passed by Nelson at the beginning of the last lap, Spondor led the race, swimming 62 strokes to the minute, an unusual pace. He missed first prize, but won $2,500.

Goll Comes Third

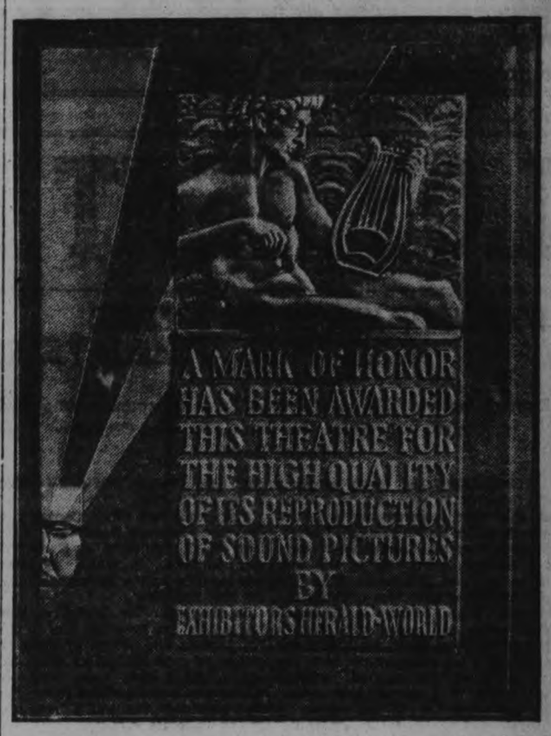
William Goll of New York was third, taking $1,000. Goll finished far back of the leaders, but in very good condition. He was among the dark horses whom no one called as a probable winner.

Fourth place and $750 went to George Blagden, the fair-haired youth from Memphis, Tenn., who was widely supported as a favorite. He finished easily but without much speed after losing third place to Goll.

Fifth and sixth were men famous for the triumphs of other years, Ernst Vierkoetter of Germany and Toronto, and Norman Ross of Chicago. The big German has the most consistent record of any marathon swimmer, finishing in the money every year, while in 1927-28 he was unchallenged champion of the world. Last year he came second.

Only three swimmers finished outside the money: Clarence Ross of Brooklyn, N.Y., Paul Zegger of Farmington, Conn., and Alfred Sully of Toronto. All others were compelled to leave the water. Anna Priller Benoit of Miama, Fla., only woman who entered the swim, although six were eligible, persisted until the end when she still had more than two miles to go. She wanted to go on and finish but was required to stop by officials. Miss Benoit swam fifth in the women's swim on Friday, August 22.

PLAQUE AWARDED TO CAPITOL



In the lobby of the Capitol Theatre is a bronze plaque which, according to its inscription, has been awarded as " a mark of honor" to this theatre, "for the high quality of its reproduction of sound pictures."

It was given by the Exhibitors' Herald-World, and is obviously an impressive testimonial of the efficiency of the sound producing equipment which has made thousands of delighted patrons for the Capitol.

GRACE KNOWS HER SUNDAY SNACKS

"Let's have an easy meal tonight—something tasty but not much work," suggested Jack at the close of a lazy Sunday afternoon. "Why, surely," said Grace, "I know the very thing."

She opened a tin of Clark's Pork and Beans, thoroughly chilled. She diced half the quantity of cucumber—(some people use diced celery instead, and some add also 1½ tablespoonfuls minced green peppers).

She mixed the two together and poured over them a French dressing to which had been added 1 tablespoonful Clark's Tomato Ketchup and 1 tablespoonful shredded onion (the onion may be omitted, if preferred).

She arranged them on crisp lettuce leaves, and garnished them attractively with parsley and pimento. My, but they DID look good! Jack saw to it that not a bit remained after the meal.

When Mother made her own Pork and Beans, she bought good beans and a piece of prime pork, seasoned them deliciously, and cooked them together for hours until they were blended to perfection. That's exactly how we make Clark's Pork and Beans.

ONTARIO MINES OUTPUT JUMPS BY $2,738,401

Total Value of Production in First Six Months is $58,236,562.

$55,498,161 IN 1929.

Gold Output is Increased, Silver Increases But Lower in Value.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28.—(CP)—An increase of $2,738,401 in the value of production of Ontario mines and smelters for the first six months of 1930 over the value of the output for the corresponding period of 1929, is the feature of the semi-annual report issued by the Provincial Department of Mines.

The total value of mineral production for the first six months of 1930 was $58,236,562 as compared with $55,498,161 for the corresponding period in 1929.

Though in the midst of a period of depression, the report says, the mineral output for 1930 will be about $117,000,000 dollars, if the rate of production for the first half of the year is maintained during the balance of the 12 months. This will equal the value of production in 1929.

The value of gold production for the first six months of 1930 totalled $17,337,123 as compared with $16,514,313 for the first half of 1929. Silver production showed an increase in quantity but a decrease in value, due to low prices. The value for the period was $2,108,172 compared with $2,345,349 for the first six months last year.

Metallic production, which includes gold, silver, platinum metals, copper, nickel, lead and zinc, increased by approximately three and a half million dollars over the first half of 1929.

Non-metallic production including, feldspar, graphite, gypsum, peat fuel, natural gas, petroleum, quartz, arsenic and salt, increased by nearly $200,000.

SAILORS SWIM SIXTEEN MILES IN A RAGING SEA

Three Halifax Men Stagger Ashore at Atlantic City.

FOUR MEN MISSING.

Were Left on Sinking Vessels —Search Proves Unavailing.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Aug. 28.—(C.P.) Three sailors landed exhausted on the beach this morning in quest of aid for a disabled schooner, which they said they left adrift 16 miles out at sea yesterday with four other men aboard.

The three rowed 16 hours in a dory. When they came in sight of land, it capsized and they were forced to swim two hours and a half to reach shore, they said.

Coast guards immediately set out in search of the schooner.

They are: John Larre, 24; Clarence Atkinson, 27; and Freeman Bonbury, 24, all of Halifax.

Tossed into the waves when their dory capsized, they had swim for eight hours before reaching land and safety, they said. As they crawled from the water and tumbled in a heap on the sand a patrolman who was pacing the board walk rang for a police car and had them taken to the station, where they were fed and dried.

The men said their ship left Halifax two weeks ago with a cargo of merchandise for Bermuda. On August 19 a terrific storm blew up and seams in the vessel's sides opened. Then last night, after they had worked at the pumps for a week, memoers of the crew drew lots to decide which of the seven should attempt to make shore in the dory. Larre, Atkinson, and Bonbury won the chance.

Report Vessel Sinking.

The Francis T. was sinking, they said. Their four companions were still at the pumps, struggling to keep her afloat, when they swung their frail craft into the waves and pushed off. The ship was then about 16 miles off shore, somewhat south of Atlantic City.

For hours they rowed, battling mountainous seas, until at about 1.30 yesterday morning a giant comber caught the dory, flung it on its beam and tossed them into the sea.

Then started their eight-hour battle against death. All were strong swimmers. At intervals they shouted and managed to keep together in the inky darkness. All the remainder of the night they struggled stubbornly on. Then when dawn broke they saw the coast ahead of them.

It seemed an age to them before they reached it. As they reached the shallow water and started to walk through the breakers, they found their legs, grown used to swimming, would not work when they tried to walk. They staggered and fell, helping each other along until they stood trembling on the beach. Then came the let-down. Their strength snapped and they dropped, unable to rise without help.

LINDSAY DRIVER HAS ARM BROKEN

"Abbie" Crimmons Thrown From Car in Accident on Little Britain Road.

LINDSAY, Aug. 28. (Special to The Examiner).—A rather serious accident occurred yesterday afternoon on the Little Britain road, and about six miles west of Lindsay, when "Abbie" Crimmons, the seventeen year old son of J. Crimmons, of this town, was injured. The boy was on his way home to Lindsay when the steering gear of the car which he was driving broke as he was rounding the curve. The car turned turtle and young Crimmons sustained a broken arm, which was also cut by the broken steering wheel. He also sustained injuries to his chest and it is throught that a number of ribs are broken. He is at present in the Ross Hospital. The car was badly wrecked.

Campbellford Wins Round From Oshawa

MARGIN OF ONE GOAL ON ROUND IN GREAT GAME

Intermediate Lacrosse Honors For District Decided in Oshawa.

SCORE WAS 1 TO 0.

Strong Defensive a Factor in Motor City Final.

(By Examiner Staff Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 28. — Although winning with a score of 1-0 in the last of the play-offs staged at Oshawa on Wednesday between that city and Campbellford, the Motor City failed to total up the count in their favor and Campbellford finished champions of the Eastern Group, Intermediate O. A. L. A.

Going down to Oshawa with a two goal lead, the result of the first game of the play-offs last Wednesday, Campbellford was able to hold the Oshawa aggregation down to one count and so finished one goal ahead.

The game was one of the hardest fights that have been staged this year. Oshawa were out in full strength and threw all their weight into obtaining a double count in the first period to enable them to play for a win.

Keeping a strong defence, they rushed the Oshawa goal when opportunity presented, and shot some very near counts on occasions. The only goal that was counted was put into the Campbellford net in a scrum, and there was a great deal of contention among the fans as to whether it should be allowed, many of them, and among them some of the Oshawa folk, declaring that the ball was shot from inside the crease. However, the referee gave the decision in favor of Oshawa, and the goal carried.

Checking Was Heavy

The game was clean and fast, very severe checking featuring the play. Seven penalties in all were registered, four against Campbellford and three against Oshawa, but these were all for minor miss-plays. Although the score was against them by one count, Campbellford had the edge on the play, and if their shooting had not been a little wide would have come out victors. Both Stokes in the Oshawa net and Fox in the Campbellford net played fine games and turned back many shots that were fast and difficult. Whitton for Campbellford stared all through the game, working at second defence and breaking up the Oshawa attacks. So dangerous was he that he was covered by two and three men at a time.

Garrison for Oshawa played a very strong game and did much to carry the play into the Campbellford district, but the Trent boys were on guard all the time. They were out to protect their advantage and did it with the result that as campions of the Eastern Group they will now have to meet Brampton. It is hoped that home and home games can be arranged, and that the first game will be fixed to be played at Brampton, as Campbellford are in the lacrosse field, after many years absence and want to boost the game in hope of working up a first class schedule for next year.

A large following of fans went with the Campbellford team and cheered the boys on to victory, but Oshawa's support was very limited. S. Bennett refereed the game, being sent down from Toronto by the Association for that purpose.

The line-ups were as follows:

Oshawa—Goal, T. Stokes; point, H. Murray; cover point, H. Stephens; first defence, R. Leydon; second defence, W. Luke; 3rd defence, L. Luke; centre, L. Daniels; 3rd home, J. Bovin; second home, A. Black; first home, J. Cardinal; outside home, H. Cardinal; inside home, R. S. Garrison; subs., G. Luke, H. Luke, F. Kunkle.

Campbellford—Goal, E. Fox; point, H. McArthur; cover point, V. Cochrane; first defence, L. Bausch; second defence, F. Whitton; third defence, J. Cowell; centre, S. Flint; third home, O. Hendy; second home, L. Copperthwaithe; first home, H. Ingram; outside home, F. Ingram; inside home, L. Jack; subs, W Blue, T. B. Horkins, T. Plunkett.

Referee—S. Bennett, Toronto.

Umpires—Time, H. Nattress, Millbrook; penalty, H. Tait, Millbrook.

The first period was featured by the determined attack made by Oshawa to level up on the two counts they were behind, and which was met by a dogged resistance on the part of Campbellford. Good combination and a splendid defence kept the Green and White's at bay which brought the spell to an end without a count. Cowell for Campbellford and Leydon for Oshawa were both put on the fence at the beginning of the round, Flint going down before Leydon for two minutes. Much of the play was round the Campbellford net, H. Luke

OMEMEE WHEAT WINS.

Two Prizes Awarded at Toronto Exhibition.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28. (C.P.)—Arnprior and Omemee carried off the honors in wheat in the Ontario field crop competition at the Canadian National Exhibition. William Runts, Jr., took first prize in the spring wheat, both threshed and in sheaves, while Frank Abraham was second in the same classes. Both are from Arnprior.

In the fall wheat, threshed and in sheaves, Vincent Jones of Omemee was first and Wesley Wilson from the same place was second.

SHIP BUILDERS SEEK GOV'T AID

Vancouver Man Offers Four Suggestions to Aid Matters.

SHIPYARDS IDLE.

VANCOUVER, B.C., August 28 (Canadian Press). — Urging vigorous Government action to assist the Canadian shipbuilding industry, a letter prepared by Clarence Wallace, president of the Burrard Drydock Co., Ltd., of Vancouver, has been forwarded to members of the Government and to members-elect in the Federal House. Mr. Wallace proposes:

1—A duty of 50 per cent. on foreign-built and registered ships seeking registry in Canada for any purpose.

2—A duty of 50 per cent. on repairs done and equipment purchased in a foreign port, such duty to be payable at the first Canadian port of call.

3—Amendment of coastwise laws so that no goods or passengers may be carried by water for the whole or any part of the transportation from one port to another except in British ships built and registered in Canada.

4—A duty of 30 per cent, on all British registered ships seeking registry in Canada to engage in foreign trade.

The letter points out that Canadian shipyards during the war expanded their plants at enormous cost and trained competent staffs. After the war, however, these concerns were given little encouragement, only three of the nineteen ships added to the coastwise fleet in British Columbia, for example, being built in Canada.

Careless Motorist Kills Seven Turkeys

LAKEFIELD, August 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Monday afternoon an American motor car going towards Peterborough at a high rate of speed from the direction of Buckhorn crashed into a flock of turkeys belonging to Mrs. D. Garvey, of Maplegrove Farm, 9th Line of Smith, and killed seven fine birds. The high speed was maintained in spite of the accident, and the car sped on its way. This sort of occurrence makes tourists who are inclined to disregard the laws of Canada a rather expensive luxury. The accident could easily have been avoided by a little care and slackening of speed on the part of the driver.

CAMPBELLFORD FALL FAIR SOON

Meeting of Fair Board Arranges For Big Local Event—Another Special Prize.

AIR STUNT TO BE FEATURED.

CAMPBELLFORD, Aug. 28 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — A meeting of the board of directors of the Seymour Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday evening at the fair grounds to make arrangements for the annual fall fair which is to be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, September 30, and October 1. T. J. Horkins occupied the chair.

G. A. Ironside representing the Campbellford Branch of the Canadian Legion, waited on the board to arrange for concessions for the Legion, to enable them to handle booths on the fair grounds this year. This matter was discussed for some time, and it was decided that a committee of the board, consisting of the president, W. M. Stephens; vice-president, Dr. S. L. O'Hara; secretary, N. C. Stone, and Mayor C. H. Davidson, meet with the Legion committee and arrange terms.

The matter of the fair grounds inside the track was also brought up for discussion, it having been seeded down, and through the sowing of a crop of oats this year leveled off.

After inspecting the ground in question, it was decided to leave the matter with the grounds committee to arrange for the best method to make the land in good shape for the fair. This will be gone into immediately and it is expected that the ground will be in first class condition for this year's function.

Lacrosse Game

T. J. Horkins, as chairman of the sports committee, brought up the question of a lacrosse game this year. Mayor Davidson stated that he thought that the Oshawa team would visit Campbellford for that occasion and stage a match with Campbellford, and that the expense would be light. It was therefore decided that this matter be arranged.

N. C. Stone brought to the attention of the meeting that he had been approached by the local jeweller, P. Tweedie, in reference to a matter of having a $25.00 watch dropped from an airplane on the day of the fair, with some arrangement whereby the people attending could have a chance of winning this prize. C. D. Beattie, president of the Campbellford Flying Club, would be the pilot. This offer was accepted and it was left to the finance committee to arrange with Mr. Tweedie as to the best method to employ.

In connection with the track, which needs some work on it before fair day, it was left to the track committee to see that this work was done.

A special prize that so far has not been listed was brought to the notice of the meeting. This was being given by Albert Bertrand and was for the best yearling or foal sired from his horse, "Jovial Joe."

HE CAME HOME TO DIE, BUT DIDN'T

His uncle, a physician, prescribed Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

"I didn't 'go west' in France, but came home to Canada carrying my death-warrant, the doctor declared. I weighed exactly 120 pounds—not much for a six-footer. Look at me now! 185, and as hard as nails!"

The speaker (name if requested) was a young Canadian who served overseas with the Royal Flying Corps, and returned in 1918 a mere shadow of a man. His uncle, a prominent doctor, suggested Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. After one month's trial, he felt better. He persevered, and in three months was back at his position, healthy and happy.

The best part of the story is: his health has lasted as only health gained in a natural manner can last. He is still holding his strenuous position as editor of a successful publication.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will relieve constipation and the chain of ills that arise from it, permanently and naturally, if eaten regularly. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases at every meal. ALL-BRAN can conquer constipation.

TRIED HARD TO WIN.

Spondor Pays Tribute to Vanquisher—Boy Swimmer Cheered.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28.—"I tried hard to win and for a while I thought I would, but the better man won. I am not going to lose any sleep over it."

In these words Isador Spondor summed up his magnificent attempt to win the marathon swim yesterday. The 18-year-old Port Colborne boy who finished second to Marvin Nelson after a spirited struggle with the Fort Dodge star, was busily engaged in removing outward signs of the swim when newspapermen swarmed around him in the dressing-room of the National Yacht Club a half-hour after the conclusion of the 15-mile grind.

"Well, it's all over now but I guess it will be a few days before I leave for home," he said. "Nelson is a fine swimmer and when he passed me and increased his lead I figured I was due for second place.

"But I wasn't going to let another swimmer pass me," he declared. "I said to myself that if I couldn't come first, I was going to finish second."

Spondor's brilliant effort, with the memory of his game fight last year when he finished in the money still fresh in the minds of thousands of spectators, evoked a tremendous burst of cheering for the butcher boy of Port Colborne when he boarded the landing stage. He was far from exhausted and smiled cheerily as he posed for cameramen.

Standing six feet in his bare feet, broad shouldered and tanned all over his powerful body, the lad from the harbor town demonstrated that he is a greatly improved swimmer over last year.

When this fact was commented upon, Izzy smiled.

"Last year I came down in my dad's butcher cart and slept in it," he said. "My training was done on hot dogs and hamburger sandwiches, but this year, by golly, it was different. George took good care of me (George Corsan, his manager) and I was in much better trim than last year."

"What about the money you've won?"

Izzy turned about and faced the speaker. "I haven't made any plans about the money but I am going on a fishing trip with George soon. We're going to have a good time."

Mark Vaughan, M.P.P. for Welland, in whose constituency Spondor lives, was on hand to congratulate him at the finish.

"Last year I was fourth, this year I'm second and next year—well, I am going to be first," said Izzy to George Corsan when the latter entered the dressing-room to take the boy over to the island.

"You'll move up all right," answered Corsan.

Spondor learned to swim in Lake Erie when 13 years old. Last year Bill Drinkwater, trainer, saw Isador swimming in the lake without a boat. He asked him what he was training for and Izzy said he was preparing for the marathon. Drinkwater took him in hand and became his manager and trainer. A few weeks ago Spondor came over to Captain Corsan's camp at Hanlan's Point and placed himself under the latter's care. Corsan was loud in praise of the Port Colborne boy's concentration on training.

MARGIN OF ONE GOAL ON ROUND

having several tough breaks. After a long spell at defence the Campbellford squad broke away and Jack had a narrow shave from scoring. The period was marked by fierce checking and hard work.

Garrison for Oshawa played a splendid game, doing most of the work in feeding his men, but Whitton seemed unable to keep away from the ball and smashed the entertainers' attacks time without number. The Ingram brothers worked hard and sported some very fine team play, and with Horkins kept their opponents busy. Bevin of Oshawa was down in this period.

Penalties—Oshawa, Leydon! Campbellford, Cowell.

Scored Only Goal

The second period started out with another attack by Oshawa on the Campbellford net, which was again broken up. Soon after play started Whitton was put on the fence, the first time this season, and then it was that the Miller's play became a little loose, and in a severe scrum in front of the Campbellford goal, Daniels drew first and only blood. After returning to the field Whitton dropped back to first defence, with Bausch second, and the combination worked excellent for the visitors. Half way through the period, Cochrane was penalized for slashing, which resulted in Garrison losing two teeth. Bovin, Stephens and the Cardinals played fast and hard games for Oshawa, and with the combination work handed them by the Lukes, made a good showing which however was fruitless. Flint for Campbellford was to the fore all the time and kept the field trailing him whenever he broke away.

Horkin did some pretty work and his feeding and underhand shots were surprises that proved dangerous, to say the least. Much of the play in this period was in centre field.

Score at the end of second period: Oshawa, 1; Campbellford, 0.

Penalties—Campbellford: Whitton, Cochrane.

Third Period

The third round was featured by yet another series of attacks by Oshawa on the Campbellford net, which were repulsed and returned. H. Cardinal went down early in the play with cramps and was off the field for some time. Play then became general in centre field and some pretty team work and passing was shown by both teams. Campbellford then invaded the Oshawa goal and H. Ingram had several near goals which proved tough breaks for Campbellford. W. Luke went down half way through the period with a hit in the stomach, but was able to carry on. Stephens, for Oshawa, was put on the fence for stick play, Cochrane being hit in the face. From then on the play ranged from goal to goal until the bell rang. Whitton played an excellent game in this round, and McArthur and Cowell were sore spots in the side of the Oshawa team. Copperthwaite was also on the job and kept the ball moving among the Campbellford players.

Garrison for Oshawa had several tough breaks and played up to form, as also did Black and Murray. Covering wash good on both sides and some fine stickwork was exhibited.

Score at the end of the third period. Oshawa, 1; Campbellford, 0.

Penalties—Oshawa, Stephens.

In the last period Oshawa gave all they had to bring up the count, but failed. The first half of the innings the play was in centre field and round the Oshawa net, but the game at its close was in the Campbellford area. This period was featured by very severe body checking; Oshawa going out to stop the visitors from making any advance, but they were met with their own methods, and this resulted in very hard play. A great deal of the play was behind the nets, and on the Campbellford side. Fox, in goal, starred, saving some very nasty shots and being worked hard. G. Luke of Oshawa was put on the fence in the beginning of the period and during this time Cowell with the aid of Horkin and Flint, supported by the Ingram brothers, made several attempts on the Oshawa goal which kept the ball in that part of the field.

Black, for Oshawa, did some fine solo work and carried the entertainers' attack on several occasions. Horkins went in the penalty box for a slash at Garrison's arm, and this seemed to spur on the Oshawa squad, and from then on the play was in Campbellford country, with without result.

Final score—Oshawa, 1; Campbellford 0.

Penalties—Oshawa, Luke. Campbellford, Horkins.

The last period was featured by a little discussion as to the correct time, but an appeal to the referee gave two more minutes of play, and the game was carried on to a scoreless finish. So ended the play-offs, which puts Campbellford in senior place in the Eastern group.

Taking the two games, Oshawa has scored two goals and Campbellford three, giving the Home Towners a one-goal supremacy. This will come as a surprise to many people and especially to the Oshawa team, for they have led the league all summer, and it was not until they suffered defeat at the hands of Campbellford in the last league fixture, that they suffered a loss in the series. The last three games between Oshawa and Campbellford in the last league fixture, that they suffered a loss in the series. The last three games between Oshawa and Campbellford have been a clash between two good teams, and the best has come out on top.

Omemee

OMEMEE, Aug. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—Fred Weir suffered a serious accident on Friday when a team of colts which he was driving on a sulky rake became frightened and ran away. Fred was thrown off the seat, receiving two broken ribs and a deep cut where the wheel ran over him, also a couple of minor sores where the prongs of the rake penetrated the flesh.

Institute Picnic.

The farm home of Mr. R. J. Cornwall was made attractive by innumerable flags for the occasion of the Women's Institute picnic on Wednesday afternoon. There were about thirty members present ,also a number of visitors. The roll call was answered by "helpful hot weather hints." Miss Marion Rea favored the gathering with a reading, and W. W. Staples, M.P.P., of Lindsay, was also heard in splendid style. A contest followed, and the losers had to perform a stunt. A humorous song was rendered by the group, which added variety to the program and much laughter as well. A picnic supper was much enjoyed.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. T. E. McPherson on September 17 at 7.30 p.m.

Alderville Indians Beat Bailieboro 4-3

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Aug. 28.—Alderville Indians defeated Bailieboro 4-3 in first game of Northumberland League semi-final here yesterday. Smoke pitched great ball, holding the visitors down and allowing but seven walks. Johnson was the heavy hitter of the fray connecting a triple clout in the seventh.

The winner of this series will meet Hastings for the League championship.

Score by innings:

Alderville	000 011 110—4
Bailieboro	100 000 200—2

Umpires—Wellman Hastings at the plate; M. D. Brown, Roseneath at bases.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE

MONTREAL Aug. 28.—An easier feeling developed for all lines of cash grain here yesterday and values for barley, oats and corn were reduced 1 cent per bushel. Wheat was unchanged. The weakness was attributed to the continued declines at Winnipeg.

The downward trend of values, which has characterized the local butter market of late, was brought to a halt, and prices scored an advance of ¼c per lb. Eastern Townships No. 1 pasteurized sold at 28½c per lb. to retailers. Solids were 30c to 31c per lb., and prints 31c to 32c per lb. Receipts were 756 boxes.

The demand for all grades of cheese continued limited, and the undertone to the market was easy. Ontario cheese sold at 15c and Quebec grades at 14½c to 14¾c per lb. Receipts were 5,463 boxes.

The trade in eggs was fair, and prices were well maintained. Ontario eggs, Montreal grading, are commanding 35c to 36c per dozen for extras, in car lots, with firsts at 29c to 30c and seconds at 26c to 27c. British Columbia eggs are 26c per dozen on extras, 32c on firsts and 30c on seconds. Prairie eggs are quoted at 32½c to 33c for extras, 29½c to 30c for firsts, and 26c to 26½c on seconds, all delivered, Montreal. Receips were 1,264 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. —Wheat yesterday broke the season's low-price record and dragged corn down along with it. Big receipts of wheat in Canada, together with large arrivals, too, at domestic spring-wheat centres did much to destroy the confidence of holders of wheat and so likewise did word that the Canadian growers' pool was selling wheat future deliveries at Winnipeg. Moreover, export demand for wheat from North America appeared to be virtually at a standstill.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsteady at almost the day's bottom level, 1¼c to 1⅝c lower than Tuesday's finish. Corn closed ½c to 1⅝c off, oats 1c to 1⅝c down, and provisions varying from 5c decline to 7c advance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 28. — Fast-slipping wheat prices marked up new seasonal lows yesterday as the Winnipeg wheat market plunges downward before high-pressure hedging of elevator interests. Declines of around two cents brought wheat to well under the 90-cent mark in two futures divisions. Losses at the close amounted to from 1⅞c to 2¼c.

October and December futures broke into the high eighties and May wheat traded at a low level of 95⅛c. Export sales fell off to nothing overnight and heavy deliveries of the new crop to country elevators influenced the elevator companies to protect their purchases.

Only a few lots of high grade wheat were bought on the cash market. Spreads were unchanged. Coarse grains attracted little attention, and all commodities, with the exception of flax, fell off in sympathy with wheat. Flax values at one period held gains of 5c.

Futures:

Wheat—	Open	High	Low	Close	Prev. Close

THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE

The people you see here are having loads of fun. They are burlesquing a new invention called "the horseless carriage." They believe that automobiles are only a passing fad.

Poking fun at the "horseless carriage" was a favorite sport of the Gay Nineties. But what makes this scene particularly interesting is that it took place in Sarnia—now the home of Imperial Oil's greatest refinery, devoted to the production of gasolines and motor oils.

The evolution of the automobile from a "horseless carriage" to the fleet panther of the modern highway is a romance through which the name of Imperial Oil runs like a silver thread.

From the earliest days each improvement in motor construction has demanded better oils and gasolines. It has been the job of Imperial Oil to meet these demands. As each problem arose Imperial Oil found its solution. Thus people have come to trust Imperial products and Imperial has grown from a small organization to one of national scope—six great refineries—thousands of miles of pipe-line—vast petroleum resources—an armada of oil tankers—warehouses and service stations dotted all over Canada.

Every time you use Imperial Gasolines and Motor Oils you receive benefits developed through 50 years of constant enterprise.

Marvelube is Imperial's finest motor oil.
Imperial Premier and Imperial Ethyl are its best gasolines.

Which means that nothing finer can be put in your car.

HOSPITALIZATION COSTS.

Figures just issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics go far to show that illness in these modern times is a decidedly serious matter from a financial standpoint—in fact, has become a social problem of the first importance.

The bureau's official report shows that since 1913 hospital charges have increased 90 per cent., while during the same period the cost of hospital maintenance has gone up 100 per cent., indicating that the hospital has got somewhat the worst of it in the steadily mounting expenses involved in illness.

The cost of hospitalization is advancing so rapidly that in the United States where the problem has become so much more acute than in our own country a systematic attempt to arrive at a solution is being made.

The whole situation is being studied from many angles by a large and representative group of men and women, including medical representatives, and two years from now a comprehensive report that is hoped will include practical suggestions for meeting the problem will be submitted to President Hoover.

Canadians, who are as much interested in this matter as are the people of the United States, will await with much concern the results of this investigation in the hope that something that can be adopted in this country will be evolved.

Certainly any plan that will help to check the steady rise in the financial cost involved in sickness will be of immense benefit to humanity.

SHOULD BE INVESTIGATED.

From Warburton, near Kingston, comes the story of another tragedy involving a British farm laborer; in this case a nineteen-year-old boy was found dead with a .22 rifle at his side.

The theory has been accepted by the coroner that the boy accidentally shot himself while cleaning the weapon, and there will be no inquest.

That explanation may be sound enough, but it seems to The Examiner that having regard to the large number of tragic deaths among young Britishers brought to this country to work on farms, the least that can be done by the authorities is to investigate the circumstances surrounding each tragedy through the means provided by law for such an investigation—that is, through the medium of a probe by a coroner's jury.

There is a moral responsibility so far as the state is concerned involved in the case of these lonely young lads brought thousands of miles from home and dumped into the midst of conditions entirely foreign to them, and that responsibility surely should include more than a perfunctory inquiry into cases in which death has suddenly entered.

This latest tragedy may have been an accident—but there have been others recently that were not in that category, and in none was the investigation thorough enough to satisfy many people that every effort had been made to establish the facts.

If for no other reason than to satisfy British relatives of these unfortunate boys that everything possible is being done by the law, every violent death among immigrant boys should be thoroughly probed.

A GOOD SHOWING.

The good showing made by the Peterborough County Vegetable Growers' Association, whose exhibit of vegetables took third prize at the Canadian National Exhibition in competition with eight other displays from similar assocations throughout the Province, must be a source of satisfaction to the members generally and particularly to those whose interest in the matter was responsible for the exhibit being made.

This year's showing was the best the association has accomplished, and the fact that the Peterborough display of vegetables was considered superior to five of the eight exhibits in the competition is proof that the vegetable growers of this part of Ontario are steadily improving their methods and the quality of their products.

This, of course, is a matter in which the consuming public is directly interested.

Under the new dumping laws just announced by the Government, we will have to depend largely upon our home producers to supply local needs, and it is a source of satisfaction, therefore, to know that the growers at our own doors are producing quality vegetables that will stand up in competition against the best that is offered elsewhere.

Peterborough growers are a progressive body, and their success at the Canadian National will stimulate them to more zealous efforts in improving the quality of their products, a development that will prove of benefit both to themselves and to their customers.

RAILPLANE MAY CHALLENGE RAILROAD.

Scotland, always prominent in transportation and engine development, has again come to the front with a new device that is attracting wide attention in the British Isles. Traffic authorities, from all parts of the country, who attended the annual congress of the Institute of Transport, recently held in Glasgow, under the chairmanship of Sir Josiah Stamp, president of the London, Midland and Scottish Railway, are reported to have been enthusiastic over this latest system of overhead transport, the invention of Mr. George Bennie, and now in practical operation at the town of Milngavie, in Stirlingshire, not far from Glasgow. The car, modeled on the lines of an airship and driven by two propellers, is constructed to attain the speed of a hundred and fifty miles an hour with its complement of fifty passengers.

The Bennie railplane car is suspended from an electrified overhead track and weighs about eight tons. Power for the propellers is supplied by two engines, each of sixty horse-power, the inventor claiming that his device offers distinct advantages over any of the existing methods of transport. He gives the cost of construction as considerably cheaper than either railway or street railway tracks, the cost per mile averaging about $95,000, comparing favorably with $800,000 for railways and $175,000 for street railways. In addition to this initial advantage, the costs of maintenance, also, are appreciably less. Very high speeds can be safely attained by the new system, up to 160 miles an hour, though on long journeys the car will travel at an average speed of from seventy to eighty miles an hour.

The inventor further claims that, apart from the handling of passenger and light goods traffic, this railplane can be utilized for various other purposes. Among these he cites the cheap movement of coal from the pithead of tidewater for export, the conveyance of oil in bulk from the source of supply to the nearest port, and the transport of grain from farms to railway sidings or ocean ports. These claims were investigated by the members of the Institute when the practical operation of the railplane is said to have created a sensation.

Large industrial firms, as well as the leading railway authorities, are stated to be showing much interest in the Bennie system, so much so, indeed, that numerous schemes, for the introduction and operation of the railplane, are now said to be under consideration. These include the construction of an overhead track across the Ribble, thus linking up Blackpool and Southport, two popular summer resorts on the Lancashire coast. Another proposition contemplates a fast service between Edinburgh and Glasgow, across Scotland, for which some 50,000 tons of steel work would be required.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE PASSPORT NUISANCE.

Only a tourist can know what effect the petty demands and annoyances of red-tape can have upon the enjoyments of travel. If the tourist traffic with Canada as its destination has soared by leaps and bounds during recent years, one reason undoubtedly is to be found in the facility with which visitors can now enter the country. It is true that they must still submit to both immigration and customs examinations and must obtain the permit entitling them to free entry and use of their motor cars over a certain period of time. But there are many petty restrictions of other years which have been abolished as a result of the policy which the Dominion Government has exercised in an effort to promote the tourist traffic and to make the lot of Canadian visitors as happy and pleasant as possible. That the latter appreciate it is evident in the enthusiastic comments frequently voiced by them as to the treatment which they have received upon entering and leaving this country.

Canada has seen the wisdom of dealing in a polite and agreeable manner with her visitors and has profited accordingly. But in other countries making an equally strong bid for tourist revenues, the part which such a policy plays in fostering a tourist movement is only commencing to be appreciated. Witness the example of the recently organized Travel Association of Great Britain and Ireland in inducing the British Government to withdraw a poster headed "Notice to Aliens" and substituting for it the words "Notice to Foreign Visitors." This may be considered a small matter, yet it is undeniable that in North American countries, for instance, a vastly different meaning has become attached to the word "alien" than that which it was intended to signify in the British official notice. The poster in question has been exhibited in British consular offices and passport offices abroad for many years and its appearance has occasioned not a little surprise and comment. Yet no official, apparently, thought of changing the wording so that it would not prove an offence to visitors until the Travel Association took up the matter and received a favorable response from the Government.

This is one small annoyance which has been removed and which will probably, with other reforms that are in contemplation, result in a heavier movement of tourists towards the British Isles. The Passport Control Office, for instance, is said to be considering sympathetically representations from the Travel Association that the formalities in the matter of applications for visas for Great Britain be simplified, and further representations that something should be done to abolish the ten-dollar visa fee which is required of United States visitors. If the association is able to accomplish these reforms and the further reform of doing away with the requirement that a British subject passing from one part of the Empire to another part should be required to obtain and exhibit a passport which costs him $5, it will have done something decidedly worth while in the matter of encouraging the British tourist traffic.

The passport, something unknown in the ordinary intercourse between North American countries, is a constant burden to tourists travelling to Great Britain or European countries. It is a positive nuisance to Canadians, British subjects, making their way to Great Britain. And the fact that Canadian passports are subjected only to cursory examination upon arrival at a British port lends color to the suggestion that the system exists more for the enrichment of the Governments concerned than for the identification of Canadian nationals. Canada does not require British subjects entering this country to possess passports, but Great Britain still clings to the ancient and obsolete practice of demanding that each overseas British subject shall carry this form of identification. If the Travel Association of Great Britain and Ireland wants to do something that will bring a sympathetic response from the people of the overseas Dominions who are in the habit of visiting the Old Land or who contemplate visiting it, they will induce the Home authorities to abandon the requirement that such individuals shall possess a passport when travelling from one portion of the Empire to another.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"The man of a thousand faces" is no more. Lon Chaney's passing will be regretted by thousands of admirers in this country as well as throughout the world.

Attendance at the Toronto Exhibition shows a decrease as compared with last year. Under the conditions, such a showing is not to be wondered at—in fact, the patronage so far has perhaps been more than expected.

Manitoba butter took most of the prizes at the Canadian National Exhibition—a fact that indicates the surprising development of dairying in Western Canada.

RENDEZVOUS INTO RIOT

A riot which continued for well over an hour and finally resulted in a call for the riot squad, a three-box fire alarm, half a dozen ambulance calls, and serious injury to twenty-four men and two newspaper reporters, featured the attempted meeting of the blonde and mysterious Mademoiselle X and the Single Cop at the corner of George and Simcoe streets last night.

Promptly at 8:30 (D.S.T.) the Single Cop—feet flat, and chin adorned with sticking plaster—appeared, as he had promised, at the rendezvous. The alleged "dizzy blonde" was nowhere to be seen, but a mob of five hundred males was in conspicuous evidence.

The appearance of the Single Cop in his plain clothes was the signal for a concerted roar from the crowd. Cries of, "Take 'em away!" and "Where's de blonde?" issued from all sides. The hapless Cop was soon the centre of a circle of leering faces.

Attempts at assertion of authority on the part of the Cop, a few chance blows struck between sundry members of the mob, and the sudden appearance of two newspaper reporters with large notecooks and dirty expressions, resulted in a general melee which was not subdued till close on ten o'clock.

At 8:52½ the call for the police riot squad was sent in, and the squad —after finishing a hand of poker at the Station House and a crap game behind the C. P. R. freight sheds— put in an appearance at 9:09 with all flags flying and the Rangers Band in attendance. Such an inspiring spectacle has not been seen here since Old Home Week.

Promptly at 9:13 fire alarms were turned in from three separate boxes simultaneously, and eight-and-three-quarters minutes later all trucks appeared in brave array with the Salvation Army band bringing up the rear in "D" formation.

A good time was had by all, and it is estimated that two thousand people participated in the affair. First prize, a silver loving cup, went to an unknown man who was slaughtered in the subsequent rush. Second prize, a bridge lamp, was carried off in triumph by the Sugar Bowl Softball Team, who ran it to the top of the Collegiate flag pole.

When the fracas finally died of old age and malnutrition, the street was seen to be littered with empty bottles and miniature golf score-cards, which it required the concerted efforts of the entire Street Cleaning Department to remove.

Among the injured were Dead Beat and Casey, reporters, both of whom were removed to The Examiner Office, where they dictated the story of the event to The Office Hound who was found sleeping under the City Desk.

No information was forthcoming at a late hour last night as to the whereabouts of Mademoiselle X, whom the police regard as the cause of the affair. The Single Cop will be out of the hospital three weeks from Saturday.

TEMPLE TOWER
By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

A peal of cackling laughter was the only reply, and I saw the girl put her hand on Vandali's arm and whisper something.

"Look here, Mr. Granger," he said more calmly, "we'll give you a day to think it over in. To-morrow at about this time we will return. And then I advise you, for your own sake, to see me."

But there was no reply, and after a time, with a shrug of his shoulders, Vandali got back into the car. And the girl was just leaning forward to press the starter, when a noise like a young explosion occurred at my elbow. As I pointed out to Freckles afterwards, he might have controlled himself for another half hour, but he merely retorted that half a second can be longer than an eternity if a fly goes up your nose. Anyway, the bald fact remains that the uproar of Freckle's sneeze literally shook the countryside. And the girl drew back from the self-starter, and then they both stared straight at us.

"Botanising?" said Vandali quietly.

"No. Only studying the habits of the lesser carnivora." burbled Freckles. "I say, laddie, he didn't seem to like your face, did he?"

Vandali got out of the car, and slowly crossed the road.

"Spying, I see," he remarked curtly.

Freckles grinned amiably and sat up.

"Blessed if it isn't my old friend from the Dolphin," he said. "And what are we doing in the fragrant countryside this afternoon?"

"May I ask what you are doing lying concealed here?" said Vandali angrily.

"Tush! Tush!" said Freckles, "and likewise pish, pish! I must buy you a little brochure on Manners for Men with Beards. Can you advance any reason why I and my dear old friend Abraham de Vere Potbelly should not lie in the verdant hay, studying the beauties of nature?"

"Look here, my young friend," said Vandali quietly. "I would strongly advise you not to play the fool with me."

"God forbid, my dear old lad of the village," cried Freckles earnestly, "that I should ever play anything with you. I should hate to. I don't think you'd make at all a suitable companion for me. In fact I know my aged mother would object most strongly. 'Percy,' she would say have nothing to do with that rude man. Give him the raspberry at once."

The veins were beginning to stand out on Vandali's forehead, but he managed to control himself, and turned to me.

"Since this boy seems partially insane," he said, "might I ask you to be good enough to tell me what the great idea is?"

"What the devil has it got to do with you?" I said curtly. "As for as I know we have as much right to lie in this wood, as you have to drive your car along the road."

"I see," he answered slowly. "Well, I hope you have profited by your eavesdropping."

"Immensely, thanks," said Freckles. "And now don't let us keep you any more. I would fain resume my studies of nature."

"Come along, Paul," cried the girl imperiously. "You are only wasting time."

"Madame," said Freckles tragically, "You wound me to the very core. Surely, surely, to engage in playful badinage with one of my engaging countenance cannot be regarded as wasting time. But I do wish you'd get him to cut the grouse moor on his face. That's given him the once-once," he continued with a grin as the car drove off. "But there is no doubt, laddie, that the girl is a decided pippin."

"I wish you could have controlled your nose," I said irritably. "Damn it! People in Rye must have heard. you"

"It was a bit of a break," he admitted. "Still I do not see that it has done much harm. We've had a pleasant little chat, and I suggest that we now ooze back to the house, and read Pat's letter."

There certainly seemed to be no object in staying where we were, and I was on the point of agreeing, when suddenly the panel in the gate was cautiously opened, and Granger again looked out. We were standing in the middle of the road, so it was useless to try and conceal ourselves. He stared at us with utmost hostility, but Freckles, competely unperturbed, seized the opportunity.

"Good afternoon," he cried cheerily. "Do you mind telling Miss Verney that I am here. Scott is my name."

"Are you friends of Captain Drummond?" answered Granger, with a look of relief replacing the anger.

And then there occurred the most extraordinary thing. Granger's expression changed suddenly. And it changed so suddenly that we could do nothing but stare at him blankly. His jaw dropped, and a look of terror appeared on his face, such as I have never seen before or since. For perhaps a second he stood there then the panel clanged to.

"What the devil is the matter with the man?" stammered Freckles.

"It was not us," I muttered. "He wasn't looking at us."

We swung round quickly, and peered into the wood, the same thought in both our minds. And this time I, too, saw it—a great black shape that seemed to flit between the trees until it vanished. For a moment or two we stood there undecided, then we pulled ourselves together and gave chase. But it was hopeless. Once I thought I saw it in the distance between two trees, but when we got there, there was nothing. And after a while we gave it up and returned to the road mopping our foreheads.

"So it wasn't my imagination after all," said Freckles. "What is it, Darrell?"

"Ask me another," I answered. "But whatever it is, it put the fear of God into our friend Granger. I've never seen a man look more terrified in my life."

"I wonder if it is that swine from Sprague's Farm masquerading about in disguise," he said as we strolled back to the house. 'What defeats me is that it seemed such a rum shape." He stopped, struck with a sudden thought. "I suppose it is human, isn't it?"

"Good lord, man!" I cried irritably, "there are enough complications in this affair already without introducing a bally ghost. Besides, ghosts do not step on twigs and break them."

"That is so," he admitted. "But it really was the most extraordinary object. It didn't seem to have a face."

We walked on in silence until we reached the house. Up to date every single hour seemed to have produced a new development, and I fully expected to find that something more had happened in our absence. But in that I proved to be wrong. Hugh was taking his ease in a long chair on the veranda, and assured us that nothing had disturbed his siesta. He hoped that we were not as hot as we looked, whereat we cursed him for a lousy knave, and demanded beer in tankards. But all his air of laziness vanished when we began to tell him what had happened.

"You are absolutely certain about this peculiar thing you saw in the wood?" he said. "But, of course, you must be. You couldn't both have imagined it. Very strange, very strange indeed."

He lit a cigarette thoughtfully.

"I wouldn't be surprised if you are not right, Scott," he went on, "and it is not our friend from Sprague's Farm."

"Whose name would seem, from what Vandali said, to be Marillard," I put in. "But my impression of the thing we saw in the wood was that it was considerably taller."

"Anyway," said Hugh, "whether it is him or not, we've arrived at two definite conclusions. Granger is frightened of it, and he is not frightened of the Vandalis. Therefore it would seem that it and Vandalis are working separately. Am I right or wrong?"

"Don't ask me," grunted Freckles. "The whole thing at the present moment is completely above my form. But there is one point that sticks out a bit, and that is the fact that the Vandalis know about Marillard, and that Granger is frightened of him. So that if the 'it' is Marillard, even though they may be working separately, the Vandalis are using him as a weapon for their own ends."

"Life is certainly a trifle complicated," murmured Hugh. "However, let us hear what your perfectly good girl has to say on the matter."

"Great Scott? She has written a three volume novel," said Freckles as he opened the letter. "Er—and the first paragraph, chaps, does not seem to bear directly on the subject."

"You surprise me," said Hugh gravely. "The first paragraph may therefore be omitted."

"It certainly will be," laughed the other. "Here is where she really gets going."

A Thought

THE BEST.

A prince went into the vineyard to examine it. He came to a peach tree, and said: "What are you doing for me?". The tree said: "In the spring I give my blossoms and fill the air with fragrance, and on my boughs hangs the fruit which men will gather and carry into the palace for you." "Well done!" said the prince. To the chestnut he said: "What are you doing?" "I am making nests for the birds, and shelter cattle with my leaves and spreading branches." And the prince said: "Well done!" Then he went down to the meadow and asked the grass what it was doing. "We are giving our lives for others, for your sheep and cattle that they may be nourished." And the prince said, "Well done!" Last of all he asked the tiny daisy what it was doing, and the daisy said, "Nothing, nothing. I cannot make a nesting-place for the birds and I cannot give shelter for the cattle, and I cannot send fruit into the palace, and I cannot even give food for the sheep and cows—they do not want me in the meadow. All I can do is to be the best little daisy I can be." And the prince bent down and kissed the daisy, and said, "There is none better than thou"—Anonymous.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

LETTING WELL ENOUGH ALONE

Before Marco Polo and Columbus, the people of Europe were fairly well satisfied with their world, which consisted of their own continent and a small portion of Asia and Africa.

But the investigating Polo found that there were other worlds than that which Alexander had conquered.

Then came Columbus, fancying that he could add some of the wealth of the Indies to that of his own country by going the other way 'round the earth. And presently America, which had lain idle and unproductive, was added to the realms of European nations.

Investigating minds have been responsible for the bulk of human progress. Preachers and poets tell us of the value of contentment, and urge us to be satisfied with what we have.

But satisfaction never resulted in any great achievement, nor added any new territory to nations.

Since the early days of discovery practically the entire earth's surface has been explored and mapped.

But that is of comparatively little importance when we think of what investigators have done for the benefit of the race.

That plagues no longer sweep round the world, leaving horror and sorrow and devastion in their wake, is due almost entirely to medical investigators, who, at great risk to themselves, have found out exactly what causes these plagues, and how they can be stopped.

That we are now journeying by rail and motor car and by air, instead of in ox-drawn carts, is due to engineers who have investigated the principles of mechanics, and applied them to modern life.

Our buildings to-day are more wonderful than the so-called "wonders of the world."

Our standards of living are higher, our laws are more just, and more widely applied, although there is still vast room for improvement in that particular. But we are becoming an inquiring and a working race.

We want to find things out, about our own earth, about the universe.

We ask innumerable questions, and though we answer but a few of them, these answers have done much for our comfort and well-being.

Some day we shall, we trust, find out what are the causes of injustice and oppression and selfishness, and eliminate them.

But that will take a long, long time. The human mind is still more of a mystery than anything else in nature.

And the causes of much unhappiness lie hidden somewhere in its depths.

However, if we do not let that particular "well enough alone" but continue to think about it and study it, perhaps in time we shall eliminate injustice and greed, and all live as happily together as the angels. That will mean a lot of work and thought. But both will be worth while.

In the meantime it is wise never to let "well enough alone" unless "well enough" happens to be perfection.

What To-day Means To You.

WHAT TO-DAY MEANS TO YOU.
"Virgo"

If August 28th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7.30 a.m. to 8.30 a.m., from noon to 1 p.m. and from 6 p.m to 7.30 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 5 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Romanticists and sentimentalists will delight in the happy-go-lucky atmosphere of this date Your heart may be filled with happiness and joy, whilst your pockets are liable to be emptied of their money. A sudden friendsip with one of the opposite sex, which may change your life.

The child born on this August 28th will be impractical, and of an artistic temperament. It will be bright, vivacious, entertaining and bravely original. It will seek the lime-light rather than a domestic life. It will be difficult for it to settle down in life.

You are a modern being in many senses of the words, and you not only keep abreast of the times, but are many instances ahead of them. You are afraid of looking, or being thought, old fashioned. You identify yourself with high adventures of life and progress. You possess the most valuable quality of adaptability. You make the crossing from one period of your life into the next, from one set of conditions to another, with comparative ease and success. You are not easily flabbergasted. You are rather too intolerant towards those who sit comfortably back in the armchairs of the past, opposing all changes that disturb fixed things and settled habits. You believe that you have no sentiment, but it will play its part in your life, when the lighter days of your youth have passed. You will scoff and flirt with love, until the right man or woman comes along, when you will be fickle no longer.

As a Virgo man or woman, you are constructive and able to make the most of your conditions. You undoubtedly belong in the business world. where you will shine as a success. You are a good reasoner. and an ingenious worker. You are precise in details, and you can constructively pick things to pieces. You are good at self-analysis, and try to right any errors and defects in your own character. Your keen intellect will come from experience more than from education.

ELECTRICAL SHARES FIRM AT NEW YORK

Firm Undertone Much in Evidence During To-day's Trading on the Market.

NEW YORK, N.Y., August 28 (C. P.). — Speculative Wall Street was distracted by the approach of the triple week-end holiday to-day. The course of stock prices fluttered vaguely in slack and apathetic trading, although the market maintained a firm undertone.

Traders both short and long of stocks were anxious to close up their trading positions before the three-day suspension, and veteran traders rarely wait until the last day Furthermore, many were anxious to leave town to-night, letting the market take care of itself to-morrow.

The market sold off moderately for a time during the morning, but soon firmed up. A handful of specialties, such as McKeesport Tinplate, Childs, Mack Truck, Cutler Hammer, Mathieson Alkali, and Real Silk Hosiery gained 2½ to nearly 4 points. The electrical equipments, merchandising and food shares were firm. General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Corn Products, Borden, Sears Roebuck, and Macy gained a point or more U.S. Steel and Radio moved very narrowly. Houston Oil was driven down 5 points, Goodyear was again a weak spot. International Telephone sagged to its low then rallied.

Large scale operators had to absorb considerable profit-taking. Further bear prodding against suspected weak spots was in evidence. Although price movements in the main merely represented efforts of floor traders to kill time, there was decided inclination to keep the list steady to firm to prevent any damage to the foundation of the better market that is widely expected after Labor Day.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Trading on the Canadian exchanges for the past week has all the appearances of liquidation of a substantial account and certain stocks are being turned over in large blocks that would indicate it is not the public so much as the big fellows It is quite noticeable the market is being nursed in certain quarters with a view to getting out as much stock as the capacity of the market will stand, and at the same time guard against any sharp recession in values. Several issues sold to new lows during the past week and at the moment are dragging on bottom, but the extent of the decline in all such securities has been gradual and not sharp enough to disturb the general public. In well informed circles on the Street the origin of the selling is a mystery, although gossip is heard of a large account in Montreal that is passing through distress liquidation. Brazilian Traction and Walker have been extremely active of late and both are selling at or around their low points for 1930 and the oils have failed to bulge from their low levels with the activity in this group on a smaller scale than in the other issues. This liquidation has tended to retard any substantial recovery in the Canadian markets and is one reason why the local boards fail to respond to improvement in Wall Street as quickly as in the past.

Sun Life Assurance

A New York writer, in commenting upon the confidence of officials of the Sun Life Assurance Company, as expressed in several statements in the last few months, states a study of the list of securities held by the company might explain within reason this confidence. Sun Life, it develops, is particularly partial to public utility shares, having owned on December 31 last $17,900,000 American Telephone and Telegraph capital stock, $27,085,000 Consolidated Gas of New York, $11,900,008 Electric Bond and Share, $10,457,000 Public Service of New Jersey Common, and substantial holdings of other utility issues. The company also held a widely diversified list of industrial and miscellaneous stocks, the market value of which on December 31 last was $346,000,000. This writer finds a rather interesting disclosure that Sun Life has no copper shares at the beginning of the year. Thus, at least, it was spared the anguish of sharing the effects of the severe decline in those issues, since that time which must have been trying to some trusts which in publishing their portfolios, showed good sized blocks of the red metal stocks. And quite interesting, in view of all the reported bullishness in Canadian circles on International Nickel, Sun Life does not hold any of that company's stock unless it was acquired since January 1 last.

W. G. and W. Action.

Walker Gooderham and Worth is one issue to develop activity in the past week, with all offerings being absorbed with only a slight drop in values. This company will end their fiscal year on August 31 next, and according to information received from those in a position to know, the dividend of $1 a share was earned by a good margin in the 1929-1930 fiscal period. Final dividend for the period has been declared and will be paid to stock-holders in September. The financing statement will make an appearance in about a month's time, and it is said will contain nothing that would account for the liquidation. At to-day's price the shares are selling to yield over 12 per cent., and it may be that the market is discounting a much less favorable year in the period that begins with September, 1930, and ends August, 1931. Banning of liquor exports to the penalty exacted by this will not be fully felt until the New Year. Another explanation of the selling in the stock is that it presages the retirement of one of the prominent members of the board, who is selling his holdings.

For the third successive day, Massey Harris made a new low for the year on the Toronto Stock Exchange, and concurrent with the action of the stock are repetitions of rumors concerning the dividend. At a price of 20, Massey-Harris is selling to yield 15 per cent. on the annual dividend basis of $3 a share. Directors will meet some time in September to take action on the next quarterly payment, due October 15, and the street is once again discussing the possibility of a reduction in the rate. It will be recalled this same discussion took place about the previous payment, and directors met and declared the regular disbursement. Conditions in the West and elsewhere are far from being satisfactory for the implement manufacturer, and the initial payment of 60 cents a bushel for wheat by the Canadian pools will not help the purchasing power of the Western farmer. Since payment of the last quarterly dividend conditions have not improved greatly.

DEPARTMENT MAKES FAVORABLE REPORT ON MINE PRODUCTION

Totals Show Decided Increase Over Amount For Same Period Last Year.

W. H. IMPROVING.

TORONTO, Aug. 28. (Special to The Examiner).—The report of mineral production in Ontario for the first six months of 1930 by the Department of Mines, reveals how favorably this province is situated in this regard. In spite of world wide curtailment of production and low metal prices, the total for the period shows a substantial increase over the corresponding period last year, and indicates the total for the full year, will equal, if not surpass, the record figure for 1929.

The report of Wright Hargreaves for the same period also reveals improved conditions and confirms reports of higher grade and better profits circulating for several months. The question of a resumption of dividends by this company is being thoroughly discussed, along the street, the feeling being that some action might be taken in view of the higher rate of earnings indicated at present and for the near future.

The managing director of Wright Hargreaves states any discussion of the dividends policy of the company was left for a later meeting of directors, due to the fact the only thought of the officers and board was to thoroughly assure to the many stockholders the permanency of their investment in the form of augmenting the necessary working efficiency of the mine.

Taking this statement and the sums to be expended in improving the mill and plant in the immediate future into consideration, the question, of dividends might very well be left in abeyance for some time. The free surplus of the company, or amount available for dividends, was equal to 22. 5 cents a share on July 1, and earnings, while likely to show an increase during the current half, were 7.8 cents a share in the first half of 1930.

Price Table

The comparative price table contained in the six months' report of the Department of Mines, shows the conditions confronting leading Canadian mines at present. Electrolytic copper averaged 18.349 cents a pound for the first half of 1929; for the first half of 1930 the price was down to 15.62 cents. Lead (London) fell from 5.181 to 4.186 cents. Zinc (London) was down from 5,764 to 3,912 cents. Silver (New York) declined from 55.297 an ounce to 41,268 cents, and platinum eased from $57.77 per fine ounce to $52.51.

Lake Shore Sets Record

Lake Shore Mines created a new record during the final quarter of its 1929-30 fiscal year, by producing gold and silver valued at $2,001 781. Tons of ore milled was slightly lower than in the March quarter, but the grade jumped from $14.08 to $16.83 per ton. This indicates production for the full twelve months of the company's fiscal year was $6,576,781 from 467,848 tons of ore, an average grade of $14.06 per ton for the year.

Drifting on the 300-foot level to the south at the Canusa property in Porcupine is continuing. The full face of the cross-cut is reported to be heavily mineralized. Formation is changing and work is expected to reach interesting territory shortly. Surface work is progressing and local officials state results on a big sulphide vein in the southwest have been very promising.

TORONTO PRICE CHANGES CONTINUE ON SMALL SCALE

Brazilian Advances Fractionally Above 31 While Nickel Remains Below 31.

MASSEY-HARRIS LOW.

TORONTO, Ont., August 28 (C.P.)—Stocks on Toronto market were marking time to-day. The list was with a few exceptions, extremely quiet, and over the entire run of the recognized leaders no price changes of moment occurred. Fractional variations were the rule though they were sufficient in a few instances to scrape through to new bottoms.

Brazilian gave a more heartening display to-day, advancing fractionally above 31 after having sold under 30 yesterday. Nickel, while under 23 most of the morning, was not soft, and Ford of Canada, Gypsum, Bell Telephone, City Dairy did well.

Massey-Harris set a new low at 20, Walkers sold at 8 again, Canadian Industrial Alcohol cut under its previous low of 4, B.A. Oil sold at 15, the first time the new stock had ever touched this price. Imperial Oil and International Petroleum declined in the early morning, but firmed toward midday. B.A. Oil also climbed above its extreme low.

EASIER TONE ON STANDARD

Vipond Eases Couple Under Profit-taking Following Last Night's Rally.

TRADING LISTLESS.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28.—(CP)—A slightly easier tone was again in evidence on the mining market prior to noon to-day. Trading was listless.

International Nickel, failing to repeat yesterday's strength was off a half to $23 and Noranda sold down 30 to $21. Nickel rights held at 16, however. Amulet dropped a couple to 50.

Vipond eased a couple to $1.28 under profit-taking following last night's late rally, and McIntyre was down a half to $17.50. Teck Hughes managed to gain 5 to $6.35 and other golds were inactive.

With the exception of Calmont, off 3 to 42, the oil group was stronger. Ajax Oil moved up 4 to $2 in fairly active trading. Chemical Research advanced 30 to $5.35 and Nordon regained 5 to 90.

INDIAN CONGRESS MEN ARE GIVEN 6 MONTHS

NEW DELHI, India, Aug. 28 (C.P.)—All members of the All India Congress working committee who were arrested yesterday were sentenced to-day to six months' simple imprisonment.

Their arrest took place on charges of holding a meeting in defiance of the High Commissioner's notification proclaiming the committee an unlawful association in Delhi Province.

V. J. Patel, who resigned as President of the Indian Legislative Assembly to participate in the civil disobedience campaign, was among those sentenced.

SUN LIFE CONVENTION.

Three Local Delegates Attend Big Event at Jasper.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—A first contingent of twenty from the army of a thousand members of the Sun Life Quarter Million Club left Toronto yesterday on the Canadian National steamboat special for Sarnia and the Upper Lakes boats. Another one hundred and fifty delegates will leave to-day, including M. J. Wootten of Peterborough, division manager for Central Ontario, and Mrs. Wootten, also Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hinchey of Belleville, and F. W. Wells of Port Hope.

The Canadian section are to hold their convention at Jasper National Park from the second to the fifth of September, and the Americans the following week. A thousand members and their wives will make this convention one of the largest parties ever crossing the Dominion.

SEPARATION TO END DOMESTIC DISCORD

Magistrate Dismisses Assault Charge Laid By Woman.

All quiet on the home front appeared to be the conclusion of Magistrate Langley this morning, when he agreed to dismiss a charge of assault and battery brought against a man by his wife. The case had been "hanging fire" in the court for a week and the settlement seemed to clear the air.

The couple live two miles out of the city, and, according to the early statements of the wife, the man had several times treated her "most cruel." The trouble started over the finances of the farm, which had been run in partnership. The Magistrate was informed that they had agreed to disagree no longer, and to insure this would file separation papers.

Seeking Franklin

Major L. T. Burwash, famous Canadian Arctic explorer, who is flying into the Arctic in an endeavor to locate the remains of ill-fated Franklin expedition.

Swedish Explorer's Remains Found On Arctic

Erection of a memorial by Horn Arctic expedition on White Island, near Franz Josef land recently, marks the spot where a secret of 33 years, held in the Arctic silence, was revealed in the finding of the bodies of August Andree, Swedish balloonist, and one companion, who, with another explorer, made the first attempt to reach the North Pole in 1897 by air. The body of the third balloonist is believed frozen in a small boat deep in the ice. The intrepid trio, who cast off into the sky from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, according to story told in log-book and diary also found, apparently reached quite a high altitude. Here are reproduced features of the ill-fated expedition. Andree's balloon, the Eagle, in which the attempted polar flight was made, is seen below. Map at left, showing position of Danes Island, from which expedition started, and White Island, where bodies and note book have just been found. Apparent path of ill-fated flight is also indicated. At the right is August Audree, Swedish explorer, who headed flight of the Eagle and whose frozen body has been found with two other members of the party.

RISE IN OPTIMISM FOLLOWS ADVANCE IN LONDON PRICES

Industrials Have Scored Substantial Gains Within Last Few Days.

MANY RUMORS.

(By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 28.—A new wave of optimism has been started by rising prices on the London stock exchange and the political prophets have been set guessing.

Renewed strength today followed yesterday's all-round rise in the security markets. Sentiment is described as being more cheerful than it has been for many months. Industrials have scored substantial gains within the last new days.

The city, as a consequence, has been alive with rumors. they run the gamut from the reported resignation of the Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, as Chancellor of the Exchequer and the adoption of a moderate policy of protection to the formation of a coalition government.

While these rumors have been discounted it is reported that the conversation between the Labor and Liberal leaders on unemployment have been paving the way towards definite plans covering road construction and agricultural improvement. It is understood that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and David Lloyd George, the Liberal chief, will meet again at an early date.

REPUDIATION OF DEBT IS SCORED

Failure of Australia to Meet Obligations Make Loan Getting Hard.

MEAN COURT ACTION.

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 28. (C. P. Cable, via Reuters).—If Australia repudiated her debts it would be the first time on record that a British Dominion had failed to meet its obligations and the result would inevitably be the closing of the doors of international finance against the Commonwealth, said Prof. Theodor E. C. Gregory here to-day. Dr. Gregory, who is professor of banks in London University and is a noted economist, is now on his way back to England.

If repudiation were attempted, the Professor continued, the British bondholders would organize themselves to take action in Australian courts. The council of foreign bondholders in London would protect the rights of the bondholders in cases of this sort.

Professor Gregory pointed out if Australia repudiated her obligations now she would have a most difficult time in raising money for the next ten or 15 years. Her own people, if solicited, would hesitate to subscribe to loans if previous loans had been cancelled.

Although no member of the Government of Australia and no responsible politician has declared himself in favor of debt repudiation, the Lapor Party of New South Wales and other bodies have been demanding cancellation of obligations since the position of the Commonwealth was shown by the report of Sir Otto Niemeyer, Bank of England expert, to be serious.

BAND CONTESTS BECOME KEENER

Much Enthusiasm Shown in Classes B and C at Toronto Exhibition.

NO CLASS A.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—The band contest at the C.N.E. this year is the most remarkable of all since the first one held about ten years ago. Many bands have come, yet many a bandsman hates to leave his job even for a day because next week he may have no job. Financing bands has never been so difficult since before the war. And not since the band contests began at the fair has there been quite so much enthusiasm.

There is no contest in Class A, because of the rule requiring four bands to enter. Only two entered—the Toronto Regiment and the Carbiniers from Montreal, who played last year by a special arrangement when Murdoch's Band again won the trophy for the third time in succession. Class B will be raised next year to a different status, taking the place of Class A.

The interest centres in the Classes B and C and the brass bands.

Class B bands hail from Sudbury, Orillia, Dundas, Hanover, St. Catharines, Petrolia, Chatham, Guelph, and Peel, and Dufferin from Brampton. These are brass and reed bands playing "Boccacio," by Von Suppe, for the trophy.

Class C are also brass and reed from Midland, North Bay (529), Beamsville, Port Dover, Owen Sound, Perth and Forest.

In these two classes the names are more varied than the types of bands—including Legion and Citizens, two Kilties, three Regimentals, one Concert band, four Citizen bands, one Musical Society, one Capitol, and one Railway band at North Bay.

There is no band this time from Timmins, which used to be the furthest north for the band boys.

WINNER OF SWIM SINGING IN "BATH"

Marvin Nelson's Early Morning Chorus Disturbs Sleepers.

TORONTO, Ont., August 28 (C.P.)—At an early hour to-day some residents of Port Credit were aroused from their slumbers by loud singing and shouting on the waterfront. When the indignant citizens went to investigate they found Marvin Nelson, Fort Dodge, Iowa, youth, who won yesterday's Marathon swim at the Canadian National Exhibition. The day after he had gone 15 miles in fast time, Marvin's first idea was to go for a swim.

APSLEY

The case of Casson vs Robbins which was adjourned from August 19th by Police Magistrate Langley, aroused a good deal of local interest, all the seating accommodation of the Town Hall being taken up when the time of hearing arrived. The proceedings however, lasted less than five minutes, when in reply to the magistrate Captain Carson said the case was withdrawn on order of the Deputy Minister. The defendant not objecting the magistrate therefore ruled accordingly and the court adjourned.

The Star Lodge of the Loyal True Blues Association held its annual picnic on Saturday at Phil Tanner's cottage on Loon Lake. The weather was threatening and there was only time for a game of baseball between local teams, and a parade of lodge from Mr. Tanner's house to the lake, before the rain broke up the gathering. The parade marched to the music of drums and fifes, and it is safe to say that this was the first time in the world's history that the wooded shores of Loon Lake re echoed to the sounds of drum and fife.

For Dishes Lots of Suds Quick...

says Mrs. Hilda Doran Ross

PRINCESS Soap Flakes gives you lots of suds, quick and lasting. Not a stiff surface foam, but a glistening soapiness all through the water, as suds ought to be.

And your dishes need no wiping. Just rinse, and let them dry. Even glasses drain to sparkling cleanliness.

Because Princess Flakes dissolves perfectly, there is no waste...no undissolved soap to clot at the bottom of the dishpan or to be thrown out with the dishwater.

Hands are not rough or red when you use Princess Flakes. It keeps them smoother...lovelier. The big blue and yellow package is brim full of pure soap... no harsh caustic soda or chemical filler.

For washing fine lingerie, too. Princess Flakes will not harm anything that is not harmed by plain tepid water. Read our guarantee.

Get a package today and discover for yourself its amazing economy because of its quick suds.

Write for my Book of Household Hints. It tells many ways of easing household tasks. Sent free, postage paid. Address 64 Natalie St., Toronto.

WHEN SHANTY FARE WAS PLAIN WAGES LOW AND LUMBER CHEAP

J. F. Lillicrap Recalls a Rugged Period of an Old Industry.

ITS SURVIVORS ARE FEW.

Reminiscences of a pioneer worker in the lumber industry which has seen many changes of recent years, and which now ranks as one of the Dominions leading re'venue producers, is contained in the current issue of The Canada Lumberman.

The subject of the short biographical sketch, J. F. Lillicrap of Lakefield has incidentally been a subscriber of The Canada Lumberman for forty-six years. He started reading that journal when it was published in this city away back in the early eighties.

Mr. Lillicrap, who is now seventy-six years of age, has been in the lumber line fifty-six years. He is still on the job every day, and does a small car trade from farmers and portable mills just to keep in touch with the business. He was born in Lakefield and got his first job as clerk in a lumber camp in 1874. He was later a log and timber scaler for a large operator, keeping books and measuring and marking logs, for which he received twelve dollars a month. There were about fifty men in the camp and they received wages ranging from nine to fourteen dollars a month. The foreman fared somewhat better for he pocketed twenty-five dollars a month and the cook twenty. "Yes," said Mr. Lillicrap in a recent interview in which he recounted some reminiscences of those early days, "the board consisted of pork and beans, bread and tea, but no sugar, some syrup, rice, and prunes, but not often any pies or cake.

"During this period I was employed in the early autumn in cruising timber limits and locating camps and in 1882 was sent to Bradford to manage a sawmill cutting six million feet per year. During the five years in Bradford, I supervised all the piling and shipping and contracted for the sawing and piling in the yard at $2.75 per thousand feet and loaded all the lumber on flat cars, also by contract for 10c to 13c per M. The logs came to Bradford from the Township of Oakley in Muskoka via the Black River and over land at Rama and down past Orillia to Lake Simcoe, where they were made into rafts for the tow to the mill at Bradford on the Holland River at the railway crossing. Our lumber output went chiefly to wholesalers in Toronto, Oswego, and Albany. For all white pine sold we got for mill culls $6.00 to $7.00 per M and mill run, culls out, $20.00 to $30.00 per M. In 1887 I returned to Lakefield and managed a plant for the Lakefield Lumber Company, later operating a planing mill for several years, and then in company with E. R. Tate, built and operated a sawmill which we sold. I next moved to Toronto, and for a few years acted as sales agent for a Montreal lumber firm. Returning after the war I was manager and salesman for the Kawartha Lumber Company. Looking back I have to say that all of my early acquaintance have passed on. There were the Strickland Brothers, Bobcaygeon, J. M. Irwin, Nassau, T. G. Hazlett, the Dickson Company, the Hilliard Company, the Ludgates, and others in Peterborough, as well as a number of wholesalers in Toronto, Oswego, and Albany, N.Y.

Both Will Wed This Fall

The marriage of Miss Muriel Lydia Kyte, pictured at the left above, daughter of Mr. George W. Kyte of the international joint commission, and Mrs. Kyte of St. Peter's, N.S., to Mr. Gerald P. Connell, B.Sc., of Ottawa, is to take place to-morrow, Aug. 27. Mr. Kyte was former Liberal M.P. for St. Peter's and chief Liberal whip for many years. At the right is Miss Phyllis Stevenson, daughter of Mr. Ernest H. Stevenson and the late Mrs. Stevenson, who will become the bride of Mr. William Pomeroy of Toronto, on Sept. 13. Miss Stevenson is the holder of various amateur swimming trophies.

Next Sunday August 31st the congregation of Springville will revert to the regular hour of service at eleven o'clock, with Sunday School at ten.

DOCTOR RECALLS "MUD PIE" DAYS

Expert Claims Children Healthier When Not Pampered Too Much.

BIRTH CONTROL COMES UP.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 28 (C.P.).—"Long life and good health!" Out of the bowl of the world's medical knowledge, a toast was drunk last night by delegates to the 96th annual meeting of the British Medical Association. Two of Britain's most noted physicians took the platform before hundreds of their fellow-doctors, one to point the road to a long life, and the other to say that good health comes unbeckoned.

Dr. Robert Hutchison, F.R.C.P., London's most noted economolast when health-fads are the deities, shattered images right lustily, jovially but firmly. The British expert harked back to the good old days of mud-pies when, he said, children were probably healthier and happier than the oft-weighed, pampered, dieted, psycho-analysed infants of to-day. He laughed at calory-counters and vitamine-victims, held up as ideal the easy-going individual who merely meanders to health.

Inability of the state to permit birth-control in England was deplored by Sir James Purves-Stewart, K.C.B., F.R.C.P., in outlining the ways to a lengthy life. He considered heredity by far the most important factor in producing longevity, but regretted that lack of birth control permitted reproduction of far-from-perfect specimens of the human species, closing one doorway to longer living. The other two routes, he thought, were by the aid of the public hospital system and the family doctor.

NEW YORK STATE MAY APPLY DATE

Governor Roosevelt Intends to Ask For Commission to Study Question.

LOWER AGE LIMIT.

BUFFALO, Aug. 28.—Terming the present unemployment situation "the most serious the country has experienced since the panic of 1893," Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt said yesterday he planned to ask legislative approval of a commission to consider unemployment insurance.

The Legislature will be urged to appoint such a body at its next sessions, the governor added, in an address to the State Federation of Labor convention.

"I hope for a practical study of an unemployment insurance plan which will avoid any hint of dole or hand-out," he said. "We have seen the danger of government itself when a problem is treated merely as a charity."

Roosevelt also announced that he favored "a better system of old age pensions," pointing out that the present law does not take account of anyone under the age of 70.

Fleet Words.

"Long Distance" is now "short distance" when it comes to telephoning. The "glance of the mind" is no more swift than the speed of telephone service to-day. No means of communication equals its surety and efficiency. Families are being kept together, by the out-of-town service, although separated by many miles.

SOCCER NOTES.

The C.P.C. have selected the following team for the Peck Cup final: Griffen, A. Downer, Cross, Buchan, Reid, Bromley, N. Downer, Willshaw, Preston, Beggs, Foster, Rickard (reserve).

As Vacation Time Gives Way to Early Fall and, turning our backs reluctantly on summer, all of us must once more return to the routine of city life, there are many household details that must be looked after immediately.

In the matter of your daily supply of Milk and Cream, dairy products and similar necessities, may we suggest that you take advantage of the remarkably complete facilities of the province-wide Silverwood organization.

A phone call will insure regular delivery of Silverwood's Safe Milk and will place you in regular contact with one of our wagon salesmen, who will be glad to see that you are supplied with Cream or the famous Silverwood's Smoother-than-Velvet Ice Cream whenever your needs demand.

The results for the year on the three Departmental examinations are 435 passes and 79 failures. This gives the school an average of 85 p.c.

The medal winners for the year are:

First Form—Joyce Morrison.

Second Form—Margaret Collins.

Commercial Class—Teresa Atkins.

Third Form— It is impossible to say definitely from the results whether Mavis McGuire or Peter Kinlin has the higher aggregate. The Deputy Minister of Education Department at Toronto will be asked to decide and his reply will be published in this paper.

Fourth Form—Francis Thompson.

Fifth Form—Millicent Moffat.

Red Pimples on Face Were Always Burning. Healed by Cuticura.

"I had pimples all over my face. They were small at first, then got large and red and festered. They were very sore and itched and were always burning. Sometimes they itched so badly that I scratched, causing more to come on my face. I dreaded going out when I had them because they were so noticeable.

"I tried different remedies without success. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief, and after using five boxes of Cuticura Ointment and three cakes of Cuticura Soap I was healed." (Signed) Miss Olive Procter, R. R. 2, Campbellville, Ont.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address Canadian Depot: J. T. Wait Company Limited, Montreal.

THE ROBOT SINGS OF LOVE

THE ROBOT (singing): "O, soul of my soul, I love thee---"

BUT the Robot has no soul. And having no soul It cannot love. Small wonder the lady spurns Its suit.

Now, if the Robot cuts a ridiculous figure beneath a lady's balcony, why expect IT to thrill intelligent theatre goers in the character of Canned Music?

• • •

Music is an emotional art. By means of it feeling may be translated into all tongues. The Robot, having no capacity for feeling, cannot produce music in a true sense.

FLOWER DISPLAY IS BIG SUCCESS

Annual Exhibition Held Under Auspices of Madoc Horticultural Society.

SEVERAL ENTRIES

MADOC, Aug. 27 (Examiner Correspondence).—Madoc Horticultural Society held their annual flower exhibition on Saturday, August 23, at the Madoc Armouries. Threatening weather which later developed into a persistent downpour greatly reduced the number of entries, but the officials and flower committee are to be congratulated on the high standard of each and every entry. President, Mrs. R. Wickham; Vice-President, G. M. Wallbridge; Secretary-Treasurer, E. T. Nayler. The Flower Committee: President, Secretary, Mesdames West, Whytock, Jenkins, Broad and Breakell, and Mr. G. M. Wallbridge.

The fact that every class had at least one and in many cases several entries will be evidence enough that the Armouries presented a very gay appearance, which was added to by the decorations and streamers in yellow and orange.

The vigor of sun and summer days sparkles forth from its crystal depths

AGAINST green turf their bodies flash across the court ... and cheering stands applaud a brilliant volley at the net, while when the set is finished they find new vigor and refreshment in this fine old ginger ale. These are sportsmen, sun-tanned, lithe and active, who find a matching quality of excellence in the crystal depths of "Canada Dry." Here is a marvelous beverage.

No wonder! This fine old ginger ale has basic excellence. Its very foundation is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavour and natural essence of the ginger root. Rigid laboratory control assures uniformity, purity and highest quality. Its carbonation is delicious.

No wonder countless homes in this country serve "Canada Dry"! And like the aristocrat it is, this fine old ginger ale will grace your table, will bring the vigor of sun and summer days to your household, just as it does to many others. Order it today in the convenient cartons of six or twelve bottles.

RAINS FROGS, NOT WATER, IN SLEEPY VILLAGE IN MARITIMES

Thousands of Frogs Reported to Have Come Down During Storm.

SOMEBODY'S NIGHTMARE

(Special to the Examiner Copyright 1930)

BATHHURST, N.B., August 26—Here's a story which the sponsors claim very vehemently, did not result from a visit to a government store.

Along with the rain, there decended on the earth, thousands of frogs, and people who were rushing for shelter from the downpour, found themselves literally covered with the pond denizens. So much so they had to practically disrobe in order to free themselves of the frogs. The latter clung to the clothing, with the grip of a drowning man, and some found their ways into the pockets of the apparel, resulting in some disagreeable surprises, hours later.

The earth for a radius of about a half mile, was practically covered with the frogs, the natural green of the grass being replaced by the almost black of the little members of the reptile species. Most of the frogs were small, some being not more than an inch long. Many a citizen of South Bathurst is reported to have rubbed his eyes, in astonishment, on seeing the earth manifest keen animation, with the frogs leaping back and forth.

The nearest body of water is about a quarter mile away, but by noon, all but 100 of the frogs remained on the earth. And these were heading toward the water.

Besides covering the earth like a dark, animated blanket, the frogs turned brown dirt of the roads through South Bathurst into the dark color. The frogs moved thickly over the highways and also about the ditches. It is estimated that at least 10,000 of the frogs fell during the rain, and when the rain was over, the frogs also ceased to come down.

The frogs caused practically all the women and girls of South Bathurst to stay in their homes for the day, and numerous scenes were created when men and boys came into homes with samples of the shower in their pockets.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

HOMECOMING

After an absence a child looks forward home with a certain hungry anticipation. He wants home. He wants to feel it, smell it, taste it, know that it is round and about him, protecting and comforting him.

If he has been at school all day there is a duty taste in his mouth. There is a feeling of cramp in his body and mind. I believe that is true when the child goes to the very best sort of school. Living under any sort of routine has that effect on all of us. Children, of course, feel it more acutely than adults whose days of adjustment are fairly well past. A child runs home. He walks to school. Doesn't that say something to you?

Then homecoming ought to be very pleasant. Many times it is not. There are some well meaning people that begin nagging the moment the child pokes his head inside the door.

'Why didn't you go to the side porch? Didn't you see that this one had been just washed? What's the hurry? Couldn't you come in quietly? There's a hook in the hall for that. Think we have nothing to do in this house but wiat on you?

'Go right upstairs and change your things. I see you have a spot of ink on that new blouse. Well, if that's all the care you take of things I'll not worry about them any more. Anything's good enough to wipe pens on. Nobody said you did. I can't speak in this house any more without one or two of you jumping down my throat. Don't the schools teach manners any more?

"Now where are you going? With that boy? I should think that you might find somebody a little better, somebody that could teach you something, instead of that good-for nothing. Don't talk back to me or I'll make you stay in the house for the rest of the day and night. It's getting so that nobody can speak to you.

'Have you gone to the grocer's yet? Of course not. The only person you are thinking about is yourself. What did you say? Well, I'm going to talk to your father about you to-night. I simply can't stand you another minute. I don't care where you go. Go ahead. I'm through. Eternally through."

Now that is scarcely exaggerated. Something like this happens again and again. Mother has a headache, or things have gone wrong all day and this noisy, thoughtless, headlong child is about the last straw. But what good is accomplished by the row? Sometimes it is father who is guilty of the rowing. Children annoy him so. He wants to know why their mother does not keep them quiet, why they are not this and that and the other. What good comes of it all? Headaches all round and the child steadily withdrawing from his home.

Better make homecoming pleasant. No matter what dreary thing lies ahead make the first few moments cheerful so as to get a good start. Remember the child is as weary of routine and trouble as you are and try to sweeten things just a little. It will help everybody tremendously. Nagging helps nobody at all. Make an event of every homecoming and see what effect that will have

The ABC of Vitamins And Where to Find Them

BY EDWINA NOLAN
Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

CHILDREN—and adults, for that matter—need food containing the various vitamins, if they are to enjoy health and vigor and even dispositions.

Take vitamin A away from a child and he is underfed. Lacking vitamin B, growth is stunted. Without vitamin C, scurvy may develop. And vitamin D is essential to assimilation of food.

In what foods are these vitamins found? Let the United States Department of Agriculture answer:

Vitamin A—Some common sources of vitamin A are avocados, bananas, string beans, butter, carrots, cheese, cod-liver oil, dried cowpeas, cream, dandelions and other greens, eggs, lentils, lettuce, liver, milk, peas, sweet potatoes, spinach, squash and tomatoes.

Vitamin B—Common sources are asparagus, dried and fresh beans, brains, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, egg yolk, fish roe, grapefruit, kidney, lemons, lentils, lettuce, liver, milk, nuts, okra, onions, oranges, parsley, parsnips, peas, potatoes, pineapples, rutabagas, spinach and other greens, tomatoes and whole grain products.

Vitamin C—Found in apples, bananas, cabbage, young carrots, cauliflower, grapefruit, guavas, lemons, onions, oranges, peaches, peas, pineapples, potatoes, raspberries, rutabagas, spinach, sprouted legumes, string beans and tomatoes.

As to vitamin D, this is supplied through open-air sunshine, from your physician's ultra-violet ray machine, or from doses of good old-fashioned cod-liver oil.

All the vitamin alphabet belongs in the family diet. Say it with milk and fruits and vegetables—with wide variety—and the chances are that you will have included most of the essential vitamins. Perishables, properly refrigerated and wholesome, are necessary.

The person with a charming disposition usually is properly vitamined. By the same token, he with a grouch, a snap or a snarl may be lacking a vitamin.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

HOW THE BODY DOES ITS WORK.

As a student, I was satisfied to learn about the structure of the body; about bones, nerves, and blood vessels, and about the various organs, and also how in a general way all the different parts of the body did their work.

I learned that the mouth, stomach, pancreas, and bile made digestive juices; that the liver stored up sugar; that the skin regulated the heat; that the heart pumped the blood and the lungs purified it.

And that all these various processes were governed by the brain and nerves.

Now just how these various actions took place, how the body stored water, and gave it out to the tissues when needed; how the sugar and other necessary materials were maintained in the proper amounts in the body, and numerous other processes, were not taught because they were not known.

But now our patient physiologists are working on these problems in physiology and endeavoring to get at the exact methods by which Nature regulates all our needs in the body.

Dr. W. B. Cannon, of Harvard says that no matter what is going on about you, the atmosphere, food, clothing, water, the day, the night, the sun, the rain, heat or cold, Nature has to regulate your body, (that is the inside of your body) so that it cannot be influenced or injured by any of these things about you.

For instance you have to do some hard work and what happens?

Sugar must be used up by the muscles and more sugar thus immediately given out to the blood by the liver from its storage depot. Perspiration or sweat is poured out by the skin to keep the body from getting too hot. The blood vessels in the lungs enlarge so that the lungs can take in more air to purify the extra blood needed for the hard work. The blood vessels going to the internal organs actually contract-decrease in size—so as not to allow the blood to go there instead of to the muscles and lungs where the blood is needed. The heart beats faster to pump the extra blood by the muscles to do the hard work. The spleen sends out more corpuscles into the blood to make up for the ones being destroyed in doing the hard work.

Just think, all these things are done for you when you work hard, because the part of your nervous system, seeing the need, notifies all of these processes to get busy.

And this work is just one example of the regulation of your processes by the nervous system.

The next step of course is to find out what interferes with the various processes and their proper rate of working. Because any interference is what you call sickness, illness or disease.

FASHION SERVICE

Attractive beach frock made in a jiffy at a small outlay.

A little kimono sleeve yoked-bodice and full-gathered skirt that may be smocked at the centre-front, explains the simplicity of this cute dress.

The square neckline is fetching.

It is white dimity with pink dots. The smocking is worked in pink thread, which is also used for button-hole stitch outline. Narrow bias binding may be used in place of the button-hole stitch, if desired.

Style No. 2588 comes in sizes 1, 2, 4, 6 years.

Weak After Operation

"I was very weak after an operation. My nerves were so bad I would sit down and cry and my husband would not go out and leave me alone. Now my nerves are much better, thanks to a booklet that was left under the door. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound surely put me on my feet. I have taken eight bottles. My friends tell me I look fine. My sister has taken this medicine too."—Mrs. Annie Walton, 67 Stanley St., Kingston, Ontario.

KEENE

Mr. and Mrs. McMahon with their family and guests left for their home in Mount Jewett, Pa., on Tuesday morning after spending the week-end at their cottage on Rice Lake.

Miss Katherine McCarthy is spending a few days with Miss Eleanor Wallace at the Wallace cottage on Rice Lake.

The regular boys' softball game was held between the Sixth Line and Keene on Monday evening and resulted in a victory for Keene by the narrow margin of one run.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston of Millbrook with Miss O'Brien and Mrs. Tate of Bowmanville were visiting in Keene on Tuesday at Mrs Wm. Campbell's home.

A ball game was played Tuesday evening on the Keene grounds between the Keene and Ballieboro girls which resulted 9-8 in Keene's favor.

(Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this.)

"I never boil any more and clothes are whiter" says Mrs. H. S. Linaman

"Rinso gets my clothes much, much whiter than any soap I've ever used in my washing machine. I never boil things any more. And Rinso suds are thick, soapy, lasting! That means a lot here where the water is hard. Chipped-up soaps and softeners are things of the past. Both my neighbor and I use Rinso in the dishpan, too; it makes dishes sparkle!"
MRS. H. S. LINAMAN.

No softener needed

In Rinso's remarkable suds, dirt soaks out. Clothes don't need to be scrubbed threadbare. Of course they last much longer. Hands are spared, too.

This hard-water soap gives twice as much suds—cup for cup—as the lightweight, puffed-up kind. And no softener needed—even in hardest water! Safe for finest linens; the makers of 38 washers recommend it. Try Rinso for dishes, too. Get the BIG package.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

"Saving to Buy" and "buying to save" are two methods of thrifty financial management practised by many homemakers and I have been wondering just how many there are in Peterborough and the district who do this.

• • • • • • •

Perhaps there are not very many because the combination is the maximum of practical economy—but still, I believe there should be a large number because Peterborough has many thrifty housewives.

• • • • • • •

The woman whose slogan is "saving to buy" is assured that hers is the best and is usually frank in criticizing the other method as tending to extravagance.

• • • • • • •

The woman who "buys to save" is equally critical of the method she discards, as one likely to cultiv ate scribbling.

• • • • • • •

Looking at it impartially, it is easy to discover the good in each and how it has to be handled lest it does have the tendency which has been suggested.

• • • • • • •

For instance, the woman who saves to buy, watches very carefully to note just what spending can be cut down, and what economics can be practised in order to allow her to put aside enough money to complete the required sum in the quickest time possible or when the article be needed.

• • • • • • •

Her slogan, very likely, is "watch the purse" and it is not a bad idea, even though at times she seems a bit miserly.

• • • • • • •

The woman who "saves to buy" considers the correctness of her purchase and its excellence, its necessity and its entire suitability.

• • • • • • •

She knows what she wants and finds out what she can get it for. She studies the various makes and their advantages over others during the time while she is saving to buy.

• • • • • • •

Before she has the money laid aside she has determined what make to get and why if it is a household article. If it is a costume, or other wearing apparel, she watches the styles and buys the best and probably an advance style so that it will remain in vogue as long as possible.

• • • • • • •

Th weoman who "buys to save" goes about the purchasing in an entirely different way.

• • • • • • •

She watches sales and gets bargains. She often saves one-quarter to one-half the original selling price. She learns to know values, for without such knowledge she cannot be certain of her wisdom in selections of her actual saving.

• • • • • • •

She buys when she sees what she wants or when she knows she will want the article at some time in the near future. She is always on the look-out for reductions and always is looking ahead for future requirements

• • • • • • •

It is true that she is often tempted to purchase because a thing is so cheap that it seems a pity not to get it. Her slogan is "watch the chance" and because of it she has to learn to curb her desire to buy just because things are not being sacrificed.

• • • • • • •

She has to learn values and good points of makes, etc., or she cannot get the most of her money.

• • • • • • •

But whether a woman "saves to buy" or "buys to save" a knowledge of what the market has to offer and of values is essential to true thriftiness.

U. S. Girls Belong to English Bar

Misses Tessie and Katherine Hendrick are among leaders of the American invasion of Britain for, although daughters of a New York lawyer, Frank Hendrick, they themselves belong to the English bar, being graduates of Oxford and members of the Middle Temple bar in London. They are returning to the United States to attend the Chicago meeting of the American Bar Association.

Church, Windsor, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white satin and embroidered net veil and carried a bouquet of sunburst roses, satice and white heather. Miss Jean Bennie, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and was gowned in aquamarine chiffon and carried Talisman roses.

William Coulter, of Windsor, assisted the bridegroom as best man. Gordon Bartley, of Windsor, nephew of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Lohengrin's Wedding March was played by Miss Margaret Bennie, sister of the bride. Later the young couple left by motor for Mount Julian Hotel, Kawartha Lakes.

COLLINS—CULLEN

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral on Wednesday morning when Helena Gretta, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Cullen, became the bride of Charles Joseph Collins, youngest son of Mrs. B. Collins, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Father Costello.

The bride wore a charming ensemble of white flat crepe, with white felt hat and carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Mamie Ayotte, wore a gown of peach georgette with white felt hat and also carried a bouquet of Columbia roses. Mr. T. McCarthy acted as best man.

The young couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto for a short honeymoon and on their return will reside in the city.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

THE FUTILE QUEST

The mind of man would search, would find
The plan and purpose of ways that wind,
Of devious ways where straying feet
Must go through hours sad or sweet,
And the pattern of life, to him denied,
Has left him ever unsatisfied;
But, ah! if he knew the deep design
Would it make earth sweeter or love more fine?
If he saw the plot of the whole, would it add
To the joy of living all men have had?

The mind of man is an eager thing
And ever goes seeking, questioning,
To find the answer which can reveal
The reasons back of the things we feel
But what could logic's light disclose,
To add one whit to our joy in a rose?
Can any teaching of absolute truth
Lend more to the raptures of love and youth?
And what can be learned of a bird, save wings,
Are surely earth's loveliest, bravest things?

OLD SONGS

THAT PIECE OF SONG, That old and antique song we heard, last night.

"PULL DOWN THE BLIND."

(Contributed By Beatrice).

Did you ever make love?
If not, have a try;
I courted a girl once so bashful and shy;
A fair, little creature,
Who, bye the bye,
At coaxing and wheedling
Had such a nice way;
Every night to her house I went,
In harmless delight our evening were spent,
She had a queer saying, whatever it meant,
For whenever I entered the house she would say:

Chorus—
Pull down the blind,
Pull down the blind;
Pull down the blind, love, come don't be unkind,
Though we're alone, bear this in mind,
Somebody's looking, love,
Pull down the blind.

How loving we were,
How cosy we'd chat;
'Bout one thing and t'other, and this thing and that;
With my arm 'round her waist,
How cosy we sat
Like two little turtle doves, perched on a tree;
Such squeezing and teasing,
And pleasing we had,
Such wooing and cooing, to make our hearts glad;
With laughing and chaffing I near drove her mad;
But still she was awfully spooney on me,

(Spoken after second verse, and if that soldier would only have left us alone she never would have exclaimed):

One night, for a change,
We went to the play;
And when we got home she was awfully gay;
She saw them make love,
And so learned the way;
The piece was "Claude Melnott,"
And suited her fine;
She called me her rosebud, her duck and her dear,
She threw her arms round me,
While fast fell each tear;
She cried, "Oh, don't leave me, for sadly I fear,
You don't love me truly, say will you be mine?"

(Spoken after third verse. Just at that moment a policeman passed and said):

Our courting days o'er,
At last we were wed;
I oft bless the hour when to church I her led;
I now call her Mary,
She calls me Ned,
We're happy and loving, and never know strife;
We've a fine handsome lass,
And two noble boys,
Trouble and sorrow ne'er us annoys;
Of life we're the sweets,
And while tasting its joys,
I'm thankful I'm blessed with a good little wife.

(Spoken after fourth verse: And should an angry word rise to my lips, with a meek smile on her face she'll explain):

C. G. E. Cops Spectacular Game From Point Anne 7-5

ELECTRICS WIN SUPERB FIELDING BALL EXHIBITION

Infield Does Great Work, Sets Record With Nineteen Assists.

FRED ASH GOOD.

Winner of Series to Meet Oshawa-Toronto Victor in Second Round.

Ball fans dwelling on the clay flats about the Canada Cement Company's giant plant at Point Anne will discuss for many a day yesterday's game in which the C.G.E. team defeated the home talent 7 runs to 5. The remarkable fielding exhibition turned in by the Peterborough Electrics was more than sufficient to supply the ratbirds with a subject for much talk.

Art Primeau's seasoned nine stepped out on that hard-baked diamond and gloved everything hit at them. Their fielding was superb. Bounding balls that ordinarily would have gone as hits, and which were doubly labelled on that cement-like surface, were faultlessly gathered in. To show the work the C.G.E. outfit did in stabbing hot grounders, it need only be stated that they had 19 assists. Red Hollingsworth at short led with seven; Shiner Johnston on the centre sack had six to his credit; Utronki had four; and Stan Jones patrolling the hot corner had two.

Fred Ash Stars.

First-baseman Fred Ash had the busiest afternoon of his baseball career by the manner in which his teammates were continually called upon to rifle the ball over to him. The total of putouts ran up to twenty-one.

Not only did the Electrics excel themselves in nabbing off ground balls, but the homesters answered the crack of the bats in a similar way. They totalled up 16 assists, Sherlock sharing honors with Hollingsworth with seven.

Looking at the game from a fielding standpoint it was the finest in which any local team has engaged in this season.

Their faultless work gave the C.G.E. a well-earned victory and makes them favorites for the return game here on Saturday afternoon. The winner of the series will meet the victor in the Oshawa-Toronto playoff, in the second round of the Intermediate O.B.A.A. playdowns.

Stage Rally in 9th.

Robbed of hits throughout eight innings of the game, Point Anne came to bat in the ninth, trailing 7 to 1. In that final spasm, they caught Vin Utronki as he eased up and pounded out five hits for four runs. The two tieing runs were on the sacks when Ash took "Soup" Goyer's liner for the third out.

Except for that barrage in the ninth the Point Anne efforts were effectually smothered.

"Hoot" Gibson toiled for Point Anne and he used a nice breaking hook in his efforts to subdue the C.G.E. hitters. During the first two innings his curve proved a mystery, but in the third frame the winners found him for four hits, which along with a wild throw, counted for four runs. In the fifth the Electrics added two more and in the eighth they countered again.

Not Single Strikeout.

Another statistical feature of the game lies in the fact that Utronki did not have a single strikeout. The former Belleville hurler did not show his usual versatility, but he managed to keep the ball out of the groove. Up until the ninth he allowed but three safeties.

While two errors appear against the C.G.E. they were both of that variety that did not detract from the sparkling play of the winners. Utronki missed a pop fly in the first innings, accounting for one. The other came when Abbie Rose, who roamed right field, treated a high fly by Gibson too soft. Rose had previously garnered in three flies, one by M. Green in the sixth he took over his shoulder while running back.

Point Anne took the lead with one run in the second. Goulin, first up, singled and was advanced to third on bounders to the infield by M. Green and Kerr. Hutchings singled back of third to send him in. Sherlock's wicked hopper was taken on the run by Red Hollingsworth.

It was too much Gibson for the C.G.E. in the first two frames, but in the third they opened up on him. With Johnston out on strikes, Beavis jammed one back of second which rolled for two bases. Jones bounced to second. H. Hollingsworth singled to score Beavis. Hollingsworth stole second and countered when Kerr threw over first on Roses' grounder. Swanston singled to send Rose in from second, Swanny going on to second on the throw to the plate. Ash followed with another hit into left field and Swanston scored, but Ash was caught at second on the throw-in by Sherlock.

Six men faced Utronki in the third and fourth and all bulleted grounders over the hard clay. But the C.G.E. galloped in to take them on the fly. Johnston grabbed one which whizzed through the box with his bare hand and turned with a perfect throw to get the runner.

Add Total in 6th.

Two more runs were added by the C.G.E. in the sixth. Jones getting a life when his grounder escaped the clutching hands of Goulin at second. H. Hollingsworth singled, but Rose wafted a high fly to centre field. Swanston singled and Jones crossed the plate. Ash's fly was taken by Sonny Green. Hollingsworth scored on Utronki's single through the box. L. Hollingsworth rolled to the pitcher.

Both teams played sparkling ball in the innings following and but three runners saw first. Beavis in the fifth when he singled back of third, Goyer in the sixth on a clout into left, and Gibson when Rose dropped his fly.

With Ash out on strikes in the seventh, Utronki doubled into centre. L. Hollingsworth flew to short. On Johnston's grounder to third, Kerr threw wide to first and Utronki scored. Beavis popped to second.

Neither outfit did anything again until the ninth, when Point Anne came within an ace of tieing the score. It started after two were out, Goulin having bounced to Johnston and M. Green to the pitcher. Kerr singled and was followed similarly by Hutchings. Both runners stole. Sherlock singled through third to score Kerr. Buck hit into right and Hutchings countered. M. Green hit for two bases into left and Sherlock and Buck crossed the plate. Green stole third. Gibson drew four balls and then stole second. Goyer advanced to the plate, fouled one, and then laced a drive at Ash. It smacked into the first sacker's mitt and the game was over.

Sugar Bowl Evens Series With Trenton

BOWLRITES TAKE SECOND FIXTURE BY 4 TO 1 COUNT

Victors Play Errorless Ball Behind Superb Twirling of Len Forsythe.

FIVE STRIKE-OUTS.

Hurler Also Turns in Great Work at Plate—Connects For Homer.

Playing errorless ball behind Len Forsythe's superb twirling, the Sugar Bowl handed the C.P.R. team from Trenton a 4-1 beating. It was by far the best played game of the season on Central School grounds.

Last night's win ties up the series and necessitates a third game being played. It is likely that Port Hope will be selected for the third fixture, although no definite arrangements have yet been made.

To Len Forsythe goes the major part of the credit for the win. Forsythe was in rare form, and held the Trenton lads to one run. He struck out five and walked two. Besides his great pitching Forsythe connected for a home run, a triple and a single.

Ernie Bowler also twirled nice ball for the C.P.R. lads but was not as steady as Forsythe. He fanned three and walked none.

The fielding feature of the game was supplied by Bud Weese when he took Steenburg's line drive on the run. It was a nice play by the second baseman.

Both teams played errorless ball, and the fans were given a real treat by the fielders.

Play By Innings.

Cook and Felion struck out and Long grounded to Maudsley in Trenton's half of the first.

Sugar Bowl got two runs in their half of the first. Maudsley rolled to Bowler for the first out. Westbrooke singled to right and H. Dormer cut a single to the same field. Gillespie got a single when nobody fielded his infield roller, loading the bases. Forsythe singled to short to score Westbrooke. H. Dormer stole home. G. Dormer struck out and Weese flied to Felion to end the inning.

Scarlett opened the second with a single to centre, but Towle popped to Forsythe, Kennedy was tossed out by G. Dormer and Steenburg flied to Westbrooke.

In the Bowrlites' half Bradshaw was tossed out by Towle, Connors fouled to Steenburg and Maudsley was tossed out by Bowler.

Larry singled to start the third for Trenton. Bowler fouled to Connors, Cook flied to G. Dormer and Felion to Westbrooke.

Westbrooke and Dormer struck out and Gillespie popped to Scarlett in the Sugar Bowl's half of the third.

In the fourth Long grounded to Maudsley, Scarlett flied to Weese, and Towle to H. Dormer.

Forsythe started the Bowlrites' half of the fourth with a triple. G. Dormer singled to centre to score Forsythe. Weese flew out to Kennedy, Bradshaw to Cook and Connors to Bowler.

The fifth was soon over. Kennedy was tossed out by Weese. Steenburg's hard smash was taken by Weese, a great catch. Larry popped to Forsythe.

H. Dormer's single went to waste in the Bowlrites half, when Maudsley filed to Larry, Westbrooke to Felion and Gillespie to Cook.

Bowler and Cook struck out in the sixth and Felion was tossed out by Bradshaw.

G. Dormer was called out at first by the plate umpire after he had hit a home run. The umps claimed he failed to touch the bag. Forsythe and Weese flied out to Felion.

Trenton got their only run in the seventh. Long opened with a triple. Scarlett popped to Maudsley. Towle hit to centre, scoring Long. When he tried to stretch the hit into a double Gillespie tossed him out. Kennedy walked and Steenburg singled, but Larry flied out to Gillespie.

Bradshaw and Connors were tossed out by Towle. Maudsley injected a double here, but Westbrooke was tossed out by Larry.

Bowler and Cook singled to start Trenton's half of the eighth. Forsythe tightened up however and Felion popped to Maudsley, Long flied to Westbrooke and Scarlett to Weese.

Forsythe poled out a long homer in the eighth. H. Dormer flied out to Felion, Gillespie was tossed out by Larry and G. Dormer popped to the same player.

Towle opened the ninth with a single. Kennedy struck out. Steenburg fled to Weese. Larry singled and Bowler walked to fill the bases. Cook's grounder hit Steenburg and he was called out for interference.

SYDENHAM DEFEATS HASTINGS IN FIRST OF SERIES 14-11

Victors Get Away to Good Start on Scriver's Walks and Loose Fielding.

SOME HEAVY HITTING.

HASTINGS, August 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The first game of the play-downs in the O.B.A.A. between Hastings and Sydenham was played at Hastings on Wednesday afternoon before one of the largest crowds to witness a ball game in Hastings in some years.

Sydenham started right after their 14 to 11 victory in the first inning getting six runs on Scriver's walks and loose support behind him. The game was very loose all the way, the local boys having 11 errors along with seven walks, which cost them the game. Sydenham came to Hastings very highly rated, but all Hastings have to do is to play back to their form in the league games, and they will have no trouble in taking the return game on Saturday.

Toll Gate Winner Belleville Feature

Captures 2.15 Pace in Straight Heats—Track Record is Threatened.

BELLEVILLE, August 28. — The track record of Belleville's racing strip will most likely be broken before the week of racing in connection with the Belleville Fair is completed. Yesterday Toll Gate, the glib side-wheeler from the Metcalfe Stable of Kingston, came within one-half second, stepping the second heat of his race in the 2.15 class in 2.09¼ without being seriously threatened. Before the week is out this horse will meet with Sid Hall, Ramona Grattan, Willis Grattan, Jean Ganot, and others in the free-for-all, and it is expected a mark around 2.06 will be hung up.

Only two races were carded yesterday, with Toll Gate winning his race in three straight heats and Laura G., a youngster from the barn of N. Neely of Sarnia, taking the 2.30 pacers into camp. The 2.15 class was only a contest for second money for Toll Gate was much the best of his field. Two accidents marred the program, but neither was serious. The drivers of Lady Isobel and Joe McGregor hooked sulkies coming into the stretch, with Peter Direct being thrown off his stride, and Mr. Bennett dislodged from the sulky. Although Mr. Bennett is well up in years, he did not lose control of his horse, and mounted to finish the heat.

2.15 Class—Purse $250.

Toll Gate, Fred Metcalfe, Kingston	1	1	1
Peter Direct, Lou Bennett, Port Hope	2	2	5
Rio Grand, H. Ell, Capreol	4	5	2
Joe Patchen, W. Brigs, Toronto	3	6	2

ST. GEORGE'S BEAT GUELPH JUVENILES

Hits and Runs Plentiful in O. B.A.A. Play-off Game at Toronto.

TORONTO, Aug. 28.—In a free-hitting game at Willowvale Park last night, St. George's juveniles scored an 18 to 15 victory over Guelph Whippets, in the second round of the O.B.A.A. play-offs.

Both pitchers were hit freely, but Sherwood, who lasted the route, had 10 strike-outs to his credit, and only passed four, while the two visiting twirlers were wild at times and walked 9 between them.

The game was a see-saw affair all the way, with the lead changing several times. St. George's practically cinched the game when they scored 5 runs in the seventh innings.

The losers staged a last-minute rally, which netted them 3 runs and left a couple of men stranded.

Spalla and Franks each hit home runs. The former also got a single and 4 bases on balls, for a perfect average while Franks collected a pair of singles with his.

Kearns, for St. George's, and Davies for Guelph, each collected 4 hits, while Hipburn got the other only extra-base hit of the game, when he doubled in the fifth.

Gray, for the losers, obtained a trio of safeties, and Nobes led in run scoring with 4. McDonald made the feature play in the field when he made a great stop and throw to get his man at first, and stop a Guelph rally.

Carter and Martin were the best of the visitors on the defensive, and Franks, playing his first game since he fractured his leg, turned in a wonderful performance.

The third and deciding game will probably be played on Monday, either in Oakville or Hamilton.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX GAINS BIG TRIUMPH

Takes Two Games From Cleveland Indians to Get Clear Hold on Sixth Place.

With the Eastern clubs of the American League enjoying a day of idleness, the activity in the junior circuit was confined to the lower-ranking clubs. The Chicago White Sox gained the big triumph of the day, taking a clear hold on sixth place by winning two games from the Cleveland Indians, holders of fourth. The Sox pounded the offerings of four Cleveland pitchers for 21 hits and a 14—5 victory in the first game then outlasted the Indians to take a 5—4 decision in the second, as Ted Lyons won his twentieth game of the season.

The double victory put Chicago a full game ahead of the St. Louis Browns, who rode through to a 5 to 0 victory over the Detroit Tigers on Walter Stewart's brilliant pitching. Stewart held the Tigers to five hits, drove in two St. Louis' runs and scored one more.

BOWLING TOURNEY ON TWEED GREENS

Keen Contests Played Under Ideal Weather Conditions.

TWEED, August 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — The mixed bowling tournament on the local green was a great success. The weather was ideal and the games were very closely contested. The attendance from outside was small, but what was lacking in this respect was made up in the enthusiasm of those who participated. Tweed was very much in the limelight, and carried off two prizes. The personnel of the winning team was as follows:

First prize—Tweed: Mrs. Spackman, Mrs. Hindle, Mr. Spackman, Mr. Hindle, skip.

Second prize—Tweed: Mrs. A. W. McGuire, Mrs. J. Martin, Mr. Adams, W. J. Holbert, skip.

Winners of two games with highest plus—Tweed: Mrs. W. Beatty, Mrs. G. Frost, Dr. Paul, W. Beatty, skip.

Winners of one game with highest plus—Tweed ladies: Mrs. W. E. Tummon, Miss Graham, Mr. Cook, Mr. Cartney, skip, of Kingston.

Tweed ladies were also playing on the teams which won second and fourth prizes. The play-offs were exciting, and close finishes marked the different events.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

There were big doings at the Club yesterday, the Mixed rink competition being run off and everybody seemed to be having a good time. First prize of Kenwood blankets were won by Jack Sedgewick's rink. This is hard to believe but nevertheless it is true. Mary Sedgewick and Mrs. R. Martin must have been bowling a whale of game to carry a load like that. Second prize of auto rugs went out of town, Jack Skitch of Cobourg taking them home, while third prize was taken (after playing off a tie with Maurice Booth of Cobourg) by Harold Wood and his rink. Harold and Wilf Wood have kept on trying together and finally got into the money, which leads one to believe that contrary to general ideas the ordinary common wood weathers the storm better than 'Oke." The special prize given to the rink with the highest single game score was taken by Maurice Booth of Cobourg, made against Walter J. Oke and John N. Bacon. These names are given in full so there will be no mistake.

To-night our Club holds its first bridge party, to which all members are cordially invited and any friends interested in our welfare will also be welcomed and places found for them at the tables. Let's make it a big night. Eight o'clock is the time and the Club House the place.

Your Club needs your help. Rally to its support. Don't leave it to the other fellow. This means you.

A private dance is being arranged for next Thursday night and if you are interested in receiving an invitation (which by the way, will be very limited in number) you are advised to get in touch with Reg Fox immediately. Any member of the House Committee can give you information, but act quickly.

To-morrow night at the usual hour we will have the regular week-end tournament. Make it a point to be there.

Newsie noticed a rather strange coincidence last night prior to the presentation of the prizes. Several : arried couples were dancing to the strain of the "Prisoner's Song"—music by the Player Piano. It may have been an appropriate selection but it sounded odd.

That is all the new to date, and if it really is Club News you will find it in this column daily.

ENTERPRISE TO DEFEND TROPHY

Smallest of Four Sloops Built This Spring is Selection of Cup Committee.

IS STURDY CRAFT.

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 28 (C.P.).—Enterprise, smallest of four sloops built this spring as prospective defenders of the America's Cup, to-day found herself bearing the responsibility of keeping the cup from Britain's yachtsmen.

In 1851, the yacht America defeated eighteen of England's natiest racing yachts in a race around the Isle of Wight, and brought to these shores a 100 guinea cup of doubtful beauty which has since been cherished as the greatest of all yachting trophies—the America's Cup.

Through her selection last night by the America's Cup Committee of the New York Yacht Club, Enterprise, skippered by Harold S. Vanderbilt, was delegated to meet Shamrock V., Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth challenger, and the fourteenth challenger since the cup was won by the United States in 1851.

Enterprise's selection came after she had won two straight races in the only days of match sailing of the official trial series which opened on Aug. 20.

SCENE AT THE START OF WEDNESDAY'S $15,000 SWIM

Exactly 173 men took the plunge to the starter's gun in the fifth Marathon swim at the C.N.E. The photograph shows the scene at the starting boat a split-second after the starter's gun sounded. The more enthusiastic have already hit the water, others seem to be taking their time. Somewhere in this melee of aquatic gladiators is Anna Benoit, only woman entrant. Soon after the start Frank Pritchard of Buffalo took the lead. The water was quite warm, being over 70.

KIWANIS LOSE FIRST GAME TO TORONTO NINE

Hurlers' Wildness and Several Errors on Part of Fielders Accounts For Loss.

HEAVY HITTING.

Locals Have Total of Twelve Safeties Against Visitors' Nine.

Little or no control on the part of the hurlers and several errors by the Kiwanis fielders lost the local team a 11-4 decision in the first game of the semi-finals for the O.B.A.A. junior championship here last night. The infielders did not seem to be able to hit their stride which, coupled with several walks handed out by the pitchers, accounted for the loss.

Cripps opened the game for the local club but only lasted until the second frame when he was yanked for Wood, who pitched fairly good ball until the seventh. Foley gave up his centre field post to take over the hurling duties in this inning and held the Toronto visitors to one lone hit.

Visitors Outhit 12-9

The visitors were outhit 12-9, most of their runs being scored on walks and errors on the part of the homesters. The Petes opened the game strong, Dallin nearly scoring a run in the first canter but he was caught out at the plate on a long throw from right field to the catcher. The locals held a two-run lead up until the fourth frame when the Toronto boys came across with a run when King from centre field gained first on an error, advanced to second on steal and beat the throw home to count the second marker for the visitors.

Second Game Saturday.

Opposing the local youngsters on the mound was Boland, who allowed the homesters 12 hits but he held them well scattered, the Kiwanis collecting three in the third and sixth innings respectively. The second game of the series will be held in Riverdale Park at Toronto on Saturday and strange as it may seem the local club nine is expected to pull off a victory. Deannard's crew lost to Belleville in their first game by a large score in a fixture that was replete with errors but later staged a comeback to win the second and third games, ousting the Moose entry from the playdowns. And this is what the local club officials expect will happen on Saturday.

Toronto had twelve walks handed out to them, three from Cripps, seven off Wood and two from Foley, while Boland had a total of twelve strikeouts. Wood had four strikeouts chalked up to his credit, far from the admirable total which he garnered at Deloro.

Gloucester Races Will Be Held in Oct.

ST. JOHN, N.B., August 28 (C.P.). — The international championship schooner Bluenose will be in competition this fall with her rivals from the port of Gloucester, Mass., announced Captain Angus J. Walters, who arrived here to-day.

Captain Walters said he had been in touch with the Gloucester committee arranging for races in connection with the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on the coast of New England, and arrangements had been completed for a series of three races off that port in October. These will be exhibition races for the Sir Thomas Lipton Cup.

The races will be held on October 9, 11, and 13.

LEAFS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL WITH NEWARK

Montreal Gains Full Game on Toronto By Defeating Reading 9-8.

LEAFS WIN OPENER 4-1.

Red Wings Again Lengthen International Lead, Defeat Skeeters 6-5.

TORONTO, Aug. 28. (C.P.)—The Baltimore Orioles are finding that dislodging the Rochester Redwings from the top of the International League is no easy task.

Going into yesterday's games the Orioles trailed the champions by just one game but to-day that margin has increased to two full games—an advantage that looms big with the season rapidly waning while the Redwings were knocking off Jersey City 6-5 in an uninteresting contest yesterday, the Orioles fell before the Buffalo Bisons 3-2 in a night battle.

Rochester went into the seventh inning with the score tied at four all but two scores on a walk to Martin, Wilson's single on which Selkirk made a two-base error and Florence's sacrifice fly put the Redwings out in front. Jersey City came back with one run in the eighth and threatened again in the ninth but Littlejohn was equal to the occasion, turning the Skeeters back without a run.

Russ Wrightstone, Bisons' first baseman, was largely responsible for Buffalo's victory over Baltimore. Russ poled out three hits, one a home run, in as many times at bat. He accounted for the first run, when he sent Moore home from second with a single and then tallied two more with his homer, which scored Shinners ahead of him. Pussell and Rose were about even in pitching honors, the former giving up six hits and the latter only five.

The Montreal Royals were forced to eleven innings before they succeeded in turning back the Reading Keys 9-8. The victory, with Toronto's split of a double header with Newark, put Montreal a full game ahead of the Leafs in the battle for third place. The Royals blew a four-run lead in the fifth, when Brown weakened, allowing Reading to score five runs. Montreal scored two more in its half of the same frame but the Keys were good for another run in the ninth. Reading again took the lead in the eleventh but the Royals went them one better to win.

Toronto took the opener with Newark 4-1 but lost the nightcap 6-4. Art Herring held the Bear to six hits in the first.

Newark won the second game before the Leafs were able to swing a bat, counting six runs on five hits after two men were out in the first inning. Kyle Graham, pitching fine relief ball, then blanked the Bears for the last six frames of the abbreviated contest.

St. Kitts Defeated By St. Andrew's 7-2

Third Game is Necessary in O. B.A.A. Bantam Play-offs.

TORONTO, Aug. 28—St. Andrews made a third game necessary when they deefated St. Catharines in an O.B.A.A. bantam game at Stanley Park last evening by 7—2. St. Catharines won the first game, 8—5, at St. Catharines. Cherevaty, St. Andrew's pitcher, baffled the boys from St. Catharines, twenty-one of whom were retired by strike-out. This is the second time Cherevaty has accomplished the feat of striking out twenty-one batsmen in a regulation game, the first occasion being against Guelph bantams in the first round of the play-offs.

Jaffe and Zapp were the leading hitters for St. Andrews, having two hits each, while Wood was the best hitter for St. Catharines.

The third and deciding game will likely be played in Hamilton Saturday afternoon. Score in innings:

	R.	H.	E.
St. Catharines ....100001000—	2	5	3
St. Andrews .....00013201x—	7	7	0

Batteries—Vanstone, Hannigan and Wood; Cherevaty and Parker.

ROBINS REGAIN STRIDE TO BEAT GIANTS 7 TO 2

Reduce Distance Between Second and Third Positions By Half Game.

BRILLIANT GAME.

Cubs Lose Final Game of Series to Pirates 10-8 While St. Louis Wins 2-1.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28. (C.P.)—Although Brooklyn's recent record made it appear that the Robins long-heralded "crack" finally had arrived, the team which led the National League longer than any other this season is far from being out of the pennant race.

The Robins were dumped ignominously out of first place while they made a disastrous tour of the west which brought them only six victories in 11 games. But now that they are back they have begun to battle for a place in the pennant race again trouncing the New York Giants.

The Robins opened the series with the Giants which may see them go into second place or back to fourth by slamming out a 7-2 victory yesterday and reducing the distance between second place and third to a half game. There was little brilliant play in the game and much bickering with the umpires, Big Jim Elliott, who came into the game after Bill Clark's dispute with Umpire Jordan had sent him out. Took away the major share of what glory there was. He outpitched three Giant opponents to hold the New Yorkers to nine hits while the Robins, their bats thundering as they were then Brooklyn led the league, piled up 15 effective wallops. Johnny Frederick's home run which put the Robins ahead for the first time and Glenn Wright's four hits in five times at pat were the principal slugging feats.

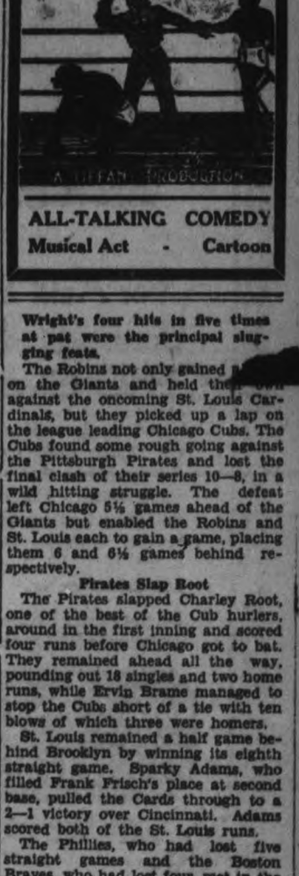
The Robins not only gained a game on the Giants and held them against the oncoming St. Louis Cardinals, but they picked up a lap on the league leading Chicago Cubs. The Cubs found some rough going against the Pittsburgh Pirates and lost the final clash of their series 10—8, in a wild hitting struggle. The defeat left Chicago 5½ games ahead of the Giants but enabled the Robins and St. Louis each to gain a game, placing them 6 and 6½ games behind respectively.

Pirates Slap Root

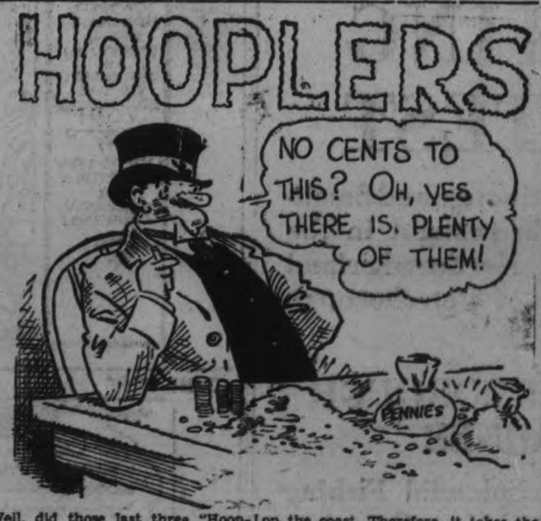
The Pirates slapped Charley Root, one of the best of the Cub hurlers, around in the first inning and scored four runs before Chicago got to bat. They remained ahead all the way, pounding out 18 singles and two home runs, while Ervin Brame managed to stop the Cubs short of a tie with ten blows of which three were homers.

St. Louis remained a half game behind Brooklyn by winning its eighth straight game. Sparky Adams, who filled Frank Frisch's place at second base, pulled the Cards through to a 2—1 victory over Cincinnati. Adams scored both of the St. Louis runs.

The Phillies, who had lost five straight games and the Boston Braves, who had lost four, met in the other National League clash and it was the longer losing streak which ended. With "Sugar" Sweetland pitching effectively and Fred Brickell hitting with just as much effect, Philadelphia won by a 9—3 score.



HOOPLERS



Well, did those last three "Hooplers" stick you? Major Amos Hoople concluded his intelligence questionnaire in yesterday's paper and here are the Major's own answers to the final questions. If you don't agree with him, isn't that too bad says the Major.

QUESTION 1: Suppose an airplane could fly with the speed of the sun, from east to west, leaving New York at 6 a.m., what time would it arrive in San Francisco?

ANSWER: When it is 6 a.m. in New York, it is 3 a.m. on the Pacific Coast. Three hours later it is 6 a.m. on the coast. Therefore, it takes the sun three hours to travel that distance. So, if you don't change your watch to coast time when the plane gets there, it will take you three hours. But if you do change your watch, you will leave at 6 a.m. and arrive at 6 a.m. So that's that!

QUESTION 2: For 30 days' work which would you rather receive — $15,000 or start at a penny for the first day and double it for 30 days? you would have $10,737,418.23.

The final deposit would be $5,368,-709.12—and the grand total comes from adding the amounts you would receive each day.

AMERICANS WINNERS NINE FIELD EVENTS

United States Stars Show Marked Superiority Over British Empire Athletes at Soldiers' Field.

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 28 (C.P.). — When the lights went out over Soldier Field last night the United States had won nine and the British Empire five events of the English-speaking track and field events. The United States won by marked superiority in the field events. Great Britain and the Dominion were unable to score a solitary point in these. Had their power in the field been comparable to that in the distance races the situation would have been reversed.

The Empire captured the one-mile relay, the four-mile relay, the two-mile relay, the two-mile steeplechase and the three-mile team race. On the other hand, the pole vault, shot-put, high jump, 480-yard shuttle relay, hammer throw, broad jump, javelin throw and mile medley relay.

Eight meet records were wrecked.

A Friendship-Maker.

There are hobbies—and hobbies. A hobby is very expressive of a person. Mrs. Clark, for instance, as a friendly, interested little woman who cannot bear solitude. She developed a "visiting" system over the Long Distance telephone. It has proved a wonderful cure for loneliness. And as she calls after 7 p.m., the rates are remarkably low.

AUTHOR OF 'JOURNEY' END' NOW LIVING IN SECLUSION

"Bob" Sherriff Goes No-One-Knows Where to Relieve "Fed-up Feeling."

MAY BE IN TORONTO.

(By Gordon A. Sinclair)

TORONTO, Aug. 28. (Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1930).—R. C. Sherriff, who created "Journey's End" for the amusement of oarsmen of the Kingston Rowing Club, and later became famous because of it, is missing from his usual London haunts these days. Nobody knows where he is, not even Maurice Browne, his closest business pal, but the police have not been asked to hunt for him.

After two and a half years as a semi-celebrity, Sherriff has ducked to get away from it all. He might be somewhere in Canada but the chances are he is up in the Alps somewhere listening to the yodelers do their stuff.

"I want to hide away where there are no telephones and no motor cars. Where they never saw a cable and don't know a radio from bass drum" Sherriff told me during Henley regatta. "Why, what's the matter, fed up?" "Fed up is the word. I haven't a minute to call my own. My wife might as well be a widow. Now I've done another play, it seems to be a failure. Well, right now, I hope it is."

The next play was "Badger's Green" which faded out of the London picture after four inglorious weeks.

But in spite of the fact that he is one of the busiest young men in England, Sherriff still takes time off to coach the crews of Kingston and to entertain them with off-season bits of theatrical hokum in their Thames clubhouse. He insists every one connected with the club shall call him Bob, insists the boys have the best accommodation Henley provides whether they can afford it or not, and insists it is not old-fashioned to be a gentleman.

On the Inside

No better way of learning the character of this chap who sprung from insurance clerk to millionaire within a few months could be found than faced me on the eve of Henley regatta. I had gone to see the races. The hotels were all full. I couldn't even find a boarding house but Jack Guest, diamond sculls winner, said the magic word to Sherriff and I was taken in by the Kingston crew. We ate at a long narrow table in an old inn. There were a dozen oarsmen, Sherriff and myself.

It was the eve of the world's most famous regatta. Kingston had drawn tough opposition and expected to be beaten, so Sherriff said, "Now, chaps, I know you are going in there to-morrow to give all you have for old Kingston. There is no need to talk about that. You'll do your best and nobody can do more. But after it's all over, whether we win or lose, I wish you wouldn't touch the booze. I know after three or four months of a stiff training grind you feel like bursting loose somewhere; I know many of the other crews do it and that it is the accepted idea that when a crew loses, the lid is off. But it's not quite the thing, fellows. I hope you chaps don't think I'm preaching. You're all old enough to know your own minds and that sort of thing. I'm not going on with platitudes about playing the game and that rot, but do try to remember chaps—I know you'll do that for old Bob." And the boys did remember.

There were many things about Journey's End which pleased Sherriff a whole lot. One of these was the success of the play in Germany. "I suppose the days are gone when it was sacrilege to say you liked the Germans," he told me, as if talking to himself. "I liked them. Of course I fought against them and all that, but the Germans after all were a rather decent sort. I rather thought they would like my play and I'm glad I wasn't wrong."

Two Failures

"Was there any country which didn't like it—where it was a failure?" Just two—Australia and New Zealand. The people there are intensely democratic. They rejected 'Journey's End' because it was about officers. Critics were quite frank to say so. If it had been about privates or corporals, it might have gone quite well, but the people wouldn't patronize a play about officers."

When rights were sold to the movies, Sherriff had to threaten all sorts of things and do a tall act in temperament a la prima donna to keep the impressarios of the screen from throwing a little sex appeal into the plot.

Hollywood told Sherrif a movie without a woman simply could not exist. "Why, this thing wouldn't get to first base with no feminine angle and no sex appeal," the see-and-hear boys said. "We can re-write this into a catchy romance without killing any of the drama. We can give the boys a leave to Paris or something and work the love angle in during leave."

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but I have written a play. You can put it on my way or you can do without it. There is no middle road." Sherriff won his point. Hollywood staged his play in two scenes and changed practically nothing—certainly no dialogue. The picture was what the boys call a box office tonic. It also startled some of the big money directors by showing them how economically a real picture could be made.

While Sherriff and I were talking, the telephone buzzed and a London newspaper asked, "I say, Mr. Sherriff, you've probably heard England was beaten by Australia to-day; don't you think we should have some new bowlers?"

"Yes," Sherriff said.

Next day the paper printed a 700-word interview, showing how the "great playwright had taken the selection committee to task and suggested numerous changes in England's line-up." There was detailed criticisms of plays Sherriff had never seen and suggestions for new men. What Sherriff had actually said was "Yes."

Visited Toronto

Once during the casting of a new "Journey's End" company in New York, Sherriff slipped up to Toronto and away again without anyone knowing it. He took a personal interest in all the actors who played his lead character, Captain Stanhope. He had never seen the captain of American Company Number Four, so when the booking office told him that particular group was in Toronto, he hustled up, bought a ticket to see his own play and went back to New York next morning.

Their superior quality is evident before the bottle is opened!

MORE CONSTABLES REQUIRED UNDER MOTOR ACCIDENT LAW

Chief Newhall Sees Heavy Increase in Duties of Police.

PUBLIC CAN ASSIST.

"This is going to throw a great deal of extra work on the Police Department, which is already overloaded. It will also add greatly to the labours of the magistrate," stated Chief of Police Samuel Newhall this morning in discussing the Financial Responsibility Act which has recently been incorporated in the Ontario Motor Vehicle Act.

The morning mail had brought the chief a voluminous number of rules and regulations dealing with the new act, and also a large number of official forms which must be filled out by the police following every accident, incurring "probable damages of more than fifty dollars. The act forms Section 8 of the Motor Vehicle Act and goes into effect on September 1.

"Even as it is now, the greater part of the work of the day duty police is taken up in regulating traffic, parking and other motor vehicle work. From a brief study of this new act, it appears as though the night men will have to come on day duty to handle the increased work necessary; and where are the night men coming from," continued the chief.

Must Report Accidents

"It is now made compulsory to report all accidents to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles in Toronto Involved in this are some 140 questions which must be answered, also diagrams, which I notice are headed important, to be sketched showing the paths taken by the cars in the accident.

"In view of all this it is to be hoped that the motoring public will show much greater car in their driving. I sincerely believe that four out of five accidents could be averted. Not only the police but also drivers of the cars in the accident may be required to send in a full report on the accident under this act if desired by the Registrar. The questions are more numerous and go into greater detail than even the annual Income Report and every word must be printed in block letters.

it is too soon yet to determine how great a reduction may be made in rates to those using electricity.

Association's Work

The Central Ontario Power Association made an exhaustive study and survey of the electrical situation in the Central Ontario zone and a special committee made a full report of its findings to a general meeting of the members held at Cobourg on July 11, 1928.

After hearing the committee's report the meeting unanimously endorsed a recommendation that the dozen or more municipalities that had not yet purchased their local electrical utilities should be urged to do so. Since that time, votes have been taken in a number of the urban centres and favorable results have been indicated as above.

The Central Ontario Power Association realising that the power possibilities along the Trent River were rapidly approaching the limit of practical utilisation, entered upon a campaign several years ago to try to impress upon the Hydro-Electric Power Commission at Toronto and the Ontario government the urgent necessity of an enlarged and dependable power supply for eastern and central Ontario.

The Hydro Commission considered that the representations made were not only reasonable but they were indicative of a situation where this extensive and important division of the Province might be greatly retarded in its prospective industrial development. Serious power shortages were recurring every summer at the period of low water and manufacturers were suffering heavy loses because of interrupted programs at their plants.

100,000 H.P. Available.

A contract was therefore entered into three years ago between the Hydro Commission and the Gatineau River power interests by which 100,000 electrical horse-power was made available to users in this part of the Province at moderate cost. By the terms of the contract it is necessary to absorb only 6,000 h.p. per annum, but any greater quantity than that may be taken up to the maximum of 100,000 h.p. As a matter of fact, and of record, the municipalities in Central and Eastern Ontario are increasing their power consumption by much more than 6,000 h.p. with each passing year.

It is interesting to note that there are now 510 miles of main transmission lines connecting the various towns that are found within the Trent River or Central Ontario System. This system carries a very steady load. The maximum or peak load in 1929 was 51,429 h.p., while the average was 46,340. The number of kilowatt hours generated in 1929 reached the enormous total of 187,904,900.

A feature of present day electrical development is the rapid extension of service lines out into the country districts. There are now twenty rural systems that have been established within the larger Central Ontario System and more are likely soon to follow. One of the most popular moves ever made by the Ontario Government and the Hydro Commission was the decision reached last winter to reduce the monthly service charge from $4.50 to $2.50. Since then it has been a difficult matter to erect the transmission lines fast enough to reach the would-be agricultural customers. It seems probable that within a few years electricity will be as common on the farm as it is in towns and cities and in the rural parts there will be for it a far greater field of usefulness. About the farmers' homes there are multitudinous tasks of the most laborious nature that will be easily and far more efficiently performed by electrical motors and utilities.

Large Saving.

The enormous saving that has been brought about in the Central Ontario zone by public ownership, and the reduced rates made possible by the excellent administration of the Hydro Commission when compared with that of the company that was previously in control, is another feature about which all too little has been said.

In every municipality, lighting rates were at least double, and in some instances three times what they are to-day, when the Electric Power Company owned and controlled the Trent River system. Since March 1, 1916, when the Ontario Government purchased the system, up to the present time, a saving of nearly six million dollars has been made to the power and light users on the Central Ontario System by Hydro-Electric administration as compared with company ownership.

NATIONAL HEALTH INSURANCE WILL BE

nicipal physicians and other developments in Saskatchewan, all of which he regarded as examples of the prevailing trend in Canada to provide adequate medical service through organization.

Calls for a "Readjustment"

"It has been computed that 30 per cent of patients are attended without charge by the medical profession," he continued. "The nurse, also, is justly dissatisfied with her present status, partly because of the fact that she is employed less than 60 per cent of her time. The taxpayer views with complacency a system that relieves him of a vast financial responsibility.

"There is need of readjustment on the principle that 'the laborer is worthy of his hire.' In my judgment there is only one possible solution—health insurance. This is the only answer to the question how competent medical service could be placed within the reach of all, on a basis satisfactory to the public, the medical and nursing professions and the hospitals.

"Private practice, I believe, must remain in the hands of the individual physician if the public is to receive the highest and best type of medical care. This should be provided for under any system of health insurance."

Dr. Smith also advocated legislation enabling governing bodies of the medical profession to pass upon qualifications of men purporting to be specialists, to eliminate those who pretend to knowledge and qualifications which they do not possess.

Discusses Food Fads

Dr. Robert Hutchison, F.R.C.P., London's most noted iconoclast in the matter of health fads, shattered images right lustily. Jovially, but firmly, the British expert harked back to the good old days of mud pies, when he said, children were probably healthier and happier than the oft-weighed, pampered, dieted, psycho-analysed infants of to-day. He laughed at calory-counters and vitamine-victims, and held up as ideal the easy-going individual who merrily meanders to health.

According to Dr. Hutchison, the old ignorance about the body and stolid resignation to its ills was probably a more "healthy" attitude, and certainly a happier one, than the modern curiosity and overanxiety.

Individuals suffering from over-anxiety for health are individual hypochondriacs, he remarked. The diet faddist, Dr. Hutchison mentioned, is perhaps the commonest and most malignant crank or faddist. Briefly the speaker summarised "the scientific truth about all this diet business" as "eat moderately, taking an ordinary mixed diet, and don't worry about anything else—to take no thought for what you shall eat or drink is wiser than to be always fussing over it. Likes and dislikes, however, should be listened to; they are nature's indication of what probably agrees or disagrees."

"Food Fads" Ridiculed

Dr. Hutchison had a laugh for food-fads. Leave raw vegetables, except salads, to herbivorous animals and let the calories look after themselves, he said. Don't scrape up your inside with much roughage, as it is more likely to do harm than good. Fruit is not very nourishing. Milk is bulky and bilious. Vegetarianism, he added, is harmless enough, although it is apt to fill a man with wind and self-righteousness.

Under the head of those who are overanxious about the health of others, the doctor included too-careful mothers. "The rearing of an infant is now regarded as a job requiring the combined knowledge of a chemist, a psychologist and a public officer of health," he commented. Some persons laid to this super-care for children the decline in infant mortality, but Dr. Hutchison averred that if he had time he could make out a case for its being the result of the replacement of the horse by the motor car or of the invention of dried milk.

"I would say to you: Do not worry too much about the health of your children," remarked Dr. Hutchison. "Give them happy homes, with the companionship of other children and plenty of plain, simple food; do not take too much notice of them; send them early to bed, and leave the rest to chance."

Jews and Americans are especially prone to the national type of over-anxiety over health, in the opinion of the British doctor. "I often think it is a pity Moses ever laid down a sanitary code for the children of Israel," he said, "for it has implanted in them the seeds of hypochondrias, which have flourished ever since."

Concluding, Dr. Hutchison expressed the opinion that health propaganda is based on two fallacies: one that health is difficult to attain and keep; the other that it can only be obtained by following certain rules. In reply to the fallacies, he stated, with the eminent Sir Thomas Horder, London, that "health is a broad and well-paved road; nature is both an excellent road-maker and a road-mender." And he added that there are no rules which apply to every individual.

Russia will receive more than $1,000,000 from American tourists this year.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 48 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The little expedition searching for Jane pushed their way slowly through the tangled jungle. Lieutenant d'Arnot was in the lead a hundred yards in advance. Suddenly six black warriors arose about him. He gave a warning shout but before he could draw his revolver he was dragged into the jungle.

Alarmed, the sailors came running to the scene. A volley of arrows fell among them. They answered with their rifles shooting toward their concealed enemies. After a terrific hand-to-hand fight, leaving many dead on both sides, the natives fled, taking Lieutenant d'Arnot with them to their village.

Arriving there at dusk, a great throng rushed out to meet them. Then began for the French officer the most terrifying experience that man can encounter—the reception of a white prisoner into a village of African cannibals. They fell upon him, beating him with merciless blows, tearing his clothes away.

D'Arnot was bound securely to a great post. The women fetched pots and water; others built a row of fires. He watched them, half-fainting with pain, but not once did he cry out. The dance of death commenced to circle around the doomed officer, moving nearer and nearer.

He saw the bestial faces, daubed with color, the shining, naked bodies the cruel spears. Another spear, then another, touched him. He felt the hot trickling blood....He set his teeth....he would show these beasts how an officer and a gentleman died....Suddenly they halted ....as though turned to stone.

CHOIR HOLDS PICNIC.

Mark Street Members Hold Boating Trip Down River.

Mark Street Church choir members' annual excursion undertaken yesterday and consisting of a trip down the river on the steamer Stoney Lake, proved to be a most enjoyable event. Returning to Wallace's Point the choir members went ashore for a picnic supper. A booth on the boat in charge of choir members added appreciably to the choir funds. The committee in charge of the splendid arrangements consisted of Mabel Reynolds, Mrs. Bessie Morrison, and

IN MEMORIAM.

ALLEN—In loving memory of Bert Allen, the dearly beloved eldest son of Jessie Allen of Rockcroft, who was drowned in Little Lake, Peterborough, August 28, 1925, aged 25 years and 8 months.

Five years have gone,
Still I miss him.
Friends may hint the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
Lies within my heart concealed.
Death doth hide,
But not dilvde.

—Gone but not forgotten, by his loving mother and family.

CALL FOR WATER!

When about to turn north on Reid Street at McDonnel Street intersection last evening, a lady driver wrenched the hub cap from the rear right wheel of her sedan car when she struck the bumper of another vehicle parked close to the corner. Displaying undue excitement, the driver glanced backwards, threw her arms in the air and dropped over the heel in a faint She as taken to Dawson's Service Station, where methods of resuscitation were successfully applied.

TRY THIS!

Two contestants for corn eating honors last night consumed twenty cobs and nineteen cobs respectively, at a successful corn roast held by the N.C.O.'s of the 3rd Company, Canadian Machine Gun Corps. The event was held at L. C. Gilder's cottage situated on the banks of the Canal, near Peterborough Golf Links.

1 TOASTER—1 FIRE BRIGADE

A defective toaster and a scorched table upset the normal running of a Reid street household shortly after eight o'clock this morning when a somewhat harrassed little housewife dispatched an urgent call to the Fire Department headquarters. Thousands of dollars worth of fire equipment responded and soon had the offensive little toaster acting on it's best behaviour.

OBITUARY

The death occurred on Wednesday of Mrs. William Turner of this city, in her 91st year.

The deceased lady had resided in this city for the past five years, since leaving Millbrook, her native town. She was predeceased by her husband some years ago.

Rev. Dr. Brown will conduct the funeral service which is to be held at Comstock's Funeral Home on Friday at 2 p.m. after which interment will be made at Millbrook cemetery.

MRS. ABBIE McILMOYLE

The death occurred this morning of Mrs. Abbie McIlmoyle formerly Abbie Pearson of Halls' Bridge, at the age of 61 years.

The deceased lady who was born in Smith township had resided in this district all her life. She leaves three brothers John and William of Smith township and Ephriam of Toronto, also four sisters, Mrs. James Crapp, Mary Pearson, Mrs. Samuel Northey, all of Smith, and Mrs. Walter Roseborough of this city.

The late Mrs. McIlmoyle was a member of the Presbyterian Church, Hall's Bridge. The funeral service will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Walker on Saturday at 2 p.m. at the residence of Mrs. Chas. Herkimer, with whom the deceased resided for the past ten years. Interment at Lakefield cemetery.

WATER SHORTAGE UNFELT IN CITY

Excessive Usage Make Little Difference in Cost Due to Use of Water Turbines.

8 P.M. IS DAY'S PEAK.

Peterborough is not troubled by the over-use of hose for the purpose of watering lawns, R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission told The Examiner this morning. The operation costs of the pump house vary little no matter how much or how little water is used in the city.

The Examiner's local inquiry was prompted by the action of waterworks officials in other municipalities of Ontario where attempts are being made to cut down the costs by stopping the excessive use of water during the evenings.

Mr. Dobbin explained that the power by which Peterborough's water is pumped is secured directly from water turbines at the pump house dam on the Lakefield road. No electrical power medium is used. It makes little difference in cost whether water has to be supplied at the rate of one million gallons a day or four million gallons a day, Mr. Dobbin said. The same staff and the same equipment is used.

Water Power Used

Peterborough's water is pumped into the mains by four pump units. When the maximum suppy is demanded all four are used but when the demand is small only two units are left in action. Peterborough is one of a very few cities in the Dominion that pump water by the use of water power. Where water is pumped electrically, the costs vary according to the amount of water pumped.

The low in the graph of water demands in this city is, of course, between midnight and 6 o'clock in the morning. At 6 o'clock the demand rapidly increases as citizens commence to stir and run water for their baths and other morning household needs. The demand from the factories commences. From its morning peak, the use of water slopes off during the noon hour but increases again at one o'clock. The peak of the day comes about 8 o'clock, daylight saving time in the evening when watering hose are brought into action. At times during hot days it has been necessary to pump water at the rate of four million gallons a day at this peak.

A city by-law forbids the use of hose for lawn-watering purposes between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

250 NAMES SUGGESTED.

Village Name Contest Ends Friday Night.

This Committee has had several meetings and are weighing thoroughly the 250 names suggested which shows the enthusiasm of the school pupils and others in the very historical and suitable names suggested.

Owing to some of the Committee being out of the City we had to delay the decision but hope to have it reported in The Examiner in the course of a few days as soon as all the Committee get together.

The Committee are very grateful for the kind consideration shown and the contest will close Friday night, August 29th at 6 p.m.

LAD'S DEATH PROVES MYSTERY.

HAMILTON, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—The Provincial Health Department is sending an official to ascertain the type of ailment which caused the death of Ernest Patterson, six-year-old son of Constable L. and Mrs. Patterson of Bronte. The child became ill on Monday and died this morning. It was first thought that infantile paralysis was the cause, but some doubt has arisen as to the identity of the disease, and a post mortem will be conducted.

EMPLOYMENT IN CANADA EXCEEDED BY ONLY TWO SUMMERS IN DECADE

Statistics Do Not Reflect Reduced Working Days of Staffs.

7 PER CENT UNDER 1928.

MONTREAL, August 28. — A level of industrial employment that has been excelled in only two of the past ten summers is indicated by figures just issued from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. They cover conditions at August 1 and are based on reports from over seven thousand firms with over a million employees, which means about half the actual total of people engaged in the occupations concerned.

A slight, but very slight, shrinkage in the total number at work during July is indicated, which leaves the index for general employment in our industries about seven per cent. below where it stood a year ago when things were at their peak and one per cent. below August, 1928. At the same time, the reporting firms indicate that 18.8 per cent. more people are employed than the average number for the year 1926.

Greater Activity.

Generally speaking, the West was more active than on July 1, Ontario and Quebec quieter, and the Maritimes at the same level, far in advance of August, 1929. The logging industry has cut down its crews all across Canada, and trade is suffering a midsummer slackness, with manufacturing slowing down in sympathy in Ontario and Quebec. On the other hand, construction, shipping, hotels, and manufacturing in the Maritimes have increased their staffs, the Prairies have made important increases in their construction and communications pay rolls, and British Columbia shows a continued gain, chiefly in manufacturing.

Reduced Working Time.

The contrast of these figures with the general impression of unemployment conditions may be partly accounted for by two factors. They do not make allowances for reduced working time where staffs are only partially employed, and they take no account for the fact that our working population normally increases at the rate of two per cent. per annum, and therefore requires two more jobs per hundred every year.

It is to be remembered also that with employment it is always a case of the "ninety and nine." There can be no secure content among a population who are not fully employed. Still, a sentence from this latest official study of the situation is worth quoting for the reassurance it contains:

"The employers making returns therefore showed a lower level of employment than at the beginning of August of last year and the index was also very slightly lower than on the same date in 1928 but with these two exceptions, the situation as reported by industrial firms was better than in the summer of any other year since 1920."

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM KINGSTON COUNTY JAIL

KINGSTON, Ont., Aug. 28.—(C.P.)—William Proctor, who gave his address as Toronto, and who was yesterday committed for trial here on the charge of house-breaking, to-day escaped from the county jail.

Proctor was inside the jail and while no one saw him make his getaway it is believed that he stepepd into the line of prisoners who were bein gtaken outside to mow the lawn in front of the Court House. As soon as he was outside it is believed that he vanished as quickly as possible.

Police and county jail authorities are making an extensive search for the escaped prisoner. Proctor was finger-printed yesterday before being committed to the jail.

World stocks of nitrate total approximately 2,257,000 tons.

RUMOR CANADIAN PILOT ALIVE IN ARCTIC WASTES

JUNEAU, Alaska, August 28 (C.P.)—Reports that Captain E. J. A. Burke, Canadian aviator missing for more than a week, had been found alive and uninjured with his passenger, an unidentified miner, near Atlin, B.C., reached here last night.

The report gave no details other than that Burke had been found by Pilot W. A. Jerns, who took off from Teslin, B.C., yesterday to search for the missing plane.

The Way Out.

Mr. White used to say that if he depended on letter-writing to out-of-town friends, he'd be utterly friendless. "I can't get it over with a pen," he says, "I have to talk to people. GERMAN FLIERS HOLIDAY IN U. S.

Von Gronau and Three Companions Plan to Visit Niagara Falls.

UNDECIDED ON RETURN.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 28 (C.P.)—The sturdy trans-Atlantic flying boat, the Dornier-Wal, was being groomed to-day for a holiday jaunt to Niagara Falls, the National air races at Chicago, and the James Gordon Bennett balloon race at Cleveland.

Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his crew of three planned to take off tomorrow morning for Buffalo as all four German fliers believe their trip to this country will not have been complete unless they see Niagara Falls.

Remaining overnight in Buffalo, they expect to take off Saturday morning for Chicago, where they will remain over the week-end.

On Monday they planned to take off for Cleveland to witness the start of the National balloon race.

Captain von Gronau said they probably would return to New York Tuesday night or Wednesday morning. On Thursday evening or Friday morning they planned to leave for Washington with a stop off at Philadelphia. They expect to remain in the United States about two weeks, but just how they would return to Germany was still undecided.

ATTEMPTING TO SALVAGE GROUNDED NORWEGIAN SHIP

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 28. (C.P.)—At a late hour this morning no information had been received by the authorities in Halifax as to the progress being made in the attempts to salvage the Norwegian steamer Spica which went ashore on Cerberus Rock Guysborok County, yesterday morning. The Spica was bound for Chicoutimi, Que., with a cargo of molasses from the British West Indies.

Last reports said her main hold was leaking badly and that attempts were being made to haul her off by the tug Tusslo and the Government steamer Arras.

Cuba has exported nearly 30,000,000 pounds of "liquid sugar" this year.

2 KILLED IN GUN BATTLE WITH MOONSHINER

Killers Lie Barred In Cabin

Scrap Starts When Deputy Game Wardens Try to Arrest Suspect.

WERE SEEKING STILL.

Aged Desperado and Son Shoot From Ambush Dropping Officers in Their Tracks.

EUGENE, Ore., Ag. 29. — (CP)—Two officers were shot to death and two others wounded in a prolonged gun battle with Ray Sutherland, 67, alleged moonshiner near Marcola, Ore., last night and early today. Sutherland was believed to be barricaded under the floor of his cabin, probably seriously wounded but still defiant.

The battle started last night when Joe Saunders, deputy game warden, and Oscar Duley, Eugene Policeman, went hunting for a still in the woods near Marcola and sought to arrest Sutherland's son, Baude 20.

Killed from Ambush

The elder Sutherland fired on the officers from Ambush, killing Saunders in his tracks, mortally wounding Duley and fleeing to their cabin, in which they barricaded themselves.

John Carlyle, another deputy, heard the firing and ran to the scene to find Duley Bareis conscious. Duley was taken to a hospital and Carlyle summoned officers who surrounded the cabin.

In the ensuing battle two other deputy sheriffs, Lee Bown, son of Sheriff Harry Bown, and Rodney Roach, were wounded. Bown was shot through both legs and Roach was struck in both arms and one foot. Both were in a serious condition.

At dawn the besieging officers found a trail of blood leading from the cabin. Officers said this might have indicated either Sutherland or his son had made a get-away but were inclined to think the elder man still was sticking to his guns. Another report indicated the son may have left the cabin under cover of darkness.

CHINESE SEEKING ENTRY FOR WIVES

Claim They Are Being Discriminated Against Over Japanesee and Hindus.

TAKE PLEA TO OTTAWA.

TORONTO, Aug. 29. — Thirty-six thousand Chinese residents of Canada will shortly ask Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to modify federal immigration regulations to permit of the entry of Chinese women and children into this country. This request will be voiced by Dr. Tehyi Hsieh, distinguished savant of China and managing director of the Chinese trade bureau of the United States and Canada, and Dr. Li Tchuen, minister plenipotentiary and consul-general for China in Canada. They will present petitions from their countrymen to the Ottawa authorities.

The Chinese in Canada contend they are being discriminated against in the matter of bringing women and children to Canada. They point to the fact that Japanese and Hindus are allowed to bring their wives and children into the Dominion while they are denied the privilege.

Another point Dr. Hsieh stressed was the advantage of the Chinese market in Canada. The people of China, he said, were fast becoming a wheat consming people, having forsaken rice as the basic article of food. At present Canadian wheat could be shipped and sold in China at less than the cost of rice. He said in June last to his knowledge 69,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat was marketed in Shanghai and it would be very easy to double and treble the shipments.

ENGLISH HEAT WAVE ENTERS ON THIRD DAY

LONDWON, Eng., Aug. 29.—(A.P.)—The wave of intense heat which has tortured the British Isles since Wednesday entered upon its third day this morning, with three deaths added to the 29 already reecorded and many cases of prostration treated in hospitals.

At noon the mercury here jumped to 88 degrees Fahrenheit from the low of 83 established earlier and thus beat yesterday's noon reading by five degrees. It apparently was headed for the 90's again.

Changsha is Again Menaced by Reds

HANKOW, China, August 29 (C.P.). — With 20,000 Reds Menacing Changsha again, it is understood that all foreigners in the city will board gunboats tonight for evacuation. Fifteen hundred Changsha refugees reached here to-day aboard a Japanese steamer and three thousand Chinese refugees from Changsha reached Hankow today and more were coming.

Thousands of others fled from Wuchang, across the Yangtse River to Hankow. Red forces were reported preparing to attack the city of a half million population.

PROTECTION FOR BRITISH WHEAT IS BEING URGED

Domestic Product at Lowest Price Since 1913, Press Reports.

FAIR PRICE NEEDED.

Quota Scehme Would Safeguard Market For Home Farmer.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 29. (C. P. Cable.)—The wheat position in the home and world markets is the subject to-day of a special report printed in the Morning Post and showing that the price of the homegrown product is now lower than at any time since 1913. The Post uses this fact to emphasize the necessity of the introduction of a quota scheme which would provide the English farmer with an assured market at a fair price.

The price of homegrown wheat depends, says the Post, on the level of world prices which, in the opinion of well-informed circles are unlikely to undergo any market improvement during the cereal year which commenced August 1, and may even show a decrease in the immediate future. The Post points out that the continent's crops are generally below the standard of last year, which creates a large demand in Europe but this is counter-balanced by North America's large crop and also a big carry-over.

Large Surplus

North America alone could cover the import requirements of consuming conutries, thinks The Post, but there will be substantial supplies also from the Argentine, Australia and other important exporters and the world carryovers of next July will, it is foreseen, be at least as large as at present.

Discussing other factors of the situation The Post refers to the "unknown quantity" which Russia is now exporting and believes her exports are on a fairly large scale.

"The Russian crops constitute hard wheat and as such compete most with the Canadian" says the newspaper, which thinks the Canadian Wheat Pool will not be likely to repeat its holding policy of last year and is taking "an extremey cautious view" of the future.

NORANDA BLAST FATAL TO MINER

One Killed, Two Seriously Injured, Wednesday Night at Rouyn.

ROCK CAVED IN.

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 29. (By the Canadian Press)—One man was killed and two others seriously injured at the Noranda mines, Rouyn, Wednesday night by a dynamite explosion which caused a cave-in in one of the pits. The dead man is William Wood and the injured two of the latter's companions known as Little and Smith.

The accident occurred while the three men with two other miners, were drilling rock at a depth of 900 feet in well number 3 of the Noranda mines. A sudden explosion of dynamite charge happening about 75 feet under the spot where they were at work, sent the three men flying down to the bottom of the pit where they were buried under an avalanche of 200 tons of rocks.

After hours of search, Little and Smith were found still alive but severely crushed. The body of Wood was removed later.

Americans are believed to have spent nearly $20,000,000 in Germany this year.

NEW U. S. ENVOY MET AT OTTAWA BY WILLINGDON

Lieut.-Col. Hanford MacNider Presents Credentials to Governor.

FORMAL RECEPTION.

Minister Conveys Good Wishes of President Hoover.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29.—(CP)—With traditional ceremony the newly appointed United States Minister to Canada, Lieut. Col. Hanford MacNider, today presented his credential to the Governor-General, Viscount Willingdon at the Governor's residence, Rideau Hall. Mr. MacNider gracefully referred to his contacts with Canadian soldiers during the Great War and conveyed to His Excellency the good wishes of President Hoover for the prosperity and happiness of the Canadian people.

Lord Willingdon thanked the new Minister for his references to Canadian troops and declared he entertained correspondingly good wishes to the people of the United States. As the personal representative of His Majesty King George he said he was delighted to welcome the new minister to Canada.

Received at 11:30

His Excellency received Mr. MacNider at 11:30 today. The new Minister was accompanied to Government House by all the commissioned members of the legation staff and wore the dress uniform of a colonel in the United States army.

When Mr. MacNider and his staff arrived at Government House they were escorted into the presence of His Excellency by an aide-de-camp and he at once presented his credentials. He said:

"Your Excellency:

"I have the honor to hand to Your Excellency in your capacity as representative of His Britannic Majesty the letters whereby the President of the United States has accredited me as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Dominion of Canada and at his request to deliver to you the letter of recall of my distinguished predecessor, Mr. William Phillips.

Sends Good Wishes

"The President asks that I convey to Your Excellency his sincere good wishes for the continued prosperity and happiness of the Canadian people.

"I am deeply appreciative of the opportunity which has come to me to represent the United States in Canada and to serve again with those gallant Canadians in whom the whole North American continent felt such a deep pride and admiration throughout the Great War. They showed us the way and gave us a standard which it was our endeavour to profit by and emulate.

"Men who have served together through dangerous days in a common cause have a bond and an understanding which one hesitates to describe in words but which should be dificult to translate into action of lasting benefit to our respective countries."

Lord Willingdon's reply in part was as follows:

"I would beg of you to convey to the President of the United States my sincere thanks for his good wishes for the continued prosperity and happiness of the Canadian people, good wishes which I cordially reciprocate towards the citizens of your great country.

N.B. COTTON MILL IS CLOSED DOWN

York Mill in St. John Will Manufacture Yarns Only.

WORKERS IN OTHER PLANTS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., August 29 (C. P.). — It is announced to-day that owing to conditions in the textile industry and general conditions, Canadian Cottons, Limited, have closed their Cornwall Mill here. The York Mill of the company here will continue in operation, but will not manufacture textiles, activities being confined to the manufacture of yarns for use in other mills of the company in Canada. W. A. Nicholas, for some years superintendent here, has been transferred to Winnipeg to be associated with the sales department of the Western offices, and John Sutherland, paymaster here, has been appointed superintendent of the York Mill. It was said that most of those who worked in the Cornwall Mill had been placed in other units of the company.

Plan to Solve Wailing Wall Problem Would Stop Jewish Praying Services

JERUSALEM, Aug. 29.—(AP)—A most reliable source today said that the Government has submitted a proposal for voluntary solution of the Wailing Wall question.

The proposal is said to acknowledge the Jewish right of access but prohibits a Jew service there, and Jewish praying at the wall, and forbids the Jews bringing any appurtenances to the wall. Jews also would be forbidden under the prohibition from putting nails or notices on the wall

Arabs would be granted the right to erect certain buildings and make some changes after agreement with the Government.

C.P.R. Flier Plunges Into Ottawa River

Three of Engine Crew Injured —Two Expected to Die of Scalds.

CRASH NEAR PEMBROKE.

Only Locomotive of Trans-Canada Train Goes Over Embankment.

PEMBROKE, Ont., Aug. 29. — (CP) — Plunging off the tracks at Arnold's Lane, on the outskirts of Pembroke early this morning, the locomotive of the Trans-Canada Limited, westbound, crack Canadian Pacific Railway train, hurtled down an embankment into the Ottawa River. Three of the crew were seriously injured and two of them may die.

The names of the injured are reported to be:

Charles Shouldice, aged 32, 64 Loretta Street, Ottawa, fireman, fractured skull, critically hurt and not expected to live. Basil Watson, aged 34, 637 King Edward Avenue, Ottawa, riding in locomotive cab with crew, badly scalded and suffering from shock, condition critical.

George Clark, aged 56, 34 Preston street, Ottawa, engineer, fractured left leg and scalds, condition serious but not critical. A Porter, whose name was not known early today, in the Cottage Hospital with a broken thumb.

Steam Scalds Crew

Scalding steam from locomotive as it settled into the water caused the most serious injuries to the engineer and fireman, both of whom together with a brakeman, are in Pembroke hospitals. Physicians were working over them after they were admitted, and the full extent of their injuries could not be learned at once. Only the locomotive toppled over the embankment, according to a resident living near the place, the coaches remaining upright on the rails above.

The Trans-Canada runs between Montreal and Vancouver from May to the middle of September. Bound for the Pacific it reaches Ottawa every night at 9:40 Standard Time, remains only 10 minutes and then continues on its way. Only a few passengers boarded the train at the Union Station, Ottawa last night.

Only all-steel coaches are used on the train, which consists entirely of dining and sleeping cars.

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Aug. 29.— An extensive new find of diamonds has been reported at Komaggas, a native reserve in Namqualand, where large quantities of fine stones are said to have been discovered.

Young Thieves Give Police Merry Run

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., August 29. (C.P.). — Two young Hamilton boys were arrested by the police here early to-day after they had robbed the front verandah of a house of several bottles. In Court this morning they were remanded until to-morrow.

One of the boys was captured after being chased by an officer for several blocks, when he crept into a hole near a local hotel. The officer fired a shot after the fleeing lad. The other was arrested on the C.N.R. tracks. He had dropped a bottle of milk. On one of the youths were found several souvenirs which he admitted had been stolen from a local store.

SIMON DEFENDS INDIAN POLICY

Sir John Claims Problem One of Most Fascinating and Difficult in World.

AMERICAN SYMPATHY DUE.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—Sir John Simon, head of the Royal Commission of Enquiry to India, last night explained and defended British policy in India. He spoke at a dinner given by the Federal Bar Commission to visiting British and French lawyers.

Sir John said the Indian problem was one of the most fascinating and difficult in the world to-day. All parties in Britain were agreed, he said, that self-governing institutions must gradually be developed with a view to the realization of responsible government.

"Anyone who really understands the complicated structure of Indian society will appreciate how dangerous and how foolish it would be to form a confident judgment or to recommend a general course of treatment for India as a whole by basing oneself on casual or partial acquaintance with Indian conditions. India is not a single problem; it is a confused conplication of questions which cannot be disposed of in a pose of omniscence of vague sympathy," said Sir John.

"I say boldly that Britain is entitled to the sympathy and support of the American people in the effort she is making to develop self-governing institutions in that Oriental continent," he said.

SCORCHING HEAT TAKES 29 LIVES IN BRITISH ISLES

Nineteen Persons Victims of Torrid Wave in England Thursday.

EUROPE SUFFERS.

Thermometers Recorded From 94 to 120 Degrees on Continent.

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 29 (C.P. Cable).—About one million square miles of Europe—from Scandinavia to the Mediterranean, and from the British Isles indefinitely eastward—were scorched to-day in a heat wave which in Britain alone has taken 29 lives in two days.

While the thermometers of England, Northern, Central and Western Europe registered a maximum temperature of about 94, further south temperatures of as high as 120 fahrenheit were reported. Residents of the larger cities were severely tried by the excessive heat, and workers in the industrial centres were among the chief sufferers.

Factories Closed.

Several steel mills in South Wales closed down temporarily Thursday when the men declared that they were unable to endure the intense heat near the furnaces. A number of men in the tin plate works of the same area collapsed and had to abandon work. The heat also overcame many workers in the textile factories of other parts of England.

Prince In France.

There were numerous cases of fainting and prostration in lesser degree. Meanwhile the Prince of Wales played golf in the broiling temperature at Le Touquet, France. Afterwards he flew his own plane back to England.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson broadcast in London last evening, that the heat wave here is not nearly so severe as the heat wave experienced recently in America.

19 Died Thursday.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Aug. 29 (C.P.).—The New York Times, in a cabled despatch from its London correspondent, says to-day that 19 persons died of heat prostration in England yesterday as temperatures continued to shatter records.

The maximum temperature recorded in London was 93.5 degrees, the highest in nineteen years.

LIGHT-BEARING DEVICE AIDS PILOTS IN FOG

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 29.—(C.P.)—A new aid for airplane pilots seeking to land on a fog-bound airport, a device that "hears" light has been revealed.

It is the invention of Earl C. Hanson, Chicago scientist, who disclosed the development to a group of aeronautic experts attending the National Air Races.

Hanson utilizes invisible magnetic waves emanating from a bank of neon tubes, intercepting them with a device in the cockpit that causes a steady hum in earphones clapped to the pilot's head.

Nearly 25 per cent more Americans visited Austria this year than last.

Minister Sacrifices Life in Vain Effort To Save Young Girl

Second Double Drowning of Year at Lake Erie Resort.

PORT BURWELL TRAGEDY.

Fear Stricken Girl Struggled Frantically and Died of Fright.

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 28 (C.P.) — The second double drowning at Port Burwell bathing beach this year occurred last night, when Rev. A. G. Warder, Pastor of Aylmer Mission, lost his life in attempting to save that of Miss Olive Mitchell, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Mitchell, of Aylmer.

Mr. Warder with Miss Mitchell and his two young daughters, Elverna and Hazel, were bathing, prior to the evening meeting of the seventh annual tent meeting of the Bible conference, when Mr. Warder noticed that Miss Mitchell had waded out a considerable distance from the shore and seemed to be in difficulties. He hurried to the rescue, and while struggling to shore both sank from view, while his two little girls stood helpless.

Their screams attracted Mr. and Mrs. H. Pearce, who swam out and recovered the body of the girl. Efforts to find the body of Mr. Warder at first were fruitless.

First Aid Failed

The alarm was spread and preparations were made to drag for the body of the man who died in attempting to effect a rescue. Meanwhile, Dr. Rodgers of Port Burwell was called and first aid was used to save the girl, but all efforts were of no avail.

Those seeking the other body were unsuccessful until an hour and a half after the drowning, when the body floated to the surface.

Rev. Mr. Warder and his wife and family, composed of three girls and a boy, had been camping on the West Beach for the past two weeks. He had been active in the tent meetings. In the morning he conducted prayer service and in the afternoon delivered an inspiring sermon.

Girl Died of Fright

Miss Mitchell came to visit the Warder family early this week, and after the supper hour the two, along with the two daughters, decided on a cooling swim before the evening session at the tent meeting. As far as is known, the girl could not swim. When she waded out a considerable distance, the man feared she was in danger and went to bring her closer to shore. Apparently she became frightened and struggled frantically when her rescuer reached her, with the result that both were pulled below the surface.

A medical examination proved the girl died from fright. There was no water in her lungs. The man was caught by the undertow.

The remains of Rev. Mr. Warder will be taken to Lion's Head for burial, while funeral arrangements have not been made for the dead girl.

Rev. Mr. Warder was 54 years old. He had been pastor of the Aylmer Mission for three years.

Postmaster Insists On Quitting Office

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.). —Thomas Beattie, postmaster at Comber, is determined to resign and leave the duties of the office even though a successor may not have been appointed by Saturday. He made a request some months ago that he be relieved of his duties, but no action has been taken by the Post Office Department officials. Now he says that he is quitting anyway. He has been postmaster in Comber for a number of years, and until recently was assisted by his daughter, who is now married and living in Hamilton. He is very popular in the village, and his resignation is generally regretted.

THREE WARSHIPS AT BUENOS AIRES AID GOVERNMENT

President of Argentina Under Heavy Guard—Trouble in Cuba.

POLITICAL UPHEAVALS.

Revolutionary Disturbance in a Brazilian State—Coup in Peru.

Military and political unrest showed its effects to-day in four American republics: Brazil, Argentina, Cuba and Peru.

Advices from Montevideo said the Brazilian state of Rio Grande Do Sul had been disturbed by a revolutionary movement headed by Juan Francisco De Souza, and that all Federal troops have been confined to barracks.

Havana reported the Government in readiness to proclaim martial law in Maximo Gomez, Matanzas, where rioting over political issues had not yet been quelled. The same despatch said a score of politicians had been arrested at Cruces, Santa Clara, in a plot against the Government.

Destroyers Arrive.

Arrival of three destroyers at Buenos Aires to-day strengthened the hand of the Government at Argentina, threatened by insurgents. President Hipolito Yrigoyen did not emerge from the heavy guard of troops yesterday thrown about the Government House and his residence. Buenos Aires still was unable to explain the extreme measures, and as a consequence there were many rumors regarding the seriousness of the situation.

Peru's revolution which ousted President Leguia and installed Lieutenant-Colonel Luis Sanchez Cerro as military dictator to-day had completed its cycle. With Sanchez sworn in as President and Lieutenant-Colonel Ortega military governor of Lima, one year after the date they launched the revolt.

FATE TAKES HAND BANDIT CAPTURED

Italian Drops Bills on Street After Escaping From Montreal Bank.

LOSES RACE TO CONSTABLE.

MONTREAL, Que., August 29 (C. P.). — An Italian, whose name the police say is George Baquit, was arrested here to-day half an hour after the St. Catharine Street East branch of the Provincial Bank had been held up.

A robber, who walked into the bank with a sawed-off shot gun and forced the cashier to hand him all the money in his cash boxes, escaped in a taxicab with about $3,000.

Shortly afterwards as he was walking along St. James' Street, in the downtown district, Baquit dropped a few bills from his vest. A passing constable stopped to pick up the currency and as he was about to hand the bills to the suspect, the Italian ran away. After a short chase the policeman caught up with Baquit but the latter put up a fight and had to be knocked out before being placed under arrest. He was held for questioning in connection with the hold-up.

AUTOMOBILE MEN APPEAL TO GOV'T

Seek 10-15 Per Cent. Tariff Increase Against American Cars.

LARGER HOME MARKET.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29. (C.P.)—A special despatch to the Mail and Empire from Ottawa to-day says:

"Representatives of several Canadian automobile manufacturing concerns and the Canadian Auto Manufacturers' and Exporters' Association had an interview with Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue and his deputy R. W. Breadner, Commissioner of Customs yesterday with reference to the customs tariff on autos entering Canada and also with regard to the action of New Zealand in withdrawing the preference to Canadian automobiles entering that country.

While no official statement was given out, it is understood the Canadian Manufacturers of motor-cars favor an increase in the tariff to give them a larger share of the home market. It is believed that an increase of 10 or 15 per cent. against American cars would furnish adequate protection to Canadian producers and ensure steadier employment to Canadian workmen.

DEPUTY REEVES ADMIT TAKING $500 BOND TIPS

Judge Denton States Affairs Shocking in York Township.

HINTS TORONTO VICTIM.

Township Counsel Believes Contractors' Combine Exists Similar to A.B.C.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—As the result of yesterday's probe into allegations that York Township Council members had been bribed by contractors seeking to have their tenders accepted for construction of sewers, Mayor Bert S. Wemp planned to hold a conference to-day with Works Commissioner R. C. Harris to ascertain if a contractors' combine existed in this city.

The Mayor's decision to review the city contract system followed a declaration by Judge J. H. Denton, presiding at the probe, that not only York Township but Toronto and other municipalities might also be victims of a contractors' combine.

$500 for Political Expenses

Several startling admissions marked the investigation yesterday. Quite frankly Deputy-Reeves J. J. Little and Isaac C. Woolner, both past middle age, admitted they accepted a $500 Victory Bond tendered them by Basil Holden, of the Nelson River Construction Company. It was offered, they said, to defray political expenses.

Gideon Grant, K.C., Special Township counsel, said the testimony of John Pryor, contractor's employee, led him to believe there existed a combine of construction contractors similar to the Amalgamated Builders' Council, which was recently probed at Windsor, London, and Toronto, by a Royal Commission.

Pryor named two contractors as being President and Secretary of an alleged organization which sent out cards to members for meetings, at which lots were drawn to see who would tender on jobs.

HOPE FOR NEW RADIUM FINDS

Physicians State Use of Radium Not Yet Displaced Surgery For Cancer.

USED AT "BORDER LINE."

WINNIPEG, Man., August 29 (C.P.). — Use of radium for cancer-treatment has not yet advanced far enough to displace surgery, according to opinions expressed before the surgery division of the British Medical Association annual meeting. Six outstanding surgeons concurred in the opinion that radium had not ousted the allied methods of cancer-treatment, and that each case should stand on its own diagnosis.

Radium stands out as invaluable in so-called "border-line" cases where surgical operation was sure to prove fatal, in the opinion of Sir Charles Gordon-Watson, London.

Greater results are in the offing through further research into radium-use, believed the physicians who took part in the discussion, the most important of the day's sectional gatherings. Early diagnosis was characterized as highly important by all speakers, under the established fact that early growth could be destroyed by radium.

HAVE UNIFORM BAG LIMIT

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—In an effort to have uniformity in bag limits prevail throughout the Dominion, Canadian members of the International Game and Fisheries Committee, it was learned to-day, will urge the authorities at Ottawa, to enforce regulations under the Migratory Birds Prevention Act in such a way that season bag limits of birds shall apply in all Provinces.

Women On All Fronts Win Equality

Speaking recently in London, England, one of the prominent women in the British House of Commons stated that Amy Johnson's epic flight to Australia finally knocked the good old phrase, "the weaker sex" into oblivion. "To-day there is no weaker sex." In the varied fields of science, art, politics, aviation and business, woman has demonstrated her equality with the leading males of the human species." Above are some of the ladies who have put an end to the "weaker sex": Mme Marie Curie, who with her late husband, discovered radium, the only known cure for cancer, is still laboring to discover new sources of the miracle metal. Dr. Florence R. Sabin, famous throughout the world as a pioneer in blood chemistry research. Miss Amy Johnson, the English girl who astonished the world by making a solo flight from England to Australia. In political world we have Margaret Bondfield, first female cabinet minister in Commons. Then we have Miss Nellie R. Taylor and Ma. Ferguson, who became the first woman governor in the United States.

JAIL DELIVERY FOILED IN ESSEX

Detroit Visitors to Prison Carried Revolver and Bullets.

TURNKEYS VIGILANT.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.).—As the result of a tip received several weeks ago by William Smith, one of the turnkeys at the Essex County jail, what is believed to have been a plot to stage a jail delivery to-day was nipped in the bud late yesterday with the finding of a revolver and ammunition on a couple from Detroit who came to call on Charles Jenkauskas, who is being held for trial by the Supreme Court on a charge of receiving stolen property.

Owing to the watchfulness of the turnkeys, W. Kurkinitis, aged 21, and Mrs. Mary Smith, aged 26, both of Detroit, are in custody. On Kurkinitis was found a .38 calibre revolver, fully loaded, and a box of cartridges to fit.

A close watch had been kept on visitors to Jenkauskas for some weeks, following the tip received by Smith to the effect that an attempt would be made to get a weapon into the cell for Jenkauskas, who would thereupon proceed to shoot his way out of the jail, from which but one prisoner has escaped since its erection in 1925.

LUMBER OUTLOOK IN NORTH WOODS BAD THIS WINTER

Deputation Seek Abatement of Timber Dues and Stumpage Bonus.

10,000 FEWER MEN NEEDED.

Ontario Gov't Will Start Road Work to Provide Jobs.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.).—Serious depression prevails in the lumbering industry of Ontario, it was revealed at a conference here between a deputation from Northern Ontario lumbering districts, Premier Howard G. Ferguson and Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests.

Headed by George B. Nicholson, Conservative M.P. for East Algoma, the deputation comprised 24 operators representative of the lumbering industry from the Quebec and the Manitoba boundaries. The spokesman declared that unless conditions materially improve within the next few months, there will be at least 10,000 fewer men employed in the bush next winter.

A survey of conditions has revealed, it was claimed, that lumber yards in all parts of the Province are overtaxed with no markets apparently available. As a result, it was said, most operators intend to curtail their cutting this season by at least a third of their normal output. In some cases the reduction will amount to 50 per cent.

The deputation claimed reduced production means reduced employment not only in the bush but in other industries connected with lumbering.

Paper Outlook Dark.

Similar conditions exist in the paper industry of the north, it was said. In some areas operations may be normal, but in the majority of cases—due chiefly to the general uncertainty regarding newsprint—reduced activities and reduced labor will be the order of things.

The Ontario Government has already taken the matter in hand, Premier Ferguson announced. It was also learned on good authority that steps will be taken by the Government to ease, by means of road construction and northern development work, the acute unemployment situation that is expected to arise from the slackening off in timber operations.

At the conference, it was learned, the operators pressed for an abatement of their timber dues and a reduction in their bonus stumpage.

No promise was held out to them, it was learned, but their requests will be given serious consideration by the Cabinet at their next Council meeting.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but Communists are suspected.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

NEW STANDARD FOR CREAMERIES

Act to Improve Dairy Products Drawn Up Ready to Enforce.

BUTTER FAT PRICES SET.

TORONTO, Ont., August 29 (C.P.)—Regulations that provide additional safeguards in dairy production set standards and determine the scale of payments for the products, according to their tested quality, are to be put into effect immediately, it was announced by Hon. G. S. Henry, Acting Minister of Agriculture.

The new regulations state: "All milk received at a milk and cream distributing plant which is sold or distributed in liquid form for human consumption shall be purchased on a uniform standard of 3.4 per cent. butter fat. For milk testing from 3.4 per cent. butter fat to 4.5 per cent. butter fat, the purchaser shall add four cents per hundred pounds of milk for each one-tenth of one pre cent. fat above the standard. And for milk testing below 3.4 per cent. fat the purchaser shall deduct four cents per hundred pounds of milk for each one-tenth of 1 per cent. below the standard."

"It will be seen from this that a difference of one per cent in the fat will mean a difference of 40 cents in the purchase price of a hundred pounds of milk,' said Mr. Henry. "Milk testing above 4 5 per cent. fat will be 'special' and may be purchased on any basis."

Under the heading "Methods of Paying for Milk and Cream," the relation is: "A premium of one cent per pound butter fat shall be paid for special grade cream over first grade cream, and a premium of three cents per pound butter fat shall be paid for first grade cream over second grade cream."

The new regulations also cover such questions as the minimum equipment for creameries and cheese factories, the basis of grading cream for butter, pasteurization, and the qualifications necessary to secure certificates and permits as cheesemakers, buttermakers, and milk graders.

NEW FOUNDATION SEEN FOR EMPIRE

Eminent Surgeon Claims Law, Religion Not Enduring Basis.

LOYAL TO TRADITION.

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 29. (C.P.) Visions of newer, better foundations for the British Empire were conjured up last night in the words of Lord Moynihan of Leeds, eminent British surgeon. Proposing the toast "to the Empire" at the annual dinner of the British Medical Association, he told more than 1,000 physicians that commerce, law, religion—even science—could not prove an enduring basis for Empire.

"At the moment commerce holds the first place in men's minds to settle the quarrels of economists is hardly our task. But we may well ask whether we in England are clinging to the only rock which can save us from the perils of the times; or whether, tongue-tied by authority, and in the grip of dead hands, we are loyal to a tradition, the soul of which was perished."

MENCKEN RAPS BRITISH GOV'T

Noted Editor Assails President Hoover and His Record.

MACDONALD DOES NOTHING.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 29.—In his best iconoclastic form, Henry L. Mencken, redoubtable editor of the American Mercury in an interview here attacked the Ramsay MacDonald Government as one that "had failed to do every single thing that was expected of it," assailed President Hoover and his record and commented on prohibition and other phases of current United States life.

Mr. and Mrs. Mencken arrived here following their quietly celebrated marriage at Baltimore.

"Ramsay MacDonald is a kind of Methodist Evangelist. He is the only Government I have ever heard of that has failed to do every single thing that was expected of it. From the man in the street who expected to get food for his empty stomach to the high-minded Liberal who looked to him for a solution of the problems of India he has failed them all", the editor said.

SWINE AWARDS DECIDED AT "EX"

Holstein, Jersey, Ayrshire and Guernsey Champions Picked By Judges.

ONTARIO TAKES SHARE.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—Stevenson Farms of Allison and J. Lerch and Sons, Preston, monopolized the awards at the swine judging for Yorkshire swine at the Canadian National Exhibition.

J. Lerch and Sons took both the Grand Champion and Senior Champion Boar awards, with Stevenson Farms second in each case. Stevenson Farms took both the Junior Champion Boar and Reserve.

R. F. Carscadden and Sons of Bradford took the Grand Champion award for Sows, with J. K. Featherston of Streetsville getting the Reserve. Both Senior Champion Sow and Reserve awards went to R. F. Carscadden and Sons.

J. F. Featherston captured the Champion Sow award; J. Lerch and Sons, taking the Reserve.

Four Cattle Championships

Four Championships in livestock from the famous dairy breeds—Holstein, Jerseys, Ayrshires and Guernseys—were decided from the males of these breeds paraded before the judges.

In the Holsteins, which had the largest entry, Abeekork Sylvius Lad, exhibited by M. L. McCarthy, Sussex, N.B., repeated his success of a year ago, winning the Senior and Grand Championships.

In the Jersey cattle Male Championships, J. W. Innes of Woodstock, Ont., had the Senior and Grand Champion Bull in Volunteers April Sultan.

Keen competition marked the Ayrshires. First went to Howie's Top Grade, exhibited by R. H. Ness and Sons, Howick, Que., later made Reserve Senior Champion Bull. Springbrook Ringmaster won the championship for Le Moines Point Farm, Portsmouth, Ont., with Glen Campbell's Dynamic taking the Reserve for Glen Campbell Farms, Dundas, Ont.

Bonnie Brae Trojan won both Senior and Grand Champion Bull for William S. Brooks, Paris, Ont., in the Guernseys.

THREE EXECUTED.

Led Fatal Auburn Prison Riot Last Year.

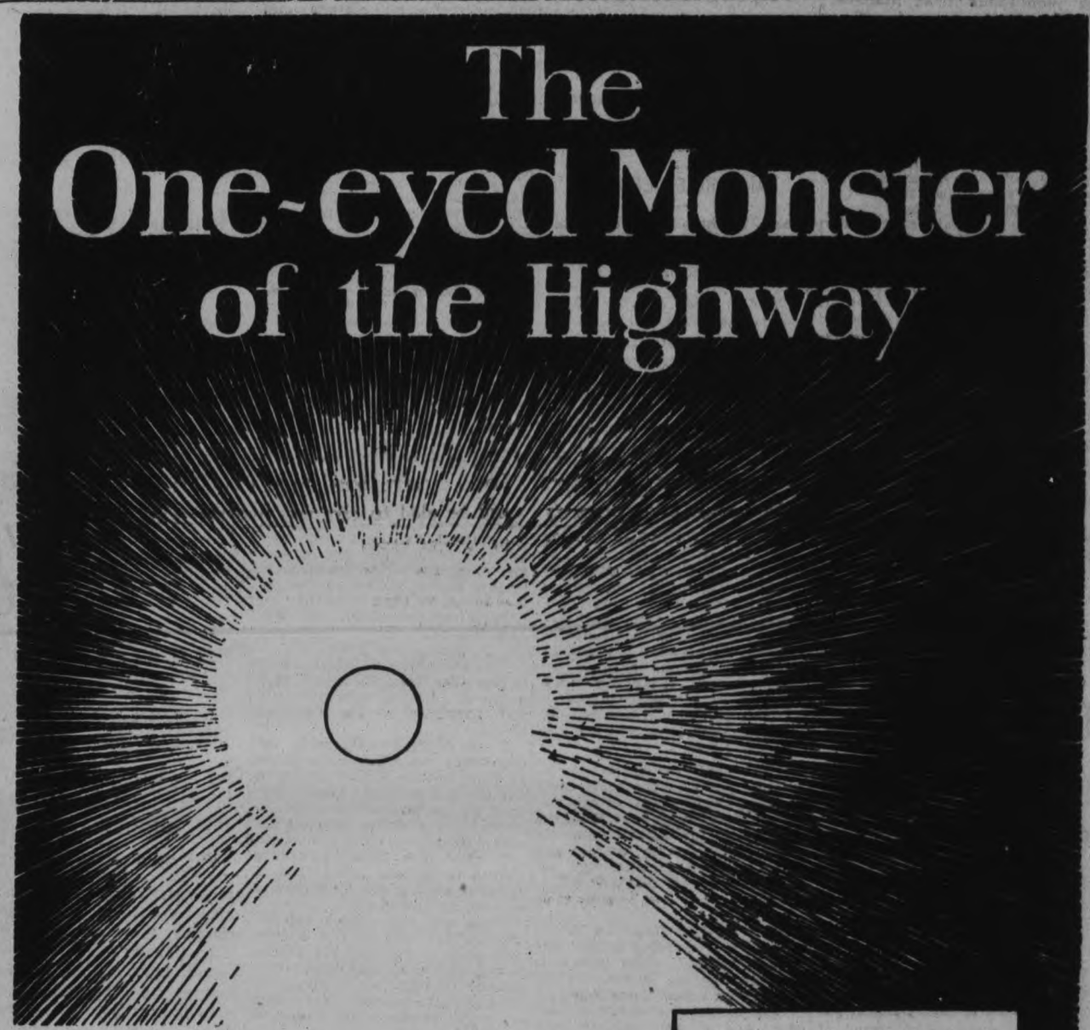
OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 29.—In a triple execution in Sing Sing prison last night, Claud Udwine, 29; William Force, 30; and Jesse Thomas, 30; were electrocuted for their part in the Auburn prison riot last December in which ten lives were lost.

In that riot Henry Sullivan, the rebel leader, was killed. Udwine, Force and Thomas, with three others were indicted and tried for murder as a result of his death in the barricade. The others were acquitted, but the three now awaiting death were convicted.

For weeks the father and two sisters of Udwine and relatives of Force and Thomas had been petitioning the Governor to commute their sentences to life imprisonment.

Thousands of people at Pontyridd, Wales, recently saw the unveiling of bronze memorials to Evan James and his son, the Pontyridd weavers who wrote the words and music to "Hen Wlad fy Nhadau," the Welsh national anthem.

The One-eyed Monster of the Highway



A DARK ribbon of road—shadows ahead that puzzle the driver with the halflights they make.

Suddenly a single blinding shaft of light! Which side is it on? The driver can't tell. He chooses the right. Then the tearing crash of steel and the shattering of glass . . . the night filled with cries of terror.

He guessed wrong!

And because he was left to guess, another automobile accident occurred.

One headlight misleads the other driver. It does not show you all the road. It endangers your own life and the life of everyone you meet. Your car becomes a menace on the highway and you are subject to a fine.

The law demands that your lights shall always be in proper condition. The Night Traffic Patrol will summons you if they are not. Both headlights must be burning, and both must be in focus. Always carry spare bulbs. Test your headlights frequently. You can adjust them yourself. Send a postcard to the Department of Highways, Toronto, and you will receive complete instructions free. Or, any garage man will do the adjusting for a small charge.

Do not let your car be a night-time terror on the highways . . . a one-eyed monster! Have both lights burning always, and always in focus.

Seven Rules for Safe Driving

You must observe them and ALL other precautions ALL the time

1. Have your car in perfect mechanical condition — particularly BRAKES, STEERING GEAR and HEADLIGHTS.
2. GIVE YOUR UNDIVIDED ATTENTION TO YOUR DRIVING. In passing traffic, be sure there is a place for you in the traffic line ahead.
3. Never attempt to pass on curves or steep grades.
4. In entering main streets or highways, or in approaching a railway crossing where a full view of the track is obscured—STOP and LOOK.
5. When other vehicles try to pass you—LET THEM PASS.
6. When making a right turn, keep to the right of the highway; when making a left turn, keep to the centre.
7. Always SIGNAL before you slow down, stop, or change your course, and never BACK UP before ascertaining that the road behind is clear.

CATTLE, GRAIN, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, August 29. — Cheese prices continued to drop on the local dairy market yesterday owing to the heavy supplies and little demand for Canadian cheese in foreign markets. Prices were reduced to 14¾c to 15c for Ontario cheese and 14¼c for Quebecs.

Butter was also weak, although some efforts were being made to raise the quotations, which ranged from 28½c to 28¾c, the former being the most general. The egg market was strong on the better grades and weaker for seconds and storage products. Jobbing houses increased their prices to retailers 1 cent a dozen on extras, with carlot sales of seconds being generally lower than Wednesday's prices.

The potato market was unchanged at 90c for local new stock and $1.00 to $1.05 for New Brunswick Cobblers per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Corn values developed notable strength yesterday, and helped to rally the wheat market after upturns had again broken the season's bottom price record. Upturns in corn quotations were associated with a statement from a leading crop authority that the corn trade now has to deal with likelihood of 13 feedig months for live stock instead of a 12-month feeding year. Big receipts of Canadian and domestic spring wheat were largely responsible for the weakness that wheat values displayed throughout the greater part of the day.

Corn closed firm, 5-8c to 1 3-8c a bushel net higher. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as Thursday's finish to 3-8c up. Oats, unchanged, to 1-2c advance, and provisions unchanged to 7c off.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, August 29. — Wheat prices came back from lowest levels of the season yesterday on the Winnipeg grain market and marked time at almost Wednesday's closing figures. Losses all round of a cent were turned into gains in two future months and only a fractional decline in the other as better export demand for North American wheat bolstered the bull forces. The market finished ⅝c lower to ¼c higher.

Trading was on a fairly light scale and Eastern buyers, who came into the market to fill overseas orders, easily absorbed all the offerings. Export business overnight was conservatively estimated to exceed 500,000 bushels.

With the exception of a little demand for high-grade durums at spreads unchanged, cash wheat interest was indifferent. Buying in the coarse grains market was confined to oats, barley, and rye. Prices held firm.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, August 29. — Cheese prices were reduced a fraction to 15 cents in yesterday's activities of local produce dealers. Eggs and butter held unchanged at the week's low levels.

Little demand is apparent this season for Canadian cheese in export quarters and with the normally good make, the trend is inclined to weakness.

Prospects in butter are that present price tops of around 30 cents for No 1 creamery will persist for some time. Dealers do not expect any marked weakness, but neither do they look for any sharp increase. New Zealand arrival swill be practically nil for the next few weeks unless a sharp improvement occurs in domestic price levels. Consumption is somewhat less than normal while present supplies are above normal requirements.

Fresh eggs are still moving through to consumers and there is likelihood of any material reduction in storage holdings in the immediate future.

MOTORISTS! The New Law Goes Into Effect Monday, September 1st!

Under this law automobile insurance gives you two-fold protection:

1. Protection against suspension of your driving license and car permit, under this law.

2. Protection against claims and judgments for injury, death, or property damage.

HAVE you stopped to consider the responsibility fixed upon you by the newly amended Ontario Highway Traffic Act?

If you violate certain of the Ontario traffic laws or cannot, within 15 days, satisfy a final judgment in excess of $100 arising from personal injury or death or damage to the property of others, your driving license and car permit shall be suspended until you give proof of financial responsibility.

The easiest obtainable way to show proof of financial responsibility—as well as the most economical—is a certificate of insurance with a licensed insurance company. The new Act specifies a minimum of $5,000 for injury to or death of one person; $10,000 for injury to or death of two or more persons; and $1,000 for damage to the property of others.

This is the minimum amount specified by law—and far less than any one who values his peace of mind will carry. And it costs very little to carry more. Agents of The Travelers will be glad to give you quotations for your particular needs.

Act now. You do not wish to lose the privilege of driving your car. You certainly do not wish to be involved in an accident that may cost you your savings, your home—everything you own. Insure now—The Travelers will give you full protection. Mail the coupon below for a free digest of the new Act. Better still, get in touch with the nearest Travelers agent.

Why More Owners Insure in The Travelers Than in Any Other Company

The Travelers originated automobile insurance. Since writing the first policy, it has written more automobile insurance than any other company. To-day a vast army of automobile owners, more than 500,000 in number, place their automobile insurance with The Travelers. Here are a few of the reasons for this continent-wide preference:

1. The Travelers has paid claims in excess of three-quarters of a billion dollars.
2. The Travelers is licensed to do business in the Dominion as well as in all states of the United States.
3. If you should drive your car in any of the thirteen states having Financial Responsibility Laws, similar to the new Ontario Law, a Travelers policy will protect you at no additional cost. Such laws are in effect in New York, the New England states, Wisconsin, California, etc.
4. The Travelers gives insurance and prompt settlement of claims at the same rates you would ordinarily pay for insurance alone.
5. The Travelers has operated in Canada since 1865.
6. The Travelers investments in Canadian securities total $64,000,000.
7. The Travelers has 213 main claim offices strategically located in Canada and the States to render prompt service wherever you travel.
8. The Travelers has 1700 salaried men who devote their time to the payment of claims under Travelers policies.
9. The Travelers has thousands of agents throughout the continent, any one of whom will gladly assist you in case of accident while touring.

A TRIUMPH FOR DETERMINATION.

The story of the triumph of the two young swimmers, Marvin Nelson of Iowa and Isador Spondor of Port Colborne, Ont., who finished first and second in the Toronto marathon on Wednesday, is an epic of determination and endurance that should be a source of encouragement to everybody with difficulties to face.

Nelson a year ago had to make his way to Toronto via the brake-beam of freight cars and experienced the crushing disappointment of collapsing a few yards from the finishing line with a cash prize almost in his grasp.

It was a misadventure that might well have discouraged anybody save a lion-hearted boy like the Fort Dodge youngster, who came back to Toronto this year and triumphed over the greatest swimmers of the continent in record time.

Spondor's record is equally remarkable.

Unheralded last year, he borrowed a delivery truck to take himself to Toronto, arrived with practically no money, and fought his way up into the prize-winning class, to come back this year and finish second after having led the entire pack for a long stage of the race.

When youth, determination and skill are combined as they were in the case of Nelson and Spondor there can only be one answer—victory.

CARELESSNESS AT CROSSINGS.

The Board of Railway Commissioners issued some figures in regard to level crossing accidents that should cause wonder as to the mentality of many people who unhesitatingly accept the responsibility of driving a motor car, a task for which they are apparently unfitted.

During the three years ending with March 31 of this year, according to the report, there were no fewer than 3,791 instances of negligence at crossings in Canada.

More than one-third—714 to be exact—were attributed to ignoring either danger or stop signals; drivers started to pass under the raised or lowered in 77 cases, and in the process of being raised or lower in 77 cases, and in one reported instance a motorist went to the trouble of raising the gates after they had been lowered.

126 motorists drove over tracks in front of approaching trains and 20 others attempted to drive over tracks while the moving train was actually on the crossing.

77 drivers hit the side of moving trains, and 43 more hit trains that were standing still.

So the figures run, and they reveal such a striking state of carelessness on the part of many motorists that the value of safety first education as a means of reducing the accident record becomes open to doubt.

When people will perform like this at a danger point it is doubtful whether appeals to their common sense will prove of much avail.

THE SAFETY RESPONSIBILITY ACT.

The new Safety Responsibility Act which comes into effect in Ontario is a measure that throws a heavy responsibility upon Ontario car owners.

Although a great deal has been published in regard to the measure both by the Government, by insurance companies and by the newspapers on their own account, a large number of people seem to be decidedly hazy as to the details of the act.

It is not, in the first place, a system of compulsory insurance; because it only becomes compulsory when the motorist by serious violations of the traffic rules or by becoming involved in an accident makes it so.

An advertisement published by the Travellers' Insurance Company in to-day's issue puts the thing in a nutshell when it says:

"If you violate certain of the Ontario traffic laws or cannot within 15 days satisfy a final judgment in excess of $100 arising from personal injury or death or damage to the property of others, your driving license and car permit shall be remitted until you give proof of financial responsibility."

In other words, if you drive recklessly or have the bad luck to get mixed up in an accident you'll have to get some accident insurance in a hurry because that is the easiest and cheapest way of showing proof of financial responsibility, and you'll need that before you will be allowed to drive again.

THE SPECIAL SESSION.

Newspapers of all shades of politics are wishing the new Government success in the measures to deal with unemployment that it is to bring down at the special session of Parliament, announced to begin on Monday, September 8th.

With the election out of the way, it is realized that the situation confronting this country as winter approaches is far from reassuring, and that if the Bennett administration fails in what it has promised to do, the results will be serious.

And by that we do not mean serious from a political viewpoint, because that really matters little in the face of present conditions, but serious from an economic and from a social viewpoint.

Many men who count on their summer earnings to help tide them over the winter months have been idle for some time or have had only spells of unemployment.

When the cold weather arrives their number will be increased as other workers employed just now on outdoor work are laid off.

Unless the special session of Parliament develops a program that will take care of these men the outlook for the coming winter should give Canadians something over which to ponder seriously.

Regardless of political views, the people of this country should be hoping that the new Government will find it possible to put into effect such a program.

If it fails to do so, there will be suffering and distress in most centres in the country during the coming winter.

NEW ZEALAND TRADE.

(By Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald)

On the Farm:—There is an item in to-day's paper that should set some of us farmers thinking. It concerns that portion of the British Empire we farmers have been sort of sore at for sending so much butter to our country.

You see, in New Zealand they can produce a pound of butter cheaper than we can. They are also said to be able to produce a better grade of butter than we can. Just why New Zealand butter should be better than Canadian is a puzzle to most of us. We know that they have a great climatic advantage on us in production costs.

This butter from the Southern side of the world has been dumped into this country by the shipload, and no one will deny the fact that it has had some adverse effect on the price of the butter we make here in Canada. New Zealand butter came here because our market paid a better price than any other of the world's markets. New Zealand butter came here because our Canadian herds were not producing enough butter to supply Canadian demand.

Farmers were aware of one fact. New Zealand butter was breaking our market. It was putting us into competition with the markets of the world. Just at a time, too, when we had things nicely set to hold out for a good price for our dairy products.

We farmers forgot a good many things in our anxiety to keep up the price of butter. We forgot, for instance, that with prices high our herds would soon increase to a point where the world's market would dictate our prices anyway. We forgot that if we shut New Zealand butter out, New Zealand would probably shut out some of our products, or at least the products of Canadian industry. We forgot that this would throw our workmen into the unemployed class, and thus still reduce our home market.

Yes, we completely forgot these things. What we wanted was a higher price for our butter, and so we got behind an agitation to have the Government restore the duty on New Zealand's dairy product. We insisted on having this protection even though the best of our agricultural writers and students pleaded with us to relax. We won in our demands—but did we win?

* * * *

This morning's paper tells us that while we may shut out 12,000,000 dollars worth of New Zealand butter, New Zealand replies by shutting out 6,000,000 dollars worth of our motor cars. The question now is where will New Zealand stop? Will she shut out more of the remaining 18,000,000 dollars worth of goods we ship her? Will some of these motor car companies have to increase their prices because of the cut in production? Where will the thousands of men employed in producing these cars find work to enable them to buy our higher priced butter?

Canada is primarily an exporting country. Canada should be exporting butter, and will export butter in a very few years. We must then compete on the world market and accept world prices. Shall we then, for the sake of the raising the price of one commodity, risk the loss of a splendid trade with New Zealand? Shall we lose a good home market, by having our workmen thrown out of employment?

As farmers we demand protection, but we should not be so short-sighted as to demand protection at the cost of our national good.

Perhaps it would be just as well if we took the advice of leading agricultural authorities and dairymen and accept world prices for our butter, thus making it possible to keep more men employed in Canada and sell to New Zealand 24 million dollars worth of goods, while she sold to us slightly less than 15 million dollars worth.

More than that, it would probably be possible to sell New Zealand even more than we do at present. We have here a question that is of great import in this period of depression. A chance for the farmers to shut out the butter of a sister nation and thus demand a better price for our dairy products. That is, a better price until such a time as our own herds produce more than enough butter for domestic consumption—which they have done before, and are bound to do again.

On the other hand we can take world prices for our product now, and build up a valuable trade with New Zealand. This is a question that demands careful study, and now that the election is over the Government should give this matter careful thought, and arrange our tariff with New Zealand in the best interests of national trade.

BRITISH ACHIEVEMENT.

Most Canadians will agree with the opinion expressed by Hon. J. Hinchliffe, Minister of Education in the Provincial Government of British Columbia, in the course of an interview given while on a visit to his old home in Yorkshire.

"We are too modest as a nation, and in a world of radios and loud speakers, our puerile public school habit of self-depreciation cuts no ice," says Mr. Hinchliffe. "The young Canadian does not hear enough about the achievements of the British race."

Further, the British Columbia Minister of Education declares that he recently set an examination paper for all the school children in British Columbia, asking them to name in order of merit the races which had done most in modern inventions, scientific research, industrial processes and the development of character.

To his surprise not one answer placed Great Britain at the head of the list; in most cases the United States occupied that position.

Inquiry revealed the fact that the pupils had not been told anything different either by the text books or by their teachers, and as a result are growing up almost in darkness in so far as the achievements of their own people are concerned.

The Pacific Coast Minister proposes to remedy that condition by seeing to it that school text books do justice to the British race and what it has accomplished.

In a new arithmetic book, for instance, will appear this question, framed by the Minister:

"The British airmen, Alcock and Brown, flew the Atlantic on June 15, 1919. The American airman, Lindbergh, flew the Atlantic on May 21, 1927. State how many years and days the American crossed the Atlantic after the British."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterborough's Exhibition is little more than a week away. Invite your friends to visit you during Exhibition week.

The funny part about it is, that George Young is being criticized the most by people who would have difficulty in walking as far as the Toronto youth swam the other day.

The special session of Parliament has been called for a week from Monday. Out of the deliberations let us hope that policies that will help to solve the unemployment problem will emerge.

Marvin Nelson's triumph in the Toronto swimming marathon is proof that Iowa produces something besides tall corn.

The total of American tourists this year will not equal the mark set last summer, it is stated. Business depression and not any diminution in the popularity of Canada as a summer playground is, of course, the reason.

The Office Hound

Things are moving!....as you will observe by the following letter, received this morning.

O—H

The stationery was mauve—and scented. And if Casey doesn't gobble this up, his ad was a snare and a delusion and we shall take strenuous steps to eliminate him from this colyum.

O—H

Dear Andre:

More in sorrow than indignation I sit down to write you. I say more in sorrow, though that is hardly the word. But what are words after all? The man that wrote the hymn never thought a poet would make it peppy with the words: "Gimme a handout to revive me again."

Having been called out of the city unexpectedly owing to the illness of a very dear grandfather, I was unable to keep my date with your friend, the Cop. The poor old gentleman had a wonderful funeral. Almost as big as Bessie Perri's, without quite so many flowers. I just returned from attending the obsequious.

But I don't know Andre whether I like that police officer, or not. I know you did your best, dear Andre, and I don't want to appear upstage or finicky, or even choosey, but really—one must draw the line somewhere. Don't you agree with me, dear Andre? I am sure you do. A check suit and orange tie and light tan shoes. Ugh! (Check and double check).

Just to prepare myself for the meeting, I had chosen a lace gown of bright red, with a jacket of the same and a fox fur and a black velvet hat like Norma Shearer's in "The Divorcee". You know, with bits hanging down over the ears and a gone' look around the eyebrows. Really, if it wasn't for the talkies and Vogue, I don't know what we girls would do.

There you are. Just imagine the effect of that gown and his checked suit. And as for beans for supper—horrors!

I wouldn't like to offend the Police Department, but suppose you lay off that bird for awhile. What about your friend, Casey? He wants a cook. I have received many compliments on my chili con carne and my Welsh rarebit and as for my pate de fois gras—well, you just ought to sample it. The only trouble with it is that it's hard to get gras that is fois enough—if you get my meaning.

Still, I don't know. Perhaps the cop would be a better bet than a newspaper man, after all. What do you think, dear Andre? I rely on you to advise me.

MADEMOISELLE X.

P.S.—I just note what you said about the cop being in the hospital. Please tell him I'll be around one of these days with a bouquet of Jo pie-weed. My brave, noble hero! Injured for me! (However, don't forget to look around for someone else. Three weeks sound better on a novel than in real life, when the best man is in the hospital. And us girls gotta act quick these days. Competition is something fierce.)

O—H

Dear Mademoiselle:

Strongly advise you to drop the Cop and cop Casey while the copping is good. So glad grandpop had a nice time at his funeral. These affairs come so seldom that it is well to make the most of them—don't you think? I am sure you do....although it is an unusual accomplishment, God wot! And as for the pate de fois gras, it is nice to hear that—in these days of can-openers and corkscrews—you have the recipe down pate. Rather hard to keep the chili con carne sufficiently chile, don't you think. Or do you?

Andre.

A nice headline in yesterday's Globe said: "FAIR AMPHITHEATRE IS FILLED WITH SONG AND SWEET HARMONY."

O—H

Oh, Amphitheatre! but thou wert fair!....
Wert filled with song, sweet harmony, and cheer!
Now summer's sun has bleached thy auburn hair,
And filled thee full of feeble jokes —and beer!

Andre Hound—

I see by de papers you bin pickin on the Examiner noosepaper headlines lately well I'm a Examiner noosepaper man see an Im tellin you to lay off the headlines we rite or take wots comin to you you runt

The Senator.

O—H

Being a tough guy ourselves, we append a couple from recent Examiners, with some hot repartee of our own....

O—H

"WOMAN LANDS BIG BASS."

O—H

Although she probably would have been just as pleased with a small tenor, at that.

O—H

"TEENAGE' BOYS DRUNK AT DANCE."

O—H

Tut! tut! Mr. and Mrs. Teenage will simply have to do something about the boys.

O—H

"NEW YORK STATE MAY APPLY DATE....Governor Roosevelt Intends to Ask for Commission to Study Question....LOWER AGE LIMIT."

O—H

And a prize is offered for the correct solution.

TEMPLE TOWER
By CAPTAIN DRUMMOND

He settled himself comfortably in his chair.

"This is the most amazing household," he began. "I'll start at the beginning and try not leave out anything. The first excitement occurred the instant the gate was shut—and you heard it. The dog, I mean, if such an animal can be called a dog. It is the size of a calf, and I suppose it saw a stranger. Instantly it hurled itself against the bars of its cage, roaring—there is no other word for it—with rage. Its eyes were red, its great fangs were showing, and the front of the cage shook so much that I feared it might give way.

"'What an awful brute', I said to the man who had opened the gate. His name is Gaspard, and he and the dog are a pretty pair.

"'You're right,' he said. 'And he runs loose at night. Don't forget that.'

"He flung open the front door, and then I really thought for a moment or two I had come to a madhouse. A nasty-looking little man, who subsequently turned out to be my employer, was coming downstairs as I stepped into the hall. The instant he saw me he started shouting, 'Who's that woman? Who's that woman?' at the top of his voice. I stood there wondering whether to laugh or be angry, while the servant said something to him which seemed to reassure him. At any rate, he came shambling forward, and muttered some sort of an apology.

"'You must excuse me, my dear young lady,' he said, 'but I am a great recluse. My nerves are not all they might be.'

"'So I see', I answered. 'I presume you are expecting me.'

"'Of course, of course,' he muttered. 'Just for the moment I had forgotten you were coming—that is all. Let me see—you come from Miss Mudge's bureau, don't you? Now you would like to see your room, I'm sure. Gaspard—tell your wife to show this young lady to her room. And then later we will go into your duties. Tell me, as you came in, did you see anyone outside in the road?'

"'I came with my fiance,' I said. 'And there were two gentlemen who told us which the house was.'

"I could hardly get the sentence out before he was shouting for Gaspard.

"Did you see the men?' he stuttered. 'The two men outside?'

"'Only Drummond and a friend of his,' said Gaspard.

"'Who was the friend?' he cried.

"'If you want to know,' I said coldly, 'his name was Darrell.'

"He stared at me suspiciously, and I suppose he noticed I was looking a bit surprised. Anyway, he made an attempt to pull himself together.

"'I don't encourage strangers, Miss.'

"I told him my name.

"'Ah—! yes, of course. I remember now. No, Miss Verney, I don't encourage strangers. As I told you, I am a recluse, and I keep myself to myself.'

"I forbore to make the obvious retort that no one was likely to object, and he went rambling on, evidently trying to put me at my ease. And then at last the woman arrived, and I escaped upstairs.

"'Granger seems in a very nervous condition,' I said to her.

"She was a furtive-eyed creature and very uncommunicative.

"'So would you be if you never stirred outside the house,' she muttered morosely. 'Here's your room.'

"She flung open a door, and walked in in front of me. And then Gaspard brought in my box, and the pair of them went out and left me alone. The room was quite comfortable, though the furniture was very plain. And like every other room in the house, there were steel bars over the window

"I got unpacked, and shortly afterwards the woman brought me some tea.

"'When you've finished, ring the bell and I'll take you to Granger,' she said.

"I noticed the omission of the 'mister,' but said nothing. As a matter of fact, it only confirmed what I'd thought ever since I got into the house, that they were all of much the same class. However, I finished my tea and went off to interview the gentleman. His room is at the top of the house, and is, if possible, more heavily barricaded than the rest. The door is about three inches thick, and you can hardly see out of the window for bars. He was sitting at his desk when I came in, and I took a pew opposite, from which I could study him more fully than I'd been able to up to date. He is the most terrible little man, Tom perfectly frightful. He is like some kind of insect with a rash on it, and but for the fifty quid I think I should have left then and there.

"However, he started explaining what he wanted me to do. And after a time I had to stop him he was so incoherent and rambling that I could not make head or tail of what he was saying. In addtition to which he kept popping up to have a look out of the window, until I could have shied the inkpot at his head.

"'You must forgive me, Miss Verney', he said several times, 'but I have had a great shock just lately.'

"I said nothing, of course, but presumably he was alluding to the signals Captain Drummond was talking about. And quite obviously the man is in a pitiful condition of nerves. However, to get back to the point. After he had hummed and hawed for some time, and told me that he would want me to write letters and that sort of thing for him, he suddenly asked me if I knew anything about jewellery and precious stones. I said I knew very little.

"'I have one or two beautiful bits of stuff,' he rambled on. 'I have been an ardent collector for years.'

"Which ,of course, was very nice, but what it had to do with my duties as his secretary was a little obscure. So I brought him back to the point.

"'I should like to know, Mr. Granger, I said,' what will be the arrangement over going out. There seemed to be a great deal of difficulty over getting in I hope it won't apply to getting out.'

"'That we will arrange,' he cried. 'Just at present it would be better, I think, for you to take your walk in the grounds. There are reasons, important reasons. But one thing, as you value your life, you must not forget—do not go out after dusk.'

"You mean the dog?' I said.

"'Yes—and other things, too. Soon I hope the danger will be over, but for the next few days do not forget my warning.'

"And then I could not help it I just had to ask him

"'Why have you got your house barricaded like a prison?' I said.

"'I have an enemy,' he answered; 'An unscrupulous enemy. He believes I did him a wrong—years ago. As if one could do such as he a wrong. But I'll beat him, I'll beat him.'

"He was literally jibbering in his excitement, and for some time I thought he was going to have a fit. Then the upheaval passed.

"'A vile criminal, Miss Verney a man debased beyond words.'

"Bearing in mind the speaker, I thought that a bit rich.

"'Do not be alarmed,' he continued 'if you hear things at night, out in the grounds. You will be quite safe. Well, well, we will finish our talk to-morrow. A letter or two, and your outings. We must discuss them we must certainly discuss them.'

"And with that I left him. Honestly I do not think the man is quite all there, and as for his remarks about the criminal outside, the man is as crooked as a corkscrew himself. However, it is past eleven now, and I am going to bed. My dinner was sent up to my room, and I have not seen Mr. Granger again. But an hour ago I heard the most frightful quarrel going on between him and Gaspard, and it sounded to me as if Gaspard was drunk. Anyway, I have locked my door, though, to give the devil his due, neither of them has given me any trouble at all. Good-night I'll finish this effusion to-morrow, though whether I will ever get it to you or not remains to be seen."

A Thought

NEW IDEAS.

If every man in the world would take off a day in each year to analyze the things he does through habit, and would ask himself whether or not that thing is being done the best way, and if, then, he would follow the ideas he discovers by so doing, we'd be living in the thirtieth century within ten years. But, perhaps it is best that we don't advance quite that fast. Right now we accept new ideas too much as a matter of course.

Uncommon Sense
By John Blake

THE COILED SPRING.

You can wad a spiral spring into a small compass and, by keeping it thus compressed for a considerable time, take all the life out of it.

You can compress it a little and when it is loosed it will fly out violently and maybe do you some harm, or tear away from its bearings.

Now I am not going to contend that there is any complete parallel between springs and the problematical young persons called modern youth.

But I do know that too much repression will either reduce a young person to inertness, or make him so rebellious that when he breaks away he will do some damage, probably to himself.

Inasmuch as the youth of to-day will boss the world to-morrow, it is just as well to consider them while they are still young.

Never make the mistake of thinking that they do not know what their destiny is.

They are thinking about to-morrow all the time, impatient to take charge and already making plans about what they are going to do.

Why, then, try to lead them in the exact way that their elders have gone?

If these elders as youths had followed in the exact footprints of their fathers, the world would not be any farther along now than it was then.

It is the mission of youth to keep moving ahead and taking the places left vacant by those who go before them.

Suppose they are a little wild and inclined to be toppy? They will get all that taken out of them when they have to face the opposition of members of their own generation by and by.

Suppose they dane more than their parents used to, and go to more "speakies"

There are more dances to go to to-day, and in their fathers' day there were no "speakies" at all.

The boys and girls that I meet appear to be thinking seriously about the future—to be just as worried about it as were their parents.

They may be a little more gay, but there are more chances to be gay, and the time to be gay is when one is young.

I am out of sympathy with croakers who believe the world is going to the dogs because boys and girls seem to have a good time.

They are the same people who used to inveigh against short skirts, and who now are fussing because long skirts are coming back.

They are just natural meddlers and trouble makers, not content with anything anybody else is doing, and too well content with what they are doing themselves.

If younger generations could ruin the world, it would have been ruined long ago, for since Adam's time there has always been a younger generation getting ready to take charge.

What To-day Means To You.

"Virgo"

If August 29th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9.45 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 3 p.m. to 4.30 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The "hand writing on the wall" for this date indicates prosperity, and general good luck. Games of chance will terminate well. None too good for the disposition, and hasty words may be spoken, which will end a long-time friendship.

The children born on this August 29th will absorb knowledge easily, especially of countries and people, exploration and such things. They will intensely dislike mathematics. They will have uneven temperaments, and fiery tempers.

You do not possess a brilliant mind, but one which may perhaps carry you further. You do not grab your knowledge on the run; it comes to you slowly through hard individual effort. You are never able to skip steps, but must plod along step by step from the foundation to the top. You cannot take things in, in their entirety, but must analyze almost every atom of their contents. As a result you truly master things, and your knowledge, like most hard earned possessions is priceless, and something that will stick with you always. The world will express an appreciation for your thoroughness in more ways than one. You will win your way slowly but surely, and will experience but few setbacks. You never dive into things until you are sure of yourself.

You have a great deal of diplomacy, a right amount of modesty, good nerve and self-control. You do not talk too much, and your words are not dipped in gall or acid. You dislike very few people, and very few people dislike you. You have a great deal of endurance and patience, and you are hopeful and cheerful even in time of adversity. Your greatest sorrows are usually suffered in silence, although you ought for your own relief to be a little more confiding with those who are willing and anxious to ease your loads. You dislike putting yourself under obligation to any one, and for this reason you fight alone.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND BRIEFS

A SPECIAL SERVICE TO THE EXAMINER

Sales of G. Tamblyn Limited, for current year are running ahead of the corresponding months of the previous period and the monthly totals for 1930 have show a consistent growth over those for 1929. The increase in July 1930 over the same months of 1929 was approximately 4 per cent not withstanding the fact that sales for July 1929 showed an improvement of 35 per cent over July 1928. Improvement in sales has continued in August and the total for the first three weeks of the month was approximately $4,000 ahead of similar period in the preceding year. The company will end its fiscal year on December 31 next and indications are that sales will set a new high record for volume. During the period under review Tamblyn opened some new stores and within the next week an addition to the chain will be made by the opening of a new unit in Windsor.

Large Disbursement

Canadian Corporations are doing well by their shareholders in the face of general conditions and within the next few days will make dividend disbursements approximating $10,000,000 Distribution of this amount of money is bound to be reflected in the investment market of the dominion as undoubtedly a portion of the total will find its way back into the market for re-investment. Tuesday, September 2 will be one of the most interesting day's of the year for the stockholders of Canadian Corporations in bringing monetary reward for the proper investment of capital on this one day around 75 corporations will make regular quarterly dividend disbursements to their stockholders with some of the largest corporations in the dominion included. Six banks, one public utility and one industrial concern have declared dividends payable September 2 of over $9,000,000 Imperial Oil alone will distribute $3,200,000,000 and the quarterly dividend on the ordinary stocks of Brazilian Traction Light and Power amounts to over $2,700,000 the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Banquet Canadienne-Nationale Bank of Montreal, Bank Provincial, Royal Bank of Canada and The Bank of Toronto between them will send fort cheque aggregating over $3,000,000 and later on in the month shareholders of Ontario's Mining Companies will come into their own to the tune of over $5,000,000 outstanding in the mining group is a dividend of 30 cents a share plus a bonus of 60 cents, amounting in all to $1,200,000 by Lake Shore Mines, probably constituting the largest single distribution to be made by any one gold mine in the dominion. In the closing days of the month International Nickel will pay out around $3,600,000 which will include upwards of $200,000 on the new shares offered to stockholders through rights at $20 a share.

Taking September as a whole, Canadian Companies will pay out in dividends approximately $750,000 for each working day.

What is actually termed the vacation period for the stock exchange comes to an end with the cessation of trading fort the month of August to-morrow, and on Tuesday the markets will enter a period that at one time was supposed to inaugurate the fall advance. Before the bull market trading on the stock exchange quieted down in the summer months, and this was attributed to the fact that so many people left the city on the holiday. Volume increased in September when the crowd returned, and this was met with a resumption of operations for the rise. From 1925 to 1929 there was great activity in the security markets, with no noticeable let up in the summer months. Then came the crash in the late months of 1929, with the stock exchanges operating more closely to normal since. In the current year the market experienced the regular spring advance, but the re-action was delayed until May, followed by a secondary re-action in June and periods of weakness from then on. This year the outlook for the fall is closed by business and agricultural conditions and weakness in the commodity markets that will lead to retard progress. Internal conditions are also responsible for the present state. Brokerage organization expanded rapidly and clients' accounts were well frozen, taking months to liquidate. From all appearances the public is in no hurry to again enter the market, and is not satisfied with present indications of improvement but are waiting more definite signs that business is on the mend. The past few months have been occupied in switching holdings to improve the position, and investment buying attracted by liberal income returns with speculation at a low ebb.

British American Oil recovered this forenoon from the low for the year, touched Thursday on the Toronto Stock Exchange. This issue had been hovering around the low point for weeks, and did not have far to go for a new bottom yesterday. Sales of gasoline in the current year are understood to be running ahead of the corresponding months of 1929, and in the opinion of the street, profits are being maintained fairly well around the level of preceding periods.

LIGHT SELLING TORONTO MART

Brazilian Registers Substantial Gain From Low of Week at 34.

CLOSED SATURDAY.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29. (C.P.)—Stronger than at any time this week the Toronto Stock Exchange market this morning gave every indication of facing the prolonged week-end holiday with but a minimum of liquidation in the offing. The markets close this afternoon until Tuesday morning. From some quarters it was expected this would induce lightening of accounts but trading the first couple of hours did not bear this out.

Brazilian rose to 34, which represents a substantial gain from the low under 30 made a couple of days ago. Brazilian's advance was made in company with that of International Nickel which firmed to 23, with a few individual stocks and with most of the oils.

In the oil group B. A. oil stood out with an advance to 16, a full point above the low record yesterday. That entire gain was not held into the third hour but any selling which followed the advance was well taken care of, Imperial Oil and International Petroleum were both holding up well.

Walkers was at its previous low of 8 and rather unsteady at that figure. Massey-Harris down to 19 the first half hour, firmed fractionally but there was no enthusiasm for the stock. City Dairy was unchanged, Bell Telephone off ½ point, Ford of Canada just above 30.

LOWEST TENDERS ALL THROWN OUT

Contractor Tells of Association's Methods at York Township Probe.

COUNCILLOR TOOK $500.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29. (C.P.)

The operations of the alleged Association of Contractors tendering in York Township were described from conflicting angles by witnesses before Judge Denton, who continued to-day his probe into the manner in which the township contracts have been awarded in the past five years.

Joseph Dileo, contractor, reversed the stand he took at yesterday's hearing and admitted he had been a member of an association which threw out the lowest tender in consulting about various jobs. There had been about 25 or 35 members, he said.

A Nichol, secretary of the Association, claimed that the association, to which contractors working in York Township belonged, had operated only in the city of Toronto. He denied that it had ever fixed prices.

Judge Denton, at the beginning of the session corrected reports that he had said that activities of a price-fixing organization might extend to Toronto civic work, "nothing was further from my thoughts," said His Honor.

Counsel for the township spent considerable time investigating bank accounts of D. K. C. Strathearn, engineering department official, named yesterday by a contractor as having received money from him.

AUTOMOBILE FEES AT BARGAIN PRICE

Permits Also at Half Cost For Full Year.

Notification of reductions to one-half of the full costs on a number of permit and license fees in connection with the operation of motor vehicles to take effect September 1, has been received at the License Issuing Office for Peterborough County from J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles. The 1930 permits and licenses which will be subject to the reductions are passenger car permits, commercial permits, two-purpose permits, trailer permits, motor cycle permits, passenger dealer permits, motor cycle permits, passenger dealer permits, commercial dealer permits, motor cycle dealer permits and chauffeur original permits.

This is the first time that such a September reduction or half yearly reduction in chauffeur original licenses has been made. With the exception of trailer permits, motor cycle permits, passenger dealer permits, commercial dealer permits and motor cycle dealer permits, those on the list for reduction are issued in this city.

In no circumstances will a permit or license be issued under the reduced fee before September 1.

GOOD YEAR FOR HAMILTON FIRM

Local Company Has Supplied Twenty-nine Hoists and Swings For Beauharnois Power Development.

HELPED TO MAKE RECORD.

Securing the manufacturing rights for Lidgerwood hoists in the latter part of last year, The William Hamilton Company of this city have since supplied twenty-nine hoists and swingers for the Beauharnois Power Development and The Shawinigan Engineering Company at Creek Des Prairies.

It is interesting to note that a Lidgerwood hoist established a world's record recently in mooring the giant British Dirigible the R-100.

Just twenty-five minutes elapsed from the time the first cable was dropped at St. Hubert, until the ship was made fast. The old record made at Cardington, England, was 35 minutes.

Canada can be proud of this record, accomplished by the airport personnel and equipment. Lidgerwood hoists are manufactured and sold in Canada by The William Hamilton Company of this city.

The R-100 broke their own record on the return from the Ontario flight—the new record now standing at 24 minutes.

P. P. Westbye, president of the company in conversation with The Examiner expressed absolute confidence and optimism in the immediate future prospects of the firm, stating that he considered, "we are over the bump and on the up grade." He thought that possibly July of this year had been their slackest month but that this month the engineering department had been extremely busy with hydraulic, hoisting and mining machinery and equipment. Enquiries are being received each day, he added, and the prospects for future orders are bright.

It was learned that on one of the recent orders for Lidgerwood hoists for the Shawinigan Engineering Company, Grant and Thorpe, electrical engineers of this city secured the contract for the winding on the electrical motors.

Winnipeg Review

Special Service to The Examiner through the courtesy of E. J. Bawlf Company, Grain and Stock Brokers, of Toronto

WINNIPEG Man., August 29 (Special to The Examiner). — The wheat market was a quiet affair yesterday, with only a small mixed trade passing and prices mostly held within a range of half a cent. There was considerable selling at the start and prices declined about one cent, the market looking heavy, but offerings decreased after the first period and with a little buying by commission houses and for Chicago account, combined with a little short covering the market recovered but the early loss and held steady slightly under the previous close. Despite the fact that country marketings on Wednesday was 3,207,000 bushels there was very little hedging by the elevator companies yesterday, although on the extreme upturns there was wheat for sale. Export sales were small and unimportant, a little business being done after the close of the market on Wednesday, but there was nothing coming in this morning. The cash market was dull and uninteresting with shippers doing very little and exporters out of the market. Shippers stated they were unable to sell or get bids on their stocks now in the East. Black Sea shipments of wheat this week total 2,32,5000 bushels, almost 2,000,000 coming from Russia. Sentiment appeared to be a little more friendly to wheat yesterday, many feeling that prices have now reached such a low level after a steady downward march, that the market is due for some re-action. We have little hope of higher prices at present, but feel wheat can be bought on the setbacks for quick profits. Winnipeg closed Oct. ⅜c lower, Dec. and May ¼c to ⅜c higher.

Coarse Grains — these markets were steady and firm yesterday, the strength in corn being a factor, but there was very little going on and the demand for cash wheat showed no improvement. Oats closed ⅝c higher to ¼c lower. Barley ¼c lower to unchanged. Rye ⅜c to ⅝c higher.

Flax—No feature with little interest being shown closing prices 1⅛ to ¼ higher.

Liverpool due unchanged to ½c higher on Winnipeg.

IRREGULAR TONE ON THE STANDARD

Trading Remains Light With Gains Slightly in Majority at Mid-day.

TORONTO, Ont., August 29 (C.P.)—Irregular movements were again the rule in the mining market prior to noon to-day with gains slightly in the majority at midday. Trading remained light.

International Nickel strengthened a half to $22.90 and Noranda was a quarter higher at $21.25. Amulet was up a point to 52. Ventures was well taken at 85, up 3 from last night, and Sudbury Basin gained 3 to $1.15.

Golds were very mixed. Teck Hughes dropped back 5 to $6.35, Vipond a couple to $1.27. Hollinger strengthened 5 to $5.80, and Wright-Hargreaves and Howey were up a point each to $1.76 and 40 respectively.

Home Oil opened stronger and displayed an advance of 11 at noon at $2.25. Almont gained 3 to 46 and Dalhousie 8 to 60. Nordon was up at 89. Alberta Pacific remained soft, dropping another 6 to 34, and Home was off a point to 27.

FIXED PRICE IS NECESSARY FOR COPPER ORE PROFIT

Information on This Matter Brought to Light at General Meeting of Newbec Mines.

PLATINUM INCREASE.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (Special to Examiner).—Some light was shed at the Newbec meeting to-day on the question of properties with insufficient ore to warrant a concentrator shipping direct to Smelters. Certain fixed charges in connection with shipments permitted a profit only when copper was selling at or above 14 cents. No matter what the grade is, it was stated.

Asked if sufficient tonnage had been developed at Newbec to permit the installation of facilities which would reduce costs, Mine Manager Smith stated the improvement to the road and the possibility of trucking the ore direct to Noranda would cut these in half, but that, up to date, the ore, while relatively high grade, had not been found in sufficient quantities to warrant erection of a mill.

Results of the research work being carried out by International Nickel with regard to platinum have not been published as yet, but the increase shown in the company's production of these metals during the first half of 1930 would appear to indicate something doing in this direction.

Output during the period was 26,775 ounces of platinum valued at $1,155,635, which compares with 5,490 ounces valued at $232,384, in the corresponding period last year. Production of platinum in the first half of 1928 was valued at $625,045.

The decision as to whether Sherritt Gordon will commence operations at a tonnage of 1,800 or 1,200 tons per day depends largely on the metal market conditions at the end of the year, and will wait until the plant is ready to start up. The concentrator is built in two units, one 1,200-ton being erected to treat the ore from the west ore body with relatively high copper content, and the other 600-ton unit for the ore containing important zinc content from the last orebody.

The temporary rise in silver quotations greatly encouraged officials of Ontario producers, but these unfortunately have held. Castle-Trethewey continues to operate, however, making a fair production and doing a little better than break even, despite the low price. The drive into Capitol ground has about 350 feet to go to reach its objective, where it is hoped considerable silver will be found.

UTILITIES PLAN RE-SERVICE WORK

Thirty-two Water Services on Stewart Street to be Replaced.

The replacing of 32 water services which are over 20 years old on Stewart street between Charlotte and Sherbrooke streets, was authorized by the Peterborough Utilities Commission at a meeting this afternoon. The cost of the replacement will total $960 according to estimates.

Estimates for the replacement of water services on Sherbrooke street were received but action was deferred. The cost of replacing 34 services over 20 years old on Sherbrooke between George and Park streets is estimated at $1,250 and the replacemetn cost of 59 services on the same street from Park to Monaghan is estimated at $2,000.

Some of the work on Sherbrooke street will be done this year in an endeavour to keep Utility employees busy.

LANCASHIRE WINS CRICKET HONORS

(Canadian Press Cable)

LONDON, Eng., Aug. 29.—Lancashire won the English county cricket championship today. Competition has been very keen between Lancashire, Gloucestershire and Yorkshire. The new champions did not lose a match all season and clinched the honors when they defeated Sussex to-day.

Lancashire won the blue ribbon in 1926, 1927 and 1928, last year's leaders were Nottinghamshire.

Bank of Montreal Buys $5,000,000 Loan

TORONTO, Ont., August 29 (U.P.)—Sale of a $5,000,000 loan by the Province of Ontario to the Bank of Montreal was, it is reported, completed late yesterday by Hon Dr. Joseph D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer.

The borrowing is for the short term of six months, and is reported to have been negotiated at the extremely low rate of 3 per cent.

This rate, it is understood, is the lowest so far recorded in the history of Ontario borrowings.

GREAT FILM STAR IS LAID TO REST

Mourners Throng Chapel to Pay Final Tribute to Lon Chaney.

LAST WISHES CARRIED OUT.

LOS ANGELES, August 29 (C.P.).—Rites as dramatic perhaps as any of his films marked the funeral of Lon Chaney yesterday, laid to rest after a public display of devotion and admiration seldom seen here.

The showman's wishes carried out at the funeral provided a touch that carried the memories of his friends back to his weird portrayals.

As he died last Tuesday, the "man of a thousand faces" had asked his "wet music" be played at his funeral—the music used to inspire and aid him to carry on while the camera registered his often painful poses.

As Lieutenant-Colonel H. Sedyar, United States Marine Corps chaplain, completed his simple eulogy and stepped back from the silver, flower-banked casket, the strains of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," theme song of one of Chaney's most successful pictures, sounded through the little Chapel of the Guardian Angel.

Mrs. Chaney fainted. The musicians, Sam and Jack Feinberg, playing violin and portable organ, played with tears streaming down their faces.

Plans for the simple funeral Chaney wished went astray when 1,500 persons, ardent admirers eager to get a last glimpse of their idol, milled about the entrance of the chapel. Special squads of police were necessary to open a way for the funeral cortege as it began its ten-mile journey to the grave.

SETTLEMENT OF LOTTRIDGE SUIT

City and Showman Agree to Abandon Recourse to Law.

LEGAL COMMITTEE.

The settlement which has been made in the law suit of the City of Peterborough against Harry Lottridge, showman, was approved by the Legal committee of the City Council at a meeting last night. It was explained by the Mayor that the settlement has been effected by withdrawal of both parties.

A petition that a curb and gutter be constructed on the south side of Weller street from Albertus avenue to Monaghan road and a petition that a curb and gutter be laid on Dickson street were received and laid over at a meeting of the Board of Works.

The attitude taken in the discussion of the petition was that the city is going ahead with its program of work of this nature as fast as its appropriations will allow and that the two projects suggested would be handled in due time. It was pointed out that storm drain work would be necessary along with laying of the curbs and gutters. The Mayor suggested that before the year is out the projects may be welcomed as an opportunity for the provision of work in the city.

Advertising Number.

A representative of the Financial Post was heard and the city agreed to go in with the Chamber of Commerce and co-operate with the Financial Post in the matter of a special feature edition of the paper on the city of Peterborough. It was agreed that the city wold jointly buy advertising space in the edition with the Chamber of Commerce at a cost to the city of $125.

The city engineer was instructed to have the bus stops from Charlotte street to Brock street on George street marked.

Buried the Hatchet

Mutual agreement has been reached in the action between the Corporation of the City of Peterborough and Harry Lottridge, show man, residing in the City of Hamilton. The hatchet is buried and it is understood the Harry Lottridge Shows are to make a return visit to the city on the occasion of the Industrial Exhibition which opens on September 8th.

The City has withdrawn their claim for $1,000, while Lottridge has likewise withdrawn his counter-claim for the sum of $5,000.

In the writ, issued on November 9th, 1929, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough claimed that under the terms of the agreement, made by defendant with Webber F. Turner, chairman of the Attractions Committee of Peterborough Old Home Week, defendant was to pay the city the sum of $1500 and fifty per cent. of the gross receipts of all shows and rides. The sum of $1,500 was to be payable on the third day of July, and the percentage of profits on the sixth day of July, 1929.

"The defendant paid to the plaintiffs the sum of $500 on account and still owes the sum of $1,000, which he has refused to pay," it was claimed.

Entering a counter-action for $5,000 Lottridge admitted the terms of the agreement entered into with the city, but claimed that under the agreement it was agreed and understood that no concessions or privileges would be granted on the streets in the City of Peterborough, or any privately-owned property, for the sale of refreshments, novelties, badges, etc., without the mutual consent of the two parties.

The plaintiff did, it was alleged by defendant, in breach of the said agreement, permit concessions and privileges, etc., without the consent of defendant.

Examination of parties on discovery took place but the action did not reach trial.

Judge Wearing was solicitor for the plaintiff with Gordon and Elliott acting for defendant.

NEW U. S. ENVOY

so far as the United tSates is concerned, would depend to a large extent on the attitude of the Canadian Government, was the opinion of Lieut. Col. Charles Hanford Mac-nider, expressed to press representatives. He said that he had no special instructions from his home government on the subject. It was obvious, he said, that a large section of the United States, particularly in the middle west, are vitally interested in the scheme, and these people would watch the development with great interest.

MISS CARSTAIRS SPENDS $500,000 IN QUEST OF HARMSWORTH TROPHY

Present Attempt to Lift Cup Will Be Her Last—Is Her Third—Cost is Frightful Says English Girl.

DETROIT, Aug. 29. (A.P.)—Barring accident, always a hazard in speedboat racing, and granting that performance in competition measures up to that of the preliminary trials, the Harmsworth Trophy races on the Detroit River Saturday and Monday will fugnish the most serious threat Gar Wood has yet faced in his long years of hydroplane supremacy.

Wood first won the plaque which symbolizes the world's hydroplane speed championship off the Isle of Wight in 1920. Every attempt that has been made since then to take the title from him has failed. In fact, in none of the races since 1921 has a challenger been able to finish, engine trouble and other misfortune overtaking the invaders.

Now, however, appears an English girl, Miss Marion Barbara Carstairs, to make her third attempt to beat Wood and recapture the trophy. Like other challengers, Miss Carstairs was forced out by mishap in her attempt last year and the year before. Profiting by her experience in 1928 and 1929, she has brought two boats to represent Great Britain in the races this year.

Miss Carstairs announced today that this year's attempt to lift the trophy would be her last. "I can't afford it" she said. "I don't know what this racing has cost me, but I can't carry on. It's been frightful." motorboat interests had cost her in the neighborhood of $500 000 and the present challenge alone would represent an outlay of "around $150 000."

That Wood regarded the challenge as the most serious yet made was shown when, after viewing the two English boats in operation, he hastily ordered a new Miss America and had it completed in ten days. Just how fast the new boat Miss America IX can go has not been determined, but neither has the maximum speed of the challenging boats, Estelle IV and Estelle V, been clocked.

Wood has been striving for a 100-mile an hour boat and says Miss America IX is faster than Miss America VIII, which he claims can do 95 miles an hour on a straight-away course.

The two English boats were out for trials on the river today, with Miss Carstairs at the wheel of Estelle IV and Bert Hawker, designer of both challenging boats, piloting Estelle V. Although no official timing was done unofficially it was said that Miss Carstairs drove Estelle IV at 95 miles an hour.

WOMEN WOULD RATHER WORK FOR MAN THAN FOR OWN SEX

English Pyschologist Says Women Seldom Work in Harmony.

JEALOUS OF EACH OTHER

LONDON, Aug. 29.—(Special to The Examiner.)— That women would at any time rather work for a man than a woman appears from a study of the subject made by an English writer, based upon complaints of civil service girls about their treatment by women superiors.

Many girls having decided to go into business, he finds, accept without hesitation a job in a man's office, but will think twice before accepting and in all probability turn down, an equally lucrative appointment offered by a member of her own sex.

Recently he asked George Bernard Shaw, with whom he was discussing some curious facts of contemporary life, why it was that the most ardent feminist, when it came to a matter of business, invariably decided to sell her services to a male.

"I think," Mr. Shaw is quoted as replying, "They like working for men because they get more fun out of it, and sometimes they find the work easier, too. A man can be a help to them. I know that all hospital nurses much prefer men to women patients, I think I know why. It is because the male patient, if he is well enough, enjoys a little housework to oblige his nurse. Since housework is not his job, he finds it a novelty and the fact of being helpful affords him a pleasant sense of gallantry. But the female patient, just because it is her job, will not move a finger to help. She is content to let the other woman do all the work."

A West End dressmaker asked about this theory of Mr. Shaw agreed that he might be right so far as hospitals were concerned, but said that it was not the same in her profession. What she had suffered from was the fact that women insisted on helping her.

"Just because a woman believes herself capable of doing a job," explained the dressmaker, "she will not allow even the woman she has engaged to do it, to work in peace. She can't help interfering. But a man, once he's given his order, leaves you alone."

"In all shops," continues the writer, "the desire of the female to assist the male (at the expense of her sisters) is very obvious. Every shopgirl will keep her woman customers waiting in order to attend to a man, even if he is out of his turn. And the man need not necessarily be an Adonis.

"Probably it is a woman's pre-occupation with details— often quite trifling ones—which make her a bad employer of other women. A man, having once given somebody a piece of work to do for him, reserves his criticism until the work is completed. But a woman is too impatient to wait as long, and constantly gives her employer advice, which is not unnaturally regarded as interference.

"In short, men seldom interfere with the work a woman is doing for them, while women do nothing else.

"That instinctive jealousy which exists more among women than men is one explantion of why women dislike working for each other. They are unable to trust each other t. the same extent that men can. And any degree of distrust makes a business relationship next to impossible."

However, the writer surmises that the real reason why a women prefers to work for a man is that she can bluff him.

"Most men are easeily bluffed by most women," he says. "But the woman who can bluff another woman is well on the way to being superhuman."

RADIO PLAYS BIG PART IN AIDING PEACE RELATIONS

Permits Interchange of Ideas and Information M. H. Aylesworth Says

BRINGS PEOPLE TOGETHER.

Freedom of Intercourse Responsible For Fine Feeling Between U.S. and Canada.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.)—Radio as a powerful force in international relations because it permits of international exchange of ideas and information, was discussed by M. H. Aylesworth, President of the National Broadcasting Company, in an address here to-day before a luncheon of the directors of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The mutual exchange between Canada and the United States will be an example to the whole world of the possibilities of greater friendship between nations, developed through the common purposes and ideals of friendly neighbors he said. Radio, he pointed out, provided the opportunity for every nation in the world to speak to every other nation and present its case. Under such circumstances distance becomes no barrier and radio was destined to play in the world a greater and greater part in bringing people closer together in exchanging thoughts as well as getting the benefit of each other's culture.

Two Fine Neighbors

"Canada and the United States" he said, "linked by an imaginary line have more in common than any two neighbors in the world. The goodwill existing between the two countries is a matter of distinct pride to all Canadians and the the citizens of the United States. At the same time we are all proud that both countries retain national personalities which although harmonious, are distinctive. It seems to me that the happy relationship existing between the two countries is due in a large measure to our freedom of intercourse.

Speaking of the particular part radio played in the cementing of international ties, Mr. Aylesworth said it would not be possible for Canadians and Americans to understand each other's humor and each other's sorrows.

Each nation's radio programs should be primarily for home consumption, he held. Then they were certain to be representative and worthy. An eager audience waited in the United States, he declared for Canadian statesmen and Canadian artists.

He warned that the possibility of reaching listeners over a vast territory "sternly imposes responsibility" and this responsibility was as great or greater in international exchange of radio programs.

OBITUARY

REV. E. MAYHEW.

MADOC, Aug. 29.—(Examiner Correspondence.) —The remains of the late Rev. E. Mayhew, who was drowned last week in Dickie's Lake, were conveyed from his home at the Standard church parsonage, Madoc, to Lakeview cemetery on Monday afternoon. The funeral service was largely attended by his own congregration, several ministers and his sorrowing neighbors and friends. The funeral service was in charge of Bishop Monohan, who preached a forceful sermon from the text, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course." Bishop Monohan spoke very impressively of the late pastor's gallant fight against feeble health and many obstacles. At the graveside a most impressive service was conducted. By request, "Must II Be Carried to the Skies, on Flowery Beds of Ease," and "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder I'll Be There" were Sung, while all the brother ministers present, circled the grave.

BURN FORD COKE

for a cleaner home and more actual heat

HAVE a clean house, a clean furnace, a clean chimney—and more clean heat for your money. In Ford Coke the elements that make dust, smoke and soot have been removed. Use it for a while and you'll notice the difference in your curtains and carpets. And the absence of soot gives you protection against chimney fires.

It's a truly economical domestic fuel. Practically all heat—burns to very few ashes. Controls easily; banks well, and gives quick heat for early morning. No need to alter your present furnace. The lighter weight of a shovelful of coke makes it especially desirable where women must tend the furnace. These are all reasons why you ought to call us today for a trial order of Ford Coke.

(Ford Charcoal Briquets are an ideal fuel for starting furnace and for grate fires)

LEAGUE PALESTINE REPORT IS UNFAIR TO BRITISH EYES

London Believes Findings of Commission Influenced by Zionists.

DENY BLUNDERING

LONDON, August 29 (Special to The Examiner, by Henry Somerville, Copyright 1930). — There is exasperation in Britain at criticisms of the Palestine administration by the Mandates Commission of the League of Nations. The report of the commission to British eyes seems to be excessively influenced by the Zionist viewpoint. Britain admits two mistakes. Both the military forces and the Intelligence Department have been reduced below the strength which was proved to be needed by the rising of Arabs against Jews last August. The commission itself, however, had been equally mistaken, for in previous reports it had expressed satisfaction that the situation enabled military forces to be curtailed. Money thus saved was spent on social services.

The commission asserts that the Arab attacks of the Jews were premeditated. Britain rejects this view and therefore does not think a larger intelligence department could have averted the events of last August. The commission argues that Britain should have done more both for Jews and Arabs. It should have made larger Jewish immigration possible, and in order to reconcile the Arabs to this it should have aided the Arabs with a government agricultural policy including public work to develop a cultivable area. The organization of agricultural credit, land credit, co-operative societies, and the education commission says: "The fears that the Arabs felt when they saw the land passing into the hands of the Jews through sale after sale would have been allayed had they observed that cultivable area and the yield of available land in the country as a whole were increasing at the same time."

The British Government replies that "The commission appears to have accepted the more extreme Jewish contentions regarding the meaning and object of the mandate duty imposed on a mandatory Power. It is not to establish a Jewish national home in Palestine. This is the function of the Jews themselves. Britain spent $45,000,000 of British money on Palestine and have guaranteed a loan of $20,500,000 for economic development, but the funds that Britain can devote to Palestine are limited. The Government does not agree that political hostility of Arabs towards the Jews would be so easily removed even if they were given all the suggested economic advantages. The Government accuses the commission of accepting exparte statements from Jews regarding the August outbreak and of ignoring the findings of an impartial commission of inquiry.

FLEET RETURNS TO MARBLEHEAD

Former Glory of U. S. Fishing Industry's Birthplace Restored in Pageant.

300-YEAR HISTORY

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 29.—(C.P.)—This port, birthplace of the fishing industry in the United States, took on a semblance of its former glory when on July 26 several vessels of the Massachusetts fishing fleet sailed into the harbor to participate in a tercentary pageant representing "The Return of the Marblehead Fishermen."

The history of Marblehead as a fishing port goes back exactly three hundred years when the early settlers, themselves fishermen, established a "fishery station" in old Barnegat. From this early beginning the port prospered as a fishing center with fish flake lining its rocky shores and commodious storehouses erected on its many wharves.

To a Marbleheader the "return of the fishermen" suggests far more than the coming back of ships from sea. Glorious as was the sight of the schooners, their sails filled before the breeze, rounding the headland after months of storm tossed fishing off the Grand Banks, yet, many an anxious heart awaited the docking of the vessels. The frequent storms and raging seas took a heavy toll. Widows and fatherless children made up a large part of the little port's inhabitants. In the year before the resolution, when the industry was at its peak, twenty three of the fleet of a hundred vessels were lost, with 192 men and boys. Disasters were many on the Banks and from the most terrible, the never-to-be-forgotten gale of 1846, the fishing industry never recovered. Ten vessels sank off Newfoundland, carrying to a watery grave 65 men and boys. Forty three widows and 155 fatherless children were left by that calamity.

The Marblehead fishermen have more than contributed their share to early American history. The brave little schooner Hannah, commanded by a Marblehead fisherman and manned by Marbleheaders and was first war vessel in the American navy, and the fishermen, under Marblehead captains, furnished a major part of the first American seamen in the war for independence. In 1776 a group of fishermen, from this little town, under the command of General John Glover, rushed to the aid of General Washington and turned an inevitable defeat into victory by transporting the Colonial troops and their cumbersome cannon across the ice-laden Delaware after others had given up the task as hopeless.

SEAWAY ROUTE NEEDS WIDENING SAYS DURANLEAU

Minister Convinced Gov't Should Do All Possible to Improve Navigation.

DREDGES NOW AT WORK.

Present High Insurance Rates on St. Lawrence Hindrance to Shipping.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29 (C.P.) — Extensive improvements to navigation facilities on the St. Lawrence River and development of the Richelieu River are in prospect following the inspection trip down the St. Lawrence made recently by Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine. Mr. Duranleau is impressed with the value of the St. Lawrence as an asset to Canada as a whole and to the Province of Quebec in particular and is convinced the Dominion Government should do everything possible to improve navigation along it.

The present high rates demanded by insurance companies for shipping along the St. Lawrence route are a handicap to navigation, Mr. Duranleau said to-day, adding that he hopes to convince the Government of the need of widening and deepening the channel. At present the minimum width between Montreal and Three Rivers is 450 feet and the minimum depth 35 feet. In a short time he hopes to have a channel with a minimum width of 550 feet. The width of the channel at curves which is now as small as 650 feet will be increased to 800 to 1,000 feet.

Dredges at Work

Dredges are now at work on the river, but the Minister intends to strive to carry out the whole program as speedily as possible. In addition to the dredges now at work the construction of two new heavy dredges at Sorel is now almost completed. These will be launched shortly and put to work widening and deepening the ship channel.

In order to provide good water transportation from Sorel to the United States the Richelieu River should be deepened. The present Champlain Canal, he said, is very old structure and while by no means obsolete should be deepened and enlarged.

Because of the unemployment situation, Mr. Duranleau said he intended through his Department to give work to as many people as possible. With this end in view the construction of a number of small boats for use in dredging operations had been ordered at Sorel. Provision has already been made for this in the estimates at previous sessions of Parliament.

RYCKMAN SUPPLEMENTS FRUIT DUTY LINE-UP

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29. (C.P.)—Supplementing this original announcement on the imposition of dumping duties on United States fruits and vegetables entering Canada Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue has placed tomatoes from Mexico and onions from any source outside the British Empire in the same category. This will mean that tomatoes imported from both Mexico and United States, will be subjected to a 101cent per pound valuation for duty purposes. In the same way, onions from any country outside the British Empire shall be valued at four cents per pound for duty purposes.

The dumping duty valuations went into effect to-day at all custom ports.

WILLOW CREEK FARMER HAS FINE HERD OF THOROUGHBRED CATTLE

Carries Off First-class Honors at Ottawa and Picton Fairs.

JERSEY CATTLE.

ROSENEATH, Aug. 29 (Examiner Correspondence)—John T. Drope of Willow Creek Farm hose name has been closely associated with the development of the breed in Jersey cattle, is out this year with a particularly strong string and has carried off all the highest awards and grand championships at the Ottawa and Picton Fairs that were held recently.

Mr. Drope with his fine herd had the honor of receiving the grand championship for Jersey bull 3 years and over and was awarded the reserve championship on bull calf, his own raising, also the grand championship for cow, 4 years and over in milk and junior championship on female, raised by owner.

Keenest competition prevailed at these shows therefore Mr. Drope is to be highly congratulated upon his success. Not only does it bring credit and honor to the exhibitor but brings a higher standard to the farmers of the community.

Mr. Drope has already made some marked sales as the demands are reported good. This week his herd is in Belleville and later will be exhibited at the Peterborough and Lindsay Fairs, where continued success may follow and high honors received.

SUGGEST GIVING PREMIER A RAISE

Committee Recommends $10,000 Increase in MacDonald's Salary.

GETS $25,000 NOW

LONDON, Aug. 29 (C.P.).—A proposal to raise the salary of the Prime Minister by $10,000 a year has aroused considerable discussion here.

It was the only definite recommendation of the Select Committee on Ministers' Remuneration which issued a report recently. The committee had examined five witnesses—Sir Warren Fisher, Permanent Secretary to the Treasury, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Lloyd George, Mr. Macdonald and Viscount Hailsham—and as a result agreed that the salary should be raised from $25,000 to $35,000.

"Not only is his remuneration actually less than that of two of his colleagues," states the report, "but the circumstances of his position render his salary of less value than that of any other Minister. The house in Downing Street, which he is practically compelled to occupy, is admittedly very inconvenient and costly to maintain; and he has to provide out of his salary for entertainments which cannot be classified as official functions properly chargeable to the Government Hospitality Fund."

In Canada the leader of the official Opposition receives a salary of $10,000, equivalent to that of a Cabinet Minister, but it is not so in England. The report goes on to remark of an English Prime Minister: "His position, great as it is, is at best a temporary one, and it must not be forgotten that when he goes out of office he probably becomes leader of the Opposition with a salary of $2,000 a year and no pension; and while his colleagues can as ex-Ministers legitimately supplement their incomes in various ways, he alone is debarred from so doing."

Should Get $40,000.

The report summarizes the main recommendations of the committee of 1920, which included the proposal that the Prime Minister's salary should be $40,000, and that all the other members of the Cabinet should receive the same total salary. At present several Ministers receive only $10,000, while the Lord High Chancellor draws $50,000. The Attorney-General is given $35,000 and fees, the Solicitor-General $30,000 and fees. The committee would make no definite recommendations regarding these anomalies, and concluded:

"Your committee realize that one of the obstacles in the way of placing Ministers' salaries on an equitable basis is the natural reluctance of any government to propose an increase, but they suggest, as an act of justice, that all parties should cooperate in carrying out the recommendation in regard to the Prime Minister's salary."

The varying fortunes of the Prime Minister make the salary paid an important consideration for some, while others need not give it a thought. Gladstone inherited great wealth from his father, but Disraeli repeatedly ran into debt. The Earl of Roseberry married into the Rothschild family and secured a vast fortune. The late Lord Oxford and Asquith was less successful at making money than his literary wife, and found himself a poor man in his old age, only to be relieved by the gifts of friends. Mr. Baldwin is a wealthy manufacturer, but Mr. Macdonald's meagre income as a journalist has never done more than keep him out of debt. In his last days as Prime Minister, Mr. Macdonald is said to have been a cheap-hanger on his way home each night, not being able to afford a car. It must be remembered that a fourth of his present salary is swallowed up in income tax.

By comparison with Mr. Macdonald's allowance of $25,000, President Hoover's salary of $75,000 seems generous enough, together with his travelling allowance of $25,000. The Prime Minister of Canada receives only $15,000, and his Cabinet Ministers $10,000 each. Mr. Scullin of Australia is still lower with $10,500, while his Cabinet Ministers are held at $8,000.

These figures may be humorously compared with the salary and bonus of the president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, recently disclosed in an American court. It totalled well over the $1,000,000 mark.

POWASSAN YOUTH FOUND DEAD ON C.N.R. TRACKS

POWASSAN, August 29 (C.P.).—The body of James Brown, aged 19, was found close to the Canadian National Railways tracks at a crossing about two miles south of Powassan yesterday by George Thompson, a farmer, living close by. He immediately notified Provincial Officer L. A. Tregenza and Dr. G. V. Harcourt, M.P.P., of Powassan.

The position of the body, the lack of cuts or broken limbs, the finding of some clothing close by, and lights from a car seen at the crossing at 11.30 o'clock last night, lead the police to believe that he may have met with foul play. An inquest will be held.

EXPECT GOOD FALL BUILDING

Engineering Contracts Continue Active During the Past Month.

ONTARIO LEADS.

With the asisstance of several major awards, construction started during August exceeded that for July by 32.2 p.c., say McLean Building Reports, Ltd. The total for the eight months is 17 p.c. less than for the same period of 1929. Work of a building nature only is said to be down 29 p.c. from a year ago. There is a fair amount of new work planned for procedur this fall.

So far this year, engineering contracts have taken care of 40 p.c. of all construction throughout Canada, having an estimated value of $131,016,200. Construction of business buildings has amounted to $111,570,800 or 34.1 p.c. Residential construction now shows 18.2 p.c. or $61,805,300 and industrial $23,015,300 or 7 p.c.

The greater portion of awards throughout Canada this year have been in the Province of Ontario where 37.6 p.c. of all work has been undertaken, having a value of $123,102,400. Quebec province shows $111,726,00 worth of contracts or 34.1 p.c. Prairie provinces had $53,749,40? or 16.4 p.c. while British Columbia shows $23,256,900 or 7.1 p.c. and the Maritimes 4.8 p.c. or $15,570,900.

Over half of the awards during August were included in the engineering classification. The total was $25,737,300 or 52.1 p.c. Construction of business building amounted to $14,817,200 or 30 p.c. Residential shows 13.3 p.c., having a value of $6,595,000 and industrial $2,257,200 or 4.6 p.c.

50.7 p.c. of all contracts awarded during August were located in the Province of Ontario at an estimated value of $25,072,500. $12,772,800 is shown for the Province of Quebec or 25.9 of the August contracts. Prairie provinces had 15.3 p.c. or $7,512,500; British Columbia $2,616,400 or 5.3 p.c. and the Maritimes, $1,433,000 or 2.9 p.c.

You can't be yourself many years at a stretch, without being somebody new! All at once, you will be using different cosmetics, eating different foods, setting your table differently, rearranging your surroundings, readjusting your whole scheme of life.

Advertisements lead you to do this—even when you are least aware. They announce the new discoveries. Others try them. You try them. Of a sudden, you've changed! The old is at once too out-of-date. It is too slow in this age of speed. Too ineffective in this age of perfection.

Somewhere, in advertisements you have not read yet, are things other people are reading about that will make a change in you. Read the advertisements here to-day. You will discover some of the things you will want to use habitually. You might even get ahead and start using some to-day.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

CANCER OF STOMACH.

One of the hard things our lung specialists had to teach patients, and also the family physician, was that where a young person is losing weight, has a cough, with an evening rise in temperature, it is better to call it tuberculosis and treat it from that standpoint than to waste time waiting to see if tuberculosis will really develop.

That day is now past, as the newer methods of diagnosis, and the use of X-ray detect tuberculosis early.

However, it would seem that if we are to get cancer of the stomach treated early, and thus many valuable lives saved, the same methods will have to be used.

Dr. Wm. Goldie, Toronto, in giving the results of 137 cases of cancer of the stomach says,

(1) "Suspect cancer in every individual forty years or over who has any form of stomach disturbance, until you can prove that the cause is not cancer.

(2) Individuals of forty years or over, suffering from 'general failure,' without any evident cause, must be suspected of having cancer until you can prove otherwise.

(3) Even if there is a gain in weight and relief of the symptoms under treatment, the investigation must be continued until there is a certainty that there is no cancer.

(4) In the early stage, the most helpful aid at our disposal is the X-ray examination by a persistent expert."

Now my thought is not to alarm everybody, forty years or over, that happens to have a pain in the stomach.

My thought is that cancer comes on so quietly, so innocently, as it were, that most individuals give no thought to little stomach disturbances, and it is only after months of 'feeling weak, run down, losing weight, pain in stomach' and so forth, that they even think of consulting the family doctor.

Unfortunately it may then be too late to save life.

I believe it worth while for us tothink over the above suggestions of Dr. Goldie and consider the condition cancer until it is proven otherwise.

ACUTE FOOD SHORTAGE IN JAPAN PRESENTS DIFFICULT PROBLEM

80 Per Cent of Country is Mountainous, Says Toyohikok, Kagawa.

CHILD DEATHS ALARMING.

TOKIO, Japan, August 29 (Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1930).—The most talked of and the best loved man in Japan to-day is Toyohiko Kagawa. For one thing he is the country's most popular fiction writer. But this is only one means by which he carries on his life work of bettering living conditions for the poor people. For all of his life of 42 years he has been interested in this problem, and when he runs short of funds for some particular phase of the work, he writes a story and turns the proceeds into the work in hand.

At a conference in the Imperial Hotel, Tokio, he talked briefly of economic conditions in Japan, modestly refraining from mentioning his own part in any of it.

Briefly he said: "The food problem in Japan is so acute because 80 per cent. of the country is mountainous. The Japanese farmer is the most skilled in the world but the acreage is too small for the population. At times Japan has practised birth control, but at present his discontinued enforcement. I think that it might be done again—conditions will right themselves in time. There are 2,000,000 babies born in a year at the present time, and 1,100,000 of them die."

One of Kagawa's friends says of him he is "one of the striking phenomena of the Christian world." Born in 1888, the son of a Saumuri, he received every educational advantage through a wealthy uncle. Later he was disinherited by this uncle because he refused training for a diplomatic career, and he left his uncle's home to live in the poorest quarter of Tokyo in the sulas. From there he went to a poor fishing village because of his health. These experiences brought him in close contact with the poorest people and his desire to help them was at that time awakened. Through a chance meeting he fell under the influence of Dr. Harry Myers, of Kobe, teacher in the Presbyterian Theological Seminary and joined his mission class. Dr. Myers recognized the loneliness of the young student and by his understanding sympathy won him to Christianity. Later under Dr. Myers he studied Christian theology in the Southern Theological Seminary after which he preached and lived in the slums of Kobe. Four years later he went to Princeton for a year. His wife is in entire sympathy with his work, living with him in the slums and working faithfully by his side. He himself says, "The more I studied slum psychology the more I recognized that we must cure their ills by curing the source."

Mr Kagawa and his co-workers have built up a labor movement of the type of the Second International-ale of Ramsay Macdonald moderate more advanced than that of the United States. He did not organize cooperatives but he set himself to develop the ideal sort which would help the poor laborers and tenant farmers. Because the co-operatives depend on character rather than capital he put only Christians in executive positions and after years of struggle they have become a pronounced success. He is working towards the carrying on of at least half the business of Japan by co-operatives. He established his own economic bureau and the government thought so highly of it that they abolished their own and adopted his, placing him at the head of it. At one time he was elected to the legislature without knowing he was in the running. He decided the workman must be protected by politics so he organized unions. Later the Bolshevists broke up his unions and organized others, and as Kagawa predicted they have gone to pieces because of too much radicalism.

Entering the ranks of industry he is at the head of a cooperative group which manufactures men's suits at a cost of about $4. He always wears one of these European fashioned suits himself.

Eat for Pleasure
And Vitamins, Too

BY EDWINA NOLAN

Director of Home Service, General Electric Refrigeration Department

MEALS must have appetite appeal.

Otherwise they become monotonous and no amount of coaxing can induce the family to eat with enjoyment what does not appeal to the appetite.

Eating for pleasure is important and meals should have two things beside food value: variety and eye-appeal. There must be variety as to flavor, color and texture of the food served; and the food must be attractive to look at. Pleasure in eating is an aid to digestion.

Here are a few ways in which variety and attractiveness may be added to a meal:

ONE: Add interest to a menu of all soft foods by serving chilled celery, crisp lettuce salad, young tender radishes or cold slaw.

TWO: Add variety to a bland meal by providing a sharp contrast in flavor like a tart currant or gooseberry jelly, or a canape of some highly seasoned food, which can be kept in the electric refrigerator ready to be prepared at a minute's notice.

THREE: Add attractiveness, when most of the food is to be rather colorless, by choosing a bright vegetable, such as beets, tomatoes, carrots or greens. Or use garnishes of fresh parsley, green pepper rings, water cress or pimento. These keep fresh and crisp with adequate refrigeration facilities.

FOUR: Make certain that food which should be cold is served cold, such as salad greens, molded salads, gelatin desserts, fruit cocktails, relishes—olives, celery, radishes.

FIVE: Take special care in revamping leftovers that they do not resemble too closely the dish from which they originated.

Party Seeking Old La Salle Vessel

A party of men, R. F. Fleming of Ottawa; G. W. Agnew of Kilsyth, and T. J. Batman of Sheguandah, Ont., are to raise an ancient hulk off Manitoulin Island, which they are thoroughly convinced is the barque Le Griffon, one of the first great lakes traders which disappeared in the year 1679, carrying down with it a load of furs and the hopes of Rene Robert, Sieur de la Salle. This craft, which was armed with brass cannon, is reputed to have been built at the mouth of Cayuga creek, along the Niagara river. With it LaSalle hoped to find a new way to the Mississippi. Above is reproduced a sketch from Robertson's handmarks of Le Griffon sailing along probably the upper Niagara river.

LEADERSHIP

The Ford is Outselling Every Other Car in Canada by a Large and Constantly Increasing Margin

THE Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, was organized twenty-six years ago. The business was started in a small frame building and the entire first year's production totaled only 117 cars.

Today the fine modern plant covers many acres of ground and the average payroll is in excess of $11,000,000 a year. The first force of 17 men has grown to a peak of 7500, and the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, is one of the leading industrial organizations of the Dominion. Canadians may well be proud of the Ford, for it is practically all made in Canada, of Canadian materials, and by Canadian workmen.

That the public appreciates the unusual value built into the Ford is shown by its ever-increasing popularity. In many sections, 50% to 70% of all cars sold today are Model A Fords.

Following are just a few of the many features that make the Ford a value far above the price:

ECONOMY—You save when you buy the Ford and you save every mile you drive. During the life of the car, the saving on operation, up-keep and depreciation will amount to even more than the saving on the first cost of the car.

RELIABILITY — The new Ford has been built to endure. Every part has been carefully made of good materials to give you many years of satisfactory service. Many of the new Fords have already gone 50,000, 75,000 and 100,000 miles.

SPEED AND ACCELERATION — The new Ford will do 55 to 65 miles an hour. Everywhere you go you note its power on the hills and its unusual acceleration in traffic.

ROADABILITY — From all over the Dominion come letters telling of the good performance of the new Ford on rough roads and through heavy mud and sand. In winter, particularly, it has successfully traveled many roads once thought impassable.

COMFORT — Every Ford car is equipped with special transverse springs and four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. The steel-spoke wheels, low unsprung weight, three-point chassis suspension, and the torque-tube drive also add to its easy-riding comfort.

SAFETY — In addition to fully enclosed four-wheel brakes, the new Ford brings you the added safety of a shatterless glass windshield. By reducing the dangers of flying glass, it has prevented many injuries in automobile collisions.

THE STRENGTH OF STEEL — The enduring strength of steel makes the new Ford a sturdy, rugged car. Nearly forty kinds of steel are used in the chassis alone.

RUSTLESS STEEL — Evidence of the high quality built into the Ford is shown by the use of Rustless Steel for the head lamps, radiator shell, hub caps, cowl finish strip, tail lamp and other exterior metal parts. It will not rust, corrode, scale or tarnish in any kind of weather. Its bright luster will last for the life of the car.

A SMOOTH-RUNNING CAR — There are more than twenty ball and roller bearings in the new Ford — an exceptionally large number. They insure smoother operation, save gasoline, give more speed and power, decrease noise and increase the durability and efficiency of the transmission gears.

FASHION SERVICE

Distinctly summery type is a slim frock of white shantung covered with vivid blue coin dots. A plain blue tie completes the collarless V-neckline.

The bodice is cleverly designed to affect a smooth fitting hip yoke. You'll be surprised at how easily it is accomplished. Simply cut through perforated line at each side of the front and the back. The gathered upper part is then joined to the lower part. It creates a panel effect at front and back that givse lengthened line.

The flounced sleeves are darling of the short sleeve vogue, and make the arms appear slender.

Style No. 2,600 comes in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust.

Pale pink flat crepe silk, turquoise blue sheer linen, white silk pique with blue and white dotted silk crepe tie and printed voile in soft green tones are popular combinations.

Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Be sure to fill in size of pattern.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

On day, not long ago, I had my fortune told. Of course that is nothing, because lots of people do, but there was one thing the fortune-teller told me that seemed to set me wondering.

• • • • • • •

She said to me, "Your first impressions of people are the best." That set me to thinking just what my im pressions were of the people of my acquaintance.

• • • • • • •

One by one I remembered something about each one which had impressed me Of course all persons leave an impression on those with whom they come in contact.

• • • • • • •

It may be a fleeting impression made when introduced—some characteristic which stood out—or it may be a series of impressions continued through a life-long friendship.

• • • • • • •

It may have an actual influence on your life, or it may remain so slight that time nearly effaces it and it is restored only by some recurring circumstance that jogs the memory, or by actual meeting again with that person.

• • • • • • •

Sometimes when you meet a person, you are drawn to them—there is something about him or her that pleases you. On the other hand there may be a wave of dislike felt and a wish never to see one another or know one another more intimately.

• • • • • • •

Oftentimes when sitting idle, I like to think over the impressions that different people have made upon me and wonder what impressions I make on other people. Have you ever thought of that?

• • • • • • •

Do you try to make a good impression—try to make people with whom you come in contact like you, or are you simply disinterested?

• • • • • • •

Impressions are unavoidable and they supply a basis for judgment We judge others by the impressions they make upon us and they judge us in the same way.

• • • • • • •

And this judgment can be swayed towards like to dislike by comments made to us by others or made by others to them. It takes a strong personally to be impartial and to insist that the impressions one person makes upon us shall be the one source of character estimation.

• • • • • • •

We should be sufficiently persistent in treasuring a good impression received so that we shall not allow ourselves to be swayed against another or have our estimation biased unfavorably by what another says.

• • • • • • •

As for the impression we make on others—what we actually are shines out and speaks for us. For example, a peevish mouth may curve into a simle, but it tells tale of a nature that has allowed itself to be touchy.

• • • • • • •

It is an impression we have made upon ourselves and we cannot avoid its showing itself to others. On the other hand a winsome mouth does not need to smile in order for it to tell of a sweet nature. It bespeaks a kindiness that has been nurtured by beautiful thoughts.

• • • • • • •

It makes us think twice and wonder what we give to others on which they can base their judgment of us. Do we show wisdom and friendliness in our attitude—wisdom in not countenancing wrong when we see it, and friendliness toward the best?

• • • • • •

Just stop for a moment, when you are reading the column tonight, and think what sort of an impression you are making on others whereby they come to remember you.

• • • • • • •

Are you willing to be judged by what you have made of yourself?

Latest Millinery For Fall Wear

Fall fancies in fashions are illustrated by Mary Brian, pictured at the left above, who is wearing a frock of bright blue covert cloth, trimmed with rick-rack in white pique. With this is worn an Agnes tAm of blue, bound with band and bow of white grosgrain ribbon. At the right are shown several treatments in millinery tendencies in the Vogue sketches. Instead of one of them being a bell-hop's hat, the idea has come to milady via Chanel. It is worn on the back of the head. Also there is the pancake beret of Breton origin and the velvet bonnet tying under the chin in Watteau fashion. The upper model is a soft adaptation of the turban with folds of velvet brought down over the right cheek. The next sketch is the famous black stocking cap, which is quite shapeless until pulled on the head and arranged in becoming folds. It is made of black string. The last model is Reboux's skull cap of chenille. A diamond clip and a bit of ribbon are all that is necesary to transform it into a thing of elegance.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Alice Michaelis

ROSES

There are three roses in a bowl,
Red rose, pink rose and white,
Just lately from the garden brought
To flood the room with light.

The red rose wears her beauty's lure
As might a woman proud,
Each petal's vivid charm, each grace
To all the world avowed.

The pink rose is a promise still;
Enchantments, vague and rare,
Rise drifting from hidden heart
Upon the wooing air.

But, oh! the fragrant white rose stands
In loveliness agleam,
With touch of moonlight lingering there
It is a thing of dream!

Red rose and pink for holiday,
For happy maids to wear;
But white rose for the one who finds
A dreams' white beauty there.

OUR CHILDREN

By Angelo Patri

SUFFER THE CHILDREN.

A mother and little son entered a local train. There were plenty of seats empty and the mother selected one by the side of a woman she greeted as an old friend. The child, very intelligently, seated himself in the empty seat in front of them, stuck his little legs out straight behore him and prepared to enjoy himself. Soon he began asking questions.

"Mother, where is the whistle thing? Does the man blow it? How does he blow it when the train is running so fast? Is this a 'lectric train? Can he hitch it up to a battery like mine? Only bigger? I wish I could see how he does it."

"Keep still. Don't you see people looking at you and laughing because you are so silly?"

The child looked about almost shyly but meeting only friendly glances brightened up again and soon began asking about everything he saw.

"Do the people that live in those houses own those dogs? Can you own those dogs if you live in those houses? There goes an airplane. It goes faster than a train, doesn't it? Why can't a train go so fast? A train goes faster than a bird, doesn't it mother?"

"For goodness sake, can't you keep still? Want everybody to know what a foolish child you are? Now don't say another word until we get out."

The abashed child shrank into himself and hid his face under his hat. Only the scarlet tips of his ears showed that there was a humiliated little boy hiding in that overcoat and hat. The further we travelled the smaller he seemed to grow until a friendly soul sat down beside him and devoted his efforts toward bringing the happy child out to the surface once more. No amount of encouragement however, had any success. Crushed flat he stayed flat, behind the muffling coat and smothering hat.

"O don't mind him. He's all right. He would talk you to death if you'd let him," said his mother.

Just why the mother treated the child that way is hard to tell. I thought that it was because she was very self-conscious. She was afraid that the child's chatter would annoy other people. She feared they might think the child a nusiance. She was trying to shield the little boy and herself from the harsh criticism of strangers.

She never meant to hurt the child. She would not unwillingly strike fear of people into his heart. She would not like to have him shy and fearful. She would feel very badly to see him helpless in the presence of strange people and new experiences. Yet her treatment of him that day would be likely to make him afraid, shy, timid, and helpless in the face of an unfamiliar situation.

Suffer the children. When we undertake the care of a child, we pledge ourselves to their service. We answer their questions, we see them through their difficulties of growth, of temperament, adjustment to life at whatever cost. Don't be afraid of other folks' opinions. Children's needs come first and it is usually possible to supply them without causing any discomfort to other people. Even though it is not possible to avoid annoying some adults the child must be causing any discomfort to other people. Even though it is not possible to avoid annoying some adults the child must be served. That is our duty. Most grown-up people understand that.

Neckline Plays Important Role in Full Dresses

To the French dressmakers, the neck-line is more than a place in the frock to slip the head through; it is the occasion for ingenuity, as the Vogue sketch at the left, above, wil indictae. The collar that surmounts the sketch is taken from a tweed dress by Worth. It is of white handkerchief linen, a straight band finished with two tiers of fine pleating. At the upper left is shown another lingerie collar, tucked and hemstitched in regular rows. The naivete is achieved by the simple jabot. Jean Patou gives dash to a white pique collar by a bow that slips through slits on one side. What can be done with a tie is illustrated by the two lower suggestions. At the left Mirande uses on a jersey dress a band of linen to follow the neck-line. This then slips through under the revers and ties in a soft bow. At the right is the striped silk scarf which slips through applied tabs in front of the bodice. The costume at the right of the layout is a fall mode by Madelon, which is a sports ensemble for the smart deb. It is of embroidered black wool crepe. It is accened with white wool crepe. The short jacket is single-breasted, and a jaunty scarf lends dash to the dainty creation.—Sketch is by Vogue.

GOV'T MAY REMOVE RADIO STATION BAN

License Holders Must Take Chance of Gov't Nationaliz. ing All Broadcasting.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 29. (C.P.)—Pending consideration of the report of the Royal Commission of radio broadcasting by the Government and disposal of it by Parliament some licenses for new radio stations may be granted it was learned on good authority. For some months past no new licenses have been issued although numerous applications have been received. Any licenses issued will be given strictly on the understanding that they are subject to any action which may be taken by Parliament and that no compensation can be expected should the recommendations of the report be given effect to.

Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Marine, has been considering the whole question of radio and said the Government would go into the Commission's report very carefully. No statement of policy can be expected before the coming special session of Parliament and it is unlikely any action will be taken before the regular session next winter.

The commission of which Sir John Aird was chairman, recommended the nationalization of all broadcasting in Canada under an organization similar to the British Broadcasting Corporation in Britain.

Cardinals Win From Cubs 8-7 in 20 Innings

DOUHIT CROSSES PLATE WITH WINNING RUN ON HIGH'S HIT TO BREAK UP PITCHING DUEL

Result Leaves Gaints and St. Louis in Virtual Tie For Third Place.

9TH STRAIGHT WIN.

Washington Beats New York While Philadelphia Loses to Boston.

NEW YORK, Aug. 29 (C.P.).—At least three teams in the National League apparently have no intention of letting the Chicago Cubs capture another pennant without a battle that resembles a new world war. With their successive triumph over Brooklyn and New York, the Cubs seemed to be having things very much their own way in the struggle for the flag, and then along came the St. Louis Cardinals to cause trouble.

The Cards, who have been creeping up in fourth place for some time, moved into Chicago yesterday with a record of eight straight victories which had put them in a really threatening position. And instead of following the example of their predecessors and letting themselves be knocked out of such a place, they fought through the major league season's longest game to make it nine straight with an 8 to 7 triumph in 20 innings.

Shuts Out Cubs.

Only the fighting spirit of the Cubs, or perhaps, as the fans in Brooklyn and New York have it, their luck, prevented an easy triumph over St. Louis. For six innings Burleigh Grimes shut out the champions, while the Cards piled up a five-run lead. Then Grimes weakened, and before Sylvester Johnson took over the mound duty, the Cubs had tied the score at 5-5.

Johnson finished the game for St. Louis, hurling 12 innings and giving only nine hits. And Young "Bob" Osborn, who opposed him for the last nine frames, did about as well. Each had one bad inning, the fifteenth, but it failed to break the deadlock, each team scoring twice. In the twentieth, Douhit singled, advanced to second as Adams was thrown out, and scored on High's single with the run which finally decided the game after four hours and ten minutes of play.

While the early part of this fray was going on, the Brooklyn Robins stepped up and further complicated the standing by taking second place from New York with another 8-7 victory. The Robins blasted Carl Hubbell and Pete Donohue from the mound in the sixth inning for seven of their runs, just enough to hold off a final giant rally.

The results of these two games left Chicago only five games ahead of Brooklyn with the Giants and St. Louis in a virtual tie for third place, another half game back.

Pittsburgh's Pirates, another team which may cause a lot of trouble before the season ends, slammed out a pair of victories over the Cincinnati Reds to carry their winning streak to ten victories in 12 games. A 16 hit assault in the first game off-set the slugging of Harry Heilmann and gave Pittsburgh a 16 to 12 victory, fifteen more wallops won the second game by an 11 to 2 count. Heilmann was the individual star, hitting two home runs and a double in the opening clash to drive in seven runs.

In the meeting of the non-combatants, the Boston braves, aided by Wally Berger's 31st home run, poled out a 13-10 victory over Philadelphia.

Trounce Yanks 6-3

Washington's Senators continued their efforts to make the American league race resemble that in the elder circuit by trouncing the New York Yankees, 6 to 3, by virtue of a five run rally in the sixth inning. The victory not only sent the Yankees 4½ games behind second place, but it reduced Philadelphia's lead to 6½ games. The Athletics ran afoul of some of the great pitching the last-place Boston Red Sox have been getting from time to time and lost a 2-1 decision as Hod Lisenbee outpitched George Earnshaw with a six hit performance.

The tie in games for sixth place in the standing cropped up as the St. Louis Browns continued to outplay the Detroit Tigers, gaining a 9-1 victory as Detroit could make only four hits off George Blaeholder in six innings and none at all off Chad Kimsey in the next three. The Chicago White Sox, after pulling ahead at Cleveland's expense, dropped back again when opposed by Wesley Ferrell. The Big Indian hurler, getting his usual assistance in the form of five runs in the opening inning, won his 23rd victory of the season and his 12th in succession by a 10-5 count. Both the winning streak and the victory total are the best of the season's for the major leagues.

Foul Ball By Cochrane Causes Court Action

CLEVELAND, Aug. 29—Alleging they were injured by a foul ball during batting practice before the Cleveland-Philadelphia Americans game here June 11, two women yesterday filed damage suits totalling $30,000 against the Cleveland club. Mrs. Laura Frater, Cleveland Heights, asked $5,000, and Mrs. Esther L. Wedding of Springfield, Ohio, sought $25,000. A foul ball from the bat of Mickey Cochrane, Athletics' catcher, hit Mrs. Frater on the shoulder and glanced off, striking Mrs. Wedding in the side, they aver.

THIRD GAME OF SERIES TO-NIGHT

Sugar Bowl and Trenton Softball Team Will Tangle at Central School Grounds.

GAME STARTS 6.15.

The third and deciding game of Trenton-Sugar Bowl series will be played tonight at Central School grounds at 6.15.

The game was ordered to be played in Peterborough by Mr. McCarthy of Kingston, convenor for Eastern Ontario for the Ontario Softball Association. Word was received at 2.00 a.m. this morning.

An agreement on where the game was to be played could not be reached by the Trenton and Peterborough officials, so the convenor was called in to settle the matter. Mr McCarthy decided to flip a coin to see where the third game would be held, the winner paying all expenses. At 1.30 this morning, over long distance telephone, Mr. Leether, secretary of the local league, called the toss and won, thereby getting the third game for Peterborough grounds.

There should be one of the largest crowds of the season on hand tonight for the big battle. Wednesday night's game here was a hard-fought affair, and by far the best game viewed on local grounds in many seasons. The battle tonight should be just as fast.

Len Forsythe will in all probability be sent right back at the C.P.R. team, with Ernie Bowler opposing him. If Forsythe pitches the brand of ball he did on Wednesday he will be hard to beat.

The winner of this series meets Brockville for the Eastern Ontario championship. The Agnew-Surpass team of Brockville eliminated Kingston in two games, winning at home 10-8 and in Kingston 22-10. The Kingston team cracked in the game at home, and the Brockville team walked away with the series.

Tonight's game will get away at 6.15 sharp and should draw a bumper crowd.

SULKIES ARE WRECKED IN BELLEVILLE TRACK SPILL

Drivers and Horses Have Narrow Escape From Injury.

GOLDIE PETER A WINNER.

BELLEVILLE, August 29.— Racing in connection with the Belleville Fair was of a high-class order yesterday with the 2.22 class and the 2.18 class down for decision. Accidents marred the racing, but no one was injured in the crashes. In the fourth heat of the 2.22 class three horses, Red Peter, Private G, and Furi Mildred, a heat winner, hooked bikes going to the turn after the word was given, and all went down. Fortunately they were trailing the field, and the drivers, thrown out to the centre of the track, were not trampled on. The bikes were total wrecks.

Goldie Peter, owned by Sarnia, and who was second to Toll Gate in Ottawa when he broke the track record, had little trouble in disposing of the field which faced her. She was away bad in the first heat, but raced into second position after a long, hard drive, and after that it was a parade till the fourth heat, when she had to come from behind through the lane to beat Country Lass and Byron Lullwater, the good three-eyar-old colt of Doctor Whiteley's from Goderich. There were nine starters, one of the largest fields at the meet. The time was good in each heat

Dr. Hopkins of Cooksville turned his little brown mare, Jean Ganot, loose in the 2.18 class, and with "Dutch" Hopkins, the 16-year-old reinsmen in the pilothouse, there was nothing to it. The mare was on her best behaviour and made every post a winning one. Blaze Star furnished the competition with Miss Hal G., a winner at Ottawa, not having enough brush at the end of her miles to get up

There will be a classified race for non-starters at the meet and a free-for-all to-day with the best pacers in Ontario ready for the word in the free-for-all. The summary follows:

2.18 Class—Purse $250.

Jean Ganot, Dr. Hopkins, Cooksville	1	1	1
Blaze Star, J. O. O'Connor, Collingwood	2	2	3
Miss Hal G., N. Neely, Sarnia	3	3	2
Eleanor Mae, J. Akey, Peterborough	4	4	4

Time—2.14, 2.15, 2.15.

2.22 Class—Purse $250.

Goldie Peter, N. Neely, Sarnia	2	1	1	1

Captain of Tri-color Undergoes Operation

KINGSTON, Ont., August 29—Ian "Hoot" Gourley, captain, and outside wing of Queen's intercollegiate senior football team, who on Wednesday afternoon underwent an operation for appendicitis in the Kingston General Hospital, is reported as progressing very favorably. Whether the operation will keep him out of the coming football season or not remains to be seen. Gourley is very anxious to get into the game, especially as he is the field leader of the tricolor squad.

PACKERS VS. SCOTS PECK CUP TO-NIGHT

Kick-off Scheduled For Six O'clock—Must Play the Full Ninety Minutes.

The soccer fans are assured of a real thrill to-night when the Caledonians meet the Canadian Packing in the final of the Peck Cup on King Edward Park. Kick-off is scheduled for six o'clock, so that the full ninety minutes to be played according to the cup tie rule. Referee Alexander McKinley. Previous battles have drawn large crowds and this encounter is sure to be interesting.

NATIONALS ARE AGAIN CHAMPS

Belleville to Represent C.O.B.L. in Ontario Playdowns For Seventh Time.

IN TORONTO SATURDAY.

BELLEVILLE, Aug. 29.—For the seventh time in eleven years the Belleville Nationals will represent the Central Ontario Baseball League in the Ontario play-downs. They will invade Conboy Park, Toronto, on Saturday for the first game of the series with the Bell Telephone team of Toronto. The locals have gained a Province-wide reputation since 1919 when they won their first Ontario championship.

This year the team is practically as strong as ever, with some of the veterans of the original squad still going strong. The pitching burden is divided by three comparative youngsters, Alex. Weir, "Moose" Darrah and "Ab" Young, with the former the mainstay of the trio. He has been doing practically all the fighting this year. He made his debut in 1928 and has improved wonderfully under the masterful catching of the veteran Mills, who is regarded as one of the finest amateur receivers in Ontario. He has caught for the Belleville team since its inception. Mills has been chiefly instrumental in the diamond successes enjoyed by Goyer, Williams and Gibson, who were grabbed off by other clubs following their scintillating careers here.

Steady Infield

The infield has been playing steadier ball than any quartet to hold down these positions. Harry Mills, brother of the big catcher, covers first base, and he has no peer in Central Ontario. Vern Weir, who holds down the keystone sack, is one of the originals, and the years have not dimmed his speed. George Scott, a product of Renfrew, has filled Blakely's shoes at shortstop this year, and he has made a good job of it. His brother, Bob, is overseer of third base, and he has developed into one of the best custodians to guard the red light corner in Central Ontario baseball history.

The outfield is probably not as strong as in previous years, being composed chiefly of younger talent. Cretney, Flagler and Darrah. Morgan and Young have been doing the fly-chasing, and while their fielding has been superlative they are a trifle weak in hitting. Walter Gerow, who has coached six of the seven championship teams, is still mentor of the squad.

Motorists who have been touring in the vicinity of Drakenberg, South Africa, report finding at North Nelson's Kop an isolated tribe of natives called Proodis living in a volcanic district deserted by Zulus 50 years ago, and so primitive that they rushed in fear from the automobile.

WINGS INCREASE LEAGUE LEAD TO TWO FULL GAMES

Montreal Strengthens Hold on Third Place By Defeating Jersey City Twice.

TORONTO LEAFS IDLE.

Buffalo Bisons Take 8-4 Decision From Newark to Cop Fifth Position.

TORONTO, Aug. 29 (C.P.)—First blood in the most crucial series of the International League season has been drawn by Billy Southworth's Rochester Redwings, defending champions.

The Redwings nosed out the second place Baltimore Orioles, 7—6, in the opening game of the series yesterday and increased their lead to two and one-half games.

Baltimore went down but not without a struggle. It took the Redwings ten innings to pull out a decision, Pepper Martin's single in that frame driving home Worthington with the winning run. The Orioles nicked Paul Derringer for two runs in the first inning, but the Redwings drove Jim Weaver to cover with a five-run rally in the third. Baltimore pecked away at Derringer until the Orioles had assumed a 6—5 lead in the first half of the eighth. Worthington promptly knotted the count again with a home run inside the park in the last half of that frame.

Strengthens Hold

Montreal strengthened its hold on third place by whipping Jersey City twice 6—4 and 9—0. Herb. Thormahlen chalked up his 13th victory in the opener, but the Royals had to come from behind to win. Thormahlen permitted only five hits, but poor fielding by his mates enabled the Skeeters to score three runs in the second inning. Montreal came back with two in its half of the same frame, tied the count with one run in the fourth and went ahead with another run in the fifth. Jersey City counted once in the sixth, but the Royals scored single runs in the seventh and eighth frames to put the game on ice. Joe Hartman gave the Skeeters three scattered hits in the nightcap while the Royals were bunching ten hits off Walsh. Jimmy Ripple collected two triples, a double and two singles in six official trips to the plate during the double bill. The Royals' double triumph put them two full games in front of the fourth place Toronto Maple Leafs, who were idle.

In Fifth Place.

Buffalo's Bisons went into fifth place by trimming the Newark Bears 8—4. Buffalo clouted Harvin and Bones for 17 hits and won without trouble. Art Mills pitcher 8 2-3 innings for the Bisons, but weakened, and Wertz went in to pitch to the last batter. Russ Wrightstone, former major leaguer, ran his string of hits in official times at bat to nine in a row, before he was stopped on his last trip to the plate. He has collected three hits in each of his last three games.

BRINTON A. AND CALEY TWO EACH IN LEAGUE GAME

Teams Well Balanced—Brinton Lose Valuable League Point —Scots Lead at Interval.

PLAY INTERESTING.

Nice Combination Introduced in Second Half—Both Forward Lines Too Eager to Score.

For the second time this week, the Brintons have failed to get the full points in the local soccer league. Last night the ever-improving Caledonians had the advantage of the score all through the encounter, but missed many openings at close range thereby making the score two all and dividing the points. This loss makes the position of the Packers more secure in the league standing. The Scots led at the interval by two to one and immediately thereafter the Brinton gained the equalizer.

First Half.

From the kick-off, the Brintons penetrated the Scots' defence to have a try at goal. Ward repulsed the attack in the nick of time, to send Gore along the wing with the ball. The full backs thought that it was going past, but the Scots left-winger picked it off the touch, and with a nice drive into goal, Curtain headed into the net. Keen tactics prevailed on both defensive lines to offset the combination that was introduced. Eventually this kind of play produced another goal when the Scots' right-winger carried the attack to the other end, where Cook sent a roller inside the upright. The Brinton half-back line replied with well-planned attacks through Anderson, who left James in a favorable position to score, but Pottie ran in his way to nullify his effort. Thereafter, both citadels were bombarded with all kinds of shots. A breakaway by Curtis at inside right ended in disaster for the Caleys, as Harry Hotson connected at the opportunie moment to reduce the lead. The Scots replied with very aggressive methods to get inside the Brinton area to test Jones' qualities as a custodian. He grabbed high and low shots with perfect ease as the opposition hovered around the goal. The interval arrived with the Scots making a raid on the Brinton citadel. Caledonians 2, Brinton 1.

Half-time.

Within two minutes on resuming, the Brintons had the equalizer in the net. Curtis and Boon outplayed the Scots' defence nicely on clever tackling which ended in the latter picking the vacant spot in between the uprights for the second tally. The teams on an even basis provided many more interesting tussles in the midfield section where the halves on each team fed their respective forwards with nice openings. The Scots besieged the Brinton citadel time and again with long shots that Jones seemed to enjoy handling. At last Curtain went right through with the ball at his foot and hit the upright with a rocket drive and failed to get the rebound as the custodian was well beaten, Green clearing up field. A foul against a Brinton player looked dangerous for the Carpet boys as Ward drove hard for the far corner of the net, Jones making a spectacular save with one hand. An infringement took place which compelled the same player to have another chance, but his shot missed the mark. As time wore on the players endeavored to get the decisive goal, but it never matured in the bombardment that the Scots put up in the closing minutes. No matter what the Scots tried, they found a defence holding every inch of territory and permitting no mistakes to take place. Caledonians 2, Brinton Athletic 2.

Goal scorers—Caledonians, Curtain and Cook; Brinton, Hotson and Boon.

Caledonians—H. Fowler, goal; J. Pottie and D. Houston, backs; A Bogie, J. Ward and J. Emmery, half-backs; McCracken, W. Cook, D. Curtain, T. Craig, and J. Gore, forwards.

Brinton—W. Jones, goal; D. Green and S. Laidler, backs; J. Creighton, J. Anderson, and J. O'Halloran, half-backs; W. Curtis, J. Boon, W. James, H. Hotson, and E. Hanson, forwards.

Gehrig Again Passes Smiling Al Simmons

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—The Big Six batsmen fell down on their job of showing the way to other players yesterday, and only one of the six, Lou Gehrig, held his average up to its previous mark. Gehrig's two hits in five times at bat held his average at .396 and enabled him to take the American League lead away from Al Simmons, who dropped three points to .393 as he failed to connect in four attempts. Bill Terry, Big Six leader, also had four fruitless trips to the plate, and dropped four points to .404. "Babe" Ruth and "Chuck" Klein each hit once in four tries and lost but one point each. "Babe" Herman dropped behind Klein with a two-point loss as he made one hit in five times at bat.

RELAY THUNDER GOES WEST

The girls' Canadian championships at the British Empire Games brought some interesting facts to light. From the results one would think the field of champions is well divided over the Dominion. However, from British Columbia comes some real threats. The relay team knocked the relay crown from the heads of the Eastern team. The Vancouver team is young, but inexperienced. They've got the goods. Lillian Palmer, the attractive little Vancouver sprinter, leaped right into the limelight when she captured both the 60 and 100 metre intermediate finals. She figured prominently also in the victory of the Commerce girls of that city, who captured both the 60 and 100 metre intermediate finals. She figured prominently also in the victory of the Commerce girls of that city, who captured the 400 metre senior relay. Running the Anchor leg, she held a lead to beat out Myrtle Cook McGowan. Although the Montreal sprinter was at the top of the form that made her one of the greatest fliers the game has known.

NO GIRL IN NELSON'S PLAN; WANTS TO WIN MORE SWIMS

Could Have Done Course Again, He Tells Mentor After Victory.

PRAISED BY TRAINER.

TORONTO, Aug. 29. (Special to The Examiner, Copyright 1930)—One year ago, Marvin Nelson of Fort Dodge, Iowa, then an eighteen-year-old high school student competing in his first professional marathon swim, was dragged unconscious from Lake Ontario within fifty yards of monye in his graps. ThisSHRDLU the finishing barge with sixth prize money in his graps. This year he stepped gaily up on the finishing float, after breaking the world's record for a fifteen-mile swim by over 34 minutes—better than two minutes a mile—and confided to Johnny Walker, veteran Toronto swimming mentor that he could have lopped another fifteen minutes off his time had he been pushed. Now only 19 years of age, Nelson may again lower his record in 1931—for he will swim next year.

"How are you feeling?" he was asked, when he walked on to the finishing barge. "Fine" was the matter-of-fact reply. "I'd just as soon do another fifteen miles." Nelson was not boasting. A more unassuming champion never swam in a marathon.

Gives Walker Credit

Nelson takes no credit whatever for his astonishing improvement over his form of last year. "I owe it all to Johnny" he said. "Johnny took me into his camp this year and taught me everything I know about swimming. He looked after me like a son, I couldn't ask for a better friend or coach."

Johnny Walker had directed the swimming of the whole race for him, Nelson said. "I just did as Johnny told me. He never pushed me at any time, not even when I was passing Spondor. But say," he said, in admiration of the driving pace held by the Port Colborne youth for seven laps, "he sure did give Johnny a shock at first. But when we settled down to it, I felt I could hold the pace longer than he could. Eels? No, not a one."

And if Marvin Neson is grateful to Johnny Walker, Johnny is doubly proud of the boy he discovered and coached. He is the best boy I ever had" was the hearty tribute paid by the man who trained George Young and Vierkoetter. "He does everything I tell him without a murmur."

Praised by Mentor

"I knew I could win with Nelson as soon as I saw he could pick up George Young's arm stroke," Johnny Walker continued. "George Young has the most ability of any swimmer in the world to-day—but he has only the stamina to swim for four hours. I knew Marvin here had the stamina, after his gallant struggle last year, and I knew he had the courage. I gambled on the rest."

Marvin is content to let Johnny Walker do the talking for both. "Ask Johnny," was his unvarying reply to scores of questions regarding his training methods, swimming history and home life.

"Will you swim again next year?" he was asked.

"I sure will," agreed Nelson.

The crowd took the tall, clean-limbed youth to its heart from the first. From the second lap on, cheer on cheer from the throngs lining the waterfront, greeted the be-spectacled lad from Fort Dodge. They recalled vividly that tragedy has twice crossed the path of the gallant boy—once when he collapsed last year with sixth place almost assured—the second time when Bill Mehl of Jamaica, Long Island, his pal, and another of Johnny Walker's proteges, was drowned in Lake Ontario searching for him during a sudden squall. Nelson had swum ashore at a point farther down the lake and his shouting failed to attract the attention of the searchers.

Marvin waited at the barge until Izador Spondor came. "You sure made a great swim of it, old man," he congratulated the second prize winner.

"What are you going to do with the $10,000?" he was asked.

"I don't know. I haven't got it yet."

But at any rate he is not going to get married when he returns to Fort Dodge. He is figuring on a couple more swims first.

Italy is issuing a monthly timetable of nearly 500 pages dealing with railroad, street car, air and motor bus service throughout the country.

Youth Starts First Backyard Golf Course

Peterborough's first back-yard golf course has made its appearance! It is not a very pretentious course. Nevertheless it was apparently affording a great deal of satisfaction to its youthful designer who was observed enjoying a game of golf in solitary serenity the other afternoon.

Complete with hazards which would doubtless provide a source of embarassment to veteran exponents of miniature golf, the course is if nothing else, very original.

Starting out on the first green, equipped with an old golf ball and an improvised club made from a stick to which was attached a hammer head, the would-be golfer was seen to negotiate the 'old tire hazard', but got bunkered in a stove pipe. Manfully striving he finally ended up in the 'barrel hazard' after having encountered some difficulty with the egg crates and various other hazards en route. It is not known what the youthful aspirants score was, but it is surmised that after a little practice on his own course, he will be able to take on all comers at the public courses—and lick them too.

POINT ANNE TO PLAY HERE ON SATURDAY P.M.

Both Teams in Fine Fettle For Second Battle of Intermediate Play-offs.

SENIOR CALIBRE BALL.

Electrics Set New Infield Record at First Game Played on Wednesday.

There is no uncertainty about the class of ball that fans will see tomorrow afternoon at Exhibition Park when the C.G.E. team and Point Anne play again. It will be of Senior calibre all the way.

Down at Point Anne on Wednesday, the Peterborough Electrics displayed their best form of the year—a form, which if they defeat Point Anne to-morrow, will likely carry them right through to the Intermediate championship. There was a sparkle and dash to every play and a new record of 19 assists by the infield was hung up.

This Cement Makers' crew of former stars of the Belleville Nationals are no collection of weaklings, either. Stopped dead for eight innings by the sensational fielding work of the Electrics, they entered the final stanza trailing 7 to 1. Then they broke loose with sound wallops and, after two were out, chased 4 runs over. The tying runs were on the sacks when Ash took "Soap" Goyer's liner for the third out.

That exemplifies the spirit of Point Anne club and they will come here to-morrow ready to battle the whole way. The team was collected with the idea of making a real bid on the Ontario title, and they will not be forced to the discard without giving everything they have.

Pointer on Mound

Pointer, the big right-hander, who made such a sensation last year with Belleville when he ran up a long flock of strikeouts against Oshawa, will be their pitching choice.

Art Primeau has a selection of several hurlers and he is not yet announcing whom he will send in. The C.G.E. is holding a workout this evening, and they will be in fine fettle for the important go.

The game is called for 3 o'clock sharp.

OVER The KITTY By "Newsie"

Daily Happenings on Peterborough Bowling Club's Greens.

Well, we held our first bridge party at the Club House last night and while we did not get the number of members that we had expected, the faithful few had a real good time. Prizes were won by Mrs. O. Sackville (First) and Mrs. T. Pritchard (second). Neil Tobin (first) and Dr. H. Young (second) Lucky draw prize went to Mrs. Blewett and blind score prizes were secured by Mrs. Wilf Wood and Harold Freeman. Refreshments were served after the game, and those present all promised to come back next time. However, the House Committee feels very disappointed at the support afforded them by our own members, both ladies and gentlemen.

The play-off games for the right to go to Toronto in competition for the Globe Doubles resulted in Messrs. Mayneord, Coleman, Sedgewick and Martin qualifying.

There are big doings slated for the tennis section tomorrow afternoon Peterborough and Bowmanville will battle it out for the doubtful honor of holding down the cellar position, while Campbellford and Oshawa are meeting to decide the league championship. All local tennis enthusiasts are invited to come and see the games.

The regular Friday night tournament is carded for to-night at the usual hour, but owing to unforeseen circumstances the corn roast promised for later in the evening has been cancelled. This will be unfortunate for the benedicts who had planned this event to give them an excuse for a late night.

Cobourg and Port Hope have tournaments on Labor Day and now is the time to get your rinks together to go after the cups. Our trophy cupboard can stand two very nicely.

There were all kinds of slams last night, big and small, but these are nothing to the sort that Newsie gets every night.

According to Mr. Sparling, who we think is the only banker in the Club, Bank managers favor the employing of tall men. We have noticed that our Manager appears to have no time for those that are short.

When you get into an argument remember "that if the shoe pinches you can change your ideas".

If it is Club news you will find it in this column daily.

SPORTS PROGRAM AT BRIDGENORTH

Softball, Races, Horseshoe Pitching on the Holiday.

The Bridgenorth Community Park Association are holding a big sports' day on Monday, September 1 (Labor Day). There will be softball games, races and a horseshoe pitching tournament.

In the softball games, three of the leading teams of the Peterborough City League will participate. Harrison's, Westclox and Sugar Bowl will be the participants. A good series can be expected in the senior class from these teams. There will be also a number of teams entered in the junior class, mostly from Bridgenorth.

In the horseshoe pitching tournament the cream of the barnyard golfers will be on deck to show their wares. There will be races of various distances for everybody.

The Community Park Association are staging this big sports day to secure funds to improve the Community Park, where they have a softball diamond and horseshoe courts. The ladies will serve light lunches on the grounds.

SOFTBALL FINAL IS CALLED OFF

Sugar Bowl and Trenton Unable to Reach Satisfactory Agreement on Playing Site.

The Softball final slated for this evening in Central School grounds has been called off. It is understood the two teams, Sugar Bowl of this city and Trenton were unable to reach a satisfactory agreement concerning playing site for the third and final game the secretary of the Softball Association here was informed by telegram and telephone that the game would be played here to-night. Trenton's refusal to play here will likely cause Trenton to lose the series by default.

ACADIANS, ONCE BITTER FOES, WORSHIP TOGETHER AT SHRINE

3,000 Descendants of One of Saddest Events in History Gather at Grand Pre.

WEAR ANCIENT COSTUMES

(By Berton E. Robinson, Special to The Extaminer. Copyright 1930)

GRAND PRE, N.S., Aug. 29.—For one brief day at least, the spirit of Evangeline hovered about the marshes and moors which were her home two centuries ago, and watched maidens whose forefathers she know, dressed in the ancient kirtle and Norman cap, mingle with those of English descent in a common ceremony of remembrance of the Expulsion of the Acadians, by common consent one of the saddest events of history.

Above three thousand people, representative of two races and four nations, on August 20th watched as the first guard since 1775 marched upon the little park grounds now sacred to the Acadian people, and formed in two files along the narrow walk leading to the shrine. French Marines from the warship Aldebaran formed the right file, and His Majesty's Canadian Marines formed the left.

Pontifical High Mass for the souls of those who lie buried in the churchyard was sung in the morning, and the afternoon was devoted to speeches in both French and English from important visitors, and to fraternizing between the French and English who were present.

The ceremony was far more than mere speech-making, however. Beneath the celebration, which, on the surface, differed not at all from hundreds of others of its kind, lay an intangible spirit of friendly relations, of common sympathy, between two people who, not so many years ago, were bitterest enemies, showed itself throughout the whole ceremony, and was particularly visible in the speeches of those of both races.

For one day only the ancient willows and dykes looked once again upon the costumes and heard the language of two centuries ago. With the sunset, all, both Acadians and English were gone.

But for one day the Acadians have returned as a symbol of peace and understanding. And the thought of all who attended was ably summed up by Mr. Justice A. T. LeBlanc, of New Brunswick, in his opening words: "If there still be any enmity, let us bury it to-day under the shadow of this cross."

A BEDTIME STORY

by Howard R Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SEA TRIP.

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Daddicums, will you please make Jingle stop pushing me off the raft?" cried Jangle.

"Daddicums will you please make Buster stop splashing me?" cried Tingle.

"Unkie Wig," spoke Baby Bunty, 'if Buster doesn't stop teetering up and down this raft is going to be shipwrecked!"

"Oh dear me!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily who was stretched out under the shade of a big umbrella stuck up in the crack of his driftwood raft. "Why can't you children be nice and quiet?"

"Ike us!" said Tootsie, who, with Wopsie and Popsie, two other wee little rabbits, sat on the edge of the raft. They dangled their toes in the water.

"Yes, you are very good," Uncle Wiggily said, moving a bit to get more in the shade of the umbrella, for the sun was hot. "And we don't want — CUT this raft to be shipwrecked, that's sure, Baby Bunny. So please stop teetering up and down, Custer," he told the boy rabbit.

He sent him into the water with a splash.

"All right, Daddicums," Custer answered. And then he gave his brother Buster a push and sent him into the water with a splash. But Buster could swim so it didn't matter. But when he paddled back to the raft Buster reached up to get hold of Custer's leg to pull him into the ocean, only, by mistake Buster got hold of Baby Bunty's little short tail and pulled her in and she screamed and there was a great time.

"But it 'ots of fun!" said Wopsie, rolling around on the raft.

When Uncle Wiggily, who was spending the summer in a seaweed bungalow at the ocean beach, found that his little rabbits were knocked down by the big, heavy waves, he made, out of driftwood boards, a raft which floated just off shore where the water wasn't very deep.

Each day the smaller bunnies, who couldn't swim, were carried out to the raft by Uncle Wiggily and put aboard. There they could play and dabble in the water without danger of being knocked down by a big waves and rolled over and over in the sand.

Through the raft, which was like a big, flat boat, was only for the smaller bunny boys and girls, in time the larger children also began to play on it, and Uncle Wiggily didn't like to tell them to keep off. Though sometimes there was such a load on the raft that it sank down deep in the water, even though it had a lot of red, green and yellow toy balloons tied to the edges, like water wings, to keep it afloat.

"Suppose something should happen to the raft when a lot of our children were on it?" asked Mrs. Longears of her husband one day.

"Oh, nothing could happen," he answered with a jolly laugh. "The raft is anchored fast and only a big storm could tear it loose. And if there is a big storm I won't take any of our children out on it so everything will be all right."

But something did happen! Sit tight and I'll tell you about it.

After Uncle Wiggily had made his raft, as I told you in the story last night, the rabbit gentleman didn't want it flipping and flopping all over the ocean so he anchored it, or made it fast by fastening a heavy stone to a rope, made of twisted seaweed, and tying the other end of the rope to the raft.

At first the rabbit children played rather quietly on Uncle Wiggily's raft, for it teetered and tautered so, as all rafts do, that they were a bit timid. But when they found that it did not tip over, as a small boat often does, and when they found it was large (like the Lady Mouse Teacher's platform in the Hollow Stump School) why, they even had games of tag, chasing one another around and around the raft.

So it came to pass this day when something happened, that the bunny boys and girls, with Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the dogs, and Curly and Floppy Twistytail, the pigs, were having lots of fun on the raft and Uncle Wiggily was lying in the shade of an umbrella trying to read a book made with rubber leaves so the water wouldn't wet them.

All of a sudden Baby Bunty looked toward shore and shouted:

"Oh, we're moving! We're sailing!"

"No!" cried Uncle Wiggily, sitting up so quickly that he upset his shade umbrella. "We can't be moving. The raft is anchored by the twisted seaweed rope."

"Oh, was that our anchor rope?" asked Buster who had been ducking Custer. "I didn't know that and I untied it and it dropped down in the water, Daddicums."

"Then we are sailing on a sea trip for the raft is loose!" said Uncle Wiggily. "All right, my jolly sea dogs, sea pigs and sea rabbits!" he said. 'Ahoy! All aboard! We're off on an ocean trip! This umbrella shall be our sail." Then the wind blew on the umbrella which Mr. Longears held in his paws and away the raft sailed on a strange voyage.

And if the new baby doesn't start walking on her hands instead of her feet after she eats her rubber ball, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's shipwreck.

ASTONISHED BY RUSS POVERTY

Soviet Beggars and Drunkards Amazed British Labor Man.

LIVING COST HIGH.

LONDON, Aug. 29—Joseph Toole, Labor member of Parliament for the manufacturing district of South Salford and Manchester, returned home from a visit to Russia yesterday with the impression that the Soviet system would not suit Britain.

In a remarkable review on the Russian situation Mr. Toole declares that Moscow's annual conferences for extending Soviet control over the whole world "would more appropriately be held in a lunatic asylum."

He says he will resist any attempt at interference in Russia's internal affairs and will vote for British credits to stimulate Russian trade, but the contrast with the picture of conditions there painted by the Left Wing British Labor movement and what he actually saw when he slipped away from official couriers astonished him.

"I have never seen such abject poverty in the world never so many beggars or so many drunkards in any European or American city," he says, " as I saw in these Russian cities of Leningrad and Moscow. The cost of living is appallingly high. The average wage of the Russian industrial worker in round figures is $27 a month.

"Against this, poor quality butter costs $4.90 a pound. Clothing, shoes, meat, bread, soap and the general necessaries of life are all rationed out, and women and children are seen standing in lines with ration tickets waiting for their share of the scanty supplies. I paid $1.50 for four wild pears, the same for a cauliflower, $5 for a chicken and a mile ride in a droshky also cost $5.

"Every effort was made at my hotel to give visitors the best obtainable and to create a good impression, but when I could evade the official guides without whom nobody is supposed to see or learn anything in Russia, I was told in English that I was getting better food than other people obtain."

Mr. Toole says he was warned that he was being spied on all the time, but he adds that nobody attempts to organize any opinion adverse to continuance of the Soviet control, because any person expressing such an opinion would immediately be arrested and shot without trial. Every ten or fifteen minutes armed squads of the Red Guard parade the streets and in the face of that display of force there is no room for any opinion to be expressed about the existing system in Rusia except the opinion which the government wishes to prevail in the world."

Mr. Toole estimates there is fifty years' work awaiting road menders, engineers and makers of tractors and plows. Moscow's tramcars, he says, have not seen paint for years, and the motor buses are nearly all worn out.

"What would the British workers say," he concludes, "to a system which results in a pint of home-brewed ale costing 85 cents?"

WIND DAMAGE IS EVERYONE'S CONCERN

Second only to fire in capacity for destructiveness, high winds wreak damage almost everywhere, at almost any time.

June, "Month of Roses," has a bad record for windstorms. And there is no insurance against such destruction as may be wrought by gales and tornadoes except a specific Windstorm Policy. However, the cost is very moderate, as we'll be glad to prove.

IMPROVEMENT WORK CLARADAY DISTRICT

Laying Sidewalks on Gordon Avenue — Other Residents Petition Council for Work.

The work of local improvement is being carried out in the Claraday section. A number of men, under the supervision of Mr. Hickey, are at present engaged in laying cement sidewalks on Gordon Avenue. Residents in other streets in the vicinity have petitioned the Township Council for similar improvement, and it is understood the work will continue on Lock Street, Braidwood Avenue, and Payne Street. Fradette Avenue presents a much improved appearance, since the work was finished there two weeks ago.

TARZAN OF THE APES No. 49 (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan of the Apes needed no interpreter to translate the story of those distant shots. With incredible rapidity he was swinging through the trees straight toward the savages' village. White men, men of his own race, might even now be suffering the agonies of torture. On he sped.

Presently he caught the reflection of a distant blaze. Ah—he was not quite too late! The death blow had not been struck. From the nearest tree Tarzan coiled his rope. Then there arose suddenly above the fiendish cries of the dancing demons, the awful challenge of the ape-man.

The rope sped with singing whir above the blacks' heads. A huge fellow lunged backward; struggling and shrieking, his body moved toward the trees. Then straight into the air, disappearing into the foliage. The blacks, screaming with fright, raced madly for the village gate. D'Arnot was left alone!

Now from the trees came a crash and the black came sprawling to earth again, to lie quietly where he had fallen. Immediately after came a white body, alighting erect. D'Arnot saw a clean-limbed young giant emerge and come quickly to him.... Some new creature of torture, doubtless.

Without a word Tarzan of the Apes cut the bonds that held the Frenchman. Weak from suffering and loss of blood, he would have fallen but for the strong arm that caught him. He felt himself lifted from the ground. There was a sensation as of flying. Then he lost consciousness.

WEDDING BELLS

DALTON—THOMSON

TORONTO, Aug. 29.—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at Salem Presbyterian Church amid a profusion of gladioli and dahlias on Tuesday, Aug. 12th, when Dorothy A., younger daughter of James Thomson, of Dobbinton, was united in marriage to Benjamin F. Dalton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dalton, of Peterborough. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. A. H. Wilson.

The bride, who looked charming in a simple gown of shell pink georgette, carried a beautiful bouquet of butterfly roses and delphinium and wore the gift of the groom, an amethyst dinner ring, entered on the arm of her father to the strains of wedding music played by Miss Freeda Manery, her cousin.

The only attendants were the bride's twin niece and nephew, Jack and Jacqueline Thomson.

Following the ceremony a luncheon was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Jacklin, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dalton left by motor to spend the next few weeks camping at the Kawartha Lakes.

For travelling the bride wore a brown silk tweed ensemble.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Dalton will reside in Toronto.

TWO FINE FISH.

Caught by B. W. Edwards, of Warren, Ohio, while on a fishing vacation at Oak Orchard Lodge, a monster lunge weighing 27 pounds, with a length of 48 inches and girth 19 inches, was seen reposing on ice to-day outside George Robertson's store on George Street.

Another fish of remarkable size was landed by Bob, the seven-year-old son of Harry Joppling last evening at Chemong Lake, near Bridgenorth. Bob's fish, a large-mouthed green bass, weighed six pounds and measured 22 inches from "stem to stern."

MUSIC DAY.

It was music day at the Kiwanis Club to-day, and Martin Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and a group of musical artists supplied a splendid program. Soloists were Miss Bertha Hill and George Coleman, and Martin Chenhall, Jr., played several 'cello numbers.

IN MEMORIAM.

CASEY. — In fond and loving memory of John Casey, who crossed the Great Divide, August 29, 1928. Laid away, but not forgotten.

We shall sleep, but not for ever,
There will be a glorious dawn!
We shall meet, to part, no, never,
On the resurrection morn!
From the deepest caves of ocean,
From the desert and the plain,
From the valley and the mountain,
Countless throngs shall rise again
When we see a precious one
That we tended with such care,
Rudely taken from our bosom,
How our aching hearts despair!
Round that grave we linger
Till the setting sun is low,
Feeling all our hopes have perished
With the one we cherished so.
We shall sleep, but not for ever,
In the lone and silent grave;
Blessed be the Lord that taketh,
Blessed be the Lord that gave.
In the bright, eternal city,
Death can never, never come!
In his own good time He'll call us
From our rest to home, sweet home.

—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

TENNIS PLAY-OFFS HERE ON SATURDAY

Campbellford and Oshawa Will Play Off on Local Courts.

Saturday afternoon, Aug. 30, if the weather is favorable, will see the largest gathering of tennis players that has taken place in Peterborough for many years. The Campbellford and Oshawa teams, who are tied for first place in the eastern section of the Central Ontario League, are staging their play-off on the local courts, while Peterborough and Bowmanville are playing their regular schedule match. It is expected that a number of followers of tennis from out of town will be present to witness the matches—and the afternoon's play is certain to develop several close matches with high-grade play.

The team to represent Peterborough will be as follows:
1st Men's Singles—G. C. Scott.
2nd Men's Singles—H. Wilson.
1st Men's Doubles—J. Wilson and Sturgeon.
2nd Men's Doubles—V. S. Foster and G. R. Langley.
Ladies' Singles—Mrs. C. D. Hewett.
Ladies' Doubles—Mrs. G. R. Langley and Mrs. W. M. Cruthers.
Mixed Doubles—Mrs. W. E. Jackson and H. R. Sills.

BRITISH POLICE LEAD WOUNDED IN INDIA

CALCUTTA, India, August 29 (C. P.). — F. J. Lowman, Acting Inspector-General of Police, and E. Hodson, Superintendent of Police, were both shot and seriously wounded to-day while leaving the Mitford Hospital at Dacca.

A revolver was the weapon used. A hospital employee seized the Bengali youth firing the shots but could not hold him, and he escaped, leaving behind his gun and slippers. Later two Bengali youths were arrested on suspicion in connection with the crime.

SITE FOR POWER TO BE DECIDED BY COMMISSION

Problem of Developing Hydro-Electric Resources Confronts New York.

ALSO BRIDGE PROJECT.

Cruise Begins From Alexandria Bay—Several Sites Visited.

ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., Aug. 30—A quest for the solution of two problems of the St. Lawrence River, harnessing its power and spanning it with an international bridge, began today with the departure from this village of Governor Roosevelt and members of two commissions named for those purposes.

The commission named to study and suggest a plan for developing the Hydro Electric resources of the river and that created to make a survey looking to the construction of an international bridge left here with the Governor, Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, State Superintendent of Public Works, and Major Thomas F. Farrell, State Engineer, aboard the state yacht, "Inspector."

As the party cruised down the river, halting at several sites proposed for an international bridge, the two commissions planned to organise and decide upon such questions as the corps of special engineers, financial experts and legal advisors which they will need in their survey, and for which the Legislature provided in creating the commissions.

Data Already Prepared

Both power and bridge commissions began work with data already before them. The bridge commission had reports of preliminary studies made on several occasions when proposals for an international span were made.

The most important material at the disposal of the power commission was the report of the joint board of engineers made several years ago and which gave data not only on the single dam on the Long Sault, generally favored by United States engineers, but reported the result of studies of Canadian plan for a two-stage dam. The joint report also took into consideration the proposal for a ship canal, which the act, creating the present commission, failed to mention.

Both commissions must submit reports to the Governor and Legislature early next year.

CITY SOLICITOR'S POST IS UNFILLED

Choice to Succeed Joseph Wearing Left Until Council Meets Tuesday.

TROUBLE WITH BANK.

No appointment has yet been made by the City Council to the office of City Solicitor, left vacant by the elevation of Joseph Wearing to the bench. A meeting of the Committee of the Whole was held last evening for that purpose, but the Council decided to leave the choice until the Council meeting Tuesday night.

It is likely that the local Bar Association, Kiwanis Club and City Council will join in a large banquet to honor Jdge Wearing, review happy associations with him, and wish him success in his new position in London. This dinner will be held at the Empress Hotel very soon.

Unfair Bank Treatment

Only ordinary routine business was transacted by the Finance Commttee except that the aldermen were strongly of the opinion that the city was unfairly treated by the bank in which the city's funds are kept. This bank, it was stated, charges interest day by day on overdraughts by the city but will only pay interest on deposits in the city's acount by the full month. This arrangement reduces the interest on the city's funds by close to $1,000, stated Chairman Phelan. Unless some other system is made it appears likely that the Council will change the accoun.o another bank.

Drunken Man Is Burned To Death For Fun By Boys

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Aug. 30.—A drunken man was burned to death "for fun" here Aug. 13 by three boys according to confessions the police said they had obtained from the trio. The boys—eight, nine and 13 years old respectively — said they bound James Wright, 69, to a tree when he staggered into a junk yard, and then piled brush and paper over his body. They set a match to the pyre and then fled. Police held them as juvenile delinquents.

TOURIST'S CAR YIELDS $1,000 LIQUOR CARGO

Cornwall Police Seize Auto and Contents—$100 Fine Levied.

SPRINGS "DOCTORED."

Large Still Uncovered in Burford Township—Two Arrested.

CORNWALL, Aug. 30.—Provincial Officers Spearman and Woods made a valuable haul of contraband Quebec liquor when they arrested E J. Daoust of Detroit and A. MacCarty of Essex, the former drivin an automobile, with twenty dozen bottles of liquor stored in the rumble seat. Yesterday Daoust, who plealed guilty, was fined $100 and costs and the car and liquor were confiscated.

The automobile was valued at close to $2,000, and the liquor at about $1,100, and these amounts, with a fine of $100 and costs, which Daoust paid, made the trip a rather expensive one, and the haul one of the largest made locally for a long time. Daoust said he was only doing a favor for a friend who was going on a hunting trip, but an examination of the car showed it to be fully rigged out to carry booze, as the rear springs had been "doctored," and did not sag with the load they carried, so his excuse was not considered plausible.

STILL IS FOUND

BRANTFORD, Aug. 30.—A still in full blast, turning out a quart of whiskey of a kind, every five minutes, was discovered on a Burford Township farm yesterday afternoon by Provincial Officers Campbell and Narkle, the latter of Woodstock.

The officers came upon the crude distillery in a swamp, the man in charge being all unaware of their arrival until he faced their questions. The still was going strong, with everything working right. The officers seized the plant, consisting of the worm and other parts, also a big container that had to be emptied for transportation purposes, about twenty gallons for evidence.

The operator, Leon Halarawich, was arrested, and, as the men were chatting, the owner of the farm came in, and was arrested too. He pretended to be unaware of the affair, but the children near by gave evidence that he knew all about it, much to the man's discomfiture.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS AND COLLEGIATE ARE RENOVATED

Property Committee of Board of Education Inspects Work.

INDUSTRIAL LABORATORY.

Modern Facilities Installed in New Department at Collegiate Institute.

Students returning to Peterborough's public and secondary schools on Tuesday morning after a ten-weeks' holiday will find that numerous changes have taken place during the summer months, and at the same time will face the year's work under the best conditions which have obtained for some time.

Members of the Committee of the Board of Education this week made their annual tour of inspection of the schools and viewed what was declared to be the most extensive set of alterations in recent years. The complete renovation and repainting of old Central School and the installation of a new industrial laboratory in the Collegiate constitute the major works of the summer months.

"The Peterborough schools were never all in quite so good shape as they are today" declared Alexander Mowat, Inspector of Public Schools. "And this condition is due largely to the energy of Mr. Dutton as Chairman of the Property Committee. I may say that there are not many towns or cities the size of Peterborough that have a better set of buildings."

Old Schools Rejuvenated

The two buildings of Central School—the one 80 and the other 50 years old—have received their first complete paint job, both inside and out, for thirty years, with a vast improvement to the general appearance as the result. The rooms and corridors, formerly noteworthy principally on account of their dinginess, have undergone rejuvenation calculated to have a beneficial effect on young scholars.

Representing the greatest expenditure on any one school here in recent years, all of Central's worn-out equipment has been replaced and new refinements added. Metal ceilings have been substituted for the dangerous plaster ones in four of the veteran classrooms. Cowls and covers have been added to the hot air shafts and radiators to prevent blackening of walls and ceilings. Woodwork and desks have been scrubbed, and varnished; ancient gas jets have been removed from the scene and complicated shafting has been removed from the manual training ceiling. In addition, an antique lathe has been taken from the manual training room, sold, and the proceeds devoted to the purchase of three machines for the newer and smaller lathes.

Outside, a new concrete dyke surmounted by an iron railing has been built on the north side against the College street embankment and is to be completed the full length of the embankment in the near future.

The boilers in all the schools have been inspected during the summer and all have been found to be in perfect condition save those at Central and Queen Alexandra schools, which have been thoroughly overhauled.

New Laboratory Equipment

At the Collegiate, the new Industrial Laboratory which has been installed in Room 18, in the basement of the Vocational wing, is marked by the finest equipment and the most modern facilities for work in industrial science.

With the combination of the four teachers' rooms into one room for men teachers and one for women, the old lines of demarcation between teachers of the academic, commercial and industrial departments has been wiped out. New steel lockers have been installed in these rooms.

The fire menace has been minimized by the installation of new fire hose, the adjustment of fixtures, and the purchase of eight modern chemical extinguishers for different parts of the building—including three for the auditorium.

Downstairs new wooden lockers have been introduced for the shoes and equipment of 'gymsters' the big dividing doors in the gymnasium are finally functioning properly due to recent repairs, new cupboards have appeared in the small gym to accommodate the dumbells, while the complicated system of markings on the gym floors has been renewed.

Night Classes

Space for the popular night class in sewing has become a major problem. It has been suggested that

JOWETT PREDICTS THREE DAY WEEK IN NEAR FUTURE

High Wages Be Paid That Men May Consume Goods They Produce.

UPTURN COMING.

Share of England's Unemployment Situation Put on Wall Street Crash.

BALLTIMORE, Aug. 30. —(CP)— A prediction that men in the future all over the world will work but three days a week and be paid high wages was made by Sir William Jowitt, Attorney General of England, who with a group of distinguished European jurists visited Baltimore yesterday. The group planned to go to Philadelphia today.

Sir William, who has been an outstanding member of the Labor Government since 1929 placed a share of the blame for England's unemployment situation on the Wall Street crash last fall.

Speaking of the English situation he said, "I believe the upturn is coming and that England will be among the first to recover.

"The upward trend in the immediate future will result from depletion of stocks of goods turned out in the past and a rate faster than that of world consumption. "I believe that men all over the world eventually will work but three days a week, but will be paid high wages in order that they may consume the goods they produce."

MURDER TRIAL IN JANUARY

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 30. (C.P.)—Paul Eugene Dufour and Ludger Labrie, two youths accused of the murder of Louis Bouchard, a butcher of Ste. Anne de La Pocatiere, will appear before the Criminal Assizes of Riviere-Du-Loup during the next term, January 1931, as the result of a preliminary enquiry which took place yesterday, at Riviere-Du-Loup before Judge Fiset.

British Birth Rate Increases Over 1929

LONDON, Aug. 30.—There is no Malthusian relief for Britain's unemployment crisis in the vital statistics issued today. The number of births in England and Wales for the second quarter of the current year was 170,212 an increase of 600 over the corresponding period of 1929. On the other hand, deaths decreased to 111,357 or 7,408 fewer than during the same quarter of last year.

The births recorded during the second three months of this year indicate an annual rate of 17.2 per 1,000 population. The death rate was only 11.3 per 1,000. The mortality of infants under 1 year of age is given as fifty-seven per 1,000 births, the lowest record for the second quarter of any year.

STAFF CHANGES AT COLLEGIATE

Four New Teachers Engaged—Larger Enrolment Anticipated.

OPENS ON TUESDAY.

"Whenever we have hard times, we have increased enrolment at school," declared H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, in an interview on the eve of th ere-opening of the scholastic year. A record registration at the Collegiate is expected this year, Mr. Kenner stated, and it has been found necessary to divide third form into three sections, instead of two as heretofore. An enrolment of 60 students is expected in the honor matriculation class, while there will be a large increase in the number of rural students.

The adoption of the rotary system, where by students move from class to class while the teachers remain in their own room, is anticipated within the next two or three years as the only solution for the condition of evercrowding which threatens. This system is in operation in

FLIER CRASHES INTO CROWD AT CHICAGO RACES

Small "Home-made" Plane Plunges Before 40,000 Spectators.

THIRD FATALITY.

Miss Martie Bowman's 'Ship' Wrecked By Death Plane.

CURTIS REYNOLDS AIRPORT CHICAGO, Ills. Aug. 30. —A crowd of 40,000 horror-stricken spectators saw the small "home-made" plane of George Fernic, St. George, Stand Isand, N. Y., rise from the field, pause in mid-air, then plunge into a parked plane at the national air races yesterday.

Fernic, a Roumanian, was dead when pulled from the cockpit. His plane demolished a ship in which Miss Martie Bowman of Hempstead, L. I., N. Y., had just completed a closed course race. The famous aviatrix missed death by inches as the falling plane cleft through the fuselage of her ship. She and W. S. Allison of Cleveland had just stepped from her plane and were standing nearby with a group of mechanics. Members of the group scurried to one side ni time to escape injury.

It was the second major crash witnessed by air race fans since the beginning of the meet, and brought the total fatalities to three.

New York Labor Sends Petition to President Hoover.

OPPOSE VOLSTEAD ACT.

BUFFALO, Aug. 30. — A resolution requesting President Hoover to call a special session of Congress for the purpose of appropriating $1,000,000,000 for public construction as a means of relieving unemployment was adopted unanimously by the New York Federation of Labor in annual convention.

The convention previously had rejected, by a vote of 400 to 5, a resolution putting the State Federation on record as favoring a third political party sponsored by organized labor.

The convention adopted a resolution recommending that labor organizations make efforts to have representatives on school boards in all cities.

The federation also unanimously adopted a resolution calling for repeal of the Volstead act.

POLICE ARREST HOUSE BREAKER ON RUBIDGE ST.

Lorne Combe Caught 'Red Handed' With Load of Loot.

HAS PLEADED GUILTY.

Tried to Escape From Police Station—Had Master Keys.

Police believe that they have caught the man responsible for most of the house burglaries in the city during the past year.

Lorne Combe, in his early twenties, married and living at 303 King Street, has been trailed by police on midnight excursions for months past. Early this morning he was arrested as he sneaked out of the back door of 262 Rubidge Street with his arms full of stolen articles.

In Police Court to-day Combe pleaded guilty before Magistrate Langley to a charge of breaking and entering by night in an attempt to commit an indictable offence. He was remanded for sentence, it being likely that other charges of theft will be brought against him.

Saw Light Upstairs.

Constables Thompson and Matthews were out on their rounds last night when they were informed by telephone from the station that there was something peculiar at 303 King Street that would bear investigation. Secreting themselves about the grounds of the house, the constables observed a light moving in the upstairs.

Their suspicions were immediately aroused, since the family occupying the house was away holidaying. They lay in wait for the burglar.

He came out the rear way with a load of small household articles. The constables immediately collared him. The man put up a fight, but was overpowered.

He was taken to the station and identified as Combe. At the station Combe, according to police, pretended to be drunk. Later, while being questioned, he made another break for freedom, running around the table in the guard room, but he was grabbed at the door.

His Second Trip.

This morning he admitted the theft and stated that when arrested he was making his way out of the house with his second haul of loot. The articles included electric light bulbs, extension wire, a pair of boots and skates, books and magazines and other small things such as a safety razor.

In his pocket was found a ring of keys. Several of these were 'masters,' capable of opening almost any house lock. It was established that one key opened the front door of the house and the other the rear.

Combe is employed in a local factory, and is said to be a capable and regular workman.

WON WHEAT PRIZE.

W .W. Dawson, Otonabee, Successful at C.N.E.

W. W. Dawson, of Otonabee, exhibiting at the Canadian National Exhibition in the Field Crop and Better Seed section, took second prize for threshed grain and third prize for grain in sheaf. His success is noteworthy in view of the fact that he exhibited in competition with entries representative of the whole of Ontario.

The grain was late oats grown from O.A.C. 144 registered seed.

Mr. Dawson states he has 200 bushels of cleaned-up prize-winning seed fo rsale. He had 5 acres under crop this year and had a very good yield.

PARTNERS GIVEN KINGSTON TERM OF THREE YEARS

Mowat and MacGillivray Operated Chain of Brokerage Offices.

DEFRAUDED PUBLIC.

Mining Stocks Manipulated — Operations Suspended Last March.

OTTAWA, Ont., August 30 (C.P.). — Harold Mowat and Duncan A. MacGillivray, partners in the defunct brokerage firm which had its head office here, were to-day sentenced to three years each in Portsmouth Penitentiary on charges of conspiring to defraud the public by the manipulation of mining stocks.

The brokerage firm of Mowat & MacGillivray, with offices in Ottawa and throughout the Ottawa Valley, and the Maritimes, with additional branches in Belleville, Cornwall, Pembroke, Perth, and Hawkesbury in Ontario, and in Hull, Three Rivers and Quebec City in the Province of Quebec, began operations in March, 1924, the head office being in the Capital. It conducted its mining operations on the Standard Exchange, the Montreal Curb, and the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

Suspended in March.

In March of this year the firm suspended. Investigation of the firm's affairs was undertaken by the accounting firm of E. R. C. Clarkson & Sons, which was appointed interim receiver.

On March 13 both partners were arrested on charges of conspiracy to defraud the public, and were released on bail of $50,000 each.

They appeared for preliminary hearing three weeks ago, and were committed for trial. They did not again apply for bail and have remained in the cells since that time.

Further charges were laid under Quebec law following an investigation of the Hull office. Warrants were issued, but could not be served owing to the men being in custody of Ontario courts.

VEDAS SIGHTED IN LAKE ERIE

U. S. Coastguards Tighten Blockade to Prevent Liquor Running.

VESSEL LOST AGAIN.

DETROIT, Aug. 30.—According to a report made to Colonel Heinrich A. Pickert, Collector of Customs for this port, the Canadian beer ship Vedas was sighted in Lake Erie in the vicinity of Sister Island. Pickert yesterday made a survey of the area around Trenton where the Vedas was said to be at anchor, but upon his return this afternoon declared he saw nothing of the craft.

Chief Boatswain's Mate C. H. Parker, in charge of the Coast Guard at Trenton, says the Vedas was sighted several days ago. A blockade was immediately established, and he is confident none of the contraband cargo reached this side. The identity of the former British mine-sweeper, according to Parker, was made cetrain by the use of high-powered marine glasses.
